MEETING OF THE PETERBOROUGH FENIAN RAID VETERANS

Lieut.-Col. Ackerman Entertained the Members by Relating Some of His Experiences at the Front—Patriotic Lines From the Pen of a Former Peterborough Girl Were Read at the Meeting

Wednesday evening, of this week, was the occasion of a very pleasant gathering of the members of The
That they all may be strong in
The meeting was held in the Recreation rooms of the Armouries.

President J. W. Miller, chairman.

Lieut.-Col. Ackerman, Mr. J. Crane, and Mr. J. Firth, were guests of the evening.

Col. Ackerman entertained the members by relating some of his experiences at the front and in the trenches. Col. Ackerman made his address more interesting and instructive by using the black board giving diagrams of the different shells now in use.

The construction of the trenches was also an interesting feature.

The members appreciated the kindness of Mr. J. Crane and Mr. J. Firth in contributing some fine selections of song and instrumental accompaniment.

Refreshments and smokes were served during the evening.

The appended patriotic lines were read by one of the members and found favour by those present.

CANADA'S SONS.

Canada's sons have answered the call,
Canada's boys so brave and strong,
Recked they nothing that some would fall,
As shoulder to shoulder they marched along.
Yes, well they knew, but their hearts beat true,
And they cheered each other with laugh and song.

Oh! we are proud of our boys to-day,
We, who would join them if we might,
Gladly to share in the fiercest fray,
Ready to suffer as well as fight.
For fight they must, let us hope and trust
That they alal may be strong in doing right.

Some loving hearts will have cause to mourn,
And eyes not used to tears will weep,
For all who have gone will not return.
And sorrowful vigils some will keep.
But let them know in their deepest woe
That earth a harvest of good will reap.

What is there now for us to do,—
Those of us long since past our prime,—
The years that are left us are but few,
How can we best redeem the time.
Let us live to show our men who go,
For us to forget their work is crime.

Their loved are ours till they return,
Some will come back, but many will fall:
Friends, let it ever be our concern
To do our part, with a willing heart,
For sick and wounded and all who mourn.

—Camilla Sanderson.

Toronto.

The above is from the pen of Miss Camilla Sanderson, a former Peterborough girl. The writer is a daughter of the late Rev. John Sanderson, a former pastor of this district. The lines were read at the meeting by Mr. Richard Sanderson of this city, and a brother of the writer.

A Remarkable New Year Opportunity

Very Special Saturday Offering of

GRAY GRANITE WARE

We have been fortunate in securing what is known as the 1917 Wan[illegible] Syndicate Assortment of Gray Graniteware, which we will place on sale on Saturday. This ware is of good quality, and the assortment covers a very wide range of kitchen equipment, comprising in all, over 1500 pieces, consisting of saucepans, milk and rice boilers, preserving kettles, water pails, dish pans, dairy pans, cake pans, pudding dishes, pie plates, mixing bowls, bread pans, tea and coffee pots, and many other articles necessary to make the furnishing of the kitchen complete.

The prices at which we have marked these goods for Saturday shoppers are so remarkably low that they will surprise you. Major Medd Left For France Last Night

Major S. T. Medd, who two years ago recruited B Squadron of the 8th C.M.R., and went overseas in command of it, left last night on the midnight on his return to duty in France after being at home on sick leave for some weeks. He reports for duty on Feb 1st.

THE WEATHER

The lowest point reached last night was 17 degrees below zero, though the temperature had moderated several degrees towards morning. At the noon hour the mercury stood at 5 degrees above zero.—W.P.

Best bird in English class: Jas. Baptie, Coloured Dorking cock.

The birds were all crated during the night, and were ready for shipment this morning. The G. T. R. handled a carload of birds on the morning trains.

The success of this year's show must be gratifying, not only to the members of the local Poultry Association, who have been most industrious in arranging for it, but also to the city, when it is realized that birds from many sections of the province were shown here. The association has gradually developed a splendid reputation among Provincial fanciers, and the effects in Peterborough are shown by the greater interest that is taken in thorough-bred fowl.

It Cures Others It Will Cure You

About six weeks ago I met with an accident and felt since that time have been unable to raise my arm above my elbow due to injury and rheumatism that set in afterwards. I have been under the Doctor's care ever since but have been unable to receive any benefit from the use of liniments, etc. A few days ago I received a treatment from your demonstrator. That night my arm felt much better and after the third treatment I could use my arm freely.

I am very thankful for the benefit I have derived from your Generator as I would otherwise have had to leave my battalion (176th) which is going overseas shortly.

I purchased a Branston Violet Ray Generator and used it for rheumatism. It certainly has done me good, as I have been troubled with it for 14 years or more and am now practically cured.

I am deriving a wonderful cure for falling hair with your Generator. I can see a change every week.

It Cures Others It Will Cure You

It is only fair that I should write and tell you that the Generator I purchased from you a few months ago has entirely cured my Neuritis. The best Doctors and high priced specialists treated me without success, and I can confidently state that I owe my restoration to complete health and strength to the Branston Generator.

I purchased one of the Branston Violet Ray Generators and I am happy to state that I have received great benefit. It has saved me from going to the Hotel Dieu for an operation.

I was suffering intense pain with Rheumatism in my left ankle and it was very much swollen. After three or four applications of the Branston Violet Ray the swelling was greatly reduced and the pain has entirely left.

At present my ankle could not feel better and I am able to walk on it for hours with no pain or swelling at all. This I consider very remarkable as I could not put my foot on the floor before without suffering a great deal.

Russia's Premier Born in Prussia

The accident of birth may or may not be significant in the appointment of Prince Golitsine of Galtsine, who succeeds M. Trepoff as Premier says the New York Times. He was born in Wiesbaden, Prussia, fifty-six years ago, and in 1887 married Olga Semenovna, who then became known as Princess Dmitri Petrovitch Golitsine-Mouravline. This name "Mouravline" is the pseudonym ever which her husband writes:

The Prince has been a member of the Council of Ministers for several years, and has besides held general executive offices principally concerned with charity.

In no European chancellery have so important and repeated changes been made in the last twelve months as in Russia's. The causes are as numerous and conflicting as they are mysterious—the attempt of the Baltic Germanic-Russians to control the Czar and Duma; and the final revolt of the latter against the pro-German sentiment of the Sturmer administration last November, which had indicated that Russia was prepared to seek a separate peace.

Within the last fourteen months there have been eight successive holders of the portfolio of the Interior now administered by M. Protopopoff, former Vice President of the Duma, who when he became Minister last Autumn spoke for equal rights for Jews and the immediate renewal of commercial treaties with the United States.

On Feb. 1, 1916, M. Sturmer succeeded M. Goremykin as Premier, and on July 23 he also took over the portfolio of Foreign Affairs from the veteran Sazonoff. In the meantime, on March 29, General Chonvalev replaced General Polivanoff as Minister of War.

The dropping of Sturmer after his defeat in the Duma in the middle of November, and, as it was supposed, of his questionable policies, occurred on November 24, when Alexander Trepoff was appointed to succeed him as Premier, and the next day M. Neratoff, Assistant Minister for Foreign Affairs, was made Foreign Minister. Already on Nov. 9 M. Krivoshein had been relieved of the portfolio of Agriculture.

It appears, however, that there was some hitch to M. Neratoff's appointment, for on Dec. 14 it was officially stated that M. Pokrovsky, Controller of the Empire, has been appointed Foreign Minister, his place being filled by M. Feodossieff, Deputy Minister of Finance.

Nicolas Nicolaievitch Pokrovsky had been for many years in the Financial Department, and has an intimate acquaintance with all the allied statesmen.

On the very day that Germany issued her note inviting the belligerents to a peace conference, Dec. 12, M. Trpoff, in the name of the Czar, ratified the compact of the Entente in a speech to the Duma, and a few days later, before the same body announced the agreement of the Allies that Russia had a just claim to Constantinople and to the straits leading from the Aegean to the Black Sea.

Peeress Tells of Her Success With War Economy

LONDON.—The Times says:

"A month ago the Women's Branch of the National War Savings Committee sent a series of questions to Peeresses and wives of members of Parliament. About a hundred replies have already been received. A number of them show that some women at least are endeavoring to cut expenses.

One Peeress writes that her husband is "cutting down indoors and out, putting an end to all luxury."

NO MAIDS, NO TOBACCO.

She personally is doing without a maid, while His Lordship has dispensed with his valet, tobacco and spirits. Chocolates, theatres, motoring, travelling and visiting have been cut out, and there is no more entertaining of shooting parties.

Economy is being practised in the matter of clothing, evening dresses being tabooed.

The writer continues:

"The castle is being closed; only a few rooms in one corner are occupied. We dismissed all the staff except the women, thus making drastic reductions possible in every direction. Outdoors, no eligible men have been kept on the estate. Girls are employed instead of men in the gardens and potatoes are grown in the flower beds. The lawns are used for hay. The stock in the deer park has been systematically reduced for food supply and the keepers have gone.

NO EFFECT ON PEOPLE.

The wife of a member of Parliament writes:

"Personally I economise in every way we can. I now have only three servants, I have given up my maid and motor cars and never eat meat more than once a day. I have no bedroom fire, and buy no clothes; every penny goes into war loan exchequer bonds.

"I sold all my American securities but don't find my example makes the slightest effect upon our surroundings. We hold meetings constantly, but people hate them, as they ate having the time of their lives."

Officers Elected By Mothers' Club Of The Y.M.C.A.

The regular meeting of the Mothers' Club of Y.M.C.A. was held at the association building on Wednesday, Jan. 10th.

As this is the parent Mothers' Organization of the city, reports from the Mothers' Circles of the schools were received. These reports showed that much had been accomplished, largely in Red Cross work.

The work of the Y.M.C.A. Mothers' Club has been the consideration and investigation of current problems closely related to the homes. Several pleasant and helpful social events have also been conducted.

Parents' Night was held at the Association building in March, when one hundred and fifty parents of the boys met and listened to a fine address by Mrs. John Allan. This was followed by a social hour.

Very helpful addresses have been given throughout the year by Dr. Harvey, on "The Mother and Child," by Captain Pearson, on the Y.M.C.A. work at the front; also by Mrs. James Kendry, on "The High Cost of Living."

Mrs. J. F. Canniff gave an excellent paper on the "Education of the Child," and Rev. J. R. Webb's address on the "Dignity of Motherhood," was much appreciated.

The treasurer's report showed a balance of $7.75.

Pres., Mrs. C. N. Meserve.
1st Vice-Pres., Mrs. M. A. Morrison.
2nd Vice-Pres., Mrs. Charles Rishor.
Rec.-Sec., Mrs. W. J. Lamb.
Treas., Mrs. George Grange.
Cor.-Sec., Mrs. J. D. Craig.

British Holding Heaviest Front

GENERAL MAURICE ISSUES AN ENLIGHTENING STATEMENT.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—In discussing with the Associated Press yesterday the new line which the British have taken over in France, Major-General F. B. Maurice, chief director of military operations at the war office, replied to the frequently uttered criticism based on the fact that Great Britain with her great army, holds only a comparatively small portion of the western front. He stated that the ninety miles held by the British has as many Germans along its front as the 230 miles extending from the Swiss border to Rheims.

Government To Put Soldiers on Farms

OTTAWA Jan. 11—Representatives of the Federal and Provincial Governments are holding a round-table conference in Ottawa to deal with a pressing problem of great importance—that of dealing with the returned soldiers. Application of the "back to the land" policy will be the principal means of taking care of the soldiers. There will need to be co-operative action, because while, in the west, the title of the public domain rests with the Federal Government, in all the other provinces Crown lands are vested in the provincial governments. The interchange of views has shown that the provinces are ready to supplement, within their territory, the legislation of the Dominion Government as regards land grants to soldiers in federally owned lands. Similarly, co-operation is proposed in lines of technical and vocational education fitting for employment in new lines of activity those soldiers who come back with physical disabilities preventing them from following their erstwhile callings.

DOMINION GOVT. PLANS.

A bill relating to land settlement, drafted largely by Sir Thomas White, to be presented to Parliament shortly, contemplates the setting aside of good agricultural lands, available not only to returned soldiers, but also to the widows of those who have fallen. A Government commission of three will administer the lands in question. It is intended to provide agricultural instructors who, before and after the men take up land, will train them in the principles of the work, likewise, there will be domestic science teachers. Each settler will get an advance of $1,500 towards building, stock and equipment, without interest being charged. A further advance of $1,000 may be made on the recommendation of the supervising commission.

RESTRICTION ON SELLING.

A settler who has lived three years on his farm and repaid one-half of the advance may dispose of his rights, but others may sell out only with the commission's consent.

Case To Go To The Privy Council

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 12.—The Divisional Court at Osgoode Hall here has sustained the lower Court's decision, setting aside the writ issued at Welland, Ontario, by the Electrical Development Co. against the Hydro Commission and Attorney-General of Ontario. This is another skirmish in the fight between Sir Wm. McKenzie power interests and the Ontario Hydro. The case will go now to the Privy Council.

POULTRY EXHIBITOR INJURED AT OSHAWA

W. J. Munroe, of Oshawa, one of the prominent exhibitors at the Poultry Show, met with a serious accident while at work the day after he had expressed his birds to Peterborough. Some exhibitors merely forward their entries and leave the care of them to the local management. Mr. Munroe narrowly escaped losing both arms while at work in an Oshawa factory, and is laid up at his home.

The Store of Better Values

FAR LESS DRUNKENNESS.

London, January 11.—The central liquor control board's statement of the results of its operations shows that in twenty of the largest towns of Great Britain, where the weekly average convictions for drunkenness totalled 2,415, its operations had reduced to number to 1,372, or about 43 per cent. In the English towns there had been a decrease of over 46 per cent. in the weekly average of drunkenness convictions. Scotch towns shows a reduction of 35 per cent.

Beer and spirits retained for home consumption in the United Kingdom for eight months of the financial year are eighteen million barrels of beer against nearly twenty-one millions in the corresponding period last year; while spirits have decreased from twenty-one million gallons to fourteen millions. Suicides and cases of delirium tremens are also very much smaller since the board's restrictions of the liquor trade began.

The board now controls 170 licensed houses; twenty seven of these sell no alcohol, and sixty others will soon do likewise. Five hundred and fourteen canteens are at work providing meals and refreshments for 1,900,000 munition workers. In addition there are sixty canteens, supplying transport workers at the docks. Over two hundred are being provided from current profits of controlled establishments and the total allowance made from current profits is well over $2,000,000.

HIST! SEMI-ANNUAL LONELY SALE ON TO-MORROW

A BRIEF STATEMENT

SOME men never patronize a sale, some never buy unless there is one. Both hold radical views. Its a case of "head I win, tale you lose." But the man who requires an overcoat, suit or other article, at a time when a reliable clothing house says "$25 Suits for $17.85," & pledges that such is the case, it is then sound business and good judgement for him to purchase, and he strikes a happy medium. We assure you that every item is what the former price indicates.

FACTS TERSELY TOLD

THIS Sale is held annually and patrons look forward to its arrival. Its object and achievement is to stimulate trade in January, which would otherwise be a dull month. The name "Lonely" is because the garments offered are broken lines. The assortment is liberal, and contains all sizes. Each year its success increases; we can trace it to but one source "the remarkable values". Purchasers at former sales will uphold these statements had frozen in the intense cold of the afternoon, and the fire spread from building No. 39 to eight carloads of trinitoluol that were on a siding next to the building. The explosives puffed out in huge flares, driving the firemen back in all directions, and the plant was abandoned to the fire.

Gigantic Explosion In Munition Plant

Workmen Storm Gates.

Meanwhile the other workmen, dropping their tools and swarming toward the exits at the sound of the fire whistle, had made their way to the iron fence, topped with barbed wire, which surrounded the grounds. Here the armed guards were on patrol, and their commander, Harvey D. Hatch, was trying to herd the frightened men out by the regular gates through which they come to and leave the plant every day.

But not many of them would wait for the gates. They poured in a pushing, frantic throng to the nearest point of the fence and literally rolled over it, barbed wire and all, by the dozens. Many of them said afterward that the guards had tried to restrain them, to push them all back through the gates, but at any rate they all got out as far as could be ascertained. There were stories of twenty or thirty men locked in a building who had never been seen after the flames broke out, but it was impossible to get anything like authentication of these statements. The retreat signal was given to the last fighting rear guard of the fire brigade a little after 4 o'clock, twenty minutes after the fire started, and Chief MacArthur said that everybody else was out before his men dropped their hose and fled from the rolling sheets of flame that were spreading in every direction.

A Telephone Heroine.

As a matter of fact, it appears that the last person out was Tessie McNamara, who operated the telephone switchboard in the factory. From the time the blaze was first discovered she was busy getting into communication with the various departments, making sure that nobody had been overlooked, and when at last it was time for her to leave she was exhausted and partly overcome. But Fred Walters, one of the office force, had stayed behind with her and he picked her up and carried her through the main gate while the shells were falling all around them.

From building twenty-eight the fire spread to eleven cars full of loaded shells on the Lackawanna tracks, and then began the bombardment. Like the steady firing of many batteries of 75's the shells exploded one after the other, the projectiles rising high into the sky and falling in long arcs on all sides of the plant.

350 CUPS FROM A POUND OF THIS TEA.

The increased cost of tea in the country of origin and enormously advanced ocean freight rates have forced up the price of "SALADA," but only five cents a pound as yet. However, as "SALADA" will yield 350 cups of delicious tea to the pound, it is still far and away the cheapest of all beverages, and more than that, possesses a unique flavour of unequalled quality.

"Win the War" Loan Meets With A Ready Response

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Jan. 12. — The Bank of England smashed all tradition to-day by opening its doors before nine o'clock in response to the demands of eager throngs outside demanding hundreds of copies of the prospectus on 'win the war' loans.

Big Chance For Thrift

It is pointed out that the epicure at a sitting may eat, drink and smoke the equivalent of munitions to astartling amount; the follower of fashion may waste still more on dress; and yet a greater indictment can be levelled against luxurious indolence. A series of comparative values has been worked out broadly thus:

10s., saved on feasting, equals eighty cartridges.

Bottle of champagne equals 100 cartridges.

Box of cigars equals 400 acrtridges.

New dress equals four service rifles.

Diamond tiara equals one field gun.

Piano equals 100 shells.

Lap dog equals twenty shells.

Berlin Suburb Pays Out $10,000 To Food Fraud Band

Offered Carloads of Food Diverted from the Army by Underground Methods, Paid Over Money, and Received Useless Keys in Return.

BERLIN, Jan. 12. — Neukoelen, a suburb of Greater Berlin, has been the victim of a clever food swindle, and is mourning the loss of 210,000 marks which it paid three crooks for non-existing carloads of sausage and bacon. The swindlers informed the suburban officials that the food, supposedly military property, was at Aix-la-Chapelle, but could be procured for the sum mentioned. The officials agreed on the purchase and to pay the money through the Essen bank on presentation of duplicate bills of lading.

Through a forged manifest the crooks collected the money and disappeared after leaving with a Neukoelen official the supposed keys to the freight cars. The official waited a week before cautiously enquiring as to the whereabouts of the food, only to discover that it did not exist.

To Rebuild Rheims Cathedral As Soon As Not Dangerous

Paris, January 12. — Albert Dalimier, under-secretary for fine arts, has made a brief statement regarding the Rheims cathedral, which, it has been reported the pope is very anxious to have restored and has asked permission to this end from the German authorities.

"Orders were given by the French Government for provisional repairs to the roofs of the Cathedral in Autumn, 1914,' said' M. Dalimier, "but we were unable to begin work without an agreement with the military authorities, and they begged us to do nothing. They pointed out that the cathedral was still under German fire, that from Nogent LaHassee, where the batteries firing on the town were installed, everything that passed could be distinctly seen, and that workmen on the cathedral would therefore be sure to be observed and fired upon. When the situation permits the work will be undertaken."

PLAN FOR WOMEN IN AUSTRALIA TO MARRY BY PROXY

SYDNEY, Jan. 11.—Mr. Hughes has introduced a Bill in the Federal Parliament making provision for women domiciled in Australia to marry soldiers at the front by proxy.

The Bill was desired by several Australian women's organizations on the ground that the duration of the war was greatly disturbing the normal cause of engagements. It was argued that prolonged absences made for uncertainty, and that immediate marriages, where desired, would make the position of the women secure and entitle her to the usual separation allowances.

Very many hundreds of Australian soldiers have married English girls while in England. A desire was expressed also by soldiers, who did not expect to be away from home so long when they enlisted. The example of the French law was much quoted in the controversy.

Bavarian King Urges A Peace By Conquest

SAYS IT "MUST BE HONORABLE, LASTING, AND WORTH GIGANTIC SACRIFICES."

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 12.—The Munich correspondent of the Dusseldorf General Anzeiger, a copy of which has been received here quotes the following address delivered by the King of Bavaria on the occasion of a garrison parade in honour of his birthday, Jan. 7:

"Although we are victorious, the German Emperor, in agreement with his allies, offered to conclude a peace. The offer was rejected.

"We know what we have to do; We must continue to fight until our enemies are obliged to ask us for peace which must be honourable, lasting, and worth gigantic sacrifices. It was not we who started the terrible war. We have shown our enemies what it means when the German Empire and its allies are attacked."

IF FOOD DISAGREES DRINK HOT WATER

When food lies like lead in the stomach and you have that uncomfortable, distended feeling, it is because of insufficient blood supply to the stomach, combined with acid and food fermentation. In such cases try the plan now followed in many hospitals and advised by many eminent physicians of taking a teaspoonful of pure bisurated magnesia in half a glass of water, as hot as you can comfortably drink it. The hot water draws the blood to the stomach and the bisurated magnesia, as any physician can tell you, instantly neutralizes the acid and stops the food fermentation. Try this simple plan and you will be astonished at the immediate feeling of relief and comfort that always follows the restoration of the normal process of digestion. People who find it inconvenient at times to secure hot water and travelers who are frequently obliged to take hasty meals poorly prepared, should always take two or three five-grain tablets of Bisurated Magnesia after meals to prevent fermentation and neutralize the acid in their stomach.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

Peterboro' Juniors Beaten By One Goal In An Exciting Battle

Lost Their O. H. A. Fixture at Oshawa Last Night by 11 Goals to 10---Outscored the Lakeshore Bunch by 5 Goals to 1 in Last Period---The Referee Was Bad.

On very few occasions has a Peterborough team suffered such a hard luck defeat as that sustained by the Peterborough juniors in an O.H.A. fixture last night, when battling until the last second the red white and blue sweatered team were beaten by 11 goals to 10. Oshawa led at the end of the first period by 5 to 4 and at the end of the second by 10 to 5, but the Peterborough kids came back with a vengeance in the last period, playing the Lakeshore gang off their feet and scoring five goals to one, and losing by an eyelash.

It is old stuff to kick about a referee, but Mr. Clarence Gorrie of Toronto, who mishandled the game, had the Petes handicapped from the start. He opened out by benching them so fast that he soon had the Peterborough defence men afraid to run into anybody, and the result was that they were at a loss how to handle the attacks in the second period, when Oshawa ran up a lead of five goals. Even in the last period, when the Petes were running away with the game, they were generally a man or two short. The climax decision, however, that lost the Petes the game, came in the midst of the Peterborough spurt in the last session. Montgomery broke away, and tearing down the side beat Smith with a pretty shot from the wing. After he had got his shot away, one of the Oshawa defence men crashed into him and knocked him down, putting him out of business for a short time. To the surprise of the Peterborough crowd, Gorrie refused to allow the goal on the ground that he had rung his bell for the accident before the puck was in the nets. Nice stuff to lose a goal because some one knocks you out after you shoot, and at that no one remembers hearing the bell until after the goal was scored. As it turned out, the decision meant the difference between a tide and a lost game. And on top of it Gorrie let Oshawa away with a ten foot offside for their only goal in the last period.

But in spite of poor refereeing, it was one grand game of hockey, one of the battling kind that keeps a crowd on its feet all the way. The ice was keen and hard and the pace never stopped for a moment, the teams travelling at top speed from gong to gong, while the rapid scoring added to the interest. The return game in Peterborough a week from to-night, which the Petes have to win to keep in the running, should be worth going miles to see.

The Oshawa team, while it was lucky to beat the Petes last night, is a good aggregation which cannot be trifled with on any ice. Venini, their right wing man, is a star, a tricky stick-handler and a hard worker who never lets up, while Rowden, the Port Hope boy at rover, is clever, as all the Rowdens have been in hockey. Feagan, a soldier from the 182nd Battalion, who played his first game with Oshawa last night, did sterling work on the defence, and Smith, in spite of the ten goals registered against him, tore off some spectacular stops, several times in the second period saving the situation when his defence was beaten. The Oshawa line checked back well and were good around the nets.

The Petes have played better hockey than they did last night, especially in the second period, when both attack and defence fell down badly. Bartley was the most effective player on the Petes' team. The little left wing was up against the best Oshawa man and yet both starred. Bartley scored half of the Petes' goals and was working all the time. Montgomery did some spectacular rushing, but he and Graham were both marked men and had a rough passage whenever they secured the rubber, Cherrett, as usual, was good around the nets, but was not fed enough when in close, opportunities to score being thrown away by failure to pass. Murray in the nets was good, but his team mates did not give him much chance to shine, giving him poor protection at times and crowding in on top of him at others.

The teams were as follows:

Oshawa	Goal	Peterborough.
Smith	Defence	Murray
Osborne		McIntyre
Feagan		Montgomery
Rowden	Rover	Graham
Flintoff	Centre	Cherett
Venini	R. Wing	Frost

The Petes opened the scoring in quick style. Thirty-five seconds after the face off, McIntyre got away and pulling the defence out, slipped the rubber over to Cherrett, who fooled Smith.

Graham and Montgomery were were penalised and while they were off Oshawa took the lead. Venini evened up the count by a neat rush, and Flintoff put the Lakeshore bunch ahead by banging in a rebound.

Bartley tied it up when he slammed the rubber past Smith after a combination rush with McIntyre and Cherrett. Then Montgomery got away for one of his lone-handed rushes, putting the Petes in front.

A nice combination rush gave Swynyard a chance to break into the scoring column and the score was one more tied.

Venini put Oshawa ahead with a nice rush and Rowden followed with another leaving the figures 6 to 3. Cherrett closed the gap when he took the puck from the face off, and after a short rush, beat Smith with a speedy shot.

The second period saw Oshawa well out in front. Venini got away for a nice rush for the first counter. Swynyard batted in the rebound. That left it 6 to 4. Cherrett sent the Petes' stock up again when he broke away and scored. The balance of the period was Oshawa's best round. Venini and Rowden got two goals each sending the figures up to 10 to 5. The Petes lost three or four good chances when close in Smith tearing off some fine stops.

There was a complete reversal of form in the last period when the Petes came back and outplayed the homesters down the stretch. They were all over the Oshawa gang for the balance of the game. Gorrie's bad decision on the Montgomery play cost them a goal that was badly needed. Bartley made it 10 to 6 on an easy side shot, and soon after added another in the same way. A combination rush gave the Petes' left wing another opportunity and it was 10 to 8. Cherrett made it 10 to 9 on a pass from Montgomery. Then Oshawa got away on an offside play and in the scrimmage that followed the rubber was kicked into the nets by one of the Petes and Oshawa were two goals ahead. With two minutes to go Bartley tore down the centre and beat Smith with a beautiful waist high shot. The Petes had all hands up on the attack at this stage, but could not bag the tieing goal. The gong saved Oshawa, who were all in. The summary:

First Period.

1 Peterborough, Cherrett.
2 Oshawa, Venini.
3 Oshawa, Flintoff.

Season tickets for the games will be sold for 50 cents a piece. The games will be played at the Brock street rink. Two games will be played one evening in each week. Schedule commences next week.

Hockey fans should buy the tickets and help the youngsters along. There is some good material amongst the different teams and they play a good brand of hockey.

The following is the schedule:

Third Week, Trinity-St. Andrews vs. George Street; Knox vs. Mark Street.

QUEEN'S TO PLAY THE SOLDIER TEAM HERE

The fast Queen's University team, which held the champion Riversides to a 2-1 score recently, will be here on Tuesday night to play an exhibition game with the 247th intermediates. Queen's have a clever well-balanced team and the clash between them and the soldiers should be a game of real class. Harold Lees, a well known Peterborough boy, is playing goal for Queen's.

HOCKEY GOSSIP

The Peterborough Business College (Ltd.) Hockey Club held a meeting last night and organized a hockey team.

The boys will have their first workout to-night on East City rink, and have arranged a schedule with the neighbouring towns.

There is the makings of a very good team and it should receive the support of all outside sports.

The 247th Battalion team left for Cobourg on the 11.40 G. T. R. train to-day to meet the Lakeshore bunch in an O.H.A. fixture. A victory for the soldiers will give them a big lead in the group race.

Oshawa will play the return game with Peterborough Juniors a week from to-night at Brock Street Rink. It should be the game of the season, judging by last night's battle at Oshawa.

Graham got a bad toss into the boards in the last minute of last night's game at Oshawa, but insisted in coming back and finishing out the struggle. The last few minutes were wildly exciting with the Petes all up on the firing line in an effort to pull the game out of the fire.

Graham and Montgomery were marked men at Oshawa last night, and were checked all the way down the rink. The pair only got one goal between them, which is something unusual. Bartley and Cherrett were the big noises in the scoring line, the left wing getting five goals and the centre four.

EXPRESS AND BAGGAGE.

A. of Seattle, U.S.A., Percy of Hamilton, and Howard of South Porcupine. Two brothers, Thomas of Seaforth, and Wm. of Mount Pleasant, and a half-sister, Mrs. J. Fallis, of Peterborough, also survive him.

The funeral took place on Sunday last from the family residence to St. John's cemetery, Ida, very many friends being present as a token of esteem and respect. The service was conducted by Rev. A. G. Westmacott, who spoke tenderly of the deceased and his ministrations to him during his illness.

Beautiful floral offerings were laid on the casket. A pillow from the family, wreath from Millbrook Council, Crescent from Mrs. T. Deyell and ex-Warden Joseph Hickson of Manvers, and sprays from friends.

The two lenses are so skilfully fused into one that the connecting lines are invisible when the glasses are being worn.

Mr. Fowler will gladly explain these double purpose lenses to anyone interested.

British Successes Continue on Western Front

Teuton Advance in Roumania Is Stemmed

Allies Continue To Pound German Line

British Are Whittling Off Pieces of the German Line Daily—Operations Have Yielded a Constant Inflow of Prisoners and Have Kept the Casualty List Growing—Daily and Nightly Trench Raids Have Harassed the German Troops Almost Beyond Endurance.

PRISONERS APPEAR DEJECTED

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, Jan. 13. — Through, rain, mist, fog and deep mud the British army is continuing day by day to pound the German line. Although there has been no distinctly spectacular action recently daily and nightly trench raids and the drumming of the artillery have continued. These operations have yielded a constant inflow of prisoners and have kept the casualty list growing. According to the stories told by the prisoners the British tactics have harassed the German troops almost beyond endurance.

The last week has witnessed some minor operations, culminating with an attack before dawn Thursday north of Beaumont-Hamel. This action brought the totals prisoners taken in this area in the last three days to 300 and placed in British hands some important sections of trenches. On Tuesday night the British attacked a certain section of the German lines which was taken with a yield of 140 prisoners.

OVER THE PARAPET.

The operations Thursday drove the Germans from a position which they had held for some time and from which they could observe part of the British line. The attack was preceded by the usual preparation which, as a matter of fact, had been going on for nearly a week but had grown particularly severe in the last 48 hours. Just before dawn the British "went over". Ahead of them in that darkest hour before the run rose was the fiery curtain of shells from the guns for in the rear. The sodden stretch of "No Man's Land" over which they plodded was lit by the glare of the exploding shells. As the barrage crept steadily forward the men followed it, so closely that the spectator momentarily expected them to be smashed by the fire of their own guns. Red rockets from the German trenches flashed signals for aid to the defending guns in the rear, but the counter barrage failed to check the advance. The German gunnery in this instance was described by the attacking officer as weak and erratic.

LITTLE RESISTANCE.

The British soldiers encountered little resistance when they entered the shell torn trenches. The Germans had taken refuge from the terrific shell fire in the dug outs and communicating trenches. The prisoners taken in this raid had been on the front line for a long while and appeared very much dejected. As soon as the captured trenches had been cleared of the last hostile fighter squads of engineers were sent up to consolidate and repair the new positions and before night the regular booming of the big guns told that the battle had once more settled down into its customary routine.

Cattle Markets.

An exceptionally keen demand for choice butcher cattle, and comparatively high receipts has kept the market all through this week in a more or less excited state, as prices steadily mounted, until experienced dealers confessed they could not tell what was coming in the next few days. Prices started streng at the opening of the week, with loads of cattle selling freely around $9 to $9.25 and sales here and there of small bunches of single steers and heifers, up to $10. The succeeding markets all through the week saw these prices fully maintained, and with a strong tendency towards still higher levels, particularly for anything of choice quality. The closing market for the week saw a good average advance of 25c. to 40c., taking all grades, the choicest offerings scoring the sharpest advances.

Stockers and feeders were light in proportion to the general advances for butcher's cattle.

Good veal calves were strong and higher.

The hog situation was especially strong, reaching new high record prices towards the latter part of the week.

Grain Growers Shout "Traitor"

BRANDON, Man., Jan. 12.—The Grain Growers' Convention was thrown into a state of great excitement yesterday morning when a resolution was introduced by John Dutton of Gilbert Plains to prevent F. J. Dixon, M.P.P., from addressing the convention. The introduction of the resolution was followed by tremendous uproar and shouts of "Traitor."

G. W. Knowles of Emerson, in seconding the resolution, said that the grain-growers did not come here to listen to an address by a traitor to Canada. After a time the vote was put amid tremendous uproar, and Chairman Henders said the resolution to refuse Dixon a hearing was lost.

Some women protested because the women delegates engaged in another hall did not have a chance to vote, and that they would have been solidly in opposition to allowing Dixon to speak. Dixon, who is the member for Centre Winnipeg, has publicly opposed national registration.

Solomonic Decision.—Two brothers inherited a farm and quarrelled violently as to its division. Now there lived in their village a certain shrewd and wise old man, noted for the soundness of his advice. Him the brothers determined to appoint arbitrator. Whatever he said they would abide by. They laid the matter before him. For a long while he thought, then delivered judgment. "You," said he, pointing to the elder, "shall divide the farm as you think fair. And you," he continued, pointing to the younger, "shall have the first choice."

Rich Red Blood Means Good Health

Just a Little More Rich, Red Blood Cures Most Ailments

The lack of sufficient red health-giving blood does not end merely in a pale complexion. It is much more serious. Bloodless people are the tired, languid, run down folk who never have a bit of enjoyment in life. Food does not nourish, there's indigestion, heart palpitation, headache, backache, sometimes fainting spells and always nervousness. If anaemia or bloodlessness be neglected too long a decline is sure to follow. Just a little more blood cures all these troubles. Just more rich, red blood then abounding health, vitality and pleasure in life. To many the blood rich, red and pure, use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. No other medicine increases the pure blood supply so quickly or so surely. The cure actually begins with the first dose, though naturally it is not noticeable. This is not a mere claim. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been doing this over and over again in Canada for more than a quarter of a century. This is why thousands have always a good word to say for this great medicine, for instance Mrs. Alex. Gillis, Glenville, N. S., says: "I cannot praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills too highly. They are really a wonderful medicine. I was very much run down, suffered from frequent dizzy spells and had an almost constant severe pain in the back. My home work was a source of dread, I felt so weak, and life held but little enjoyment. Then I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and the result was almost marvellous. They made me feel like a new woman and fully restored my health. I would urge every weak woman to give these pills a fair trial."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Doctor Tells How To Strengthen Eyesight 50 Per Cent. In One Week's Time In Many Instances

A FREE PRESCRIPTION YOU CAN HAVE FILLED AND USED AT HOME.

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eyestrain or other eye weaknesses? If so you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through to principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind and could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seemed clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and the expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes from two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and the inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time. Note: Another prominent physician to whom the above article was sumitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists, and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen the eyesight 50 per cent. in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." It is sold in Peterboro by Warne Drug Co.

Iron Acts Wonders on a Week, Run-Down Nervous System

Dr. Mainprize of Saskatchewan, advises people who are weak, run-down, anaemic and nervous, to start to-day to strengthen themselves by taking iron, for their blood. It has always been an understood fact that Iron was an excellent remedy for the blood, but owing to its constipating, nauseating effect it has been eliminated from use. Doctors have overcome this by combining the iron with phosphorus which forms a new iron and at the same time the phosphorus used acts as one of the greatest nerve tonics known to medical science. You now have what is known to your druggist as Bonised Phosphorus with Iron. Dr. Mainprize finds this is to be fourfold in action. It charges the system with new blood, stronger nerves, greater strength and a new Digestion Your stomach will now be ready for good big hearty meals that will be thoroughly digested. Start to-day and take Bonised Phosphorus with Iron if you are thin, pale, weak, tired, run down, anaemic, nervous, etc., and in ten days you will be full of pep, bright, vigorous, alert, all taining the glow of happiness. Stop taking all sorts of worthless patent medicines, cheap laxatives, for what you imagine will cure kidney troubles, stomach pains, rheumatism, etc. What you want is good strong pure blood and strong nerves, making your system immune to all these everyday complaints.

Bonised Phosphorus with Iron, as much of here does not contain one atom of arsenic or strychnine, which is found so harmful in almost every tonic. Arsenic and strychnine act only as a temporary stimulant, making you feel better only for the time you are taking them; while Bonised Phosphorus with Iron goes to the root of the trouble, builds you up, strengthens your nerves, giving you a new lease of life. It is dispensed only by one druggist in each city. Agent for Peterborough is F. C. Weber, Charlotte Street.

OUR SERIAL STORY

"DESTINY"

By CHARLES NEVILLE BUCK

As he reached Washington square, it seemed that the quiet of the section held a sort of benediction, and such peace as hangs between old walls, where the fever of stress has passed and left in its wake a philosophy and contentment.

But when he came to the house where he had visited her, he was told that she no longer lived there. With a sudden pang it occurred to him that once more she might have moved a step down the economic scale toward the furnished room in one of those dingy lodging houses, which she had dunlorehtso—a the heart sickens at the forlornness of its environment.

He inquired for the girl with whom Marcia shared the little apartment, and to his relief learned that she still had her abode there and would receive her. As he opened the door Dorothy Melliss was bending over her drawing board by a north window, rushing through some fashion illustrations which must be delivered on the morrow. She greeted Paul with a nod and went on with her work while he explained his mission.

Dorothy was a wholesome young person of clear complexion and a straightforward look and she spoke with an independence of manner amounting almost to slanginess. She was one of those girls whom an unaided life in the city fosters. She could take care of herself—and did—but she knew life and looked it in the face—and dispensed with anything like a baby stare in doing so. Now she listened to Paul's talk, then suddenly shoved back her India-ink bottle and wiped her pen, while her pupils met his with directness.

"Before I answer any of your questions, Mr. Burton, I have got a few to ask you myself," she announced. "I might as well talk straight from the shoulder. Just how anxious you are to see Marcia is not going to make such a difference in my young life. Whether or not she wants you to find her—does make a great deal of difference."

"What do you mean, Miss Melliss?" Paul was genuinely puzzled. "I mean that of course I know her address, or addresses, because they change every day. I also know that she gave me the most explicit orders not to tell you where she could be found."

"Oh," he exclaimed in disappointment, relinquishing his inquiry at the first obstacle. "Then I suppose I may as well go."

"Hold on!" she commanded tersely. "I am Marcia Terroll's friend. I think that I am enough her friend to decide for myself whether I can help her most by obeying or disobeying her. Sit down for five minutes and listen to me. I feel like talking."

He obeyed and the young woman's face flushed with her interest as she took a chair near him and lighted a cigarette. After that she sat for a few minutes reflectively silent.

"I guess there is not so much similarity between Marcia and me but there is one thing, and it is a bond of kinship in a way." She looked at him unwaveringly. "We have both been on our own for some time in a town where there are more Don Juans than Walter Raleighs, and we are both straight. To the women of your protected set that would not be much to brag about, about as much for a millionaire to boast that he had never picked a pocket. None of those sheltered girls in your own world, where women nibble at life like bon-bons, have anything on Marcia Terroll. In brain power and character and charm she has it over those female non-combatants like a tent."

"I know all that, Miss Melliss." His reply was vaguely apologetic.

"Maybe you do, but I am not through yet. She was cut to a delicate pattern and meant for life's sunshine, and God knows she has had plenty of shadow. She has kept a smile on her lips and a laugh in her eyes through things that would have crumpled up lots of those tender creatures that you know. You don't guess what it means to that sort of woman, well to see life from the angle we get on it, but Marcia knows. You came along and she—" The young woman broke off in sudden silence.

"She what?" Anxiety sounded through his question.

"Oh, she never told me anything—it's not her fashion to tell such things—but I have a pair of eyes myself. I figure that Marcia let herself in for a danger she thought that she had put behind her. She allowed herself to have a dream." She paused and her gaze was almost accusing in its directness. "From the look in her eyes before she went away I guess she realized that it was a dream."

Miss Melliss had eyes of a brown softness but just now they flashed hard as agate and her voice rose to a scornful indignation.

"As if we had not enough to handle with the facts of Life, without hopeless dreams! I'm no anarchist railing at wealth and luxury....but you men that want everything..... and give nothing—" She broke off abruptly and demanded, what do you call it yourself?"

"Where is she?" demanded Paul.

"She's out with a dinky, barnstorming company, playing one night stands—on a line of tank towns and whistling stations. It was all that she could get. She is making early morning jumps between shabby hotels with a bunch of cheap actors and cheaper actresses that are just about as congenial to her as a herd of goats." The voice vibrated with since feeling.

"Are you going to tell me where I can find her?"

The girl studied her cigarette, drew a puff upon it and exhaled a cloud of smoke before she answered. Then she spoke reflectively.

"I'm just wondering whether I am or not. If you're going to follow her up and make her dream again—only to wake up again—I certainly am not—If you are going to be any comfort to her, I am, because God knows she needs some comfort. She is only going on her nerve."

"Please tell me," he urged persuasively. At that moment it was in his mind to write a truthful letter to Lorraine Haswell and go to Marcia with a proposal of marriage. He felt only his need of her—and her importance to himself. He failed to reckon on the thousand misgivings and indecisions which would assail him between the moment of impulse and that of execution. But his eyes were sincere, and Dorothy believed them. She went to her desk and brought back a sheet of paper.

"That's the route for this week and next," she said. "After that you must either find out for yourself or go without learning."

That night with the holiday spirit of a lad out of a cheerless school Paul Burton walked along the principal street of a small New England town, where old-fashioned houses sprawled between stark elms. When he reached the Palace Theatre the performance had begun so he hurriedly bought a ticket and found himself sitting near the front with many empty seats about him. It was a cheap "follow up" company with an old piece that had once been a Broadway hit. He had never seen Marcia act. Now he was seeing her under the most inauspicious circumstances — and he knew that only want of opportunity and the uncompromising plane on which she had pitched her dealings in managerial offices had balked her ambitions. She could act and was acting with a force, intelligence and finesse that were wasted here, and as he watched her suddenly their eyes met, and across the blazing separation of the "foots" she recognised him. For just an instant her pupils dilated and she missed a cue. It looked as though she would "go up" in her lines, but before the prompter could come to her aid she had recovered herself and her performance went on unbroken. But during the following intermission the women who dressed near by could hear her humming a gay tune and as she came out at their call they saw in her eyes a sparkle that had not been there before.

As Marcia sat in her dressing room before the mirror which was fastened against a brick wall the squalidness of the cubbyhole ceased to depress her. On the slab before her lay scattered the details of make-up, and crowded into one corner stood her wardrobe trunk. A placard near a red-light bulb, read: "Please remember that YOU are here for a few days, but we are here all the time. Do not deface our home," and under that notice, probably tempted by it into irony, a former occupant had scrawled in huge letters, "Oh, you home!"

But now the chilly little dressing-room was no longer a dingy cell. She had recognized Paul Burton's face out in front and as she changed from the next act little snatches of song broke from her lips, and she smiled at herself in the glass until the small glistening teeth flashed like those of a pleased child.

Fate gives no guarantee of responsibility for the targeting of the Love-God's darts. This whimsical deity appears to owe no duty to fitness or consistency. He may choose to make a strong and excellent character love one too weak to be worthy its thought and no higher power intervenes. After all, Marcia had met Paul when she was lonely and they had for a while comforted each other's unhappiness. When she had ordered him to stay away the damage was already done, and since then she had been infinitely more lonely—had craved more desperately companionship with someone of the world from which her poverty had so long exiled her, though its memories remained. Now he had disobeyed her and come to her. He had sought her out contrary to command and that must mean that he had found a new strength and would have something to say to her which a man may worthily say to a woman. He had so thoroughly understood her edict that his coming could have no other meaning. She could not know that he was still actuated solely by his own selfish craving for comfort nor that he had occupied his time on the train countering and balancing considerations until his sudden determination had oozed miserably out of him. Although he could no longer awaken a throbbing of his pulses with the thought of Lorraine Haswell, neither could he fortify his mind to cut the tie and give her up.

When the curtain rang down on the last act the doorman brought in his card, and Marcia ran light-heartedly out to meet him.

"You see I disobeyed you," he announced, and she sought to reply with great severity but delight broke through that affectation and riddled it with smiles.

"Unless you are too tired," she suggested, "let us take a walk before we go back to that desolate morgue they call a hotel."

It was a cold and sparkling night, and the old street, which was once a post road, twisted between the elms under a moon that threw rambling houses into softened shapes and underscored them darkly with shadow. They had walked perhaps a half mile when they came upon a building that had in some more prosperous years been a mansion of some pretense and dignity. It sat back in its generous yard with a cheery light blazing at its lower windows, wearing an aspect of elderly and beneficent reminiscence. An electric bulb by the gate lighted a small swinging sign inscribed in antique type, "The Sign of the Tea-pot. Lunch, tea and dancing."

Paul Burton halted and listened, but the dancing had ended and the old house was silent.

"I wonder," he ventured, "if the old tea pot is still on duty."

"By this time," she laughed, "it would have tucked its head under its wing and gone to roost."

"Let us try it, none the less," he challenged, and with the spirit of two children on a lark they opened the creaking gate and traversed the brick walk arm in arm.

In answer to their knock, which echoed throughout the place, there came after a time a pleasant faced elderly woman to the door. For a few moments she reflected then decided that, although it was a little late, she would undertake to procure some sort of a supper, if they would make allowance for its deficient quality.

The scene seemed set for adventure, even romance. In a large, pleasantly furnished room glowed a cheery fire and as they waited they sat before it, falling silent, and Marcia's face continued to smile. She had learned to make the most of a pleasant moment while it lasted and to leave regrets until they forced themselves.

When they had finished an excellent supper and the woman had withdrawn they asked and received permission to linger a while before the inviting hearth.

Abruptly Marcia looked up and announced, "I forgive you for your disobedience. I am glad that you came. You cannot imagine how lonely it has been." Her small nose puckered fastidiously as she added, "The company is odious and I hate the play and the hotels provide unfinished road beds to sleep on, and I have been headachy and altogether miserable." Then she broke off and laughed again, 'Which will be about enough Jeremiad for the present. Have you missed me?"

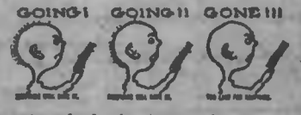
Use Newbro's Herpicide
IN TIME AND YOU WILL NEVER NEED FALSE HAIR

Wearing false hair is a harmless deceit of which many ladies are guilty. These women are all objects for sympathy rather than criticism.

Early neglect in the care of the scalp has caused the loss of so much hair that their personal appearance is sadly marred. To correct this defect they resort to artificial hair hoping by so doing to hide the results of their earlier inattention to the details of their toilet. These unfortunates are deceiving no one but themselves as no artificial hair no matter how costly, ever has the snap and luster nor can it be made to look as pretty and attractive as natural hair.



Most ladies would resent any imputation of personal carelessness and neglect. And yet very many permit their natural hair to become so dull, brittle and lusterless that it looks no better than that bought at the store.

All this is as unfortunate as it is unnecessary. Hair that is unsightly or thin may usually be attributed to the destroying effects of Dandruff. This destructive formation shortly robs the hair of life, with the result that it finally loosens and drops out.

There is a preparation, sold and guaranteed by all dealers, the intelligent use of which will kill the dandruff germ. It cleanses the scalp of all accumulations and makes the hair shine with the luster of life and beauty. That remedy is Newbro's Herpicide, the Original Germ-Remedy for Dandruff. In no way can you add more to your personal charm and attractiveness than by the use of this remarkable and well known scalp prophylactic.

On account of its astonishing merit and its delightful and exquisite odor, Herpicide finds users everywhere among all classes. It may be purchased in 50 cent and $1.00 sizes at all drug stores and toilet goods counters. Applications may be obtained at the better barber shops and hair dressing parlors.

Upon receipt of 10 cents in postage or silver to cover cost of packing and mailing, The Herpicide Co., Dept. S, Detroit, Mich., will send to any address a nice sample bottle of Herpicide and an interesting booklet on the care of the hair.

INDEMNITY GERMANY WANTS

Financial Authority Fixes it at 8 or 9 Billion Dollars.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—A special cable to the Herald from Zurich, dated Wednesday, says: The allies, having refused to enter the peace trap, the German jingoes again have unmuzzled their Dresden committee for a German peace and are allowed by the censor to demand an intensification of submarine war.

George Bernhardi, the Vossische Zeitung's financial authority, has fixed eight or nine billion dollars as the indemnity for Germany to exact from the allies under the holy pretensions of interest in the United States of a recrudescence of submarine activity which would jeopardize American lives. The indemnity would bankrupt the allied powers, utterly destroying American export with them.

These considerations should open President Wilson's eyes to the danger of attempting to prevent the complete defeat of Germany.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

BY JOHN W. S. McCULLOUGH, M.D., D.P.H., CHIEF OFFICER OF THE PROVINCIAL BOARD OF HEALTH.

PURIFICATION OF WATER.

THE safest and cheapest form of water purification is Prevention. In selecting a water supply for any community the source should be well considered. Avoid any chance of pollution by human sewage.

(1) Boiling. This is a certain method and most useful in the household where the water supply is not above suspicion.

(2) Chlorination. This is a very satisfactory and cheap means of emergency treatment. It is carried out by the use of hypochlorite of lime 30 lbs. to each million gallons of water or by the use of liquid chlorine. Its only disadvantage is the fact that it gives a disagreeable taste to some waters. It has no ill effect on the user.

In treating small quantities of water the following plan may be used: Mix level teaspoonful of chloride of lime should be rubbed into a teacupful of water. This solution should be diluted with three cupfuls of water, and a teaspoonful of the whole quantity added to each two-gallon pailful of drinking water. This will give .4 or .5 parts of free chlorine to a million parts of water, sufficient to destroy in ten minutes all typhoid and colon bacilli or other dysentery-producing organisms in the water. Moreover, all traces of the chlorine will rapidly disappear.

This method of purification has been tested with Toronto Bay water inoculated with millions of bacteria. Every germ has been destroyed, and it has been unnecessary to boil the water.

This method should be very valuable for miners, prospectors, campers, soldiers, and those living in summer resorts where the condition of the waters might not be above suspicion.

(3) Ozone. This form of water treatment is extensively used in Petrograd, Russia, and in Paris, France. The water is frequently filtered before being treated. The method when properly carried out gives satisfactory results, but is expensive.

(4) Ultra Violet Ray. In the use of this plan of treatment the water must first be filtered. It is a useful but somewhat expensive method of purification.

(5) Storage. Storage of water for a period of 30 days greatly improves its quality. A portion of the water supply of the City of London, England, is after filtration treated in this way with good results.

(6) Filtration. There are two plans of filtration. In the one called Slow Sand Filtration the water is passed slowly through beds of sand four to five feet thick to under drains which collect it. The bacteria and other impurities are removed by the top layers of sand. From time to time the sand is taken off, washed, and re-used.

In the other form of filtration known as the Rapid Sand type or Mechanical filtration the water is first treated with alum or sulphate of iron, in order to produce sedimentation of bacteria and impurities, and is afterwards passed rapidly through a layer of sand which when dirty is cleansed by a reverse flow of air and water.

Either plan of filtration will give satisfactory results with the waters to which they are respectively adapted. In a general way the Mechanical filter may be said to give better results with river water, while the Slow Sand filter operates more satisfactorily with lake water. The cost in either case is not excessive. In the case of a Slow Sand Filter the first cost is greater; a Mechanical filter, costing less initially, is more expensive in operation.

THE FASHIONS OF THE MOMENT

Full, Straight Skirts May Lead to the Narrower Silhouette

The Persistence of Pockets

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Fashion continues in ways of straight and unabated fulness. Skirts fall in soft, clinging folds, so much so that the tendency toward the narrower silhouette becomes very apparent, though we need not yet anticipate the very narrow skirt.

It is already rumoured, however, that skirts for spring will be two and two and a half yards wide. But it is really looking a little too far ahead to be thinking of spring styles already. At present, skirts are still very ample. Box pleats and side pleats are very freely used, and this means that a good deal of material is used in a dress or skirt. The pleats hang in straight lines, generally unstitched, while in some cases they are stitched as far as the hips and below that point are pressed into position.

Black Satin Dress with Tie-On Collar and Loop Pockets

The gradual lengthening of skirts that has come with the vogue for straighter lines is noticeable in many dresses; but women, on the whole, have not taken readily to the longer skirts, and the short skirt for street costumes is still favoured by a great many. A long street skirt is really not graceful in a tailored suit, and women are not willing to sacrifice becoming styles so readily.

In afternoon and evening dresses, however, the longer skirt is not at all ungraceful. Some afternoon and evening dresses show slight variations from the straight lines. The Turkish trouser effect and draped skirt come from Paris as a departure from the extremely straight hanging and clinging effects.

Full overskirts are also much used for evening, fashioned of soft silk voiles, tulles and laces. Black and white combination occur very often in evening gowns. Black net worked up with white beads over a white satin foundation is one of the striking combinations used by an expert French designer. A sash of black satin forms a wide girdle, which is weighted at the ends by heavy black and white bead tassels.

Bead Embroidery Very Prominent

Bead embroidery is a strong rival just now of the darned-stitch embroidery worked in silk and worsted. On white backgrounds, white and coloured beads are used most effectively. The white chalk beads on dark satins and silks form very handsome trimmings. Beads of various colours arranged in designs to imitate the popular Paisley effect is one of the newest developments in bead work. Other very attractive colour combinations are also seen, such as dull blue, old rose and brown on light tan backgrounds.

Pockets Still Persist

When we consider the traditional fickleness of Fashion, it seems as though the life of the pocket has been very long, indeed; but the pocket still flourishes on suits, coats and dresses and shows not the slightest signs of becoming extinct. The latest development in this line is the long, loop-like pocket placed over the hips and standing away from the skirt. The smart afternoon dress of black satin shown in the sketch illustrates this type of pocket, also the new tie-on collar, which crosses in front and ties at the back, somewhat like the tie-on jumpers.

KEEP LITTLE ONES WELL IN WINTER

Winter is a dangerous season for the little ones. The days are so changeable—one bright, the next cold and stormy, that the mother is afraid to take the children out for the fresh air and exercise they need so much. In consequence they are often cooped up in overheated, badly ventilated rooms and are soon seized with colds or grippe. What is needed to keep the little ones well is Baby's Own Tablets. They will regulate the stomach and bowels, and drive out colds and by their use the baby will be able to get over the winter season in perfect safety. The tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

GASTRIC REBELLION.

Some of the Mistakes in Eating That Incite Poor Digestion.

Indigestion is often attributed to hasty eating, and people are reproved, and rightly so, for bolting their food, but it is interesting to observe that, while the bolting of meat is always severely censured, one never hears any blame attached to those who swallow fruit by the mouthful and devour uncooked vegetables without any attempt at mastication. Nevertheless it is the hasty swallower of vegetable fiber who is really the inciter of gastric rebellion. Vegetables are at all times very imperfectly digested by the stomach and require their tough fibres to be thoroughly broken up by the teeth if they are to be dissolved even in the bowel.

There is a well known saying which avers that digestion waits upon appetite, and there is no doubt that of all the adjuvants to digestion a keen desire for food is the most powerful and important. But appetite itself often depends upon conditions which are independent of the body's absolute necessities. Thus the aspect of the food, its smell, taste and even the manner in which it is served all help either to stimulate a desire for it or to induce a sense of aversion, while the environment of the diner often exercises important influence, beneficial or otherwise.

Brain work of any kind interferes with the rapid digestion of food, and even the habit of reading during mealtimes, practiced by so many, is conducive neither to appetite nor digestion. A well lighted room, music and frivolous conversation will often permit a chronic dyspeptic to enjoy without remorse the pleasures of the table, while a depressing atmosphere, uncongenial company and unappetising dishes may induce a fit of indigestion in the most healthy individual.

CHARM OF THE BIBLE

Its Poetic Beauty and the Marvel of Its Word Pictures.

Then some of us who cared for literature took up the Bible casually and found its poetic beauty. We read the book of Job—which, by the way, Mr. Swinburne is said to have known by heart—and as we read it even the stars themselves seemed less wonderful than this description of their marvel and mystery:

Canst thou bind the sweet influences of Pleiades or loose the bands of Orion?
Canst thou bring forth Mazzaroth in his season? Or canst thou guide Arcturus with his sons?

Or we read in the thirty-seventh chapter of the book of Ezekiel of that weird valley that was full of bones—"and as I prophesied there was a noise, and behold a shaking, and the bones came together, bone to bone"—surely one of the most wonderful visions of the imagination in all literature.

Or we read the marvelous denunciatory rhetoric of Jeremiah and Isaiah or the music of the melodious heart-strings of King David. We read the solemn adjuration of the "King Ecclesiast" to remember our Creator in the days of our youth, with its haunting picture of old age, and the loveliness of "The Song of Songs" passed into our lives forever.

To this purely literary love of the Bible there has been added within the last few years a certain renewed regard for it as the profoundest book of the soul, and for some minds not conventionally religious it has regained even some of its old authority as a spiritual guide and stay. And I will confess for myself that sometimes as I fall asleep at night I wonder if even the most picturesque of modern writers has written anything to equal the Twenty-third Psalm.—Richard Le Gallienne in Phoenix.

The mean decennial rate of increase in the population of the world is 8 per cent, and at this rate the 28,000,000 square miles comprising the fertile regions of the earth, which Ravenstein computed can only support 207 persons per square mile, will have their maximum population of 5,904,000,000 persons in the year 2072. This estimate allows fourteen persons per square mile in the 18,000,000 square miles of steppes and deserts.

Canada's New Rifle.

Details which have been received in Ottawa in regard to the new Canadian service arm, which replaces the Ross rifle, indicate that it is, as a matter of fact, not a Lee-Enfield at all, but a new weapon on entirely modern lines. It might properly be called the new Enfield rifle, as it is being manufactured at the Enfield arsenal, but it is not a Lee-Enfield, since Lee was not its designer.

The new rifle, according to what has been heard here, is practically what was planned before the war to have been the new British service arm of 276 calibre. When the war broke out, however, it was thought unwise to change to a different calibre with so much 303 ammunition on hand, and accordingly a rifle embodying all the features of the new arm, but of the usual 303 calibre, has been adopted. It is said to have some features of the French, German, and even of the Ross rifle, including the straight pull, and to be a very modern arm in every particular. Samples of the new rifles have been received already at the Ross Rifle Works, and their manufacture will be commenced as soon as possible.

IRRITABLE NERVES RESTORED AND HEALTH REGAINED IN A SIMPLE WAY

The man or woman who is run-down, not feeling up to the mark, perhaps, irritable, nervous or sleepless can well afford to learn about the wonderful results the newly discovered blood-food is giving to folks that use it.

There is wonderful power in this new blood-food, and every weak, ailing person can be quickly nourished back to health that uses it as directed.

After each meal, with a sip or two of water, you simply take two little chocolate-coated tablets, sold in all drug stores under the name of "FERROZONE."

The effect is noticeable at once. You feel happier, brighter, more contented. That old-time feeling of weariness departs—you forget your "nerves" and no longer get irritable or cross over trifling annoyances.

There is a reason for this change and that reason consists of the fact that Ferrozone contains blood-making materials you can get in no other way.

Ferrozone makes the blood tingle and sing with new vitality. This ensures lots of nourishment and strength being supplied to every part of the body.

No wonder the eyes brighten and the cheeks raniate color and happiness: With abundance of strength, a keen appetite, good digestion and plenty of sound sleep—all the result of Ferrozone—you quickly feel as if life held new charms and pleasures.

Our Button Market.

For the year ended March last buttons imported into Canada were valued at $597,645, or about $31,000 more than for the previous fiscal year. In 1913-14 the imports reached a value of about $880,000 each year, of which the larger proportion came from the United States. Before the war the Central Empires of Europe supplied to Canada buttons to the value of about $150,000 annually, and this trade during 1914-16 has apparently been divided between Japan and the United States. From the latter country the increase of the 1915-16 imports over those of the previous year was $102,000, or over 30 per cent., and the button trade with Japan increased 32 per cent. The whole of the United States export trade in buttons increased during last year by 79 per cent. Further expansion is expected because of the demand for the buttons of the United States from foreign countries, and efforts are being put forward to get the trade. A report from Washington to The Boston Transcript says the United States produces enough buttons to supply nine-tenths of her own requirements and more than half the supply of Canada. In the same despatch it says that all the world except the United States and Canada buys buttons from the central European countries, Japan and the United Kingdom. This is apparently an error. Canada hitherto has bought largely from Europe as well as the United States, as already indicated. In 1913 58 per cent. of our imports came from the United States, and today about 30 per cent. It is quite evident, however, that Canadian factories have before them a considerable home market to conquer.—Toronto Globe.

No More Gulf Stream?

The Gulf Stream—that famous "hot-water system"—has deserted us and turned westward; at least, so we are told.

As a general rule, after leaving the Mexican Gulf, the stream strikes north along the coast of North America until it reaches Newfoundland, which is also swept by the cold Labrador current from the north. It then proceeds due east, and in mid-Atlantic divides, part of it sweeping along the West Coast of Africa, and part of it warming our western shores.

The probability is that, in view of this strange and unkind behaviour on the part of the Gulf Stream, inhabitants of these isles will have to bear with some chilly weather, while fortunate mortals in other parts of the world will bask in their newly-found heat.

That the stream has a definite effect on our shores is shown by the fact that off the coasts of Britain warmer water is found at a depth of three-quarters of a mile than at a similar depth off the tropical coasts of Africa.

A cold summer of ten years ago was accounted for by the divergence of the stream to the north, and its fondness for this direction was again evinced in the winter of 1908, though a few years ago it made an appearance round the coasts of Australia.

Recently a visitor at a manse noticed the good behaviour of a child and said to her: "Are you always such a good little girl?" In answer to the query she reflected a moment and replied very seriously: "No, sir, sometimes I am very bad." Indeed!" responded the visitor. "And what do your parents do when you are very bad?" "They spank me—they spank me behind my tummy!".

In a recent examination paper for a boy clerk's post in England was this question: "If the premier and all the members of the cabinet should die, who would officiate?" Robert, a boy of fourteen, thought for a time, trying in vain to recall who came next in succession. At last, however, a happy inspiration came to him, and he answered: "The undertaker."

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

GIRLS' DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

8032

Keeping the schoolgirl up to date is easy enough when a dress like the one illustrated is the choice. It shows the marked simplicity of design that makes its development easy even to the girl who wears it.

A plain waist has the lower edges gathered and stitched to a stay belt to which the upper edges of the three gore skirt also are stitched with graceful fulness; an outside belt is used to conceal the joining. The slightly open neck is finished with a round collar of contrasting goods and color, and the flare cuff on a full length sleeve is in harmony.

Because buttons are very stylish the girl will just love the front closing with buttons "all in a row" from neck to hem. The use of the patch pocket should depend upon her idea of style; it adds to the effectiveness of a plain frock.

Stripes, checks and plaids make very practical dresses, and either selection with plain goods to trim will give excellent satisfaction. By using the pattern you are assured of a saving.

The dress pattern, No. 8,032, cuts in sizes 6 to 12 years. To make in size 8 requires 2¼ yards of 36 inch goods with ½ yard contrasting goods same width.

To obtain the pattern send [illegible] to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Give Now to the Patriotic Fund

If ever you would give-give now

"BEAR YE ONE ANOTHER'S BURDENS"

Take a present-day illustration. British Columbia—out there under the setting sun—is helping to bear Ontario's burdens. She has sent to the front—that shell-torn front in France—a larger proportion of her manhood than has Ontario.

Therefore it comes to pass that we in Ontario are being asked to help in bearing British Columbia's burdens by helping its soldiers' families. It's a fair, a just, request. We all are in the same boat. We must bear one another's burdens. And if one Province, not rich in money, makes heavy calls on the Patriotic Fund, the richer Provinces must help out their poorer neighbor. Under a plan of each Province caring only for its own, the Province sending no men would spend no money. It would neither Fight nor Pay.

Ontario will need about six million dollars in 1917 for the families of its own soldiers. The Canadian Patriotic Fund is asking for that sum as a minimum below which the richest Province in the Dominion will not go. But, as a matter of fact, the Fund hopes Ontario will do still better—will bear another's burdens by helping out gallant British Columbia.

How stands the Western Province? It will require, in 1917, two million dollars for the families of its men at the front. That is one-third of Ontario's requirements. But Ontario has probably more than seven times the population. British Columbia asks no favors. With only about 350,000 people—not rich in this world's goods, but rich in pluck and good red blood—it is undertaking to raise One Million Dollars for the Canadian Patriotic Fund! That equals $2.86 per head. Ontario, if it raise six million, will be giving about $2.35 per head.

But the Western Province will still be short One Million Dollars. Where is this sum to come from? Eastern Canada. And Ontario, if it wishes to help, can do so only to the extent to which its gifts to the Fund exceed Six Million Dollars.

A lot of money, isn't it? Yet less than British Columbia is giving, if measured on a per capita basis, and far less if measured by ability to pay. There will be no difficulty in securing the Six Millions if three plans are followed:

THREE PLANS FOR HELPING THE CANADIAN PATRIOTIC FUND:

1. If all County Councils make reasonably large grants to the national Fund.
2. If all towns, whether separated from their counties or not, will undertake campaigns.
3. If all citizens, in town or country, contribute fairly according to their means.

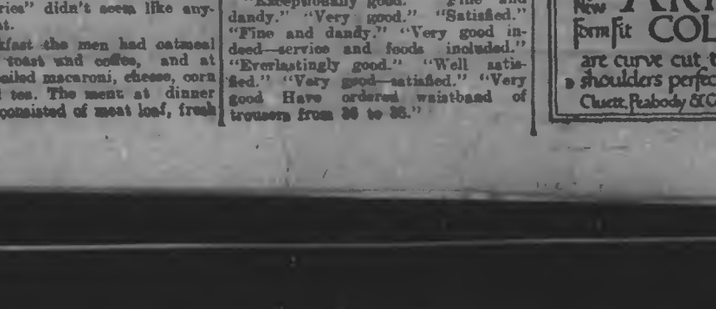
As to No. 1. The County Councils are beginning well. Simcoe has decided to largely increase its grant. For 1917 it will be the generous sum of $120,000. Victoria, another county patriotic to the core, has doubled its grant, jumping it from $2,500 a month in 1916 to $5,000 in 1917. The majority of the County Councils will decide at the January sessions how large their grants will be. Public opinion will have great influence on the Councils. Every county ratepayer, sympathetic towards the Fund, should write or speak to his representative on the Council, endorsing a liberal grant.

As to No. 2. Many towns ignore the duty of holding campaigns. This applies particularly to towns which pay a county tax. Yet this tax never represents a fair or just contribution to the Fund from men of moderate or large means. Practically it is based on what the poorer men can afford. The richer should give much more, and they can be reached only through a popular campaign. To relieve anxiety these campaigns should be held in January or February.

As to No. 3. Patriotism of the individual is the basis of the Fund. Everything is built on it. If he will not make some sacrifice for the sake of the mothers, wives and children of the men at the front, the Fund suffers, and they suffer with it. The average family on the Fund requires $200 a year from it. It is the duty—it should be considered the Privilege—of every Canadian stay-at-home to ask himself: For how many weeks, at $4 a week, must I, in self-respect and in gratitude, take care of one of these families? If my county taxation for this purpose means that I am taking care of only one family for one week when I could do more, am I doing the right thing?

The answer to these questions will be found when he sits down and mails his extra gift to his local Branch.

Ontario is being asked to assure the Canadian Patriotic Fund that it can depend on having six million dollars in 1917 for the families of Ontario's soldiers.



Four million of these dollars must be secured from individual subscriptions. If there is no Branch of the Fund in your town or county send your subscription direct to the Head Office, Canadian Patriotic Fund, Victoria street, Ottawa.

THE VEGETABLE INDUSTRY.

Nation's Production in This Field is Away Ahead of That in Fruits.

Few persons have any conception of the amount of actual value of the vegetable-growing industry to Canada, says F. B. Housser in an article in The Toronto Globe. The following figures, taken from the Dominion Government Agricultural Census Report of 1911, though not up to date, the latest report I have been able to obtain shows some interesting facts.

In the year 1910 the vegetable-growing industry saved Canada $18,896,544. In 1910 the Province of Ontario alone profited by this branch of agriculture to the extent of $6,043,617.

This is to say that the Canadian public would have sent over to the United States, or some other foreign country, over eighteen and a half millions of dollars in order that they might have ordinary, everyday vegetables on their dining-room tables had it not been for the fact that our own growers supplied our needs. Of this amount Ontario contributed almost one-third.

The vast majority of people, city and country, are under the impression that fruit-growing forms a greater part of the nation's trade than the vegetable industry, yet from the same report we may observe that, in the same year, the actual cash value produced in vegetables in Canada was $6,025,419 more than of orchards and small fruits combined. When we recall that it required less than half as much land for the vegetable-growers to produce this enormous difference (306,011 acres) as was necessary for the fruit men we may form some conception of the tremendous possibilities this almost unrecognized field of agriculture has put up within it.

Strange as it may seem, although vegetable-growing is the most scientific branch of agriculture; although five years ago it had outstripped the fruit industry by more than six million dollars as a business proposition to the country, it still holds only a secondary place in the experiments and scientific investigations of our agricultural colleges and experimental stations

Under the general head of "Horticulture" vegetable growing is carried on as the most unimportant branch. On the horticultural files you will find forty bulletins issued by our Agricultural Department on apples, pears, peaches, grapes, plums, cherries, raspberries, currants, and almost every Canadian-grown fruit. You will find not more than half a dozen on vegetables.

In stating these facts I do not for a moment wish to throw any reflection on the work and methods of any of our agricultural colleges or experimental farms. A more able set of men could not anywhere be found to carry on this work. I merely wish to point out that a new industry has grown up in this country which calls for a new field of scientific investigation and experimental work, and I am convinced that the Governments not only of the Dominion, but of all the Provinces, are beginning to recognize this fact.

Work Goes East.

"Our St. Catharines plant is not doing the work it ought to do, because we cannot get men. For that reason we are sending all the work we can to Sherbrooke, where there is no trouble getting what labor we want, and, moreover, we can get it at less cost."

The foregoing is one Ontario manufacturer's position in the present labor situation. Here is what another says:

"We took our first order for shells at $4, which was completed to the satisfaction of the board. The next order came along and the price was $3. Our plant, of course, is not a large one, and we could not turn out the quantities that some of the larger plants are doing, nor at as low a figure, but what we did was done right, and if the need of shells was very urgent the price should not stand in the way. But, as we could not do the work at the price paid to the Quebec manufacturers, because of the lower-priced labor and the abundance of it, we had to decline the order at the lower prices. Our men to a very large extent enlisted. That's why I sold what machinery I had and dropped out of the business, and it is likely that the machinery I used for shell-making has gone to Quebec."

HAD AWFUL ATTACKS OF HEART TROUBLE

For 5 or 6 Years

Diseases and disorders of the heart and nervous system have become frightfully prevalent of late years.

One can scarcely pick up a paper but he will find recorded instances of sudden deaths through heart failure, or of prominent men and women unable to prosecute their ordinary business or profession on account of a breaking down of the nervous system.

We do not desire to unnecessarily alarm anyone, but to sound a word of warning.

When the heart begins to beat irregularly, palpitates and throbs, has shooting pains through it, it is time to stop and think.

To all sufferers from heart and nerve troubles Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills can give prompt and permanent relief.

Mrs. Frank Arseneau, Newcastle, N. B., writes: "I had awful attacks of heart trouble for the past five or six years, and as I had tried many kinds of medicine without getting any better I decided to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a trial, and to my surprise I found ease from the second dose. I continued taking them until I had used six boxes, and now I feel as well as can be.

"At the present time my sister is using them for nervousness and finds great comfort by their use."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c or three boxes for $1.25 at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

POLICEMEN THRIVE ON DIET TEST MENU

BELLEVUE OFFICIAL WATCHES EXPERIMENT, HOPING COST OF FEEDING PATIENTS CAN BE REDUCED.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—The twelve police rookies who compose the squad now undergoing a diet test under the supervision of Dr. Eugene L. Fisk, medical director of the Life Extension Institute at 49 Lafayette Street, finished the first twenty-four hours of the three weeks' experiment last night apparently satisfied with meals that cost only 25 cents a day per man.

At breakfast most of them asked for and received a second helping of oatmeal and two cups of coffee. Miss Mor in Walker, the dietician in charge, is not worried over this, as she believes that while some may frequently demand a second portion, the supply will be equalized by those with smaller appetites.

"We are not conducting anything radical," declared Dr. Fisk, "we are simply trying to see how much the people can, without violating their customs, overcome the high cost of living. The food is wholesome and the men will thrive on it."

Some of the men called for a double portion of macaroni and cheese at the noon luncheon, and many asked for more than the four ounces of cornbread handed to each. There were others who left the cornbread on their plates. These were told that they were losing a large number of calories, so many in fact, that the whole loaf of white bread would not make up the number they had lost. Most of them said "calories" didn't seem like anything to eat.

At breakfast the men had oatmeal and milk, toast and coffee, and at luncheon boiled macaroni, cheese, corn bread, and tea. The meat at dinner last night consisted of meat loaf, fresh fried potatoes, graham bread, date pudding and tea.

Mrs. Eula McCleary takes care of the men when they enter the establishment and tells them when dinner's ready. The rookies assembled at 5:26 o'clock last evening for dinner and fell to without delay. They finished eating exactly twenty-eight minutes later. There was nothing left on the table, not even a slice of bread. Hannibal Parsons, the negro cook, had some more left in the kitchen and the diners could have had more if they had so desired.

Four of the young men who had feasted, drew cigarettes from their pockets as soon as the repast was over and "lit up." They are not requested to give up any of their habits.

The rookies were then asked to write on slips of paper their opinions of the meals served them far. The results of the symposium were recorded by the twelve as follows:

"Exceptionally good." "Fine and dandy." "Very good." "Satisfied." "Fine and dandy." "Very good indeed—service and foods included." "Everlastingly good." "Well satisfied." "Very good—satisfied." "Very good Have ordered waistband of trousers from 36 to 38."

Miss Walker gave out the following as samples of the prices she had paid for food supplied to the policemen: Apricots, 17 cents a pound; sugar, 50 cents for seven pounds; coffee 20 cents a pound; tea, 35 cents a pound; lamb's neck for stew, 75 cents for four pounds; beans, 13 cents a pound; nut butter, 25 cents a pound, macaroni, 10 cents for eleven ounces; cheese, 25 cents a pound.

She admitted she had to do much shopping before getting some of the articles at these prices. All the food is being bought at retail.

An interested visitor at the evening meal was George A. White, chief clerk of Bellevue Hospital. He is trying to hold the cost of feeding a patient in Bellevue Hospital to 19 1-10 cents a day, the amount fixed by the Board of Estimate. It now costs 26 cents a day to feed a patient. Mr. White thought he might get some good pointers on reducing the diet per diem by watching the experimenters.

Police Commissioner Woods will be the guest of the men at luncheon tomorrow. During the three weeks of the test it is planned to have prominent scientists, medical men, and city officials attend the meals.

Sir John Simon relished a good story, and one told concerns a group of Scots lawyers who met convivially at an Ayrshire inn one cold evening, according to the New Work American. The conversation turned on pronunciation. "Now I," said one of the barristers, "always say neether, while John here says nyether. What do you say Sandy?" The hot tipple had made Sandy doze, and at the sudden question he was aroused, and replied, "I Oh, I say whusky."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Devil's Climb

How a Man Won a Bride by Scaling It.

By MILLARD MALTBIE

There was or appeared to be every reason why Amos Steele should marry Eva Cowles. Neither had a large fortune, but each had a small one, and the two together would produce an income sufficient to enable them to maintain the social position to which they had been accustomed. Their fathers had been partners in business and on this account some of their investments were on joint account and needed to remain so in order to be made profitable.

There was but one thing to keep them apart. While Amos Steele was endowed with a lot of practical common sense Eva Cowles was intensely romantic. There was in her a good deal of that German element which loves tales of valiant knights who fight for fair women. She doted on mystery, on sentiment. She delighted in the operas of Richard Wagner, not because she loved the music, for it did not appeal to her, but because the themes are based on some fantastic tale about a Lohengrin or a Flying Dutchman.

Steele was anxious for the match, not only because it would be advantageous to both, but because Eva was a charming girl, and he wanted her for a wife. After the usual gifts of such trumpery as a woman may accept from a man—probably because it may be swept out within a few days after its reception without material loss—he proposed. He looked upon nothing with rainbow eyes and doubtless his declaration was matter of fact. He could not be anything else.

Eva admired her suitor for his real worth, but a proposition which dwelt mainly on the advantages to be gained by both parties was repulsive to her. She rejected Amos, and when he pressed her for a reason she told him plainly that the man she married must love her better than his life; must be willing to endure poverty with her; must be ready to defend her in case of necessity with his heart's blood.

"I fear you have been reading romantic stories," he said to her. "There is no romance in America. In Europe they have their legends of heroes and heroines, their Sir Galahads, their Lorelels, their thousand and one impossibilities. In America we have only the Salem witches, which, being old women riding on broomsticks, are not pleasing to contemplate. Besides, all these beautiful fancies wither before an empty stomach or a hole in one's stocking. Why do we call that period of intense affection between newly married persons the honeymoon?"

"Because it is very sweet, I suppose."

"Very sweet and very fleeting. A moon lasts but twenty-eight days. No one expects the exuberance of love to endure more than a month."

"The man I marry must love me forever, his love growing stronger every hour, every day, every month, every year. He must be a man of courage, ready to strike at any moment in my defense. I think I shall marry a soldier, tall, handsome"—

"Suppose he gets his nose shot off?"

"He will woo me by diving to bring me pearls; he will climb mountains, standing on giddy heights to show that he can look upon an abyss without fear."

"Why not marry a man in a flying machine?"

"Enough of this," said Eva sharply. "It is evident that you and I are not fitted for each other. I wish a man to lift me up, not to drag me down. With you I should always feel that I was chained to earth."

It was evident to Amos that he was gaining nothing. In fact, the more he endeavored to instill the practical into the girl he wanted the more he seemed to antagonize her. He took leave of her and went away sorrowful.

Amos had an uncle whom he was very much like in his nonappreciation of the romantic, only the uncle was experienced, while Amos was not. His uncle was manager of Amos' property and would remain so until the heir became thirty years old. The guardian had favored the match, and at Amos' failure he reported it to his uncle, giving the cause.

"My boy," replied the older man, "never oppose a woman. With the softer sex one must stoop to conquer. You made a mistake in ridiculing Eva's sentimentality. You should not only have appeared to appreciate it, but have in every case gone her one better. You must take a back track."

"If I recall what I have said I shall receive only contempt."

"Never mind what you have said. Our words are of little moment beside our acts. Contrive a scene in which you will jump in the water to save some one's life."

"I can't swim."

"Wear something buoyant under your clothing."

"Whose life shall I save? Persons won't fall into the water especially to enable a man to show his prowess in saving them."

"Oh, a dummy will do. How do you suppose they contrive to have persons wrecked on trains, drowned in sunken boats, blown up in powder magazines for the movies?"

"I never thought of that."

"And you a practical man? Don't talk about failure with a woman when an uneducated movie manager will succeed with the whole world. You must marry Eva and marry her as soon as possible. The Tenth street property which you and Eva own jointly must either be owned by both as one or divided. To divide it would be ruin. Come! Bestir yourself."

"I'll see what I can do," replied Amos as he strode away thoughtfully.

Amos and Eva lived in a hilly country that in part might be called mountainous. There was one place called the Devil's Climb because an ambitious youth had lost his life trying to get up it. Amos was driving past it one day when he saw a man scaling it like a cat. Indeed, while he climbed with the agility of a cat, he seemed to be endowed with invisible wings. He not only climbed, he flew. No part of the cliff was so perpendicular that he could not mount it. At times it seemed he was about to fall backward and be mangled on rocks a hundred feet below, but he always caught, sometimes on the edge of a landing above him; sometimes he would draw himself up by a twig that seemed too slender to sustain a kitten. Yet up he went, surmounting every difficulty, till he reached the summit, then turned and, assuming a theatrical attitude, took off his hat and waved it to imaginary persons below.

As soon as he had achieved his exploit a group of persons who had been standing near began to shout and wave to him to the music of a movie camera which had been set up near enough for Amos to hear. Then, the show being over, the players moved away.

Then Amos, looking about him, saw things that he had not noticed before. Several cameras were being removed and placed in vehicles. A man on top of the cliff was taking down a sort of derrick that had been hidden from view, while on the bottom was coiling a wire and taking apart an apparatus similar to that above. A man was directing the transfers, and Amos approached him.

"The man who climbed the cliff was pulled up by a wire, I presume?" he said.

"Just so; and a donkey engine. There it is going into that wagon."

"Could I secure this paraphernalia and these men to hoist me up there?"

"I reckon you can if you want to pay for it."

"What would it cost?"

"Well, I reckon about a hundred dollars."

"I'll pay you the hundred dollars if you'll permit me to choose my own time. Would I need any practice?"

"You could do a better job by having had practice, but it isn't absolutely necessary."

Amos paid the man $20 on account, and he agreed to be on hand with the apparatus set up the following afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The next day Amos took Eva to ride and directed his car to the Devil's Climb. On reaching a point a few hundred yards from it Amos pulled up and, assuming an air of injured innocence, thus addressed her:

"You have thought proper to impugn my courage. You have intimated that I am nothing better than a worm of the dust. You have said that you wished some one for a husband who would elevate, not drag, you to earth. This, coming from one I love better than my life, has blighted it. It is no value to me. I am going to risk it to convince you that I am a man, not a coward."

Jumping from the car, he ran toward the Devil's Climb. Reaching a point directly beneath it, he paused and looked up. He was doing something with his hands, but Eva could not discern what it was. He hooked a wire to a belt under his shoulders. Then he began to climb.

"Great heavens!" cried Eva. "Is he going to try to scale that cliff?"

Amos sprang lightly over the lower rocks, which were comparatively easy to scale. Then he reached a perpendicular rock higher than his head. He sprang up, clutched it, and in another moment stood upon it. The ascent now became more difficult, but the more difficult it was the easier it seemed for him. When he was nearing the top he stopped beneath a straight up and down face in the rock and carefully placed a foot in a cavity. Then catching a slight projection he placed the other foot on a similar support. He was midway up the face of the rock when he fell backward.

In a moment she took them away and looked again. Heaven be praised! Amos had been caught by a scrub tree growing out of the face of the cliff.

Giving a spring, he seemed to fly back to the cliff slightly below the rock from which he had fallen and proceeded to make a second attempt to scale it.

Eva shouted to him to stop. Whether or not he heard her he paid no attention to her. This time he succeeded in standing upon a narrow landing and resumed his ascent.

He was saved from another fall by seizing a projecting root; he slipped, he staggered, he caught at what seemed straws, and all the while Eva was watching him in agony. At last he stood upon the summit.

He was about to descend by the same route he had come up when Eva sprang from the car and ran toward him, beseeching him not to do so. This time he heard her and came down a stone at the side of the cliff, which was an easy descent. Eva threw her arms about him and went into hysterics.

The next day Amos informed his uncle that the wedding day had been fixed.

Quebec Men in Ontario Factories.

One of Canada's agricultural implement industries provided for service in khaki no less than 600 men. Some of these it was, of course, not difficult to replace, but a large proportion of them knew the run of their work. They were trained to different processes and machines, and were an important factor in the measure of the output. Those obtained to replace them, of which some 300 were brought from Quebec, had to be trained, and they could not be classed as competent for some weeks after they were put to work. Conditions at present, and as they for some time have been, are such that men such as could be got were put to work. In Ontario especially the shortage of men has been most marked. Bringing men from a distance is in itself an expensive undertaking. Only higher wages and other considerations can bring men away from their home environment. To-day, in every part of industrial Ontario, permanent signs are fixed over the offices of iron-working plants reading, "Men Wanted." The announcement is not qualified by the term "experienced" or that skill of any kind is required.

"Have and Serve."

From across the Channel, where the guns thunder, two messages are borne to us—victory and self-sacrifice. One can never be had without the other. We who live at home behind the fleet's shelter are asked for lesser offerings than the supreme one which is made at the front. But with us, as with the soldiers, the question is one of duty. Each of us who spends goods and services not essential to health and emciency is putting a drag on the national wheel; each of us who saves and lends to the State, be his means large or small, is doing what in him lies to share in the great national effort, of which soldiers, sailors, and munition makers are the protagonists, but which rests in the last resort on the industry and wealth of the nation as a whole.—London Chronicle.

City Council Should Deal With Question Of Public Swimming Baths at Their Next Meeting

Now is the Time for Action in this Important Matter about which Hundreds of People Petitioned the Council Last Summer. Otonabee River Offers Many Splendid Sites and Bathing Places can be Provided at comparatively trifling cost. People want them and there is no reason why they should not have them. A Sum should be placed in this year's appropriations to cover the cost of establishing suitable places.

THE SPACE on this page is being used each Saturday to discuss matters of civic interest. Therefore, while it may seem a vivid contrast to talk of public swimming baths with the thermometer below the zero mark, yet, in view of the fact that the annual appropriations of the City Council for the present year will soon be brought down, the present is the time to bring this important question before the public, and the greater Peterborough page is the proper place to state the facts.

The Possibilities Offered by The Otonabee River

Visitors to Peterborough have commented most unfavourably on the indifference that is shown among the city's rulers as to the possibilities offered by the Otonabee River. The water front in the centre of the city, which might have been made a beauty spot, was allowed to fall into the hands of a corporation. Nowhere along the river has any attempt been made to take advantage of the asset the Otonabee undoubtedly is. A city of 20,000, with a beautiful river flowing through the heart of it, has absolutely no suitable public bathing place. True, during the memorable hot days of last summer, hundreds of people bathed in the river, but under great handicaps, as no dressing-rooms are available anywhere along the river, and no supervised swimming places, with competent instructors to teach the art of swimming.

Last Summer Hundreds of People Signed a Petition

Last summer hundreds of people signed a petition to the City Council, asking that suitable places be established. Naturally the agitation was started when the need was felt most in the latter part of July and during the month of August, and just as naturally the movement was too late to accomplish anything in the desired line for last year. Now is the time to bring the matter before the Council. If anything is to be done this year, and certainly public opinion last summer seemed to be unanimous that something should be done, the City Fathers should get busy at once. An amount should be put into this year's appropriations for the establishment of bathing places along the Otonabee. No elaborate amount is needed. A few bathing houses for dressing-rooms is practically all that is required. There is no reason in the world why the citizens of Peterborough should not have a safe place to swim and the necessary privacy for purposes of dressing and undressing.

If these things are to come for next summer, the impetus must be given now. You citizens who signed the petitions last summer should see that the Aldermen in your wards are reminded of the matter. With a little missionary work along that line, there is no doubt that the Council will act. Public swimming baths are a necessity, not a luxury, and when the results can be obtained by the expenditure of a modest sum, there is no reason why the summer of 1917 should see the bathing places opened and in good working order. That they will be patronized, the hundreds of people who frequented the river last year, in spite of all the difficulties in the way, are ample evidence. The Examiner would like to see the Council take this matter up at its next meeting.

The swimming baths are needed, the public want them, and the cost will be trifling compared to the benefit to be derived.

SOME OF THE MORE INTERESTING 1917 IDEAS FROM THE WORLD'S STYLE SHOPS

One must have an afternoon frock to fit in for so many occasions that it is really worth while to invest in an attractive one. Illustrated is one developed in midnight blue chiffon velvet, and combined with Georgette crepe, the treatment of the velvet in the skirt and bodice is extremely novel, for it combines in such a way that it is not at all cumbersome. The long sleeves and low, round neck are interesting details.

Already some of the dance frocks for spring are appearing, and in many instances extreme simplicity seems to be the keynote. The materials are the conspicuous feature, these being shown in gorgeous colors and lovely floral patterns. Here a frock is shown in brown radium taffeta with an exquisite rose pattern, topped by a bodice of rose maline. A crushed girdle of self material and the slightly draped sides are the features.

The combination featured in this gorgeous evening wrap is flesh chiffon velvet and fox fur. Aside from this exquisite combination the lining is of rich metal brocade and flesh satin. The deep pointed yoke, outlined by the heavy cording accentuates the long line. Not less interesting is flesh-colored chapeau, with its velvet crown and huge lace butterfly bow.

Clever rows of odd square buttons, oddly placed pockets, and a slightly defined waistline, make the coat of this suit a very distinctive model. It is fashioned in tan velour and trimmed with seal fur. The coat is three-quarter length. The fur trimmed hat and white-topped button boots are notable details.

Their father tried to enlist in the 93rd Battalion himself, but was rejected.

SEVEN BROTHERS IN THE SERVICE OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE,

one of whom has paid the supreme sacrifice, is a record which a Niagara Falls young woman feels justly proud about. Mrs. J. DeCarteret, of Terrace Avenue, Niagara Falls, is a member of a family which has done perhaps more for the cause, in sending men, than any other. Some weeks ago Mrs. DeCarteret received word that one of her brothers, Private George Falls, who was a member of the Royal Irish Regiment, had been killed in action. The parents of the noble Falls boys are Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Falls, of Les Tracheries, L'Islet. A second son, Stephen, has been invalided out of the Hampshire Regiment, and four other sons are serving in various units. Nicholas is with the South African Scottish; Wilfred is with the Australians in France; Walter is serving with the Manchesters, and Frederick is in the British navy. Thomas, the seventh son, is with the divisional ammunition column.

PTE. NICHOLAS SCOTT

Who enlisted with the 93rd Battalion on March 15th last, and is now in France with the 15th Battalion, C.E.F.

PTE. GEO. LILLY

Who went overseas with the 93rd and is now in France with the 4th Battalion. His home is at 134 Rubidge.

PTE. W. B. ELLIOTT

A BIG RECRUITING MEETING TO-MORROW NIGHT

Russian Naval Squadron Sinks Forty Turkish Cargo Boats

Were Carrying Heavy Cargoes When Sent to the Bottom--Petrograd Announces That the Teutonic Forces Have Been Thrown Back East of Monestirka and Kachinul After a violent Struggle --Another Allied Offensive is Indicated on Macedonian Front.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 13.—A Russian naval squadron raided the Anatolian coast on January 6th and sank forty Turkish sailing vessels bound for Constantinople with heavy cargoes, according to an announcement attributed to the Petrograd Naval Staff by the Central News to-day.

Sixty-three prisoners were reported captured.

PETROGRAD, Jan. 13.—East of Monestirka and Kachinul, Roumanian forces succeeded, after a violent struggle, in throwing back the Teutonic troops and occupying some of their trenches, to-day's official statement declared. Three machine guns were captured in the Roumanian attack.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The wireless report that Ambassador Gerrard has said at a recent Berlin banquet that the relations between Germany and America were never better since the war started than at present, is substantially correct, according to word from Gerrard to the State Department to-day.

ANOTHER OFFENSIVE BEGINS IN MACEDONIA

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

BERLIN, Jan. 13.—The repulse of hostile companies east of the Cerna bend, which were advancing toward Stravina, was announced to-day.

The above despatch apparently indicates a new Allied offensive in Macedonia.

Berlin Announces The Capture Of Mihalea

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

BERLIN(via Sayville, Jan. 13.—The storming and capture of the Roumanian town of Mihalea, with its Russian garrison of four hundred soldiers, a number of other Russians being drowned in attempting to escape across the Sereth river, was reported in to-day's official statement.

British forces gained a footing in one place north of the Ancre, following attacks against Serre, was also announced.

"North of the Ancre the British launched new attacks against Serre," the War Office said.

"The greater part of them were sanguinarily repulsed, but in one fore position the enemy gained a footing. We hold the main position."

Many German Prisoners Taken On The Western Front

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, Jan. 13.—The British official communication issued last night says:

"During the past twenty-four hours twenty-four additional prisoners have been taken north of the Ancre, making the total for the successful operations in that area reported in Thursday's communication 204.

"We entered enemy trenches last night at two points north of Arras and secured prisoners. Our casualties were slight.

"There has been considerable artillery activity during the day at various points along our line between Rancourt and Hebuterne. We bombarded the enemy trenches north of Ransart and north of Givenchy with good results."

What Berlin Reports.

The fighting north of the Ancre River on the British front which began yesterday morning is still in progress, says a German War Office statement. An earlier statement reads:

"North of the Ancre the British twice attacked in vain. Near Serre their attack broke down before our lines. North of Beaucourt, after they had won initial successes, they were driven back into their original positions with heavy losses by a strongly pressed counter-attack. Fifty prisoners and two machine guns remained in our hands.

"Near Beaumont minor infantry engagements are still in progress."

MRS. MARGARET CALLAHAN NICOLLE

WAS FATALLY HURT IN SLEIGH-RIDING ACCIDENT LAST NIGHT

James C. Blake 124 Park St Dies Five Hours After the Sleigh he was Steering Collided with Telegraph Pole on Dale's Hill.

TWO BROTHERS AT FRONT

James Charles Blake, 124 Park street, while sleigh riding on Dale's Hill, High street, last night at nine o'clock, received injuries which proved fatal. Mr. Blake and three companions, his wife, his sister Hazel, and Wm. Palmer, were sleigh-riding on what is perhaps the most dangerous hill in the city, being extremely steep and narrow. Mrs. Blake, who was steering the sleigh, evidently lost control of it at top speed and the outfit crashed into a telegraph pole, crushing Mr. Blake's skull and lungs. He was carried to his mother's home, 639 Chamberlen street, and Dr. Mann called. However his injuries proved fatal, and he died five hours later. The rest of the party were badly bruised but otherwise uninjured.

Mr. Blake was 28 years old and a member of All Saints' Church, and an employee of the machine shop of the C.G.E. Two years ago he enlisted with the 8th C.M.R., here, but was returned as medically unfit. He was a member of Peterboro Lodge, No. 111, I.O.O.F. He is survived by his wife, formerly Rita Brady, residing at 124 Park street, two brothers with the 8th C.M.R., Horace and Leonard, one brother, Arthur, in Toronto, and one sister, Hazel, at home. One of the brothers at the front has been missing since June last.

The funeral announcement will be made later.

"Hurrah For the Front" A Popular Recruiting Song

One of the latest and most popular recruiting songs in circulation is the soldiers' marching song, entitled "Hurrah for the Front." It is dedicated to the "boys in khaki," written and composed by Margaret Callaghan Nicolle. Mrs. Nicolle is one of Chatham's popular ladies, possessing marked musical ability, and is the wife of Capt. (Dr.) Fred Nicolle, C.A.M.C., who is now in France, and who was formerly one of Chatham's prominent surgeons. The above article is taken from the musical section of Saturday night.

The authoress of this beautiful and inspiringly worded song, is the daughter of Thomas Callaghan, of Campbellford, a well known lumberman. There is little doubt of an extensive sale for this catchy vocal production, and we shall expect to hear it sung freely in Peterborough and vicinity.

BANQUET FOR RETURNED SOLDIERS ON MONDAY

The Otonabee Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire, wishing to do honour to the returned soldiers, are giving a banquet in the Recreation-Room of the Armouries on Monday evening, January 15th, at six o'clock. They sincerely hope that every returned soldier in Peterborough will come. Personal invitations are being sent out, but it is difficult to get all the names, so if any returned man does not get one, the Chapter trusts he will accept this invitation. You are included in this invitation if you have enlisted and have been discharged, no matter whether you have seen overseas service or not.

FARMERS GET BIG PRICES FOR PORK AND WOOD ON MARKET

Farmers had large offerings of pork, beef, wood and hay on the market this morning. Pork was up to 18c and 20c for front and hind quarters. Beef was steady at last week's quotations. Hay was likewise unchanged, and the wood sold around $7 and $8 a load. The farmer showed no hesitation in asking $8 a load for hardwood. In past years they state that they sold it altogether too cheaply. To hear them state their grievances, which they pretend to have only recently realized, one would fancy that they had not received at least the prices that prevailed at any time for their commodities. And twenty-five cent pork on the market, is close to the luxury standard.

Butter, 42c to 43c per lb.
Eggs, 50c to 55c per doz.
Chickens, 80c to $1.40 per pair.
Ducks, $1 each.

Lloyd George's Visit To Rome An Epoch

Has Tightened Up the Allies in Any Spots Where There Was Still Lack of Cohesion—Closer Co-operation is Evident.

MORE RESULTS EXPECTED

(Copyright, 1917, Central News, By T. P. O'Connor.)

LONDON, Jan. 12.—This week will always be memorable for the opening of an extraordinary new chapter in the career of Premier David Lloyd George. The newspapers recently have kept very quiet and there has been but scanty authoritive information but events are proving already, and will prove more later, that his visit to Rome marks a momentous epoch in the conduct of the war. It has tightened up the Allies in any spots where there was still lack of cohesion. Especially is this true in reference to Greece, the conference resulting in joint firm action directed against that country in the shape of an ultimatum to King Constantine in which Italy heartily joined.

Closer Co-operation.

This is the first visible fruits of the closer co-operation produced by the visit of Premier George to Rome. Other results are expected to soon follow as it is evident that when spring comes there must be such a simultaneous pressure from all directions on Germany as will enforce a decision and bring the war to an end.

The hold which Lloyd George had on the popular imagination and the new spirit given to English influence by his accession to office is shown by the eulogies appearing in Italian newspapers and by the application to him of a new title, that of, "Prime Minister of Europe." His dominance is shown even more by the smooth working of that committee of public safety, which he left behind, while democratic England accepted without a murmur the absolute rule of two of Premier George's colleagues, Arthur Henderson and Earl Curzon, though Curzon had to shorten his honeymoon and exchange the role of bridegroom for that of dictator.

The Committees of Public Safety are always regarded as consisting of your men. In the Committee of Public Safety on which our present actual government of England is founded, of the three chief figures Robespierre was thirty-six years of age, Danton thirty-five, and Saint Just only twenty-seven. The four chief figures in our Committee are aged—Mr. Lloyd George fifty-three, Lord Curzon fifty-seven, Lord Milner sixty-two, and Mr. Arthur Henderson fifty-three. Yet, according to the English standard, in which youth remains to a much later period than any other country, all these gentlemen are considered young, and indeed are young. I have known them all from their youth, and though there are of course changes, they still remain in essentials the same.

A Different Appearance.

The Lloyd George I see to-day has a very different face and appearance from the Lloyd George I knew in the early nineties. Then he was a slim young man, with a thin unlined face, and small muttonchop whiskers. I do not remember even to have paid any particular attention to his eyes. To-day the fact is so striking that it could not remain unnoticed. The forehead has broadened, the mass of hair grown always long, not from habit so much as from unwillingness to give time to the barber, looks with its thick locks of iron grey like a mane. The eyes seem almost to have grown larger by the deeper and more self-confident expression that has come into them, and the heavy lines all over the face are the marks of hard work, fierce fights and some profound personal troubles. But in movement, in voice, in gesticulation,

WOUNDED SOLDIER RETURNS HOME THIS MORNING

IN SEVERAL BATTLES

With a part of his right hand shot away and showing other evidences of wounds received during ten months of campaigning on the western front, Private Robert Saffrey, of the 38th Battalion, and formerly of the Peterborough representation of the 39th Battalion, this morning, arrived home after some days' delay at Quebec. Pte. Saffrey was badly shot up at St. Eloi, where he lost three fingers on one hand and was shot through the lower part of the stomach. A portion of the hip bone was blown to pieces. Pte. Saffrey's home is at 309 Mark street. He was in several well known battles such as the last battle of Ypres, Zillebeke, Sanctuary Wood and Hooge. Engagements at "Plug Street," Kemmel Hill and St. Eloi also claimed his attention. It was at the last named place that he was wounded.

Well Represented.

Pte. Saffrey has four brothers in the war. They are with the British Army, having enlisted in the Old Country. After being wounded Pte. Saffrey spent some time in England with his parents, and on December 16th was united in marriage to a Peterborough girl who arrived in England about the time Pte. Saffrey was leaving for France.

Pte. Saffrey returned to Canada on the steamer "Scotian" together with about one hundred and fifty wounded men. It was during the course of the trip that a Kinmount woman jumped off the boat in mid-Atlantic and was swallowed up in the sea. The vessel hove to and lowered a boat, but were unable to locate the woman.

REV. MR. WEBB'S 10TH ANNIVERSARY

That a prophet does sometimes receive honour in his own country is shown by the manner in which the members of Murray Street Baptist Church and congregation are celebrating the tenth anniversary of the coming of Rev. J. R. Webb to the pastorate of that church. Rev. H. E. Stillwell, a close friend of the pastor, and a preacher who is always welcomed to Peterborough, will occupy the pulpit at the morning service. Before the service, however, the deacons and other officers will meet to welcome the visiting pastor and to engage in a brief season of prayer. At the evening service the pastor will preach. Altogether, the day, begun and carried through in such a spirit of good fellowship, should be very pleasant and helpful to the people of Murray Street.

Kut Encircled By British

LONDON, Jan. 12.—The official communication dealing with the campaign in Mesopotamia says:

"In the morning of the 10th, during foggy weather our troops continued their operations on the right bank of the Tigris. They made steady progress throughout the day, and by nightfall the greater part of the Turkish trenches on the right bank of the river, in the loop northeast of Kut-el-Amara, was captured.

"The prisoners taken yesterday now total 178, including seven officers. In one communication trench 300 yards long, 200 Turkish dead were found. Elsewhere the casualties are reported to have been numerous."

PEACE OFFER.

You are assured of peace of mind when you purchase your glasses from Dr. Lacey. You know they will do exactly as he says they will. See him about that headache and dimness of vision. Broken lenses duplicated and all repair work. 410 George Street.

THE TRENT CANAL.

Is the Trent Canal, completed and ready for through traffic, to be opened this year? Nineteen hundred and seventeen is the "big push" year of the British Empire. Is Canada to fall in line, in the way of munitions, of men and other resources? Lloyd George says:

"The Allies will cleave the path to victory in 1917."

Canada must be ready to share in the results. Peace will bring its problems, less gruesome than the problems of victory, but even a harder nut to crack. Every item of our national equipment must be put into the best shape possible to meet the insistent demands of peace. Our transportation must be at its fullest and best.

Here the Trent Canal comes in. Mr. Burnham, M.P., for West Peterborough, some time ago, if memory serves faithfully, promised or said the Trent Canal would be completed and opened this year. Can he tell us now if this big thing is to be realized? It should be. If some further work is necessary, it should be done. We need all our money for war purposes it is true, but our revenue this year has reached the top notch and we should have enough to finish the canal. It is a pity if all the people's money spread over a space of 80 years—especially in the last 35 years since the Conservative Government made a spurt—in the last 20 years since the Liberal Government made a spurt—in the last 5 years since another, Conservative Government made a spurt—should be lost to local and national use of the canal by withholding the spending of a few thousand dollars necessary to complete the canal. By all means let us if possible, have the canal completed this year. Traffic interests need it; and if we are to have peace this year we should be able to make the opening of the Trent Canal a feature of, and a factor in, the jubilation. It would be a fine thing if the rebuilding of the Quaker Oats buildings should synchronize with, and be helped by, and their future operations be helped by, the Trent Canal in operation.

BELGIUM AND HER FRIENDS.

Belgium has had to bear the brunt, the German invasion, and no one can imagine what she has suffered in the way of indignity outrage, robbery of her substance and the cruel treatment of her citizens. Belgium was the buffer between the German juggernaut's triumphant grind over the streets of London and Paris. Belgium saved the civilization and human liberty that were menaced by the ruthless ambition of Germany, and her sufferings have called for and enlisted the help of the whole world, especially of her allies.

People who do not know the help Belgium has had to bear the brunt of got, inadequate as it has been, have great admiration for the liberality of the United States. The United States has contributed a large sum to the relief of Belgium—to the extent of eight million dollars. A United States writer contrasts this comparatively small sum for humanity's sake with the fifty millions of profits the United States has reaped from munition making. It does seem small, compared with what Great Britain and France have done, and are doing for blighted Belgium. In addition to her staggering expenses in financing the war in keeping five million soldiers in the field, fed and equipped and in addition to financing her allies by millions from day to day, Great Britain is contributing five million dollars every month to succour Belgium's starving people; and France with her heavy war burdens is giving four million dollars per month for the same purpose, making a monthly total of nine million dollars, compared with the contributions of eight million by the United States in thirty months. In addition to what the government is doing the British people and the people of her Dominions are subscribing $600,000 a month or seven millions a year, making a total of 9¾ millions a month contributed to Belgian relief, compared with the eight million the great United States have contributed in thirty months in the interests of a humanity that appeals as much to a neutral nation as to a warring nation.

When we consider these things—these figures and these facts, we see what tremendous burdens Britain and her chief ally are bearing in the cause of humanity and the protection of its interests—the mere physical existence of Belgium,—and when we come to add the consideration of what they are bearing to help save the national soul—the national existence of a weaker member of the family of nations we can get a higher perception of the greatness of sacrifice that Britain is prepared to make for an idea, the idea of human liberty.

And we get a keen perception of our obligations, of our duty to do, to the fullest, our share in achieving the highest object, the grandest ambition that was set as a goal for national achievement.

A LITTLE COMPARISON.

They do some things better in Quebec than we do in Ontario, though to some Ontario firebrands, such a statement is heretical and wicked. In the first place Quebec is unquestionably far ahead in the matter of achievement of a policy of good highways than this province. It is a recognized fact that Quebec leads all the other provinces in the quality and scope of its good roads policy, and its length of mileage of permanent highways. This is only one point of superiority, but it is a mighty important point both in fact and significance. It is an age-long recognized truth, that the quality of the highways of a country is a measure of its standard of civilization.

In the matter of municipal elections—the date—Quebec is at present holding her municipal elections in some parts—a season when public attention undistracted by the demands of the Christmas holiday season, are free to give more undivided attention to a very important local matter. Besides Quebec not only provides for a better concentration of public attention upon the selection of candidates but facilitates their election; gives larger opportunity for getting a full vote of the electorate—the polls open at 8 o'clock in the morning and are kept open till six o'clock in the evening, making the voting two hours longer than in "superior" Ontario. These may be small matters, but in the average summation of points of merit they have an important place.

In some respects Quebec education has superior points compared with that of Ontario. The numbers of men of fair or even limited education who can speak and write both the great languages of this dominion—English and French—is far greater in Quebec than in Ontario. The recent conference of "La Bonne Entente" demonstrated the necessity, if we are to have advantageous equipment for commercial success, of the people of both provinces—and especially Ontario—having a larger working knowledge of the two languages, and the province that has this knowledge to the largest extent possesses the greater advantage in the matter of commercial intercourse and success.

Another thing that Quebec leads Ontario in is in the matter of oratory. Every educated French-Canadian is a good speaker because he has been trained in oratory. The deficiencies of the average Ontarian in this regard is a painful memory of humiliating experience by all who have attended a banquet in Ontario, and had to listen to the lame, drivelling banality of the average after-dinner speech.

And above all, and a matter of the highest moment the French-Canadian believes in himself; believes that his country would be the better of more of him. This belief finds expression in the fecundity of French-Canadian marriage, in the numerical character of French-Canadian families—ten to one as compared with the average Ontario families. If the firebrands who pretend to dread "French domination" in the form of preponderance of numbers, would vary their raving by a lucid interval of reflection they would perceive that it will be the result of simple arithmetical principles as applied to relative increase of population by births if the present numerical preponderance is reversed.

Per contra there are some things in which Ontario can claim superior pride, for instance, recruiting. But it must be remembered that French-Canadians loyal as they are to their ancestral arpents and the British institutions under which they have lived and prospered, are at heart simple folk and easily beguiled — that they have not been proof against the influence of the feeling of the insincerity of the appeal for recruts of a government that is in large part composed of men, anti-imperial and anti-British who hold and preach and practice the doctrine that Quebec or Canada owes nothing to Great Britain and has no call or duty to help fight her wars.

These things are not cited in a controversial spirit, but in the meaning of the "bonne entente" movement, whose success is dependent upon a mutual fuller knowledge and understanding of each other by the peoples of Ontario and Quebec; and it is hoped that a fuller knowledge will have a tendency to modify the supercilious attitude some Ontario people are too eager to assume, the one attitude that approximates the character of a crime in a country of mixed population where mutual tolerance, mutual trust, and mutual good faith, are conditions of a nationhood of success and greatness.

THE MAJESTIC GROWTH OF BRITISH POWER.

France saved Europe at the Marne. Russia saved Europe by dividing the German armies, and giving France breathing space and England time to arm; and England, too, saved Europe, for without her on the sea, the war would long have been over. The part she played is not single, as it was when she faced Napoleon alone; she divides the honour with France, but her share was not the least. it grows greater all the time. The spectacle of that growth under blows is majestic. To the querulous ones who have said so much about the weakness of democracies in stress, there are two impressive answers; the sight of England confronting Napoleon, the sight of England confronting William II.—New York Times.

MAHAN VS. HINDENBURG.

The present war has been described as a fight between Mahan and Hindenburg. The Germans have endeavoured to establish themselves as the dictators of Europe by means of a mighty and perfectly equipped army and a navy of considerable but not overwhelming power. Their hopes have been quashed by—we quote Admiral Mahan—"the unremitting daily silent pressure of naval force." It was the British navy that saved France in August, 1914. It was the British navy that made it possible to train the British army in security and to transport it to the various seats of war. It is the British navy whose strangle hold is gradually but surely destroying the enemy's economic life. Great battles may be won on land, but final triumph must be sought on the seas. Sea power is ours, unaffected by the pin-pricks of the enemy, and whatever the cost, we shall hold on to sea power for the sake of our race and for the sake of humanity. —London Express.

NAVAL POLICY OF THE LIBERALS
THE TRUE CANADIAN NAVAL POLICY

The colossal, deliberate, and persistent falsifications by Conservative politicians are publicists of the attitude of Canadian Liberals toward the creation and development of a Canadian navy make it necessary to recur occasionally to that subject for the purpose of preventing gross misrepresentations from acquiring the character of historic facts. With three Bourassa Nationalists holding portfolios in the Borden Cabinet, it is inevitable that its supporters in Parliament and on the Press should feel impelled to divert attention as much as possible from this discreditable situation by a continuous outpouring of malignant misrepresentation of the record of the Liberal party on the subject of the navy. Only those who go back to the first introduction of this question into Parliament, and follow it through the subsequent discussions, can appreciate the flagrancy of their gratuitously false assertions and implications. So far from opposing the creation and development of a Canadian navy, Liberals are entitled to the credit of having initiated the only practical naval policy yet proposed for adoption by the Canadian people.

Sir George Foster started the first real debate of the navy question when, in the session of 1909, he moved in the House of Commons that "Canada should no longer delay in assuming her proper share of the responsibility and financial burden incident to the suitable protection of her exposed coast line and great seaports." With a view to making Sir Georges proposition at once more specific and more Canadian, the then Premier, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, asked him to accept as a substitute for his general statement of the case a threefold resolution that expressed the approval of past expenditures by Canada for her own defence as part of the Empire; avowed the readiness of Parliament to "approve of any necessary expenditure designed to promote the organization of a Canadian naval service in co-operation with and close relation to the Imperial Navy, along the lines suggested by the Admiralty at the last Imperial Conference, and in full sympathy with the view that the naval supremacy of Great Britain is essential to the security of commerce, the safety of the Empire, and the peace of the world," and expressed the belief that "when the need arises the Canadian people will be found ready and willing to make any sacrifice that is required to give to the Imperial authorities the most loyal and hearty co-operation in every movement for the maintenance of the integrity and honour of the Empire." In the light of all that has happened during the subsequent interval of from five to seven years the language of Sir Wilfrid's resolution was strikingly prophetic; and it stands to the credit of the House of Commons in general, and of Sir George Foster in particular, that it was unanimously adopted. The subsequent nullification of the policy thus enunciated and of the scheme thus foreshadowed was as calamitous as it was gratuitous, but for that the Liberals in Parliament and outside of it have no responsibility.

Taking it for granted that Parliament meant what it said, the Laurier Government went on to secure in the next session the enactment of a "Naval Service" Act, paralleling the "Militia Service" Act already on the statute book, and to purchase, for training purposes only, two out-of-date British cruisers, the Niobe and the Rainbow. It was never intended that these vessels should be used in a naval battle, even as shore protectors or commerce destroyers, though they have both been found surprisingly helpful in this war. A by-election in a Liberal Quebec constituency gave Mr. Henri Bourassa a chance to organize a Nationalist crusade against the Liberal Government, and, with the help of the Quebec Conservative leaders, including the late Mr. Monk and the present precious trio of Cabinet catspaws, he defeated the Liberal candidate in Drummond and Arthabaska.

The Liberal naval policy of 1910 included the construction of fast cruisers of medium tonnage and high speed, of smaller coast defence vessels such as destroyers and submarines, and of any mechanical device that experience might prove to be effective. The announcement of this policy roused the Nationalists to the fiercest animosity, and, to their everlasting discredit, not a few Conservatives in all the Provinces ranged themselves with the Nationalists in their extreme anti-Imperial attitude. The Liberal Government policy was adopted on a party division, when the vote should in common decency have been unanimous, as the previous one had been—all the more so as in the meantime the Government of Canada had entered, with the concurrence of the Admiralty, into an agreement with the Government of Australia that the Dominion and the Commonwealth should co-operate, each with its own fleet, for the purpose of naval defence of the Empire. Had this policy been acted on there would never have been a German naval victory on the Pacific Ocean.

In 1911 the Laurier Government, defeated in Ontario by protectionist influences, and greatly weakened in Quebec by the fierce Nationalist anti-navy campaign, the most effective feaure of which was the cry that Laurier had betrayed his countrymen by inducing "conscription," went out of office, leaving to its successor tenders for the construction of certain naval vessels. Had the Borden Government gone promptly on with the letting of contracts in 1912-13 Canada would have had, when the war broke out, some effective naval vessels of her own, manned by Canadian sailors, ready to co-operate with the Imperial Navy under the orders of the Admiralty. But, submitting to the dictation of the Nationalists, not merely outside but inside of his Cabinet, Sir Robert Borden went to London to consult with the Admiralty, of which the dominating spirit was Mr. Winston Churchill. The Nationalists were willing to spend a certain amount of Canadian money as a contribution to the Imperial Navy, provided that was to be an end of the matter, and in this way an agreement to purchase British-built super-Dreadnoughts was conducted. These vessels were to be used, as others of their class have been used throughout the war, for North Sea service, and when that proposal came before the Senate the approval of that body was withheld. There the matter has been allowed to stand, and for this quite unnecessary and absolutely inexcusable stagnation the Borden Government must be charged with entire responsibility. No evasions, no falsifications, can alter this damning record, of which the last has not been heard in the way of debate.— The Globe.

Sunday Sermon For Those Who Do Not Go To Church

(By JAMES SUTHERLAND)

St. John 11th Chapter 35th to 42 verse: Jesus wept. Then said the Jews behold how he loved him, and some of them said, could not this man which opened the eyes of the blind have caused that even this man should not have died, Jesus therefore again groaning in himself cometh to the grave. It was a cave and a stone lay upon it. Jesus said, take ye away the stone Martha the sister of him that was dead, saith unto him Lord by this time he decayeth, for he had been dead four days. Jesus saith unto her said I not unto thee that if thou wouldst believe thou shouldst see the glory of God. Then they took away the stone from the place where the dead was laid, and Jesus lifted up his eyes and said, Fath er I thank thee that thou hast heard me, and I know that thou hearest me always, but because of the people that stand by I said it that they may believe that thou hast sent me in our last; we briefly consider these wonderful words "Jesus wept" when he saw Mary weeping and the Jews weeping he groaned within himself and said where have ye laid him. They said come and see and as they led him along the path to the cave in the rock "Jesus wept" amazing sight, Jesus wept. He was the Son of God who thought it no robbery to be equal with God infinite in happiness, and yet he weeps, so truly does he feel the sorrows of his own. The Jews were astonished at his love they wondered at his love, they were only worldly men and yet they were amazed at such an overflow of love, they saw that heavenly form bowed down at the grave of Lazarus, they saw the tears that fell from his compassionate eyes, they saw the heaving of the breast, they saw only a little of his love, but they did not see what was within, they did not see its eternity. they did not know the fulness, the freeness, the vastness of that love of his. There is something in the love of Christ that even worldly men are amazed at it. When Jesus gives peace to his own in the midst of trouble, when clouds and darkness, poverty and distress assail them, yet they can be glad in the Lord and say, although the fig-tree shall not blossom, neither shall fruit be in the vines, the labour of the olives shall fail, and the fields shall yield no meat, the flock shall be cut off from the fold, and there shall be no herd in the stalls, yet I will rejoice in the Lord. I will joy in the God of my Salvation, then the world can say, Behold how he loved him. Let me die the death of the righteous and let my last end be like his. Yet for all this love so sincere, so affectionate, so true; yet for all those loving sympathetic tears some doubted it and said could not this man, which opened the eyes of the blind have caused that even this man should not have died. It was but a little before that Jesus had given sight to a man that was born blind, and the Jews that stood around him had seen this miracle, they doubted his words, they doubted his tears, many a one has turned away the love of Christ in the same way. We read that Jesus wept over Jerusalem, he did not want them to die in their sins, he did not want them to perish but to have everlasting life, and yet some doubt his love and turn aside his tears. You have heard his invitation—Come unto me all ye that labour and are heavy laden and I will give you rest; yet men spurn Christ's offer, and miss heaven. These Jews had seen him give sight to the blind and weep over Lazarus, yet they only grew harder. We now come to the scene at the grave: Take ye away the stone, Christ's ways are not as our ways, nor his thoughts like our thoughts. We would have thought that he would have commanded the stone to fly back by his own word, but God works by human agency and God expects us to be co-workers with him and has given us talents and powers to be used in His service and as we use these gifts for his glory they will be increased to us more and more. God knows our ability and says to us, take ye away the stone, we can pray for our unconverted friends, you know that it is only Christ that can give life. Martha's faith was waning she says, my brother has been dead four days. She did not know what Jesus was going to do. She forgot his message—this sickness is not unto death—but for the glory of God that the Son of God might be glorified thereby. She forgot his sweet saying—Thy brother shall rise again, and I am the resurrection and the life. How unbelief and lack of faith shuts out our own mercy Christ did not, many mighty words at Capernaum because of their unbelief—is anything too hard for God to do. Now we come to Christ's prayer, we do not know what words he used in that prayer, it was secret. No doubt but that during his groans and tears he was praying to his Father in secret, even in the midst of the people. Jesus was alone with his Father praying for his own, that their faith might not fail. Christ's example teaches us to pray in sudden trials, even when we cannot get any secret place, lift up your heart wherever you are, a sincere soul is never at a loss for a praying place to meet with God, get alone with God, spend as much time as you can alone with God every day and then in sudden temptations and afflictions you will be able to lift your heart to your Father's ear even among a crowd. Then Jesus says Father I thank thee that thou hast heard me, and that thou hearest me always, every intercession that Christ makes is answered, if we know that Christ prays for us, then we know that we have what he desires. Christ is one with his own, He gives thanks in our own name. Christ was always seeking the conversion of souls, even here in praying and giving thanks to his Father, as the sent of God and the Saviour of the world. When he had thus spoken, he cried with a loud voice Lazarus come forth, and he that was dead came forth bound hand and foot with grave clothes; the hollow cave rang with the solemn sound, which awoke the dead—the heart began suddenly to beat and the warm current of life to flow through the dead man's veins, the vital heat, and sense of hearing came back. It was a well-known voice that spoke, he would say he calls my name, so he arose and he that was dead came forth bound hand and foot with grave clothes, how simple and yet how divine and glorious, the Lord speaks and it is done, God's voice is powerful and full of majesty—now Christ's words were fulfilled, this sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God. That the Son of God might be glorified thereby, Christ manifested forth his glory as the resurrection and the life marvel, not at this for the hour is coming in the which all that are in their graves shall come forth, they that have done good to the resurrection of life, and they that have done evil to the resurrection of death, but we believe that Jesus died and rose again even so also them that sleep in Jesus will God bring with him. The dust of Lazarus was dear to Jesus, so is the dust of all his own; it is dear in his sight wherever they lie, it matters not—beneath the green sword, or beneath the deep blue sea, or on some distant battlefield or consumed in flame and smoke, their scattered dust will be gathered and made like his own glorious body.

95 Per Cent. of Illness Due To One Cause

Physicians agree that 95 per cent. of all illness is possible only because of accumulated waste in the Colon (lower Intestine.)

In fact, the most eminent of the World's Specialists claim that if the Colon were simply kept clean the average life of humanity would be doubled.

Now is now a new and simple method of cleansing the Colon of this poison-ous waste, and keeping it clean, pure and healthy. Of curing Constipation and the depressing illness attacks which make us dull, blue and inert—without any spirit or ambition.

Over 500,000 people are now enthusiastically using this modern warm water cure, and Physicians are prescribing it everywhere. It is making sick folks well and well folks better, stronger, more ambitious energetic and confidential.

This letter from Mr. A. Maclean, of Conger Lumber Co., Parry Sound, Ont., a sufferer for 25 years from Constipation, is very valuable:

Parry Sound, Ont.

Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell, Toronto.

Dear Sir,—I have used the J. B. L. Cascade since I received it. It does away with wonderful results. Before I started the treatment I could not pass one day without taking medicine; since here no medicine one day, and feel so much better in every way.

I have been troubled with Constipation for the past 25 or 40 years, and, of course, at my age cannot expect a speedy cure, but am now in my 73th year, but the relief it has already given me is a wonder to the good it will do for me.

I think a good many orders will come from Parry Sound as the treatment be comes known.

I cannot speak too highly of the Cascade treatment, and will surely talk much about it.

Yours gratefully,
A. Maclean.

The "J. B. L. Cascade" is now being explained and shown, and they will be glad to explain its action and mode to you in detail.

If you cannot call, you should write today to Chas. A. Tyrrell, M.D., 145 College street, Toronto, for booklet, "Why Man of To-day is Only 55 Per Cent. Efficient."

QUICK WORK IN PAINTING BUILDINGS

Toronto Firm Beats Record.

MR. F. G. ROBERTS, President Fred G. Roberts & Co., Limited, Toronto.

The Robert Simpson Co mail order building on Mutual street is eleven stories high, and contains 28,000 panes of glass. The painting in this large building was completely finished in 60 days.

The Sherbourne House Club, 88 Bleecker street (rear of late Senator Cox's home), contains 127 bedrooms, 14 lavatories, dining-rooms and kitchens, halls, etc., etc. These were stained and rubbed to a piano finish and walls and ceilings decorated throughout in 30 days.

The Ford Office and Service Building at Dupont and Christie streets, required 50,000 yards of painting, and was completed in 30 days.

This is marvellously quick time in which to complete the painting, etc., of large buildings like these, and establishes a new record in Toronto.

Mr. Fred. G. Roberts, the president of the Fred. G. Roberts & Co., Limited, Toronto, is justly proud of this accomplishment, as it was his company which was awarded the contracts, and notwithstanding the present labor difficulties, all were completed in the above record time.

His company has secured a great many of the recent large painting and decorating contracts. In addition to the above the company has successfully completed four C.P.R. Buildings, Process and Press Buildings, at the Exhibition Grounds, Bell Telephone Building, Molson's Bank, and the Bank of Commerce at Waterloo, Ryrie Building, St. Charles Hotel, West End Y.M.C.A., Canada Foundry Building, 3 Carnegie Libraries, Peterboro Baptist Church, Peterboro Carpet Works, Grasselli Chemical Co., Hamilton; Brannen's Apartment House, Hamilton, three large buildings for the Wm. Davies Co., Toronto—York Knitting Mills, Toronto, and the Robert Simpson Co. stables and wagon sheds.

Mr. Roberts was educated in Peterboro, Ont., is a director of Foresters Hall, Limited, and a member of the Toronto Board of Trade.

LLOYD-GEORGE'S SECOND

Brilliant Career of Devonport as Manager of London's Port

Lord Devonport's close association with Lloyd-George pointed to the certainty that he could if he chose occupy a high position in any Government that contained the brilliant Welshman. For years the two worked side by side. When Lloyd-George was President of the Board of Trade, Lord Devonport, then Hudson Kearley, was his Parliamentary Secretary, It is an open secret that it fell to the lot of the secretary to put into practical business shape the brilliant imaginings of his chief. So well did he perform this difficult task that he was created a baronet, and was put in charge of the work of organizing what is known as the Port of London Authority.

Up to 1909 the control of the Port of London, with its forty miles of quays and its docks occupying many thousands of acres, was divided among many different corporations, public and private. These bodies worked independently, and sometimes at cross-purposes, with the result that the river was not properly dredged and the re-export trade was seriously interfered with.

A Royal Commission having decided that all authority should be concentrated in one body, an Act of Parliament was passed and the Port of London Authority came into existence. The Port of London Authority fixes the port rates and dock charges, polices the river, borrows money for improvements and controls the Thames from its mouth to Teddington Lock. There are various delegates and representatives on this board, but Lord Devonport as chairman was the virtual dictator of its policy for the next seven years.

BIG GUN ENTHUSIASM

The psychology of the big gun was another of the many interesting points Mr. Thomas Curtin touched upon in a lecture on his stay in Germany. At the beginning German enthusiasm for the war was largely based on the belief that they would always be fighting with heavier artillery than the allies, and nothing had more affected German opinion than the discovery that this advantage, which they had regarded as a permanent condition, had wholly disappeared. In Germany it was realized that with the circumstances and forces that had produced Mr. Lloyd-George, the advantage of the heavy artillery had passed to the British.

INSANE CROWD HOSPITALS

Report to Legislators Says New York Institutions Are Mere Prisons.

ALBANY, N.Y., Wednesday—Necessity for immediate increase of the facilities for caring for the insane of the States was emphasized in the Senate to-night. A special report from the Hospital Committee was read by request of Senator Sage, who said he wishes to have the urgency of the matter brought forcefully to the attention of the lawmakers.

There are 35,613 insane persons on the rolls of the State. This is 6,098 more than there is capacity for, and the crowding is steadily increasing. Manhattan State Hospital is in the worst condition. Next comes Kings Park, the Brooklyn Hospital and Central Islip.

No hospitals for insane have been built since 1898, and the number of insane has almost doubled since that time. The committee showed that the State must begin soon to provide $2,000,000 a year for added hospital accommodations. As things are now, it is said, the institutions are not curative, but merely prisons for the insane.

The report was referred to the Finance Committee.

LEADERSHIP WON V.C.

Youth and Age no Bar to Highest British Honor

A batch of Victoria Crosses was awarded to three officers and two privates in English regiments, a sergeant of a Scotch regiment and a sergeant of an Irish regiment. All distinguished themselves not only for indifference to danger, but for quick thinking. In every case the winner had rallied and led troops under fire, had snatched victory from defeat. For instance, Private Robert Rider, of the Middlesex, assumed command of his regiment when all the officers had been killed or wounded, led a remnant of men forward, and with the aid of a Lewis gun cleared the trench in front of him and carried the enemy's position.

In commenting upon these and reviewing some earlier ones, the New York Sun observes that among the winners was an elderly man who left a wife and nine children at home in order to serve his country, and "that glorious boy," John Travers Cornwall, who, mortally wounded, remained at his post in the Jutland battle because, as he explained shortly before he died, "he thought he might be needed." We may be sure that when the roll of heroism for the war is completed no name will shine more radiantly than that of this lad.

HUNS GROSSLY DECEIVED

Women Most Gullible of All, Writes Northcliffe's Man

Writing of middle class Germans, Mr. D. Thomas Curtin said: "While there are an increasing number of doubters among the German mankind as to the accuracy of statements issued by the Government, in the class with which I mostly came into contact in Germany the women are blindfold and believe all they are told. So strong, too, is the influence of Government propaganda on the people of Germany that in a town where I met two English ladies married to Germans they believed that Germany had Verdun in her grasp, had annihilated the English troops (mainly black) on the Somme, had defeated the English fleet in the battle of Skagerack (Jutland), and reduced the greater part of the fortifications, docks, and munition factories of London to ruins by Zeppelins. Their anguish for the fate of their English relations was sincere, and they were intensely hopeful that England would accept any sort of terms of peace in order to prevent the invasions which some people in Germany still believe possible.

ARE THEY SOCIALISTS?

Workers of Essen Want More War and More Wages

A neutral correspondent writes of Germany's armament workers, as follows: The badly paid war slaves of Essen are working the whole twenty-four hours, seven days a week, in three shifts a day of eight hours each, under strict martial law. As a result the town is a hotbed of extreme Social Democracy, and as a rule the Socialists of Westphalia are almost as red as those of the manufacturing districts of Saxony. But Socialist though they be, they are just as anti-British as the rest of Germany, and they like to send out their products with the familiar hall-mark of "Gott strafe England" or "Best wishes for King George." It is the kind of Socialism that wants more money, more votes, less work, but has no objection to plenty of war. It is a common sense Socialism, which knows that without war Essen might shrink to its pre-war dimensions.

Honored by King George

After being decorated with the Victoria Cross by King George the Fifth a Canadian Scot pinned the V.C. on Sergt. Casgrove's tunic for the public to see.

Officers as Waiters

The big feed of a Christmas Day for some Canadian regiments was at the 205th Tiger battalion mess room when 200 of the passless privates sat down to the Christmas dinner of their lives. Col. Moodie, his officers and battalion N.C.O.'s were all waiting in line in the cooks' sanctum, and for one hour waited on the privates most energetically and they enjoyed it.

News in the Courts

In the divorce court, when Mr. Justice Scarman read the official report of the destruction of two big Zeppelins there was great applause. When the announcement was handed to the Master of the Rolls and Lord Justices Warrington and Scrutton in the Court of Appeal, Lord Justice Scrutton suggested that the statement might be handed to counsel, who would perhaps like to sing "God Save the King." Mr. G. A. Hawke K.C., after reading the news, said, "We shall be safe to-night, my lords."

Automobile Club's Present

The Duke of Portland, at the Royal Automobile Club said the British Ambulance Committee had been able to equip a number of motor ambulances to convey French wounded soldiers to the base hospitals.

THE SOLDIERS' CREED

"To Suffer and Not to Complain," Said Moderator

"To suffer and not to complain seems to be part of the soldiers' creed," said the Rev. John Brown, Moderator of the Church of Scotland, speaking of the wounded. He had just returned from a visit to the front at the invitation of the Commander-in-Chief.

"The men are magnificent," said Dr. Brown. "The honor of the country is safe with them. We shall never forget how we saw them returning from the trenches covered with mud, but also with glory. We shall never forget how we saw them go to the trenches with uplifted head and swinging tread.

"I went," he added, "to strike the Scottish note, and I found that the men had not forgotten the worship of their fathers. To those who are sight atmosphere for the return of these men, but they will make their religious out there, religion is very real. We are told we must make a own atmosphere."

Cup For Most Active Warship

The Duke of the Abruzzi presented a magnificent silver cup to Admiral Jellicoe for presentation to the British warship which was most active in the Mediterranean.

Montagu House, Whitehall, the Duke of Buccleuch's town residence, was acquired for the Labor Department of the Ministry of Munitions.

The war, said Canon Simpson, preaching at St. Paul's Cathedral, has made the reunion of Christians one of the foremost needs of the day.

THE PETERBOROUGH RED CROSS SOCIETY COLUMN

The work of the Prisoners of War Department of the Canadian Red Cross Society is one which should and almost invariably does appeal immediately and forcibly to every well-fed Canadian and happily so—for, from week to week, the work must not only go steadily on but is bound to assume larger proportions. We must remember that each time the Canadians are in action the number of prisoners is likely to be increased and accordingly the responsibility of the Red Cross Society is added to. Heavy as this liability is upon the Society's funds, it is in reality one of the Society's greatest privileges, for to be able to ameliorate to any degree the almost intolerable condition of our Canadian Boys who are forced to endure the tedium and physical discomforts of German Prison Camp Life, must be considered a real privilege.

PARCELS REACH DESTINATION

Gradually, the vague feelings of distrust, that many contributors to this department of the work, entertained as to whether the parcels actually reached their intended destination, have been dissipated by the various cards and letters of acknowledgment which have been received from time to time from the Canadian prisoners of war. It is proved now beyond doubt, that almost every parcel is delivered intact and that few, if any, are tampered with by German hands.

Of late, very many cards and letters of acknowledgment have been received by the local Society and any of these may be seen and read in the coming weeks by those interested, at the Society's Work Rooms, which are now open each afternoon and Friday morning. The three following letters give some idea of the heartfelt gratitude felt by our Canadian boys in Germany for these parcels, which, as they say "are the only bright spots in their existence and in many cases all that there is to prevent them going hungry day after day."

LETTERS OF ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Dear Miss Morrow,—I am now taking the greatest pleasure in writing these few lines to you, thanking you very much for the parcels you are sending me throught the Canadian Red Cross. I have received two of them in good condition. Hoping this will find you in the best of health as it leaves me at present.

Yours sincerely,
PTE. E. CROFTS,
Gefangenenlager, Stendal.

Dear Miss Morrow,—I have received several very good parcels from you through the medium of the Canadian Red Cross for which please accept my greatest thanks. Your kindness is very much appreciated. Last parcel was 40A.

Yours very gratefully.
C. F. DAVISON,
Soltanlager.

Dear Miss Morrow,—Many thanks for your kindness in sending parcels throught the Canadian Red Cross. I receive them safely and regularly each week in good condition. Trusting the time will soon come when we shall return back to Peterborough again. Hoping your are well, I remain,

Gratefully yours,
PTE. F. H. EVANS,
Gefangenenlager, Stendal.

GOOD JUDGMENT.

Many of the other cards are printed forms which the boys fill in, but when we look at these little cards, can we really realise what it must mean to those brave lads to be able to say, "I have received parcels of food in good condition." A letter for the General Secretary of the Canadian Red Cross from a Canadian Prisoner of War, now interned in Switzerland, which is, by the way, of great value as we know that it does not run the risk of being altered by German jailors, contains the following, "I think the parcels, you are now sending to Germany are packed with fine judgment." Many men would often be without meat or butter or health, preserving fruit if it were not for your kindness. I should like to see your good work shouted from the housetops in Canada, where, thank God, few or none, know the gnawing pangs of hunger as our boys in Germany have done and would do now also, but for you." While another Canadian prisoner likewise in Switzerland now writes, "I am writing you this letter to inform you of my arrigal in Switzerland and to thank the ladies of your Society for the manner in which you have looked after me during the fifteen months of my capacity in Germany. I suppose it is unnecessary for me to say that but for the parcels received from friends, the condition of the unfortunate prisoners would be absolutely unbearable. Your Society has acted nobly to the Canadians and I take this opportunity of expressing my gratitude."

Do not these letters, speak of themselves, and make to each one of us a vigorous appeal to practise self-denial in all things that we may be able to contribute to and have a share in this great work?

PELL IN A PAINT.

Mrs. Edwin Martin, Ayer's Cliff, Que., writes: "Before using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I was in a terrible condition. Dizzy spells would come over me and I would fall on the floor. I could not sweep without fainting. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has so built up my system that I can work and do my housework. Your pills also cured me when doctors had failed."

Death of An Old East City Resident

A life-long resident of Peterborough passed away yesterday morning in the person of Mary Craigie, relict of the late David Brownlee. Deceased, who was born June 25th, 1836, would have been eighty-two years of age had she lived until June of this year. She was one of the oldest residents in East City, and was born on the site of the property now occupied by Mr. W. Scott. She lived and died within a couple of hundred yards of the spot where she was born over eighty years ago. At that time East City was known as the Scotch Village. At the time of her death the late Mrs. Brownlee resided at 288 Rogers street. This has been her home for the past fifty years.

One son, Charles Brownlee of Minden, survives. Both Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brownlee are in the city looking after the funeral arrangements. The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon at two-thirty o'clock from the late residence of the deceased to Little Lake cemetery. The Rev. T. H. Mitchell, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, will officiate.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralise the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES AT ALL SAINTS' CHURCH

Anniversary services will be held at All Saint's Church to-morrow. The preacher both morning and evening will be Rev. Dr. Griffith-Thomas of Toronto, late principal of Wycliffe Hall, Oxford. Dr. Griffith-Thomas has an international reputation not only as a preacher, but also as a writer and his visit to Peterborough will be of interest to many.

At the morning service a handsome memorial chancel window will be dedicated. The window, which is the gift of the late Benjamin Cooney, is a masterpiece of art and will add greatly to the beauty of the church.

There will be an early celebration of the Holy Communion at 8.30 a.m., in which all communicants are invited.

Mrs. Blanche Johnston Special Speaker At Temple For Week-end

Mrs. Blanche Johnston of Barrie, will be the speaker at the week-end services at the Salvation Army Temple. She is an eloquent and powerful speaker and large audiences are expected to hear her.

To-night, "A Need of Empire."
Sunday, 3 p.m., "A Canadian Privilege."
Sunday, 7 p.m., "An Important Question."
Monday, 8 p.m., "Music's Mission."

In the Monday night's meeting reference will be made to Christians in khaki. In other cities where Mrs. Johnston has spoken she has made a deep impression, and particular attention is directed to these meetings of the present week-end. At the Winnipeg citadel, where she spoke a short time ago Mrs. Johnston was greeted by large crowds, who listened with rapt attention to her message.

ASSERTS GERMANY PLANS TRADE DRIVE

F. W. Wile Says Board will Rush Cargoes from New York the Moment Peace is Declared.

London, January 13.—Details of Germany's far-reaching plans for conducting a world trade campaign after the war were made public in a lecture delivered at His Majesty's Theatre, by Frederic William Wile, the former Berlin correspondent.

Mr. Wile declared there were countless indications that German finance, commerce and industry hope to be better organized for post-bellum business throughout the globe, than any other of the great trading nations, including the United States, as the German manufacturing system and distribution system were the only ones of first magnitude which had not been normally preoccupied during the last two and a half years.

The speaker said that Germany's schemes in recent times had been particularly active in China and in South America.

"What few people outside of Germany seem to realise," he said, "is that the Kaiser's government have recently established what is practically a separate government for the exclusive purpose of paying the way for a new trade war. They have set up a so-called imperial board for transition economics, consisting of nine of the finest business experts in the country, who are working day and night to transfer German commerce from a war to a peace basis, with the least possible delay.

"Their main concern is to arrange for the earliest and largest possible supply of raw material, especially from the United States. A fleet of thirty or forty odd German liners tied up in New York harbour, is to make its first homeward journey after the war packed to the rails with American cotton, copper, petroleum, lead, zinc and all the other manufacturing stables of which Germany will stand in such urgent need."

Mr. Wile said there was hardly an industry in Germany today from banking to dyes which was not girding itself up in new syndicates in order to present a more united front than ever before at the moment that peace is declared."

VETERANS WILL HAVE NO POLITICAL TANGLE

DECIDE TO STEER CLEAR OF SOLDIERS' AID COMMISSION IF PARTISAN.

ST. CATHARINES, Jan. 12.—Returned soldiers at a meeting decided to form a branch of the Great War Veterans' Association. The criticism was offered at the gathering that the Soldiers' Aid Commission, of which Hon. W. D. McPherson, Toronto, is President, is used in Toronto as an adjunct of the Conservative party, and as a means of affecting elections. It was decided that the Veterans' Association would have nothing to do with the Aid Commission if any political purpose was behind it.

SPENT 72 YEARS OF HER LIFE IN BED

In Disappointment she took to Bed, where she Remained.

London, Friday, Jan. 12.—An old lady who died this week at Scarborough at the age of 94, had spent 72 years in bed. At 21 she contracted an engagement which did not meet with the approval of her father, who forbade the wedding. In her disappointment she took to bed where she remained practically ever since. She rose on one occasion only to leave Cambridge for Scarborough. She suffered no complaint until the end, when she was ill for about two days. She enjoyed a good appetite in spite of lack of exercise and had the complexion of a girl. She took great interest in the affairs of the outside world, especially the war.

HOW FAT FOLKS MAY BECOME THIN

By Elizabeth Thomas.

Perhaps you are suddenly becoming stout, or it may be that you have been putting on weight for years. In either case the cause is the same—lack of oxygen carrying power of the blood. This trouble occurs in adults of both sexes, and all ages, but it may be overcome very easily and without any of the privations that most people imagine necessary to reduce their weight.

Simply go to your druggist and get some oil of orlieve capsules. Take one after each meal and one before going to bed. Watch yourself so as to know just how fast you are losing weight. Wonderful results have been accomplished by this inexpensive recipe, but be sure to get the genuine oil of orlieve in capsule form. It is sold only in the original sealed packages. Any large druggist can supply you, or a large size box will be sent on receipt of $1.00, by money order or registered letter. Goods will be sent in plain wrapper. Address D. J. Little Drug Co., Box 1240, Montreal, Canada.

Ring Lost in Toronto Found On Battlefield

REMARKABLE JOURNEY OF GLITTERING CIRCLE IN A CHRISTMAS PARCEL.

Lost in a Toronto church while its owner was packing Christmas parcels for soldiers at the front, a costly diamond ring, the property of Mrs. R. H. Mitchell, 17 Summerhill Gardens, has been found in a front line trench in France by Lieut. Howard Webster, son of Mr. A. F. Webster, the steamship ticket agent, and is now on its way back across the ocean.

The remarkable journey of the ring commenced last November when, together with the other ladies of Bloor Street Presbyterian Church, Mrs. Mitchell was assisting in packing parcels for the members of the church at the front. Unknown to her the ring slipped from her finger into a box and before the loss was discovered the boxes had been sealed and shipped. Immediately letters were sent to the men to whom the boxes were addressed asking them to be on the lookout for the ring.

Austrians Work On New Arsenal

Contractors For Lindsay's Newindustry Say They Can't Get Other Workmen

LINDSAY, Jan. 11. — Considerable feeling has been aroused here by letters appearing in the Watchman-Warder complaining of Austrians being employed on work at the construction of the Government arsenal. The "Wife of a Soldier" brought up the subject, writing: "Is it fair to ask the son of a Canadian or British soldier to work side by side with the enemy on our Government works, or any other works in Canada? Have the people of Lindsay, and, in fact Canada all over, gone clean out of their minds to allow subjects of the enemy to work in our Government works? Can they see no further than their nose, or are they completely blind to the danger of a spy coming among us? A spy, as you are aware, will stop at nothing. Are the wives, mothers, and daughters of Canada not suffering enough by giving up all they hold dear for their country without being publicly insulted by an enemy to the country taking their place?"

Contractors Hire Them.

The Warder got in touch with representatives of the Government and also of the contractors at the local arsenal. One gentleman stated that the Government had nothing to do with the employment of the labouring hands at the arsenal. These men were taken on by the contractors. Further, he remarked: "No Canadians will do the work that these men are doing. The Canadians will not go into the ditches filled with water and work. Foreigners will. Canadians coming to the works and soliciting jobs all want to do inside work but do not want to work outside; they fear to soil their hands, and would want to work with gloves on.

Ample Opportunity to Plot.

This was followed up by "One Who Knows," who wrote: "For some time past I have wondered why foreigners have been allowed employment in Government works, especially when they are our enemy. As I understand the situation, these men are housed together under one roof, in numbers and have ample opportunity of hatching plots in their own interest. Their actions from outward appearances may seem all right, but as they talk in a foreign tongue and are not understood by Canadians on the job, no one knows what havoc may result from their mumblings. Personally I believe it is unwise to employ these men in ammunition factories in Canada."

Labour Famine.

"The fact is that the contractors are under agreement to finish the work by a certain date, and they have scoured the country for labourers, and have been unable to get the number required. The have scoured the States with the same result, and are still advertising through various papers for men. Foreigners, had to be employed—and they are doing the work well. I have a letter in my pocket now from the Gurney people, of Toronto, who are absolutely unable to turn out certain work because of the shortage of men. Just recently the Imperial Munitions Board sent 300 foreigners in one day to Trenton to do labouring work, because they were unable to get English-speaking men to do the work."

Good Workmen.

Another superintendent at the works stated that the contractors found it next to impossible to secure labour, and were endeavouring to get men from every corner possible. "These Austrians are doing their work well, and this country can better employ them at the arsenal than allow them to remain in internment camps at the country's expense, doing nothing," he said. "They do the work and stay on the job, but I have found that 30 per cent. of the English-speaking people who want work here are after inside jobs, and are not a bit anxious to do labouring work."

DEMAND FOR CANNED GOODS FALLING OFF

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs, will appear in the Canadian Grocer this week:

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

The demand for some lines of canned goods has been distinctly lessened owing to the high cost. Despite the fact that there is a severe shortage on most lines of canned vegetables, it is felt in some quarters that the increased demand will have a tendency to force the prices downward. In the midst of high-priced food products rice remains reasonably low priced. Tapioca is much firmer in price this week. Transportation troubles, lack of cars for railways and shortage of tonnage at sea, are annoying the markets at present and are tending to keep prices at the high levels. The action of the railway commission this week will undoubtedly help to relieve conditions. The British embargo just placed on salt fish, fish pastes, pickled onions and other lines will mean still further shortages of imported goods already short.

Business in the grocery trade has opened up exceedingly well during the first days of the New Year. The wholesalers in certain lines speak of the trade as much beyond expectations. They had looked for a rather quiet season during the first few weeks at least—in this their expectations. The Garrison Club lost its case yesterday, order.

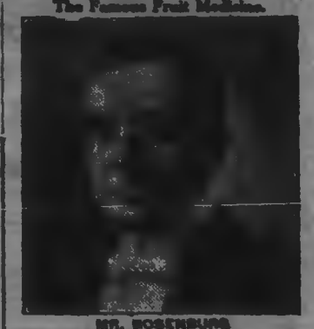
The wheat market is uncertain, and this puts flour in the same tone. Sugar held steady in price. There is a firmness in the raw sugar market and this is operating to hold prices at the present level. There are superficial indications that the yield of raw sugar in Cuba may not be quite as large as at first anticipated.

Provisions for the most part have held steady during the week. Live and dressed hogs have made considerable advances. Butter is easier in tone and has been quoted down 1c to 2c per pound. New laid eggs are reaching the market in larger quantities and the price is down in consequence. Storage eggs however are becoming scarcer and the price of these is firm. Live poultry is firmer.

Dried fruits are in quiet market at present, owing to the passing of the holiday demand. Canned Hawaiian pineapple will be 35c per dozen higher this year than last year's quotations. Considerable advances have gone into effect on a number of spice lines. Teas are in a continued firm market, due to the higher prices in London. Coffee is firm and advances are looked for in this commodity. Beans are holding in firm market.

NOTED MUSICIAN OF MONTREAL

Advises The Use Of "FRUIT-A-TIVES", The Famous Fruit Medicine.



MR. ROSENBURG

April 20th, 1916.

"In my opinion, no other medicine in the world is so curative for Constipation and Indigestion as "Fruit-a-tives". I was a sufferer from these complaints for five years, and my sedentary occupation, Music, brought about a kind of Intestinal Paralysis—with nasty Headaches, belching gas, drowsiness after eating, and Pain in the Back. I tried pills and medicines of physicians, but nothing helped me. Then I was induced to try "Fruit-a-tives", and now for six months I have been entirely well.

I advise any one who suffers from that horrible trouble—Chronic Constipation with the resultant indigestion, to try "Fruit-a-tives", and you will be agreeably surprised at the great benefit you will receive". A. ROSENBURG.

THE WEATHER

There has been a sudden and decided change in weather conditions during the last few hours. Yesterday morning gave a temperature of 17 degrees below zero. This morning we had it 20 degrees above, with a fall of snow prevailing. During last night the thermometer went down to 2 degrees below. The snowfall will likely be succeeded with drifting and then colder again.—W.P.

The German Machine Guns Are Useless

British Attacks Are Carried Out With Such Speed—Definite and Deadly Policy of Hammering at the Teutons Unceasingly With High Explosives Gives Them No Rest, No Silence, No Truce.

(By Philip Gibbs.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, Jan. 13. — Successful attacks were made Thursday morning by the British troops to the north of Beaumont-Hamel, in which they pushed the Germans off some high ground from which they had observation of the British trenches, and added another hundred or so prisoners to about 200 already taken. It is a continuation of the series of small encounters which happened in this part of the line during the past ten days. They have not been big fights, they were not very important as military events, although of local importance, but they show very clearly the character of this winter warfare and the spirit of the men who are up in the firing lines and the effect of the definite and deadly British policy of hammering at the Germans unceasingly with high explosives, giving them no rest, no silence for a nerve cure, no kind of truce whatever.

Lakes Behind German Lines.

The weather in the country between Serre and Beaumont-Hamel is as bad as anywhere along the battlefields. Behind the German lines there is a series of lakes through which their reliefs have to come up and their transport. The front lines on both sides are not trenches in more than name. They are strong points thrust out into the swamps in advance of the ditches which once were good trenches and may be again if ever the rain and snow and sleet stop falling and silting down parapets and sandbags.

Early Thursday morning small detachments of British soldiers followed the barrage as far as the German dugouts, and gave the men hiding there the choice between death and capture. None of them wanted death. They were wet, cold and miserable men, nerve broken by the long crush of shells above their mud holes. Three officers, nine non-commissioned and 109 men surrendered out of one nest of dugouts on a front of 500 yards. I think there were more of them than the attacking force, which was only a raiding party.

Mist Above; Quagmire Beneath.

Thursday morning the attack was in stronger force. It was an action of some local importance, having for its object the seizing of that high ground on the plateau. The morning was thick with mist. Later, after the glimmer of dawn, snow fell, whitening the ground, covering the trunks of broken trees, and falling lightly upon the litter and the foulness of the battlefields, so that every strand of the broken wire was touched by the whiteness. Underneath there was quagmire, in which the men went ankle-deep and old gaping shell-holes were waterlogged. The Germans were not quick enough to fight. The British were over their dugouts before they could bring out their machine guns. They had the same choice as on the day before, and the men surrendered as quickly as those who had gone before them. Some of their officers tried to rally them, and fought rather than surrender, and were killed. All told the prisoners in the two days' fighting number 300. The German artillery was wild in its shooting; either their guns or gunners were bad.

in energy, he never strikes you as anything but a young man.

Coming to the second figure; I first met Lord Curzon in the famous salon of Lady St. Helier, then Lady Jeune. He was fresh from college; he looked a bright, self-confident, energetic undergraduate then. He looks pretty much the same to-day. The figure of course is broadened; he seems to me wider in shoulder; but there is still the same high complexion, the same air of almost haughty self-confidence which already revealed themselves when he was but an unknown youngster.

I heard him make his maiden speech in the House of Commons. There was of course a great deal of expectation because he had brought from the University a high reputation. The speech was not considered a success, and yet it was successful. He was evidently a victim to a very bad attack of stage fright; you could see he was speaking from a parched mouth and with nerves all a tremble. The maiden speech had also a little of the same defect as that which made Disraeli the laughing stock of the House of Commons when he first addressed it. The florid language which the House comes to tolerate from a member who has made his place seemed prentious to the House. The comment I heard from a Parliamentarian of his own party, now one of his colleagues, was that Curzon was like a horse that was overtrained. In a short time, however, his very remarkable gifts of speech, his extraordinary industry and his immense self-confidence, asserted themselves, and I have rarely known a man perform the difficult duties of Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs—which was his first office—with more remarkable skill. His power for work passed into a legend when he was Viceroy of India. The light in his room could always be seen up to one o'clock in the morning, and even when he was travelling he continued this habit in his sleeping saloon. This was the more remarkable as, though he looks very robust, Lord Curzon suffers a great deal from ill-health. Very often when he pushes forward his ample chest in the way that often excites dislike, it is the effort to triumph over physical weakness, just as rudeness often is the mask by which shyness conceals itself.

Lord Milner.

Lord Milner I knew when he was Alfred Milner and the lieutenant of Mr. Stead on the Pall Mall Gazette. He was then a typical young Oxford man, very handsome, very quiet, with the manner which we have always been accustomed to associate with Balliol College in Oxford. He seemed modest, clear headed, with just a little touch of cynicism which seemed to me in contrast with the boyish face. He was more like the typical English civil servant than the journalist, and I was not surprised when he soon changed journalism for Government employment. When he returned from Egypt he looked to me both physically and intellectually a very different man. The peach-blossom bloom of youth had disappeared from the face; there already were lines; there had come a certain degree of hardness into the softness both of expression and of feature. All of which I put down at the time to the severities of a very hot climate and the tremendous hard work of a British official in Egypt. I learned afterwards that the difference in the expression was due to a certain difference in outlook. Asking me once to read a book of his about the British work in Egypt, he said, "It will make you a jingo." It was this sense of the British control in Egypt which accounted for his attitude when he went out as Governor of South Africa; possibly if he had remained in the companionship of Stead and in the editing of the great Liberal organ, his outlook would have changed, and we might have escaped many unpleasant chapters in English history. When in recent years I see him in the House of Commons—especially when he has been making a speech on South African affairs—he scarcely seems to me the same as the young journalist I saw many years ago. Always dressed in the long black frock coat which every member of both Houses was supposed a one time to wear, carefully groomed, his clothes seeming to fit on him like the uniform of an official, he always suggests more the German official, half soldier, half civil servant, rather than the English politician. The lines on his face of course have deepened still more than on his return from Egypt, but in springy alertness of movement, in figure, he seems to have retained perfect youthfulness. He has an extremely well stored mind with all the learning of Balliol backed up by the versatility of the journalistic training and long and difficult experience in administration. He is also free enough for party ties, and has had experience wide enough to liberate him from any of the ordinary traditions of English politics. His outlook is quite independent. Some of the superstitions and traditions of the men with whom he has been associated in recent years make no appeal to him. I understand that the war has completed an education in a radical direction on many formerly controverted questions. One of the problems which is now being severely contested behind closed doors is how far the greater production of the land may be enforced by a system of increased State control. I understand that in any measures which are necessary to produce that result. Lord Milner is passionately on the side of revolution.

Finally, Mr. Arthur Henderson is not only young in years, according to the English standard, but younger perhaps even in physical strength and energy. Of middle height—of a figure between robustness and spareness, with a healthy complexion, bright, clear eyes, he is a remarkable demonstration of the splendid and undaunted vigour which habits of severe self-control so often bestow. A life teetotaler, a moderate eater, he has a power of work and endurance which are quite remarkable. I have heard it said that when in large Labour conferences there was an unruly element that had to be brought to reason, Arthur Henderson was always put in the chair. The struggle might go on through long hours of the day; it might continue through long hours of the night, the face of the chairman showed no sign of impatience or fatigue, the eye remained clear, the complexion fresh, the voice resonant. Faction, obstruction ultimately discovered that they could not prevail against a will and a frame of such unconquerable iron, and with a fresh smile — sometimes when the night was far advanced—Arthur Henderson was able to clean up the floor of the fragments of his exhausted opponents, and to report the triumph of his action and of sense.

These are the men on whose shoulders now lies the chief responsibility of carrying England through the war.

Child Was Nervous, Irritable, Tired Out

She Had No Appetite and Her Complexion Was Pale and Sallow

How many parents realise the strain which going to school means to the child who is naturally nervous and of delicate health?

You see them come from the schools daily with pale faces, many wearing glasses, and looking tired and worn. At home they are irritable, do not sleep well at nights, and are upset by a little extra excitement.

If they are to grow to healthy manhood and womanhood their systems must have attention now. Such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food does wonders for children in this condition. We are constantly receiving letters from grateful parents telling what the Nerve Food has done for their children. This one is a fair sample:

Mrs. Stephen Hartman, Italy Cross, Lunenburg Co., N.S., writes: "My little sister at eleven years of age became nervous, irritable and seemed all tired out. She had no appetite, was noticeable and it was wonderful plexion grew pale and sallow. Finally she had to keep her bed and have somebody with her all the time. She was afraid of everything, would get excited and tremble till the bed would shake. As she seemed to be getting worse under the doctor's treatment, mother decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. After she had used about four boxes, improvement was lifeless and drowsy and her color to see how much brighter and stronger she grew week by week. She used ten boxes altogether and they cured her. She got fat and rosy and went to school every day with an ambition that she never seemed to have before. I do not hesitate to recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to anyone, for it was indeed wonderful what it did for her."

Division Court In Millbrook

Send down if not used to-day.

A very interesting case, Wilbert McGill, a Grand Trunk sectionman against John Byers, was heard here on Friday last at the Division Court sitting by Judge Roger. McGill lived in Byers' house and neither would pay the taxes, so the collector sent the constable to collect from McGill by distress warrant. There were no witnesses and no writings, and each of the litigants swore positively that the other was to pay. The judge followed the law therefore, which, in the absence of any agreement th owner Byers must pay the taxes.

BELGIUM SUFFERING

Cardinal Mercier Wants the Neutrals to Know the Truth.

PARIS, Jan. 12.—Cardinal Mercier, in a private letter printed in La Croix, the official Church organ, declares that if the truth was known about Belgium neutral nations would not confine themselves to words. The Belgian Cardinal declares that Belgium is now suffering as never before. He writes:

"We are all prisoners here, but if the neutrals knew of the treatment inflicted on us I do not believe that they would confine themselves to verbal remonstrances. If they did we should have to despair of fraternal charity and humanity."

The Cardinal adds in a postscript that, although the Belgians are depressed, they are by no means discouraged, and few want peace without victory.

Cold Snap Catches Windsor Without Coal

WINDSOR, Jan. 12.—With the sudden drop in temperature yesterday the fuel situation became still more acute, and coal dealers were besieged with enquiries for fuel, some even coming from Detroit. Anthracite is not to be had at any price, and users of coal for heating purposes are being doler out small quantities of bituminous. Consignments of hard coal are on the way, say the dealers, some of it for as long as two months, but owing to congestion at all railroad terminals none is coming in. The thermometer to-day registered as low as three degrees above zero.

Great Battle-front Entertainer To Be At Armouries Jan. 21st

It is gratifying that Peterborough has been able to secure a famous military entertainer for the recruiting rally in the armouries on January 21st—Miss Ada L. Ward. Miss Ward, to indulge in a little frightfulness, has been an Ada-camp in the war zone among Canadian soldiers. As the entertaining member of the Lena Ashwell Concert Company that toured the war zone for the entertainment of the soldiers and lately on her own account she won a wonderful successes. Miss Ward, who is a piquant humorous talker, illustrates her lectures with rapid blackboard sketches that visualize details of the scenes in the trenches she describes. She had a big opportunity to meet the Canadian boys in the trench region, and they were glad she was coming to Canada. She has a message from the boys at the front to the people at home. She has a delightful way of conveying the message, and to listen to an illustrated lecture by one who has rubbed shoulders with our Canadian soldier lads in the field, will be next thing to a personal interview with them. Controller James Simpson of Toronto, who heard Miss Ward abroad says she kept her "audience under her inspiring influence, and with the aid of her blackboard sketches either convulsed in laughter or moved to tears. Her remarkable talents place her in the front rank of those on the lecture platform telling of observations and experiences in the fighting zone in France."

Miss Ward's subject in the armouries on the 21st will be "The Moral and Religious Side of Tommy in the Camps." Miss Ward's unique opportunities of studying the Canadian Tommy and her message on Jan. 21st will be warm from the lips of the lads we love.

A Financier.— "Cakes have gone up," replied the server in a Lancashire confectioner's shop the other day to a woman customer; "they are three half-pence each now— two for two-pence-ha'penny." Well, I only want one," decided the customer after a short pause, "so it's no use takin' two." "If ye dunnot mind, missus, awl tak t'other myseln," observed a collier who was waiting to be served, and (says the Manchester Guardian) suiting the action to the word, he deposited a penny and took the cake without a protest.

HOME HEALTH CLUB

FACTS CONCERNING EPILEPSY (By Dr. Wm. Held, 2nd Installment.)

Many times we find epileptics presenting themselves for examination so completely in the grip of bromide that it is impossible to arrive at a reliable opinion of their mental condition and it becomes necessary to allow the patient time to recover from the treatment (?) by eliminating the bromide in order to produce the patients real self minus the dominating bromide mentality. While bromide impairs the functions of digestion, causes foul breath and an unsightly skin eruption to appear, by far the greatest harm is inflicted by the gradual deterioration of the patients mental faculties. The patient becomes sluggish, listless, irritable, perverted in desires, unreasonable and passes through varied stages of mental decay to ultimate insanity. This is the price at which temporary freedom from attacks is brought.

Such treatment of epilepsy reminds one of the story of the bear who had been trained to chase the flies from his sleeping master's face. One bothersome fly persisted in lighting on the sleeper's brow, whereupon the faithful bear picked up a rock and with it succeeded in killing the fly—and incidently and unintentionally, the sleeper. In visiting the insane asylums throughout the country one may see many thousand insane epileptics confined there. Investigate their history and you will find that the bromide superstition played the heavy role in their misery. Look over this legion of the lost and you might wonder where are all the doctors who have treated these creatures, who have encouraged them with pet theories, fads, drugs, surgery.

I sometimes wish that I could present so graphically the condition as to leave a lasting stimulus for reflection upon the minds of the bromide advocates, I would want to present in some concrete form, in some tangible way, the varieties and bulk of drugs consumed by these patients, the money wasted, the heartaches, the disappointments, the tears and the trepidations of those who once loved these patients; I would want to paint in glaring colors all these and other elements which paved the way to the insane asylum, which constitutes the unseen hand closing the gates behind the epileptic insane. In opposition to such presentation I would put the result of modern treatment of epilepsy, namely, the insane epileptic, concluding his career or misery behind the walls of the asylum. Then I would ask the bromide prescribing physician of to-day, whether such abundant, crying proof of failure might not induce him to discard his remedy.

It is natural that we should inquire into the causes of epilepsy before directing our attention to finding a remedy. When we look over the various theories that have been advanced by physicians everywhere, we soon find ourselves in a maze, traveling around a circle which leads to nowhere. This is due to the fact that all conditions which have been claimed to cause epilepsy, are more or less speculative, being either coincidents connected with the patients first attack or results of the disease. We have thus jumped at conclusions as it were. Having noticed many epileptics being constipated, some announced that as the cause of the disease, while others fastened their attention to whatever other conditions happened to be most closely connected with the onset of convulsions. It is a demonstrable fact that all reputed causes of epilepsy may be scientifically shown to be incorrect. To adduce such proof we must disregard pet theories and fanciful speculation and adhere to cold facts only.

I will gladly answer all enquiries for information on health subjects from readers of this publication if same are addressed to Home Helath Club, 5039 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago, Ill. Send full name and address with 4 cents postage.

PANAMA, Panama, Jan. 12. — The Carcaracha slide to-day showed renewed activity. A section of the bank broke off and fell into the channel of the Panama Canal, reducing its width.

At the same time there was an upheaval in the bottom of the canal, reducing its depth. It has not been determined to what extent the channel is blocked.

Dredging equipment has been hurried to the scene and engineers have been despatched to make a thorough examination and determine the extent of the underwater obstruction.

Word received here indicates that the obstruction can be removed soon by the dredges, but the most serious work of the engineers will be to determine the danger existing from the new slide.

In his annual report, submitted last November, Major General Goethals stated that as soon as all the matter in motion in the Canal Zone found its level the slides would stop, and he added that he expected no more serious slides.

Not long before that time critics had insisted that part of the canal was through a bog and that the obstructions arose from upheavals in that bog. General Goethals denied that the canal was through a bog or that there were upheavals as described, although the cable despatch from Panama stated that there was an upheaval in the bottom of the canal.

TIRED OUT KIDNEYS

Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or excesses in eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort but by awakening the action of the liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

Membership of the I. O. F. Over 200,000 and 3,000 of Them Are With the Forces

The annual installation of the officers of Court Chemong 550, Independent Order of Foresters, was held on Thursday evening. There was a good attendance of members and their friends. The Court was opened with the singing of "God Save the King."

The Court was favoured with a visit from Bro. J. S. Eagleson, High Chief Ranger of Eastern Ontario and of the Government Civil Service Department, Ottawa, who duly installed the officers.

The chairman for the evening was Bro. A. H. Webb, who presided in his usual able and efficient manner, and in a well chosen speech welcomed Bro. J. S. Eagleson to the city and Court, also the members and their friends to the meeting.

Mr. J. John contributed a reading in his realistic manner. Mr. J. Lydell then sang the popular songs "Roamin' in the Gloamin'," "Come Back Nanny." "It's Nice to Get Up in the Morning,' and had to respond to encores.

Bro. J. S. Eagleson, H.C.R., gave a splendid address, and in part stated that the Order had over 200,000 members and a large financial surplus and reserve with the government and now stood over 100 per cent. strong. There were 3,00 members with the British forces and 100 of them had been killed in France and their beneficiaries had been paid the insurance in full.

Major Campbell was present and gave a brief, inspiring speech regarding recruiting.

Bro. G. W. Powell, in a neat speech, proposed votes of thanks to Bro. Eagleton and Major Campbell. This was seconded by Bro. J. W. Buyers.

Refreshments were then served by the ladies and card games were engaged in by a large number. Miss Calder and Miss Allan delighted the audience with selections on the violin and piano and also as accompanists to the various singers.

Votes of thanks were tendered to Mrs. Bradshaw Mrs. Webb, Mrs. Reid and Mrs. Miller for preparing the refreshments. The committee in charge of arrangements were Bros. A. H. Webb, G. W. McKee, H. A. Webb, J. W. Buyers, G. W. Powell, R. E. Duvall and F. Clark to whom and to the ladies, the success is attributed.

The financial statement was presented during the evening by Bro. W. Madill, showing a highly satisfactory report.

The Value of Brains

Business success is the result of a careful and proper combination of CAPITAL and BRAINS and the lives of such men are a valuable asset to every Company, and as such should be adequately insured.

In proof of above Elbert Hubbard consulted a New York Financier who agreed to take a Bond issue for $100,000 at par, provided he held a Life Insurance Policy on Mr. Hubbard's life for a like amount. Why? Because Mr. Hubbard's brains were the CHIEF ASSET of the "Raycrofters." His mind was the THINK FACTORY, and the product of the business was the direct result of Mr. Hubbard's ideas. With Hubbard alive success was reasonably assured, but with Hubbard gone his loan would not be considered for a moment.

John Wannamaker and his son Rodman carry large amounts of Business Insurance, because it strengthens their credit and banks are beginning to require it.

Have you ever SERIOUSLY CONSIDERED what YOUR POSITION would be should your FIRM or Partnership lose through DEATH the BRAINS that have been the means of bringing success to your Institution. For a small sum you can guarantee again such misfortunes.

THE SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA have already saved hundreds from misfortune and Calamity, and will also protect you.

Wealthy Lumberman Dead in Renfrew

Had Large Timber Interests in Ottawa Valley and British Columbia.

A despatch to the Examiner records the death of Alexander Barnet, of Renfrew, millionaire lumberman, who died at his home yesterday after a brief illness. He had been busy in his office as usual up to Wednesday, when he caught a cold, which developed into pneumonia.

Mrs. C. B. McAllister, who formerly resided at "Engleburn Park," East City, is a daughter of the late Mr. Barnet.

NOTICE

The Y. M. C. A. Annual Meeting and Election of Directors, will be held on Tues. evening Jan. 16th at 8 o'clock. Every Y. M. C. A member, who is also a member of an Evangelical Church, should be present. 3d-10

R. G. Dingman of Toronto at Y.M.C.A. Sunday Afternoon

Mr. R. G. Dingman of Toronto, managing editor of The Financial Post and a provincial leader in boys' work, will address the Y.M.C.A. meeting on Sunday at 4.15 o'clock. As Mr. Dingman was in attendance at the Peterborough Boys' Conference in 1915 he is known quite well locally. Every man and older boy is invited to attend.

The annual meeting and election of directors of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. will be held Tuesday evening, January 16th at 8 o'clock. Every Y.M.C.A. member who is also a member of an evangelical church should be present to cast his ballot.

The Board of Directors will meet Tuesday evening next at 6.30 o'clock to close the business in connection with 1916. Supper will be served.

Last night the Junior Employed Boys held a very enjoyable social evening at the "Y." The first part of the evening was spent on the "Y" rink in playing games and hookey. Bruce Hamilton had charge of the games which means that the boys had a good time. After the games the boys gathered in the dining hall where a fine supper was waiting for them. After supper a social hour was spent, during which Mr. J. A. Mundell, an expert in boys work who is in the city, read a good story which was heartily received by the entire group.

Plans are now under consideration for a County Boys' Conference along the lines of the Standard Efficiency Tests, a programme of religious education for Canadian boys.

KNOX MINSTRELS APPEAR AGAIN

Knox Church minstrels repeated their performance last night in aid of the Boys' Athletic Club. This is the fourth time the Minstrels have appeared this season, and they have developed a smoothness approaching professionals. There was a good attendance. A feature was Rev. Mr. MacKenzie's participation. At one of the intervals in the programme he was called to the platform and delighted the audience with a song, and as an encore sang "The Boys of the Old Brigade" in fine voice.

ALL SAINTS' SUNDAY SCHOOL 'XMAS TREE

The annual Christmas tree entertainment of All Saints' Sunday School was presented last night in the Parish Hall. There was a large attendance of riotously happy children who were bountifully fed, not the least item in juvenile enjoyment. This was added to by the presentation of prizes to the children. "La Bonne Entente" was evident, and in turn many of the teachers were remembered in the gift way by the pupils of their classes.

Among these was a special remembrance of Miss Clara Cairns, who has been one of the most, if not the most, faithful and constant teacher of the school. The primary class presented her with a beautiful ivory toilet set accompanied by an unique acrostical address of appreciation.

GEORGE STREET CHURCH SERVICES

To-morrow morning in the George street Methodist Church, the Rev. R. G. Peever will take for his subject, "The approach of the Churches towards Union as seen in the light of the coming together of our Provinces in the desire to cultivate a Better Feeling."

In the evening the pastor will have a special message for the youth. His subject will be, "The Spoiling of Life."

A BIG VOTE MAY BE POLLED

Special to The Examiner:

ALLISTON, Ont. Jan. 13.—If favourable weather prevails the largest vote in the history of elections will be polled in the West Simcoe Legislature bye election on Monday.

It is expected that close upon 4,000 of the 5,000 voters within the riding will go to the polls. In the past the unpolled vote in the riding has always been large. Unless signs fail there will be few stay at home of the Liberal voters.

The Liberal vote will be marshalled in full strength and obstruction cleared away for the first straight party fight in twenty years.

There are no longer any "James Duff Liberals." These have been drafted into the new and reunited Liberal army of voters which is hopeful of placing the crown of victory upon the brow of Isaac Scott.

In the canvassing in the rural districts, the West Simcoe is largely rural, Liberal workers have confined themselves to the single question "do you want a farmer or a lawyer to represent you in the Legislature?"

The replies have invariably been in favour of farmer Isaac Scott and unless party lines are followed and religious passions aroused the Liberal success is assured.

It was stated last night that every elector in these townships had been personally approached about his vote.

DR. BAKER'S ADDRESS WAS GREATLY ENJOYED

Rev. Dr. Baker of Albert College, Belleville, gave a most interesting and instructive lecture at St. James' Methodist church, last night, on the subject "Rambles in Rome." Dr. Baker is an eloquent speaker and his word pictures of the ancient city were thoroughly enjoyed by the audience. The meeting was opend by the Doxology, and the Lord's Prayer. An enjoyable trio was given by Miss Yonge, Miss Cuffe and Mrs. Guest. Miss Hill's reading, "The Children's Hospital," was much appreciated, while Mr. Jones' solo, "Land of the Harp," was heartily encored. Rev. R. G. Peever gave a brief address, and the meeting was closed by the National Anthem.

FIRST ANNIVERSARY OF TRINITY TO-MORROW

Scott, D.D., of Belleville, who will preach at both the morning and the evening services. Special music has been prepared by the choir which will also be heard on Monday night. It is expected that large congregations will be present on this the first anniversary of the new church.

Quaker Oats Was The Biggest Loss

Reviewing fire insurance business in Canada during 1916, Mr. E. F. Garrow, secretary of the British-American Assurance Company, Toronto, writing in the New York Journal of Commerce, states that the fire insurance business in Canada during 1916 has been characterized by the periodical occurrence of heavy losses, particularly during the first half of the year.

The closing days of the year brought its heaviest insurance loss, and by far the heaviest sprinkler failure loss which has yet occurred in Canada, in the destruction of the huge sprinklered sectional part mill and part fireproof built plant of the Quaker Oats Company at Peterborough, Ontario. The fire occurred on December 11th and is thought to have been caused by an explosion, but whether in the dry room or in the grinding section has not yet been accurately determined. The explosion was of sufficient force to completely incapacitate the sprinkler equipment and the fire rapidly spread through the entire plant as well as to warehouse and elevator buildings adjacent, and to the City Court House and several private dwellings, all of which were more or less seriously damaged.

Annual Tea of the Salvation Army Band

The annual Band Tea of the Temple Band took place at the Temple last night. The wives and children of all the bandsmen were invited, including those of the bandsmen overseas. After tea a pleasant hour was spent together in talking over matters, generally affecting the band. The financial statement as given by Adj. McEtheney shows that the band is entirely out of debt and will formulate new plans of advance for the future. Messages will be sent to all the absent bandsmen conveying good wishes.

Won Free Course At O.A.C. Guelph

Allen Taylor, son of David Taylor, Warsaw, R. R. No. 2, left on Monday to take a free course at Guelph Agricultural College, for taking the County sweepstakes prize for growing ensilage corn. The conditions of the competitions were for the boys to choose one acre of ground, work it throughout themselves, choose any variety of seed they liked. The seed chosen in this instance was the Big Crop, the Department sending the judge and man to cut and weigh each acre.

Allen's acre weighed twenty-two tons, which was seven tons over the next competitor, the winner getting a free trip, free board, and a free short course at Guelph.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

247th TEAM WON EASILY AT COBOURG

Beat Lake Shore Bunch in a Carnival of High Scoring by 20 Goals to 13—Game Was Rough in Spots But Soldiers Came Out of the Battle in Good Shape.

The 247th Battalion intermediate added another victory to their string, when they invaded Cobourg last night and beat the Lakeshore bunch by 20 goals to 13. The high scoring kept the game interesting at all times. The Soldiers were never in much danger of losing the battle at any stage of the proceedings. They had too much speed, stick-handling and scoring ability for the Cobourg gang, some of whom were apparently out for blood. The going was rough at times and with any less capable referee than Dr. Jerry Lafamme, might have degenerated into a rough house argument. Glidden and Payne, of Cobourg, are reported as the worst offenders, and both were penalized frequently. The poor lighting facilities bothered the Petes, especially Legros, who had trouble locating the long shots. Lieut. Quinn was on the defence in place of Thornton.

Goal—Legros.
Defence—Halpin, Quinn.
Rover—Armstrong.
Centre—Flanagan.
R. Wing—Adams.
L. Wing—Evans.

CURLING CLUB TO DISCUSS OPEN BONSPIEL NEXT FRIDAY

A general meeting of the Curling Club is called for Friday, January 19th to consider, among other questions, that of holding a bonspiel this winter. During the past two years the open bonspiel has been the big event of the season. Local curlers have been largely represented on the ice and among the prize winners.

With the present large membership and enthusiasm as keen as ever there is no doubt the bonspiel would have a large appeal.

HOCKEY GOSSIP

The Peterboro Juniors will practice on Monday night at 7 o'clock, and a full turn out of all the regulars is expected.

Thursday's junior O.H.A. game at Oshawa, when twenty-one goals was scored was spoken of as a high scoring affair, but the Cobourg and 247th teams went after that record last night and smashed it all to bits scoring thirty-three goals, which figures out at the rate of a goal every minute and three-quarters. The soldiers have scored 57 goals in three games, an average of nineteen per game.

WHOOPING COUGH ARMLETS.

Buffalo, Jan. 13.—The public health council decided to institute eight weeks' quarantine for the whooping cough, which is very prevalent. In 1916 there were 1,517 cases, 43 fatal. Notices will be displayed in all the street cars when there is an epidemic of whooping cough and children with the disease who go on the streets will have to wear an arm band bearing the words "Whooping-cough." Several clinics for the examination and the treatment of persons with whooping-cough were also recommended. The "Whooping-cough" arm bands will be furnished free by the health department.

Voice of The People

Correspondence under this heading containing or involving attacks on individuals or violent or extreme statements, must to secure insertion, be signed with writer's real name, the owner of which thus assumes the responsibility.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I noticed in last night's Examiner, regarding the awards given for the special prizes in the "Poultry Show" here, that Mr. A. Breault was given the credit for winning the "Special Prize" for the best female in the show here for five years in succession. I wish to correct that statement. As I was the winner and holder of the "Special Prize Cup" given for the best female for the year 1916, won with my "White Wyandotte Pullet."

Yours truly,
A. WILLIAMSON,
High St., Byersville, Peterborough.

Dear Sir,—We are anxious that the citizens of Peterborough generally should know more about our Technical and Industrial Night Classes. They were started as the result of the finding of the Royal Commission on Technical and Industrial Education after a preliminary survey of the industries of the city.

These classes are jointly financed by the Department of Education and the Industrial Board of Education, composed of members of the Board of Education and men prominent in the manufacturing concerns of the city.

Taking into consideration all the influences which help or hinder the conduct of these classes we feel assured that the success attained has been all we could expect.

Still a Chance.

We would like to point out, however, that many who have not taken advantage of their opportunities have still a chance. It is illogical to assume that because one does not have to pay $60.00 to begin a course in draughting that therefore the course is valueless.

The instructors for all the classes are the best available, and we can assure the earnest student satisfactory progress.

Great Cause.

It was resolved by the Industrial and Technical convention held at Toronto at Easter, among other items, that the importance to the people generally of Technical Education was second only to the great cause of defeating the Huns. Young men and women should therefore seriously consider the advisability of neglecting their opportunities because we feel assured that these opportunities will bring added responsibilties. Classes will be resumed on Monday next when intending students should call and register.—Com.

Alleged Murderer Was "Fond of Young Girls"

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 13.—Bernard Wesley Lewis, the Pittsburg society man whom the police say murdered Mazie Colbert before he committed suicide in an Atlantic City hotel, was well known to habitues of lobster palaces in Chicago, who have given important information in the case, the police announced yesterday.

Captain of Detectives Tate announced he had received a letter from the Chicago police, containing information of the utmost importance. This information was first given to the western police by a man named Stewart, who had loaned Lewis $650, Captain Tate said.

"Lewis ran around all the expensive cafes in Chicago," Captain Tate said, "and was quite fond of young girls."

"Berlin" Address Will Be Recognized

Postmaster-general Blondin Rescinds Regulation Requiring 'Kitchener."

Ottawa, January 13.—One of the first official acts of the new Postmaster-General, Hon. P. T. Blondin, has been to rescind the regulation issued on December 23rd by the late Postmaster-General Casgrain, which provided that letters addressed to "Berlin," Ontario, would find their way to the dead letter office. The regulation stated that the letters must be addressed to Kitchener, the new name given to Berlin, by the Ontario government.

Yesterday's announcement says: — "Notice is given that the Postmaster-General has authorized the cancellation of the regulation in regard to letters addressed to 'Berlin,' Ont., published in the issue of The Canada Gazette of the 23rd December, 1916." Consequently letters addressed to Berlin, Ont., will now be forwarded to Kitchener, pending further instructions. How long the department will continue to officially recognize "Berlin" remains to be seen.

WHOLE CITY OWES $103,000,000

Is Within Borrowing Limit—Increase During Year — How Debt Has Grown in Decade.

TORONTO, Jan. 13.—The gross debt of the city at the close of year, according to Finance Commissioner Bradshaw, was $103,000,000. This means an increase of about $6,000,000 during the year, as the debt on the 31st December, 1915, was $91,061,095. The city still has a borrowing margin of between four and five millions. The debt has jumped from $27,548,743 in 1906. It was only $75,239,886 as recently as 1914.

The debt per head of the population is $294.

Another Great Powder Smash

Monetary Loss, When 200 Tons of Explosive is Destroyed, is Estimated at $1,500,000— Two States Rocked by the Latest Echo of War.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.— Four hundred thousand pounds of smokeless powder blew up at the Du Pont Powder Works at Haskell, N.J., last night, and for the second time in forty-eight hours New York and northern New Jersey were jarred and frightened by a munitions explosion.

Damage estimated at $1,500,000 was caused by last night's explosion. It was said at the offices of the company at midnight that all of the more than 1,500 workers had been accounted for with the exception of two men, and that twelve had been injured. The force of the explosion was felt for a radius of 100 miles, and with the exception of the Black Tom disaster, it was the most violent of the munition explosions in the vicinity of New York since the business grew to gigantic proportions soon after the start of the war in Europe. Houses were shaken in Manhattan, Brooklyn and the Bronx, windows were broken in many places in Westchester county, in Staten Island, and as far away as Milford, Conn., it was reported that damage had been done.

The force of the explosion at Haskell disrupted telephone service throughout northern New Jersey, and it was hours before persons a few miles from Haskell knew just what had happened.

Blaze Speedily Spreads.

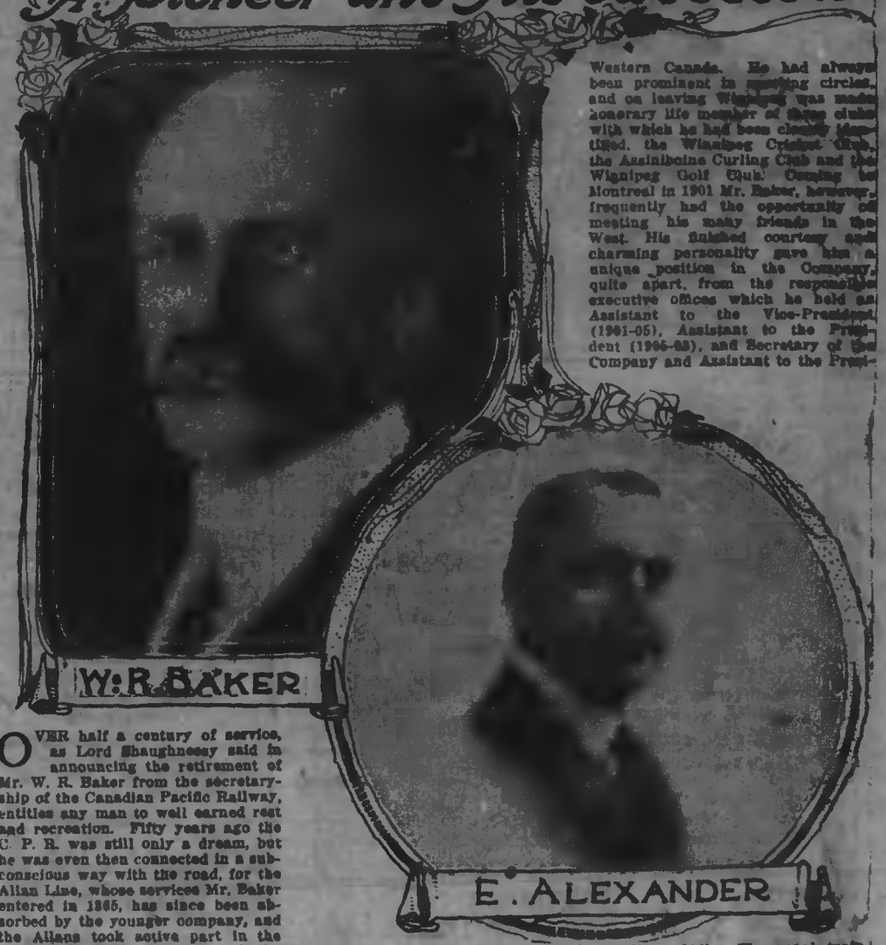
At 9.23 o'clock a small blaze started in a glazing house almost in the centre of the long line of 500 buildings that stretch away from Haskell up the Rampago hills, and form the great smokeless powder plant of the Du Pont Company, said to be the greatest in the world. A few moments, and the blaze spread from the glazing house to a cleansing house, a few feet distant.

With the knowledge that they were but a few yards from a magazine holding 200,000 pounds of finished smokeless powder the workers at the cleansing house and the glazing house fled, spreading the warning as they ran.

When the blaze ate its way to the nearby magazine, the heat caused the explosion of the whole 100 tons of high explosives, creating the greatest shock of the disaster. The frame shacks of the thousands of workers in Haskell, rocked by the force of the explosion, spilled their occupants into fleeing lines, which were spurred to greater speed when a second magazine went up and then a third.

From the powder magazine the blaze jumped across the Wanague River into three drying houses, which contained small amounts of explosives, which went off with enough force to lend zest to the flames.

A Pioneer and His Successor



OVER half a century of service, as Lord Shaughnessy said in announcing the retirement of Mr. W. R. Baker from the secretaryship of the Canadian Pacific Railway, entitles any man to well earned rest and recreation. Fifty years ago the C. P. R. was still only a dream, but he was even then connected in a subconscious way with the road, for the Allan Line, whose services Mr. Baker entered in 1865, has since been absorbed by the younger company, and the Allans took active part in the agitation for the building of the transcontinental railway.

Walter Reginald Baker, who was born in Yorkshire, England, in 1852, was only thirteen years of age when he came to Canada. He entered the Allan Line service, and remained there until 1873 when he was appointed local freight and passenger agent of the Canada Central Railway at Ottawa. This railway, which was absorbed by the C. P. R. in 1881, had been incorporated in 1861 to build a railway from Lake Huron to Ottawa, via. Pembroke and Arnprior, and from Ottawa to Montreal. A further connection with the idea of a transcontinental railway occurs in his appointment in the same year as joint secretary with M. de Bellefeuille of the original Canadian Pacific Railway Company, the charter of which reverted to the Canadian Government. Mr. Baker, however, temporarily left railway life in 1874 to become A.D.C. and private secretary to the Marquis of Dufferin, Governor-General of Canada. From 1878 to 1881, he was assistant secretary to the Treasury Board at Ottawa, but when the famous Syndicate took up the work of completing the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway he left the Government service and joined this great enterprise as assistant to the general superintendent and local treasurer of the Western Division at Winnipeg. He was thus one of the actual pioneers of the C. P. R., arriving at Winnipeg on the last day of February, 1881, in the special sleeping car, which also brought up from St. Paul A. B. Stickney, General Superintendent of the Western Division; William Harder, Assistant Traffic Manager; C. O. Butterfield, Master Mechanic, and Joel May, Superintendent. Three of these were identified more or less with the St. Paul interests, whereas Mr. Baker represented the interests at Montreal. On this occasion they crossed the Red River on a pile bridge, a permanent structure not yet having been completed. Winnipeg at that time had a population of just about 7,000, and the work of building up the railway was commenced under distinctly primitive conditions. These were pioneering days in the West, and the C. P. R. officials, owing to a fire which drove them out of their proper quarters, at one time had to do their business at the corner of Portage Avenue and Fort Street, in the basement of a church, otherwise used as a Sunday School. In 1883 Mr. Baker had two promotions, first as purchasing agent, then as assistant to the general manager. The Manitoba and North Western Railway, originally an enterprise of the Allans, and absorbed by the C. P. R., in 1900, knew him as general superintendent from 1883 to 1892, when he became general manager. "His assistance," said Lord Shaughnessy, "in straightening out the affairs of the acquired property was of material value, and his other duties, many of them of an important and confidential character, were performed with singular zeal and intelligence."

During 1900 and 1901 Mr. Baker filled the important position of executive agent of the C. P. R., to the great satisfaction of the people of Western Canada. He had always been prominent in sporting circles, and on leaving Winnipeg was made honorary life member of three clubs with which he had been closely identified, the Winnipeg Cricket Club, the Assiniboine Curling Club and the Winnipeg Golf Club. Coming to Montreal in 1901 Mr. Baker, however, frequently had the opportunity of meeting his many friends in the West. His finished courtesy and charming personality gave him a unique position in the Company, quite apart from the responsible executive offices which he held as Assistant to the Vice-President (1901-05), Assistant to the President (1905-08), and Secretary of the Company and Assistant to the President. (1908-1916). The royal train on the occasion of the several visits of the Prince and Princess of Wales (now King and Queen of England), Prince Arthur of Connaught, Prince Fushimi, and the Duke of Connaught as Governor-General, were always entrusted to his charge with the result that he is a C.V.O. and holds many valued orders, such as that of the order of the Sacred Treasure, bestowed by the Emperor of Japan, while he is also an Esquire of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem.

By a curious coincidence, Mr. Ernest Alexander, who succeeds Mr. Baker, is also a native of Yorkshire. Another point he has in common with his predecessor, namely, a keen appreciation of pictures, shown by his membership of the Arts Club of Montreal. Mr. Alexander is also a member of St. James's Club, Kanawaki Golf Club, and the Montreal Curling Club. He was quite a lad when he came to Canada, spending most of his early days in Hamilton, Ontario, where he went to school, and then entered service with the Grand Trunk Railway Company. In 1893 he became secretary to Sir William (then Mr.) Van Horne, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway. When Sir William was succeeded by Mr. (now Lord) Shaughnessy, Mr. Alexander remained in the president's office, continuing in various capacities until July 2nd, 1908, when he was appointed to fill the office of assistant treasurer. On August 20th, 1913, he was made assistant secretary of the Company, and his portfolio as secretary began on January 1st, 1917.

PETERBORO MEN AT RAINY RIVER

W. H. Crough and M. F. Conway, of Peterborough, Ont., arrived in town Monday evening with ten fine head of heavy draft horses, the animals coming through in good shape. Mr. OCrough informs us that one team, which weighs 3,750 lbs., will draw themselves down into the blue clay. While coming up on the train, Mr. Crough, who is the present reeve of Ennismore, sold two carloads of posts to Chester Hiska, of Esten, Sask., so their next move will be getting out posts to fill the contract.

Our readers will remember that in our issue of the 3rd of November, Mr. Crough, who was visiting his cousin, Mrs. Chas. Desorcy, was credited with saying he was greatly pleased with the prospects at Rainy River, and that his son, Ambrose, was here looking over the land and timber, with a view of moving their sawmill here if satisfied.

The son has been here ever since and is well satisfied. They are now looking for a suitable site as the sawmill is on the way.—Rainy River Gazette.

WHAT THE NEW YORK PAPERS ARE SAYING

N. Y. Times.—The Allies have thrown wide open the door to the council room in which the treaty of peace may be drawn up. Will Germany have the effontery to say that their terms are not just? In that opinion she would have the judgment of the whole world against her. Her plea that she is fighting for existence has lost all its validity.

Sun.—It is maintained in some quarters that prices in the stock market are already on a peace basis.

Professional View.—The general market is a purchase on declines and a sale on sharp rallies for turns.

Journal of Commerce—On the theory that the continuance of the war means a corresponding continuous demand for American made munitions, short interests evinced a sudden tendency to cover their outstanding commitments and the market closed quite strong.

ARMY HEALTHIER THAN THE ORDINARY OCCUPATIONS NOW

Member Says British Aeroplanes Can Fly to Krupps Easily Now.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—The announcement of Lord Northcliffe's return from his ninth visit to the front contains an interesting statement by him concerning the health of the armies. The annual death rate is placed at exactly three per thousand; the average illness, including colds and influenza, much less than in London, with all the discomfort and inconvenience of the trenches. The conditions appear fundamentally favourable to men in the vigour of life and physically capable of standing exposure and hardships.

Lord Northcliffe's observations confirm what has often been remarked as to the wonderful improvement in the sanitation of the armies. In the past, disease has been as destructive as battles. Biology and pathology to say nothing of surgery and therapeutics, have made such strides that disease has been practically eliminated as a factor in warfare. War takes medical science into the field where the control of large masses enables it to develop the highest efficiency.

The organized and intensive applications and development of the science of preventive medicine constitute the strictly neutral work in this war by which all humanity will profit for all time to come.

The progress in another field of science was touched on at a meeting of the Association of Science Teachers on Saturday. Prof. Kilburn Scott lent authority to the report that Germany is now making out of the air her whole supply of nitrates. Prof. Scott mentioned three things as marking the outposts of science in this war. First, there was the manufacture of nitrate from the atmosphere as before mentioned; second, the Zeppelin, which nullified the insular position of England, and, thirdly, there was the success of the gyro compass, which solved accurate steering of battleships and submarines. It was declared by Mr. Joynson-Hicks, M.P., that within three months an English firm could build a hundred air machines that could fly for ten hours continuously and would be capable of successfully raiding the Krupp works at Essen. Mr. Joynson-Hicks was the choice of many expert judges for the air board to which Lord Cowdray was appointed. He has been agitating the question of holding the Allied supremacy in the air, and it is hoped that his fine enthusiasm will be utilized by the new board.

LAVERGNE NOT EXPELLED.

Quebec, Que., Jan. 13. — The Quebec Garrison Club lost its case yesterday against Armand Lavergne, ex-M.P.P. The latter had been expelled from the Garrison Club after his notorious speech in the Legislative Assembly, which called from Mr. Tellier the epithet of "rebel" for Mr. Lavergne. An injunction was taken by Mr. Lavergne who also claimed $999 damages from the Garrison Club. Hon. Justice Rodolphe Roy, of the Superior Court, declared ultra vires and illegal the resolution of the majority of the members of the club by which the expulsion was decided, maintains the injunction taken and grants Lavergne $199 damages.

MAYOR DUFFUS IN NEW YORK

When last heard of His Worship, Mayor Duffus and Alderman Dobbin Chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee were favouring the naughty city of New York with a visit. It is altogether likely that they will mix business with pleasure and incidentally inspect some of the motor driven fire apparatus. It is safe to say that they will not find the fire chief of New York or any of the district chiefs for that matter, driving to a fire behind a nanny-goat of a horse the way they do in the Fire Department which Mayor Duffus and Alderman Dobbin left behind.

Germans Deliver Assaults With New Form of Gas

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, Jan. 13.—German attacks near the village of Kainzem, on the northern end of the Russian front, in the Riga region, although delivered with large forces, were beaten off by the Russians, the Petrograd War Office announced. The statement reads:

"On Thursday the Germans, in considerable force, attacked our troops situated east of the village of Kainzem. The attack was repulsed by our fire and a counter-attack.

"South of the village of Zubilno, between Vladimir-Volynski and Lutsk (Volhynia), ten versts south of Kiselin, the enemy directed from his trenches on to our flank a hose similar to a fire hose, after which we heard a pronounced hissing noise and the whistle of escaping gas. At first there appeared a yellowish green and afterwards a white cloud of gas, which, however, failed to reach our trenches, owing to the wind blowing along our front. This release of gas lasted two minutes and was not repeated.

What Berlin Claims.

The German report says:

"Front of Prince Leopold: On the Dvina and in the lake sector south of Dvinsk the fighting activity increased considerably.

"On the railroad from Vilna to Dvinsk Russian companies that attacked were repulsed, suffering heavy losses.

"Two minor attacks launched in order to ameliorate our position south-west of Riga brought us thirty-two prisoners."

THE BRITISH PRESS COMMENT ON GERMANY'S LAST APPEAL

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, Jan. 13.—British editorial comment to-day turned from its fulsome praises of the Allied note to a bitter denunciation of Germany's last appeal for neutral sympathy made in the note published yesterday.

"Berlin's delicious document," remarked the Daily Mail, "is a mixture of whims and falsehoods. Clearly, Germany wouldn't be talking so much about peace if she did not want it badly, and it is clear she wants not only peace but the plunder she has stolen. She can have peace at any moment by returning to her own country and can end the 'starvation campaign' by dropping the stolen goods."

The Times pointed out that Germany's complaint of use of coloured troops in Europe comes "from the powers which have brought the Turks into Galicia."

THIS BIRD LIVES ON FISH.

And He Doesn't Build a Nest, but Lives in a Sand Tunnel.

The belted kingfisher has a great taste for fish. Every day is Friday with him, because no matter how hungry he gets, he will eat nothing except fish. Wherever there are creeks, rivers, ponds or lakes the kingfishers are to be found.

His principal business in life seems to be diving into the water for fish. From his perch on a dead branch or as he hovers over the water this unusual bird spies a small fish. With a swoop and a splash and a dive he goes into the water and is out as quickly with the fish firmly held in his stout beak. As he emerges from the water a quick shake of the body sends the water flying from his oily feathers, and he is dry in short order. The fish is tossed into the air, caught again in the beak and swallowed head first.

Unlike most other birds, the kingfisher does not build his nest in trees, but seeks a sand bank, in which he digs a tunnel several feet straight in. At the far end a little room is hollowed out, and there on the sand the glossy eggs are laid.

The belted kingfisher is recognized by his fluffy crown and his breast band. The male has a blue-gray breast band, back and sides, while the female has chestnut colored sides and breast band in addition to a gray breast band.—Exchange.

Not Far Wrong.

"A-u-t-o-c-r-a-c-y," spelled Tommy, reading aloud. After a pause he pronounced it triumphantly—"autocrazy."

Partly True.

"James told me that he gets $300 a week from the concern he works for."

"So he does—to put in the bank for them."—Baltimore American.

Sad, Too.

"I'm saddest when I sing," said she.

"I share your grief, my dear," said he.—Boston Transcript.

Had Violent Coughing Fits

Looked Like Consumptive

Mrs. Mary Whelen, North Forks, N.S., writes: "Having taken five bottles of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, during the past few weeks, to relieve a chronic cough and general throat trouble, allow me to express my unbounded satisfaction and thanks as to its sterling qualities. A short time ago I became subject to violent coughing fits at night and directly after rising in the morning. I began losing weight, and all my friends cheerfully informed me that I was going into consumption.

"After taking the 'Dr. Wood's' I am pleased to relate that the cough has entirely disappeared and I have since regained the lost weight. I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup."

There are many imitations of "Dr. Wood's" on the market so see that none of these so-called "pine syrups" are handed out to you when you ask for "Dr. Wood's." It has been on the market for twenty-five years, is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, price 35c and 50c.

Tourists Are Visiting Ruined Rheims Under Direction of Officers

Permit Must Be Obtained Before Trip Can Be Made—Writer Says That, on a Quiet Afternoon, Party of Women Was Taken Into Front Line Trenches.

CANVAS HIDES THE CARS

I was with a party at the Rheims front.

Suddenly there began an awful clatter of artillery. "Let's go over to the batteries—just over there," exclaimed the boy from Barcelona. Capt. Delvert looked troubled. Wh-h-h! (Noises like an express train entering a depot.) Crash. A full-sized German shell exploded between us and those batteries. "This way, if you please, gentlemen," said Capt. Talamon.

In ten minutes the automobile landed us at some third-line trenches on the other side of Rheims. Machine guns commanded a highway. The trenches ran through suburban gardens. We saw a lot of still life. This way, gentlemen," remarked the captain, shortly. And, amid a perfectly good bombardment, the autos landed us at the Pommery champagne establishment. No crashes of artillery reached those deep cellars. The captain made us inspect them thoroughly.

"I would not mind if you newspaper men should be killed," he whispered, confidentially, "but I'm responsible for this Dutch merchant, and the president of the Chamber of Commerce of Geneva, and that boy eating sandwiches is the son of the mayor of Barcelona. What would they think if anything happened to him?"

A Modern Visit.

Such is a modern visit to the Rheims front, and it will probably be the same at Soissons to-morrow. Along with four newspaper correspondents, there were three chamber of commerce dignitaries one New York clubman one Russian prince one partner in an American chemical works, one transatlantic shipping man and the boy from Barcelona.

For parties of women, the French foreign office maintains a woman guide, who posts them beforehand on heavy boots, stockings, rubbers, wraps and raincoats.

All go over the same historic road. None may take the direct trains for Rheims. To buy a ticket, you must show your permit. The train is long and crowded, but the first-class cars are luxurious, and, returning at night, we had a better and gayer dinner, in a smarter restaurant car, better warmed and lighted, than on the Monte Carlo express.

Epernay! Two hours and a half from Paris. The train goes on to Nancy. The first sight was a bunch of African infantry—big heavy fellows, as black as ink—in warm, new uniforms, horse-playing and disputing around the station. A distinguished young officer came, hurrying, with a typewritten list. "The visitors for Rheims?" The party of civilians gathered round him and answered the roll call. It was Capt. Delvert, the hero of the Fort of Vaux, seventeen wounds and a trepanning, about whom they write poetry and legends, convalescent and taking parties around Rheims for his knowledge of architecture. "This way, gentlemen, if you please, to the automobiles."

No visitor will forget that automobile ride of twenty-five miles, over the Champagne hills, from Epernay to Rheims, in war. Now and then, a shell explodes in the distance.

Canvas Hides Cars.

At times the high road runs between big French batteries, and the French trenches. "The Boches are over there, about four miles," indicates our military chauffeur. The cars are military limousines—luxurious, tight, snug. Up, down, round and round, among the empty hills, deserted vineyards and damaged villages. Although between belligerent batteries, no shells of artillery duels fall on this road, but go high over it. Frequently, for a mile or so, a wall of canvas or sacking, fifteen feet high, and stretched and nailed from tree to tree or pole to pole on the German side of the road, cuts off the view from enemy captive balloons. If they saw a line of vehicles in movement, they might signal for a few shells. Not seeing, they seldom bombard a probably empty high road.

We ride in suppressed excitement, as sneaking through danger. These miles of stretched canvas make an impression. The road dips into another valley and the chauffeur points beyond: "There's Rheims."

The streets are full of civilians. The houses are occupied and uninjured. We turn corners into other streets. All is intact, but the life is furtive and the town neglected. We stop at military headquarters to be introduced. The general says a few low words to Capt. Delvert. I know what it meant: "It is liable to be a lively day around Rheims. You are responsible for all non-professional visitors."

"Gentlemen"' said Capt. Talamon, "we shall proceed to the cathedral."

Around the Cathedral.

Immediately we saw the martyrdom of Rheims. It must often be lively at Rheims. Watch the papers. The entire quarter around the cathedral is gutted by German bombardment at long distance. There is no question of observation from the towers. And both towers still stand, unless they are to be supposed wretched shots—which they are not— they have carefully avoided destroying the towers, in these two years.

Not a house is intact around the cathedral. Not a house is occupied. Many have a single shell hole. Often small, but those adjoining are in ruins. We passed entire blocks where nearly al were razed. They take you to a view. Straight swaths are shelled through the blocks of houses and the swaths meet around the cathedral. It cannot be denied, Only the cathedral quarter has been aimed at.

Inside Rheims cathedral.

The roof and walls are riddled with holes. Fire shells have burned everything that could burn and cracked the carved stone. There were heavy lumber repair, scaffoldings, and this was known —otherwise why send fire shells to a stone cathedral.

Thousands of Shells.

More than 1,500 shells have entered the cathedral. Nearly 13,000 have fallen round about it. Great breaches are here and there. Even the floor is torn up. The bombardment of the cathedral has never ceased. Every now and then it begins again — not to destroy it utterly, but piecemeal; here a corner nipped off, there a wall weakened, here a flying buttress sent flying, there a new smash in the stained glass windows. It is like a child nibbling around the edge of a cake. You know what finally happens to the cake. The child knows, too, and tries to make it last. Each shot into Rheims cathedral hits the heart of France.

"Only the cathedral quarter," we mutter.

"Paron," says Capt. Talamon, cheerfully, "there is another. If you please, gentlemen, we will take the automobiles."

They take us to the ruins of the Hotel Dieu.

It is the illustrious old royal hospital of Rheims, completely gutted —the third glory of Rheims. Old kings built it, grandiose and beautiful, as a memorial to adjoin the antique Church of St. Remi, which is a precious pre-Gothic basilica, landmark of Christianity, pearl of rare architecture in whose foundations, at least, Clovis was baptised.

The Three Glories.

In August, 1916, the Germans began cutting another "swath" through Rheims—in a straight line, fore and aft, with the Church of St. Remi. I tell what I have seen. So far the Hotel Dieu, adjoining it, built into it, has taken all the shells. But the swaths of bombardment are there. They go in straight lines, unmistakable, to the three historical and architectural glories of Rheims —the cathedral, St. Remi, and the Hotel Dieu.

On which, we go to the Hotel du Nord for lunch.

The fish was fresher than in Paris, coming direct in refrigerator cars from the sea. The roast ducks were delicious, with the hot tartlets, cheese, fruits and crude champagne, which does not bubble, make one admire the feeding of the front.

Is it the front?

The lunch goes leisurely. The French officers discuss Romanesque and Gothic, stained glass, Joan of Arc, plain chant and gastronomy. Visitors, anxious for the trenches, listen and hold their patience. Don't disturb the officers in their one good hour of leisure!

Do you think so? You are all wrong. There is deep diplomacy, and the captains who appear so debonnair are really heart strained for their party of tourists, watching the clock furtively and waiting for a message. Are the trenches safe this afternoon? Aye, there's the question!

The proof is that on a quiet afternoon a party of women got started promptly after three-quarters of an hour at lunch, spent three hours romping in the first-line trenches, talked to poilus, touched machine guns and saw an aeroplane battle.

And I know a party of men who were delayed, tempted with hot tartlets (not on the bill of fare), coffee, liqueurs, cigars and charmed with first-class conversation, so that they never saw the first-line trenches. They missed the big gun batteries when they were quiting lively, and they wound up the remainder of their afternoon till dusk, in the cellars of the champagne establishment.

DOLLAR DAY ON JANUARY 25TH MERCHANTS PREPARING FOR IT

The Big Mid-Winter Event Will Be Better Than Ever—Farmers, Like City People, Will Find Many Interesting Features This Year

Examiner readers will be pleased to hear that the Peterborough merchants are again preparing the annual mid-winter Dollar Day event, that always creates such widespread interest. This year the big day promises to easily eclipse all former occasions as the merchants are profiting by the previous experiences and know better how to meet the demands of the public on a shopping day of such magnitude. In spite of the greatly increased cost of all materials, buyers will find an array of wonderful values prepared for them in almost every imaginable line of goods. Dollar Day has certainly come to stay. It makes a winter outing for everybody, and the happy crowds of bargain hunters that throng the stores and streets, present to hundreds of people an opportunity of meeting friends whom they have the privilege of greeting only on widely separated occasions. The subject of almost every conversation on the big day, is a discussion of the relative merits of the bargains each member of the group has secured, and all claim theirs as the best because every one of them has bought just what he or she happened to want. That's the beauty of Dollar Day, there's a bargain for everyone, no matter what they want to buy.

And then, outside of the bargains, there's the added interest of the hundred and seventy-five dollars in cash prizes that the merchants give away to the shoppers in a friendly contest that is a strong feature of the day. The prizes will be given away the same as on former Dollar Days.

All stores where the pennants are shown, will give a blank form with every dollar purchased that day, and the buyer will make an estimate of how many of these will be filled in and dropped in the big ballot box in front of The Examiner office. Drop your estimates with your name and address written on each one of them in the ballot box, and if you have estimated closest to the actual number in the box, you will be given the $25.00 first prize. There are fifty-six prizes, ranging from $25.00 down to $1.00, and they are paid out in brand new Dollar bills, just as soon as the ballots are counted and the winners decided by a Committee of the Merchants.

Up California's Tamalpais runs the crookedest railroad in the world. Of the eight miles of track the longest tangent is but 413 feet. In one notable instance the road makes five complete loops and ties two complete bowknots to attain an elevation of ninety feet. The end of the line is about half a mile higher than the starting point, and there is not one particularly steep grade in the entire system.

The Company's action in waiving all restrictions as to Active Service under policies issued prior to the declaration of war has meant a very considerable additional strain, which however, has been fully met out of the earnings of the Company, in addition to the amount required to maintain the present liberal profit scale. Quinquennial distributions of profits in 1917 will be larger than ever.

OUR SERIAL STORY

"DESTINY"

By CHARLES NEVILLE BUCK

"Mean anything to me?" she exclaimed passionately as her eyes widened, her whole attitude relaxed into a posture of collapse in her chair. "Mean anything—!" Then suddenly she straightened up and passed a hand across her brow as though to brush away a cloud that rested there. In a composed voice she added: "It means so much that you must do as I say, not merely until you feel like disobeying again, but always." After a long silence she rose. "I must get up early," she said, remembering that to-morrow brought its programme of a train journey, a matinee and an an evening performance.

"Paul," said Marcia as they walked back, "I have to leave a call for seven and catch a train at eight thirty. There's no use in your getting up. No, please don't, and please don't hunt me up again. At the door of the hotel, she said enigmatically, "What a wonderful balance Nature might have struck between your brother's strength and your winning personality. Good night."

* * *

The Duke de Metaun's failure to rehabilitate his impaired fortunes with Burton gold had left a more durable scar upon his optimism than any of the similar scars of the past. Mary Burton had been such a splendid combination of charm and opulence that a marriage with her would have made a pleasure of necessity. The duke in his earlier stages of disappointment had felt first the pangs of a lover, and only in secondary degree the chagrin of a depleted exchequer. Several months had found him inconsolable and when desperation had closed upon him he had wedded an estimable lady whose wealth was less dazzling than Mary's but quite ample none the less. Her personal paucity of allurement was a handicap which his philosophy ignored as much as possible. In private he sometimes made a fastidious grimace and accepted the inevitable.

Yet the duke had long been an epicure in life's pleasures, and though he must yield to the demands of his creditors much as a young prince must yield to the edicts of his chancellery in making a required marriage he did so with mental reservations. He had no intention of permitting that necessity to cast a perpetual cloud over is days and nights.

He had found it possible to leave his estate in Andalusia where his duchess elected to remain with an imaginary malady from which she derived much melancholy pleasure, and in Nice he had been overjoyed to meet a charming acquaintance in the person of Loraine Haswell.

Loraine too was willing to have these hours which hung heavy, alleviated with companionship, and Nice is a place where hours lend themselves to the process of being lightened.

There was a waiter at one of the esplanade cafes where the tables look out over the whiteness of the seafront and the sapphire of the bay, who regarded his grace and madam as his regular clients. He knew, without telling, what hors d'oeuvres and vintages the dark gentleman affected and at what pastries the beautiful lady preferred to nibble. She nibbled decoratively between peals of soft laughter and snatches of small talk.

The garcon in question noted, and officially ignored, that the lady who had at first worn a preoccupied, and almost troubled expression, about her dark eyes, now smiled more often and that into the black pupils of Carlos de Metuan there came frequently a glow which was akin to ardour.

In the same way he noticed that occasionally their hands met and lingered, as the lady formed the habit of losing her handkerchief and the gentleman habituated himself to its retrieving. A legal separation cannot be established in a day and if one must remain away from one's friends at home one may surely console oneself with friends abroad.

The duke was lavish in his entertainment. His wife's fortune permitted that, as well as his wife's ignorance of it disbursements, and of late Loraine's supply of money from America had arrived on a scale of diminuendo. Entertainment was welcome.

Half-jokingly and veiled in phrases which she was at liberty to construe as she wished there had of late been an insidious vein of suggestion in the duke's conversation.

"Were I not married and were you not married and were I able to convince you with an eloquence which I lack, I think that I might be happy," he informed her one night as he studied his cigarette end in the dark. Then he laughed and his hand sought hers as he added: "Yet thank God a thousand times we live in an age when friendship need not go shackled by dark age absurdities." That had been the beginning.

"Friendship," she replied demurely, "has never had to be shackled, has it?"

He leaned forward and she caught the glint of his eyes and a flash of white teeth, as he answered:

"When friendship between man and woman is a feeble little fellow he goes free but when he grows very strong, then his lot was not so easy in other days. You understand me?"

"I'm sure I don't, but what matter" she laughed. Carlos shrugged his shoulders.

"Yes, what matter?" he murmured. "As long as we can be together why should we seek names for our companionship? It is, what it is."

Yet Loraine, still sure of her future spelling a congenial and luxurious life with Paul, understood what she pretended not to understand. The Duke de Metaun was not a riddle to her; not even a figure tinged with mystery. His wife was an unlovely invalid. Her sole value was monetary, and the duke's hints and thoughts had all to do with an arrangement wherein life should yield him the compensating delights which his family denied.

Loraine's fastidiousness rather shuddered at this idea, yet perhaps a certain sort of character disintegration had set in, with her first cutting loose the moorings of preconceived standards. Possibly it was working a more rapid atrophy than she knew. She told herself that in her exile Carlos made a rather diverting companion and that since she understood his purpose, she could with ease control the situation. He should amuse and no more. If his hints became less ambiguous than she found agreeable, she would send him packing but meanwhile she would permit his luncheons and his motors to serve her. The food and the roads about Nice are excellent, and expensive.

CHAPTER 28.

There is one town in the western hemisphere whose local news is national news and international news. Its celebrities wear names which the nation mouths over with gusto and its own name was until comparatively recent, New Amsterdam. The country closely followed the first column stories with which the press sought to keep abreast of the affairs of Hamilton Montagu Burton. It was interesting reading for it dealt with a late potentate of power untold; now an invalid whose brain slept like a child taking its forenoon nap while his millions, counted in scores and hundreds, went back to their sources as the sun draws water into the clouds to spill it out elsewhere. A giant of untold might had kindled the fires that slept at the heart of a volcano—and then had fallen asleep upon the slopes down which the lave must flow!

While he slept, Ruin, spelling itself with a capital letter had signed out the one pedestaled figure which had laughed at ruin, and mocked its potency and bragged of a star which was above menace.

Hamilton Burton lay for weeks in insensibility and delirium and when in returned consciousness, he realized his predicament he raved like a madman against restraint, counting his precious moments, which were being used against him, bleeding him of vital power. This very fretting against the inevitable burdened him with a waste of nerve and brain which should send him forth, depleted in strength and weakened in resistance, to meet his adversaries.

Nor had the forces aligned against him marked time. When again he took the field he must take it in a realm of altered and shrunken boundaries, and the roll call of his allies would show many missing, and many gone over to the foe. But greater than all these things was the change in himself. The clayed wolf who had gorged too deep of success was no longer the lean fighting beast with a ravenous light of conquest in his eyes. That Burton might have met even the present and triumphed. This was a wolf on the defensive, facing a pack which had turned upon his leadership. His weakened fangs were against the jaws of all the rest, and he came scarred and spent from days and nights of physical feebleness.

Paul sat beside Hamilton in his car as they drove down on that first day when the financier defied the edicts of his physicians.

"Hamilton," questioned the younger brother, voicing for the first time that deep anxiety which had been clamoring within him for weeks, "will you be able to drive back your assailants? The papers predict that your reign is broken and that your ruin is near at hand."

Hamilton raised his face and smiled. It was the old imperious smile, but the face over which it spread was thinner and gaunter, and between the hollowed cheekbones the smile lost something of its wonted illumination, failed somewhat of its old convincing force.

"The papers have had their opportunity to prattle without attack. Now, I am back again, we shall see." He broke off and laughed, then he rushed on fiercely. "They call this fit, Helena. They lie." In the weakened condition which was still upon him he gasped a moment for breath. "When Napoleon left Elba the papers of Paris raved about the escape of the unspeakable tyrant. When he reached the borders of France they announced without comment the approach of Napoleon Bonaparte, but when he was near the gates they raised a paean of triumphant welcome to Emperor who had burned to make France more glorious than ever among the nations! I shall soon be at their city gates, Paul, and while my star shines no mortal power can stop me or stay my progress."

But the Napoleon of the later phases was not the Napoleon of Austerlitz. Out of the great heart and brain some essential element had gone. Burton, too, had tasted defeat and knew its bitterness. He was going back to rally shrunken forces and lead a forlorn hope, and his eyes were grimly defiant, where once they had been regnantly confident. Perhaps Burton during those few months was after all more worthy of admiration than he had been since a boy whose dreams burned city-ward. Feeling each day a day of adversity and giving no hint, he recognised yet refused to admit, the dawn of defeat when defeat was far past its dawning. Upon the world of fabled assailants that pressed him back—back—ever back on dwindling millions and then shrinking hundreds of thousands he turned a fierce and unsurrendering face. To himself he said even now that his star was infallible.

Yet in the privacy of his own bedroom when no alien eye penetrated his solicitude, his bitterness was terrible. In the consistency of that egotism which had first made, then unmade him, there was no room for remorse; no possibility of self-accusation. If his star was to set it would set on this last terrific stand against the squares of the enemy, with the old guard about him.. and when the end came, like another Antony, he would fall on his own sword.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Drink Lots of Water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts, which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

What Ambition Can Do

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Q. Hope Jones advanced to the desk on the platform and said:

"My dear friends, I reached this town of Cucumber Hill early in the day and have had several hours to look over the landscape and converse with your most eminent citizens. You have a site here to be proud of, and your sawmill is equipped with one of the finest steam whistles I ever heard.

"Your hogs look fat and contented as they walk up and down the avenues. Such cows as I have encountered are of a kindly disposition, and the alarms of war seem not to have disturbed you.

"There are only seven persons present at my lecture, but probably the measles and the whooping cough kept the others in the house. I have delivered lectures where the audience numbered only one person, but I spoke with the emphasis, philosophy and logic that I use where the audience numbers a thousand. I shall do so tonight. You shall have the worth of your money and perhaps double the value. I am going to tell you what ambition can do.

"Take the case of Socrates. He has been dead some time, but he did not kick about dying when his time had come, and history has left us a good record of his ambitious doings. He began life as a corner grocer, and in those days every grocer had to give sixteen ounces to the pound.

"Seeing after a year or two that there was no show in the grocery business for an honest man, Old Socrates decided on a change. He closed up his shop and went to school to learn to be a statesman and an orator. Such was his ambition to get there that in two weeks he knew more than the schoolmaster. It wasn't two months after the change occurred that he made a Fourth of July speech that knocked all the older orators galley west. He used his big words in just the right places and he slung his grammar around with the utmost liberality. From thence on he began to elbow his way upward. Those who had reached the top rung of the ladder tried their best to keep him down, but failed in their designs. The time came when Socrates almost had the influence of a king.

"Having got all the honors that could be showered upon one man and having accumulated about a billion dollars, he peacefully passed away.

"But, my friends, we need not go back so far to cite our cases. Take that of Napoleon. He was born of humble parents. He lived in a garret. Hot biscuit and clover honey were not for him. Nothing but ambition saved him from becoming a tin peddler or a barber for a summer show. He had ambition, and he won. He chopped cord wood for 20 cents a day until he had saved money enough to take him through a military school. When through with this school he took command of the army of France, and the way he did lam the rest of Europe was a caution. For forty years or more he kept things going. Between his wars there was hardly time for him to go fishing. He licked the enemy in most of his battles, and when he didn't lick 'em they could not catch up to lick him.

"Ambition made Napoleon the greatest general of the world, and the greatest general finally became an emperor and made the whole world afraid of him. In truth, he became a little too ambitious. He started out to give Europe a last dressing down, and at the battle of Waterloo he got the dressing down himself. Be ambitious, but don't expect to hold four aces in every hand.

"And there was John Hancock, first to sign the Declaration of Independence. What did he amount to before he signed? Nobody took off his hat to him. His name was never put up for an office. He could not have gone to the alderman of his ward and got a sidewalk repaired. It was said of him that he was a very quiet man, but he did not know a tater bug from a beetle.

"All of a sudden, however, Mr. Hancock felt ambition stirring in his breast. He got up and took his hat off its peg and said to his wife:

"'Hannah, I think I will go over to the old statehouse and sign the Declaration of Independence. Something tells me I ought to do it.'

"And she replied:

"'Yes, John, you had better go over and write your name as large as you can. It will bluff the British if it doesn't do anything else.'

"And who was John Hancock half an hour after he had signed? Why, the men of Washington were whooping for him and carrying him about on their shoulders, and, you take my word for it, next day he could have had anything in the gift of the town. He shot right up like a green bay tree, and to know John Hancock was something that every man in the land could be proud of. He died respected and loved by all.

"My friends, there is nothing to compare with ambition. It beats the skyscraper elevator in hoisting a man up. The rope never breaks and lets the cage fall. If the ambitious boy or man is driving oxen today he may be riding in his own gilded railroad car five years from now. If you are not an ambitious man don't delay in making a start. If you have not the feeling coax it to come to you, and when it comes give it a warm welcome and prepare to be hoisted into greatness."

ONE WAY TO PAY.

How the Artist Raphael Settled His Bill at an Inn.

Raphael, the great Italian painter, whose celebrated Biblical pictures are worth fabulous sums of money, was not a rich man when young and encountered some of the vicissitudes of life like many another genius.

Once when traveling he put up at an inn and remained there, unable to get away through lack of funds to settle his bill. The landlord grew suspicious that such was the case, and his requests for a settlement grew more and more pressing. Finally young Raphael in desperation resorted to the following device:

He carefully painted upon a table top in his room a number of gold coins, and, placing the table in a certain light that gave a startling effect, he packed his few belongings and summoned his host.

"There," he exclaimed, with a lordly wave of his hand toward the table, "is enough to settle my bill and more. Now kindly show the way to the door."

The innkeeper, with many smiles and bows, ushered his guest out and then hastened back to gather up his gold. His rage and consternation when he discovered the fraud knew no bounds until a wealthy English traveler, recognizing the value of the art put in the work, gladly paid him $50 for the table.—Stray Stories.

Teutons and Slavs.

A Teuton is one of an ancient German tribe that dwelt north of the Elbe and first appeared in history along with the Ambie, about 300 B. C. The German people in general are called Teutons. The name means "the people," as opposed to foreigners.

A Slav is one belonging to any of the Slavonic groups of Aryans. These are all domiciled in Europe except the Russians of Siberia, and a large number of emigrants settled in America. They are divided into three groups, eastern Slavs or Russians, northwestern Slavs and southern Slavs. They are the most numerous race in Europe. Their original habitat seems to have been the basins of the Vistula and other rivers to the northeast of the Carpathians.

VASTNESS OF GREENLAND.

This Ice Crowned Island Is as Big as Mexico or Alaska.

Greenland is the largest island in the world. Its total length from Cape Farewell, its southern extremity in 60 degrees north latitude, to Cape Morris K. Jesup, its northern extremity in 83½ degrees north latitude, is in round numbers 1,500 miles, almost exactly the same as the length of the United States on the ninety-seventh meridian, from the mouth of the Rio Grande to where our northern boundary crosses the Red River of the North. The greatest width of Greenland is about the same as the distance from New York to St. Louis.

In regard to its area the figures of various authorities vary widely. It may be sufficient to say that it can be grouped in size with the United States east of the Mississippi, Alaska, Mexico, Colombia, Persia, Portuguese West Africa and Turkey in Asia.

Its interior is covered with a great sheet of ice rising to elevations of probably 10,000 feet in places and several thousand feet in thickness. The available ice free land is a strip of varying width along the coast, intersected by numerous deep fiords.

When one turns the pages of American arctic exploration Greenland is found more or less intimately associated during over sixty years with all American expeditions, except the Jeannette expedition.

Americans have lifted nearly all of its northwestern and northern coasts out of the arctic night and fog and have twice crossed its northern part. American names stud its coasts, and the name of an American marks its northern extremity, the most northern known land in the world.—Rear Admiral Peary

His Telephone Number.

"Confound it all!" cried a business man. "I've forgotten my new telephone number. I didn't write it down because that's an indication of weakness."

"What about forgetting the number?" said the other man. "Isn't that mental weakness too? Is it the number of your home telephone?"

"Yes."

"Then why not call up your wife and ask her what it is?"

And without the slightest hesitation the forgetful man called up the forgotten number and asked his amazed wife what it was.

Handed It Back.

"Well," replied Mrs. Jones sweetly, "I guess it is because I don't know how. I never seemed to have a faculty for selecting people to live with."—Exchange.

CHINESE DOCTORS.

Their Weird Ideas About Disease and Its Remedies.

PUNCH HOLES IN PATIENTS.

To Perform This Operation They Use Eight Different Styles of Needles, Some Two Feet Long, and the Bigger the Punch the Greater the Doctor.

The bigger the needle with which a Chinese doctor punctures his patient the higher the charge, for the bigger the needle the more distinguished is the physician. If the doctor wears a straw hat, that signifies he is a prosperous doctor and his charge is a little more. If he comes in a sedan, the patient must pay for the chair.

Dr. Frans Otto Koch, writing in the Popular Science Monthly, gives a description of the Chinese physician and how he practices.

"The native Chinese doctor is a curiosity," writes Dr. Koch. "He passes no examination; he requires no qualifications; he may have failed in business and set up as a physician. In his new profession he requires little stock in trade, medical instruments being almost unknown.

"Acupuncture, as it is called, is one of the nine branches recognised in medical science among the Chinese. It is of most ancient origin, having been in use from time immemorial. There are 537 markings to be learned. Every square inch on the human surface has its own name, and some relation to the internal parts, purely imaginary, is assigned to it. The user is cautioned against wounding the arteries; hence he must know the position of the blood vessels. By close study of a manikin pierced with holes the Chinese physician learns where to drive his needles. Parts of the body are selected which may be pierced without fatal results. Sometimes heat is applied to the outer end of the needle, and this is called a hot acupuncture, but the needle is never heated before insertion.

"The needle used looks very much like a sewing machine needle, but it is longer and coarser. Some of the Chinese doctors have needles two feet long and are supposed by ardent admirers to be able to drive these instruments entirely through the patient's body. The great size of the needles is in reality intended to represent the greatness of the owner's skill and reputation. The needles used are of eight forms, as follows: The arrowhead, blunt puncturing, spear pointed, fusiform, round, capillary, long and thick. The point of insertion, the depth and direction are all important. The method is usually to drive the needle through the distended skin by a blow from a light mallet.

"If he can get an old book of prescriptions from a retiring practitioner so much the better for the Chinese doctor. He is now equipped to kill or cure, as chance or his ignorance may dictate. The doctor most entitled to confidence in the sight of his countrymen is the man whose father has been a doctor before him. Confidence in him knows no bounds should his grandfather have followed the same calling. This is not mere fatuous belief in heredity, but is based on the supposed value of old prescription books passed on from grandfather to grandson.

"Fees vary according to the physician's social class and that of his patients and also according to the physician's place of residence. The enormous sum of perhaps 15 American cents or half a dollar at the most may be charged for a visit if the doctor comes in a sedan chair. Of this amount a large proportion goes for the chair. Should the doctor belong to the humbler ranks and come on foot his fee is proportionately less. He assumes a solemn air and owl-like look as he peers out of the semidarkness of a Chinese bedroom through great goggle shaped glasses—two inches across and set in huge uncouth copper frame.

"Most important in diagnosing a case, according to Chinese ideas, is the feeling of the different pulses of the human system. The pulse at each wrist is felt. By this feeling the pulses the states of a dozen real or imaginary organs are determined. Having thus learned by the pressure at these pulses the seat of the disease, a few questions may be asked, but these are considered scarcely necessary. A prescription sometimes calling for the most horrible and nauseating compounds is prepared in large doses, for the native believes that the larger the dose the more likely it is to prove efficacious. In prescribing for natives the foreign doctors have to give the strictest injunctions that the paper box in which the pills are contained is not to be swallowed.

"The manner in which the Chinese treat their physicians is characteristic. Should a speedy cure not result from the doctor's treatment the patient calls in another. If he does not improve he calls in a third. Thus the medical skill of the whole neighborhood may be drawn upon."

A Famous Welsh Fortress.

Carnarvon castle is the most splendid specimen of medieval military architecture surviving in Britain, not excepting Alnwick. Art and beauty were combined with strength by De Elfreton, the architect, who had been commanded to construct a palace within an impregnable fortress. Whether the mean little passage chamber in the Eagle tower was the birthplace of the infant prince whom Edward I. made the medium of such a grim practical joke upon the Welsh seems doubtful, but the main story may still be true. Every famous soldier who helped to make history in this corner of Britain has played some part within or without the walls of Carnarvon castle. It has been starved into surrender, but never captured by force of arms and can therefore claim to be considered a "virgin fortress."—Westminster Gazette.

That is what Rabbi M. Shallit of Edenbridge, Sask., says regarding a cure by Zam-Buk, of which he gives the following particulars:

"A short time ago," said the Rabbi, "a man brought his little son to me and asked if I knew of anything that would cure the child of a terrible skin disease, with which he had suffered for three years. The child's forehead, eyes and ears were covered with sores. The sight was shocking, and the child had not been able to see for two years. As he was an only child, the father said he would give anything to have him cured, but as he had already been treated by many doctors, each of whom had given up the case as incurable, he had about despaired of ever finding a cure. Having great faith in Zam-Buk, I recommended it, and to cut a long story short, perseverance with Zam-Buk has now completely cured the child.

THE FATHER'S ACCOUNT

"The Zam-Buk Company, Toronto

Dear Sirs: I beg to testify that my boy suffered for three years with a severe skin disease, which doctors tried to cure, but in vain. The sores on his eyes were so terrible that for two years he was quite unable to see. Zam-Buk, however, has worked a complete and permanent cure.

The Zam-Buk treatment was recommended to me by Mr. M. Shallit, Rabbi of Edenbridge, for which I shall be grateful to him forever.

With hearty thanks to you, I remain, Yours faithfully,

(Signed) E. ROMANUK."

Apple Crop Poor.

With the apple crop of Ontario approaching maturity it is possible to make a reasonably accurate forecast of production in this line. That production in eastern Canada will be small admits of no doubt, according to the August report of the Dominion Fruit Commissioner. It is equally well assured, according to the same authority, that in Ontario and Quebec at least the quality will be very poor.

In the Lake Erie district it is only well cared for orchards that show a good crop, and the general yield is not placed over forty per cent. normal, with ten per cent. No. 1. About Colpoys, in the extreme of the Lake Ontario district, only a fifty per cent. crop is looked for, and that badly damaged by scab and hail.

The report of the Fruit Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture is in entire agreement with that of the Dominion Fruit Commissioner. Going more into detail the Ontario report says that in the Goderich district apples are almost an entire failure. In Lambton Baldwins alone promise a full crop, other leading varieties being light to medium; in Kent and Norfolk crops are only mediums in quantity, and scab has greatly reduced quality.

A Certainty.

"Oh, I don't know! Just sit down and watch my wife spend it, I suppose."

Children Had Eczema
Doctors Failed To Cure

Two Letters Which Prove the Efficiency of Dr. Chase's Ointment as a Cure for Eczema

Fortunate are the mothers who know the virtues of Dr. Chase's Ointment, for there is no treatment so suitable for use after the bath to relieve irritation and chafing and to thereby prevent eczema and similar skin diseases.

Mrs. W. L. Barnes, Timmins, Ont. writes: "I want to tell you about the case of my little boy, who had baby eczema when he was three months old. It started on the top of his head, on his forehead and around his ears. The doctors failed to do him any good, so I tried D. Chase's Ointment on the recommendation of a friend, and in a month's time the child was entirely free of this disagreeable skin disease. He is now four years old, and has never had any further trouble from ailments of this kind. I also have great faith in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and believe that it cannot be beaten as a restorative for pale, nervous women."

Mrs. George McNair, River Charles, N.B., writes:— "We use Dr. Chase's Ointment in our home, and would not wish for anything better for cuts, burns and bruises. A few years ago a friend of mine, whose baby was terribly afflicted with eczema had her child treated by their own family physician, but the little one got no better. They tried several remedies, but they all proved useless in this case. Upon the advise of a neighbour they got Dr. Chase's Ointment, and before the first box was used the child was completely cured. I can also recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to suffering friends who I new will be glad to learn of something to relieve their nervous trouble. You have my permission to use this letter for the benefit of others."

TOOK AWAY HIS BREATH.

When Davison Heard Morgan Wanted Him For a Partner.

"Mr. Morgan wants to see you in his library at 3 o'clock," was the message received one day by the vice president of a New York bank.

He hadn't the slightest idea what the veteran financier could want with him. He had met Mr. Morgan, as most other financiers had, during the perilous days when the master mind of them all was trying to stem the 1907 panic, but had not seen anything of Mr. Morgan until the spring of the following year when, with Senator Aldrich and other members of the monetary commission, he had spent a Sunday at Mr. Morgan's London home. Between then and the receipt of the above message in the fall of 1908 he had seldom spoken to Mr. Morgan.

Promptly at 3 o'clock the young banker, wondering what the matter could be, rang the bell of the famous Morgan library. On being ushered in he almost collided with Mr. Morgan at the entrance to his private room.

Mr. Morgan shook hands and bade the puzzled visitor be seated.

"Do you realize it is pretty near the 1st of January?" he asked.

The young banker, very much at sea, agreed that it was. This was about the middle of November.

"Are you ready?" asked Mr. Morgan.

"Ready for what?" queried the astonished visitor.

"For what?" echoed Mr. Morgan. "You know I want you to come and join my firm on the 1st of January."

"You never said anything about it, Mr. Morgan."

"I thought you knew by my expression what I thought of you," said Mr. Morgan.

"Mr. Morgan, have you ever fallen from an eighteen story building?"

It was Mr. Morgan's turn to be astonished.

"No," he replied, scrutinizing his visitor.

"Well, I never have before, and it will take me a minute or two to catch my breath."

Mr. Morgan laughed.

And that was how Henry P. Davison, then only forty, was notified of his selection as a partner in the greatest international banking firm in the United States.—R. C. Forbes in Leslie's.

WEIGHING A PIG.

It Was a Perplexing Problem, but the Farm Lad Solved It.

A Massachusetts boy has solved a problem which ought to be of interest to all farm youngsters. If you had a pig and wanted to weigh him, but owned a pair of scales recording only twelve pounds, what would you do about it?

This eastern farmer boy had entered a pig in a contest conducted by the agricultural department and had to keep monthly records of gains in weight, but he suffered the handicap described above. His solution was a credit to his ingenuity.

The boy notched a high board fence, put a long pole evenly across it, resting in the notch, and fastened a crate to one end of the pole and a box to the other. He put sand in the box until the pole was exactly balanced. Then he enticed the pig into the crate by means of corn, fastened him and put small stones into the box until the pole again balanced. These stones he weighed on his little scales, load after load, and their total gave him the weight of the pig.

That boy when he grows up may invent the much talked of substitute for gasoline.

A Profitable Reduction.

The capitalist knew that the new company was spending too much money; also he knew that in some way they had got to put a stop to it. So anxious was he to reduce expenses that he offered his private secretary $25 a month extra if he could find a way to cut down current expenses.

The young man overhauled his accounts, but he failed to find a single expense that could be judiciously cut down. Just as he was about to give up the promised increase in salary it occurred to him that he was already getting $80 a month. Brimming over with enthusiasm, he sought the capitalist.

"I have found a way," he said. "You can save $10 a month on me. I have taken that amount off my salary."

It took the capitalist just about a tenth of a second to see that the young man was still $15 a month ahead, but the bargain stood.

Wrong Interpretation.

A city official tells of a conversation he had a Spanish maiden had when he was a sergeant with troops stationed on the island of Porto Rico.

"The senorita," said the official, "had become infatuated with a certain soldier named Harry, and she had learned his name. One morning she approached me and asked:

"'Where Harry?

"He was asleep, and I laid my head on my hand and closed my eyes to tell the girl. She misunderstood the signs and, with a cry, pointed to heaven. I shook my head and pointed down. The senorita raised her hands in silent supplication. Later Harry was seen on guard, and the girl looked at me reproachfully."

His Wail.

"She's like all the other women."

"In what way?"

"She imagines all a man has to do to get his salary raised is to ask for it."

"Well?"

"And I can't convince her that the boss won't give me more money unless I earn it. She insists on blaming me because we're poor."

Scrambled.

"No," she said to the grocer, "we got some eggs the other day by parcel post."

"How many?" ventured the grocer.

"Well, I don't know how many, but I would say about a gallon and a half of 'em."—Farm Life.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S WAIST.

By Anabel Worthington.

This waist with the becoming open neck will draw favorable attention whether made of one or two materials. The design offers big opportunity for carrying out the smart idea of the season—to have the waist match the skirt in color or else be in harmonizing tone.

It is cut in two sections at back and front, the front having the more novel treatment, with the lower section extending to the neck in vest effect. Another touch that counts is bringing the color of the vest to the sleeve with an epaulet and a very novel cuff.

Although a dressy blouse, this is a serviceable one. For morning wear it may be developed in linen, cotton voile and like fabrics. For better service Georgette crepe promises to hold the favor of fashion during the entire fall and winter. There is also a tubable white as well as flesh color crepe de China that is well in the lead. In harmonious combination of light and dark tones, such as navy with yellow or with rose, green with gray, &c., this model may be developed in sheer silk crepe with a half lining of net or Japanese silk for afternoon wear.

The waist pattern No. 7,986 is cut in sizes 36 to 46 bust measure. To make in size 36 will require 1⅝ yards of 36 inch material for the upper part and sleeves, ⅜ yard for the lower part and trim. Or 2¼ yards, all one material, one color.

To obtain the pattern send 20 cents to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

MOORE BARRACKS HOSPITAL A DOMINION PRODUCT.

In Many Ways It Is the Most Important Hospital in England for Canadians Because the Entire Staff and All the Patients Are From This Country—Dr. Wallace Scott is in Charge.

MOORE BARRACKS HOSPITAL does not occupy a large enough place in the minds of the people "back home," says Florinda writing from England to The Toronto Star Weekly. It is, so far as Canadians are concerned, the most important hospital in England, because it is so essentially Canadian. In that the O. C., his medical, surgical, and nursing staff and patients are all Canadians.

The officer commanding, Colonel Walker Scott, is one of the well-known Toronto surgeons, who has for so many years been a member of the university as well as the St. Michael's Hospital surgical staff.

Moore Barracks ought to hold first place in the hearts of all Canadians because, as I have before intimated, it is so essentially a Canadian military hospital, which Cliveden and Beachborough, although receiving such generous—and perhaps more than their just share of—attention, are not. It (Moore Barracks) is the hospital which looks after the camp sick, and when one stops to consider that there have hitherto been from 25,000 to 40,000 Canadians in camp in and around Shorncliffe, one must realize the importance of such a hospital.

Moore Barracks is peculiarly fortunate in having as its O. C. Colonel Scott. The discipline of this hospital is most exemplary, maintained, perhaps a little at the expense of his popularity by that element of his staff—and there are always a few—who are afraid of work. An untiring and indefatigable worker himself, he is a strict martinet in demanding that his staff live up to his standard, but by those who do live up to his standard—and they are the large majority—he is most genuinely liked and respected, and by many loved. Many are his acts of kindness, not only to his staff, but his patients, and certain stories have come to my ears of his sympathy for and goodness to the stricken relatives and friends who come—perhaps too late—to see husbands, sons, and brothers who have been so tenderly ministered to and cared for at Moore Barracks Hospital.

Moore Barracks is also singularly fortunate in having Miss Russell as matron. Miss Russell comes from Hamilton, and her war experiences have been many and varied. This is her third war—she having seen service in both the Spanish-American and South African campaigns.

When it comes to speaking of Colonel Scott and Miss Russell, I hesitate to become too eulogistic—remembering the innate modesty of both—but as an ex-patient of Moore Barracks Hospital, where I received much excellent care and individual attention, I cannot speak too highly of the O. C., the matron, and the nursing staff, as judged from first-hand experience. Miss Russell's vivacity, sound judgment, and individual and indiscriminate interest in her nurses, combined with a zeal for work that makes of her so unselfish and tireless a matron, has made of Moore Barracks for the nurses one of the most popular of all Canadian hospitals in England or France. The nurses are reluctant to leave and glad to return.

The hospital is equipped for 1,000 patients, and has of late been taxed to its utmost capacity. Colonel Scott has many times had to reluctantly discharge patients who he realised were not yet fit to be discharged, and they were sent to convalescent homes every bit as well intentioned, but unfortunately not as well equipped as Moore Barracks. If the Canadians at home could realise as I realized through seeing it at first hand the self sacrifice of the O.C. and his surgical, medical, and nursing staff, who, owing to the exigencies in France, were left at about one-third their strength, to struggle with one of the biggest emergencies of the hospital when measles and pneumonia were rampant. If I repeat—you could have witnessed their devotion to duty when—as the matron herself told me—her nurses came to her imploring her to allow them to remain overtime on duty, which she was many times reluctantly compelled to allow them to do, and how unselfishly they gave themselves up to the meeting of the emergency—going oftentimes without sufficient sleep and without hours off, there, would you realize something of what it means to be an army nurse, and realize, too, that such devotion to duty meant the bringing safely through the crisis many young lives that would otherwise have been prematurely snuffed out instead of being restored to health, and eventually to the fighting line in Flanders.

The situation of Moore Barracks as a hospital, is ideal, topping as it does the crest of the beautifully wooded hill that lies to the east of Folkstone—the same hill that was used for hospital purposes during the Crimean War—with a magnificent and commanding view of the English Channel from which blow those health-restoring breezes which make of it such an admirable location for a hospital. It is on what military authorities would doubtless call a salient.

STRATAGEMS OF WAR.

Clever Tricks by Which Two Chilean Warships Were Sunk.

Between the years 1879 and 1884 the republics of Peru and Chile were at war, and, although the Peruvians were eventually discomfited, they displayed great adroitness in naval matters. On one occasion they succeeded in sinking two Chilean warships, their clever strategy being thus described by Stephen Coleridge in his memoirs:

"Soon after the Chilean fleet had settled down to the blockade of Callao there appeared in the bay one morning a large barge of fruit that had obviously gone adrift from the shore. The Peruvians put out in boats and steam launches to bring the barge back, and the Chileans, seeing what was happening, also sent out pinnaces and boats to intercept and capture the drifting barge. A fierce fusillade between the hostile boats followed, and several men were killed or wounded. At length the Peruvians drew off and left the barge in the hands of the triumphant Chileans, who towed it off amid the cheers of their ships' crews, who had watched the fight with keen interest.

"They brought the barge alongside one of the big man-of-war and quickly sent the cargo of luscious fresh fruit up the side in baskets. When about half the cargo had been taken on board a terrific explosion shook the bay, and an enormous hole appeared in the side of the great ship which sank instantly with all hands. By an arrangement of springs and balances a huge charge of dynamite in the bottom of the barge was ignited when a certain amount of the weight of the cargo was removed. Although the Peruvians had waged the fight for the possession of the barge with fierce persistence, they had never intended to be successful.

"A few weeks later a large man-of-war was sent up the coast to capture anything worth having at Huacho. On the appearance of the vessel the inhabitants drew their boats far inland and, taking all their valuables, fled into the interior. One boat, a new one, larger than the others, they hauled some little way up the beach and then abandoned.

"After pillaging the place the Chileans looked at the boat, which was entirely empty. The Peruvians had removed oars, sails, mast and even the rowlocks. The Chileans looked it over to be sure that there was no dynamite in it and then towed it away to their vessel. The captain had the davits run out and ropes put round the seats at the bow and the stern. Then he ordered his men to haul away.

"It was the last order he ever gave, for the moment the ropes tightened the ship was blown to pieces and disappeared in seventy fathoms of water. A false bottom had concealed a tremendous charge of dynamite that was arranged to ignite when any upward force was applied to any of the seats.

"The inhabitants of the town, who had watched their stratagem destroy a great man-of-war without the smallest risk to themselves, returned hilariously to their houses with songs and lances."

Sun Drunkenness.

To become sun drunk is a condition into which any one may fall in the tropics. Exposure to the sun's rays will reduce a man to a condition almost exactly resembling drunkenness. He staggers about and is usually compelled to lie down and "sleep it off." Sun drunkenness is sometimes accompanied by nausea. Another curious fact in connection with life in the tropics, where the sun rises at the same time all the year round, is that if you do not get up before sunrise you do not feel well all day. You feel heavy, out of sorts and sickish.

Complicated, but Easy.

"How do you get your husband to do what he doesn't want to do when you want him to do it?"

"That's easy. I make a big fuss over something he has already done which I didn't want him to do or I remind him of something which I have done which he wanted me to do and I didn't want to do and soon he is doing what I want him to do just as though he had wanted to do it all along."

Montreal's Cathedral.

The great landmark in Montreal is the Cathedral of Notre Dame, which, next to the famous cathedral in the City of Mexico, is the largest church building in America and has a seating capacity of 12,000. The church was built in 1829 and is noted for its magnificent chimes, one of the bells of which, called "Le Gros Bourdon," is one of the largest suspended bells in the world and weighs 24,780 pounds.

LOST IN LOVE.

All Weathers Were Alike to These Two Dreamers.

A Man and a Maid who walked along the garden paths were observed by the Moon, the Roses and the Night Wind.

"Here come two lovers," chuckled the Moon. "I will shine my silver best for their sakes."

"Here come two lovers," murmured the Roses. "Let us send forth our sweetest perfume to greet them."

"Here come two lovers," sighed the Night Wind. "I will whisper to them of the magic that lies in a summer night."

But the Moon suddenly blotted the smile from his face. "We will not trouble ourselves," he declared. "These lovers are the same two who walked the garden paths but yesternight. And, for all we did our best to please them, what did they in return? They spoke no word of my beauty — either of them."

"And they never noticed me," complained the Roses.

"I remember them well," sniffed the Night Wind. "They only said, 'It is a beautiful evening!' and gave us no credit at all. Let us do all we can to punish them."

So the Moon hid behind the darkest cloud he could find. And the Roses withheld their perfume. And the Night Wind turned chill and rustled the dry leaves dismally, and even succeeded in finding a few stray raindrops and flinging them in a dank, grayish mist across the garden paths.

MEXICO HAS HER BASTILLE.

The Building Where the First Blow For Liberty Was Struck.

The Alhondiga de Granaditas (prison) in Guanajuato is one of the most historic buildings in the Mexican republic and will always be remembered not as a storehouse of grain, not as a prison, which it now is, but as the place where the first blow was struck for the liberation of Mexico from Spanish rule. Quadrangular in shape, with a central patio, a row of small Moorish windows near the top, the lower floor Tuscan, the upper Doric, the building has no architectural beauty.

At each corner is a large hook, from which in the days of the struggle for independence were hung four iron cages containing the heads of the great liberators—the patriot priest, Hidalgo; his military chief, Allende, and his comrades, Aldama and Jimenez. Here they hung for years until removed by a worshiping nation to the altar of kings in the cathedral of the City of Mexico.

After the Grito de Dolores and the first ringing of the bell of independence Hidalgo and his followers moved on to Guanajuato, stormed the improvised fort of Alhondiga and killed all the Spanish troops that had taken refuge there. This was the beginning of the eleven years' war of independence.—Frank H. Probert in National Geographic Magazine.

A Poet Who Dreaded Fire.

Thomas Gray, author of the "Elegy," had a weakness in the form of a nervous dread of fire. His chamber at St. Peter's college, Cambridge, being on the second floor, he thought it likely that in case of a fire his exit by the stairs might be cut off. He therefore caused an iron bar to be fixed by arms projecting from the outside of his window, designing by a rope attached thereto to descend in the event of a fire occurring. This excessive caution led to a practical joke by his fellows. One midnight a party of students thundered at his door with loud cries of "Fire, fire!" The nervous poet flew to his window and slid down the rope to the ground, where he was hailed with shouts of laughter. Gray's delicate nature was so shocked by this rough joke that he changed his lodgings.

Making It Even.

Sandy, the plumber, was working on a town job with an apprentice.

In the course of the forenoon the boss visited the job and, failing to find Sandy anywhere about the premises, decided to wait his return.

"Where have you been?" demanded the boss when Sandy put in an appearance.

"Gettin' ma hair cut," answered Sandy, quite coolly.

"And how dare you get your hair cut in my time?"

Odious Comparison.

Drill Sergeant—I say, Smith, have you any idea how slow and stupid you are? Private Smith—I don't know. Drill Sergeant—Of course you don't, but let me tell you that an Egyptian mummy is frisky compared with you.—London Tit-Bits.

Brine.

Brine boils at 225 degrees F., and at this degree fine salt is formed. At 195 degrees F. common salt results and fishery, or large grained, at 110 degrees F. The salt crystallizes on the surface of the brine in the pans, floats a little and then sinks to the bottom, leaving it free from fresh crystals.

Changeable.

"He fell in love with a girl whose face he saw on a magazine cover."

"Sounds romantic. Did he follow up the romance and marry her?"

"Didn't have time. There's another magazine out this month."

Green All Around.

Mrs. Youngbride (in fish store)—Haven't you any lobsters that are riper? These look so green."—Boston Transcript.

Sloan's Liniment KILLS PAIN

TASTE AND MANNERS.

Sometimes They Are Linked and Are Also Both Bad.

What is the difference between taste and manners?

It may be bad manners to knock a man down, but it is not necessarily bad taste.

A rich man in Philadelphia gave a reception and issued invitation cards upon which were engraved his picture. This was not bad manners. It was certainly bad taste.

A large, handsome woman once broke into a meeting of President Lincoln's cabinet, interrupting the proceedings. The homely Lincoln arose and, addressing her, said:

"Madam, what do you wish?"

She replied:

"I came in here to take a look at you."

Lincoln smiled.

"Well, madam," he replied, "in the matter of looking I have a distinct advantage of you."

That was both bad taste and bad manners on her part, and on the part of Lincoln it was good manners and good taste to refrain from throwing her out of the window, as in strict justice he should have done.

To go up to your father-in-law at your wedding breakfast with a bottle of champagne in your hand and slapping him on the back, calling him "old sport," is not only bad taste and bad manners, but wretched sense, especially if the old gentleman is worth a million.

To be told that your friend is too busy to see you in his office and then to call him up over the nearest telephone is not necessarily bad taste, but bad manners. The two may go together, but this is not an invariable rule.—Life.

Tart Retort.

Every small town has its prominent citizen who appears before the city fathers and "talks right out in meetin'." Not every town, however, has among its councilors a member with sufficient moral backbone to answer back, as did John Hammer of a western town whose name is of no consequence. Concluding his arraignment, the prominent citizen hurled this thunderbolt at the board, "I'd sooner put up as a candidate for a lunatic asylum than put up for the town council."

Why Worry?

If you're afflicted with the worry habit, consider this old Chinese proverb: "The legs of the stork are long, the legs of the duck are short; you cannot make the legs of the stork short, neither can you make the legs of the duck long. Why worry?"

Was Troubled With Shortness of Breath

When the heart becomes affected, there ensues a feeling of a choking sensation, a shortness of breath, palpitation, throbbing, irregular beating, smothering sensation, dizziness, and a weak, sinking, all-gone feeling of oppression and anxiety.

The nerves become unstrung, you dread to be alone, have a horror of society, start at the least noise and are generally fatigued.

On the first sign of the heart becoming weakened or the nerves unstrung, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills should be taken. They are just what you require at this time. They regulate and stimulate the heart, and strengthen and restore the whole nerve system.

Mrs. C. M. Cormier, Buctouche, N.B., writes: "Since two years ago I was troubled with a shortness of breath, and sometimes I could hardly breathe. I went to see several doctors, and they said it was from my heart and nerves, but they did not seem to do me any good. One day I got one of your B.B.B. Almanacs and read of a case similar to mine.

"I bought a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after taking it I noticed such a change that I kept on taking them until I had used four more boxes, when I was cured."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box, three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Russians On The Offensive In Roumania

A NEW ALLIED ATTACK IN THE BALKANS

BERLIN ADMITS RUSSIANS ARE NOW ON THE OFFENSIVE IN ROUMANIA

German Report However Says Czar's Troops Were Absolutely Without Success in Their Violent Attack---Allies' Armies at Salonika Preparing to Attempt the Task of Cutting the Berlin-Constantinople-Bagdad Railway.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

BERLIN, January 16. — Russian forces undertook a violent attack in Roumania yesterday on both sides of Fundania, to-day's War Office report says, but were again absolutely without success.

NEW YORK, January 16.—That the Allies' armies in Salonika region will be heavily reinforced and given the task of cutting the Berlin-Constantinople-Bagdad Railway, is the story carried in London despatches to the News Agency here to-day.

It is based on despatches of a correspondent with General Sarrail's forces. This writer describes Turkey as a huge granary for men, munitions and foods which Germany is developing along all lines.

TWO ENEMY SHIPS SUNK.

PETROGRAD, January 16.—The sinking of two enemy ships near the Bosphorus by a Russian submarine was announced in to-day's official statement.

GERMANY'S LAST EFFORT MAY BE IN 1917.

LONDON, Eng., January 16.—The Spectator in a lengthy editorial says that the watchword of the Allies for 1917 must be "Engage the enemy more closely on sea and on land and in the air." The Spectator says that Germany's last effort may come this year on the sea, and the British must be prepared for a terrific impact.

Allies Will Depose the King of Greece

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

ROME, January 16.—King Constantine of Greece, the brother-in-law and would-be ally of the Kaiser, is to be deposed, and a relative of the King of Italy placed on his throne, it is understood here. This is regarded as the most momentous decision reached at the conference of allied chiefs held here ten days ago.

The leaders of the Venizelos faction are understood to have agreed to the revolution, and, infact, they have long desired the deposition of Constantine. Envoys from the great Greek leader took part in the conference here, and General Sarrail was also present, coming direct from Saloniki, where the Greek revolutionaries make their headquarters.

The man who will take the throne has not been definiteley chosen, but the first choice is the Duke of Aosta. He is now considering the offer, and his cousin, King Emmanuel, is urging that he accept. Aosta is the elder brother of the Duke of Abruzzi.

NO SURPRISE IN WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, January 16.—No surprise was shown in allied diplomatic circles here when the Ambassadors were told of The New York Tribune's despatch from Rome, telling of the plan to depose King Constantine of Greece and place the Duke of Aosta on the throne. The diplomats naturally refused to comment on the despatch or to confirm it, but their attitude expressed neither ignorance nor doubt.

Heavy Fighting on the Roumanian Front

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, January 16. — Heavy fighting continues on the Northern Roumanian front with varying results. To-day's Petrograd report follows: "Roumanians and Russian troops which were attacking seven versts south of Praleo have advanced two versts (a mile and a third).

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 16.—Thomas W. Lawson resumed the stand in the House leak probe committee hearing this morning.

MAYOR DUFFUS AND ALD. DOBBIN BACK FROM THE BIG TOWNS

Assisted in Welcoming the Quebec Bonne "Ententers" and Proceed to New York to Examine Motor Apparatus

SAW THEM IN ACTION

Mayor Duffus and Ald. Dobbin arrived home this morning from Montreal after a extensive and, it is expected, a fruitful round trip, that included in its itinerary, Toronto, Hamilton, Niagara Falls (both sides), New York, Boston and Montreal. They started out to join the Bonne Entente organization and attended the series of banquets in the several cities visited. In the meantime they were considering Peterborough's Fire Department problem of adding motor driven trucks, visited a number of stations in the Ontario cities and, finding themselves across the border, parted from the Entente crowd and headed for New York. There they saw fire fighting apparatus of the latest type. Aerial towers and extension ladders on base trucks eighty feet long, motor driven engines, and all the other impediments of a huge department they saw, and gathered information which will be presented to the Council when the question of modernizing the local brigade comes up for discussion.

In one of the central stations near Macy's the Peterborough twain found themselves. It was an immense building with parked motor apparatus. Ald. Dobbin expressed a wish to see in action. His desire was shortly realized, for within a few minutes an alarm was sounded. Immediately, as the new chairman of the Fire, Water and Light committee described it, the floor above began to spill men down in all directions, a sort of magnified demonstration of Chief Howard's men scrambling up behind their "Jack Rabbits." But the New York station is thoroughly motorized, and in a trice unmuffled engines began to raise an astounding din. Immense doors were rolled back and the trucks spurted into the comparatively narrow, but central thoroughfare, of the big town and pulled away with all the uproar of a squadron of "Big Lizzies" going into action. As Ald. Dobbin tells it, in his inimitable way, the traffic, pedestrian and automobile, scrambled for the inside of the sidewalks, while the fire fighting force clanged its way firewards.

In Montreal they were given another fine demonstration of the utility, under winter conditions, of certain pieces of apparatus. In fact quite a lengthy report will likely be prepared for the Council, but it will likely be restricted to business matters without the illuminating and interesting details of the demonstrations that might be included.

Both the Mayor and Ald. Dobbin were back at their desks this morning wading into their business that had accumulated in their absence.

Peterboro' Boy Who Has Been Hit Twice Is Back From Front

Sergt. Instructor Patrick Duggan Has Been Assigned For Duty In Winnipeg Military District--Was at the Front For Fourteen Months With 14th Battalion--Pte. Stuart Anderson Now Officially Reported Killed---To-day's General Military News.

Wearing the crossed swords of a physical instructor, and two stripe of gold braid on his arm to signify that he has twice been wounded, Sergt. Instructor Patrick Duggan, a Peterborough boy who has seen fourteen months' service on the western front, arrived home last night on a few days leave, as the guest of Mr. Chas. Duggan. He was met at the station by Ald. Stratton.

Sergt. Duggan has been appointed to the instructional staff of the Winnipeg military district as an instructor in bayonet fighting and physical training, for which he has qualified by experience in the field and by taking a special course in England. He was one of a party of thirty-eight Canadian instructors, all of whom have been wounded at the front, who returned to Canada a short time ago.

Sergt Duggan enlisted in Toronto with the Queen's Own Rifles in the first Canadian contingent. At Valcartier he was transferred to the 14th Royal Montreal Battalion with a couple of other Peterborough boys, Gordon and Howard Wyatt, of East City. He went to the front with the 14th and fought through the second battle of Ypres, being wounded on April 24th, when he was struck by a piece of brick from a building hit by a shell close by him. He was soon back in the firing line and with with the Montreal regiment through all the next year finally being wounded a second time near Ypres on April 8th, 1916, when, during a bombard around Zillebeke, he was severely wounded in the back by a shell. It was a very close call the portion of shell which struck him missing his spine by only an inch. He was in hospital for a long time in England, and when finally he became convalescent he was assigned to a reserve battalion and ordered to take up the work of bayonet fighting and physical training.

Sergt. Duggan has made a good recovery and feels fit now to begin his instructional work in Winnipeg. When he arrived in Canada he had to go to Winnipeg to report, and then obtained a few days' leave to visit his home here. He leaves for Winnipeg at the end of this week.

Mrs. Robert Graham, 675 Stewart street, has received the following letter from her son, Driver G. D. Graham in France:

Somewhere in France, Dec. 21.

Dear Mother.—Just a few lines from Gerald to let you know I have not forgotten you. It is pretty cold here and wet. How are Maggie and Roberta? So Dick is making shells for Fritz? Some job. I think this war would soon be over if the boys would come and help us to fight for our rights. What do you think? Saw Jim Pearson. He is well. You'd laugh to see him, mother; he is a big man and just as full of fun; also Fred Revoy. All are feeling fine. I am going to write to Adam Davidson to-night. I have just had three hours in thirty-six to sleep. How is the new battalion coming on? Tell my chums to come along and help to fight. Don't be afraid of Fritzie. Well, it is just four days till Christmas. I'd like to be at home, but cannot till I see the end. Cheer up, mother, I'll be home to see you again. Well, I guess this all for now. I hear the supper bell, so goodbye. Write often. From your loving son, G. G.

A letter received from Capt. C. R. Widdifield of the 93rd Battalion, states that he had been in hospital for the month preceding his letter. At the time of writing he was not able to go about much.

A letter received from Major K. G. Lech of the 93rd Battalion, announces that he is now in France and is attached to the 27th Canadian Battalion, which is a Winnipeg unit. "Am up in the line now," writes Major Lech. "There is lots of mud in this country."

TORONTO, Jan. 16.—Among the fifty-seven invalided and dischargable soldiers returned home, who arrived here to-day, was Pte. Jack Munroe, one time the heavy-weight Champion Mayor of Elk Lake, Ont., and later a member of the Princess Pats. He is unable to use his arm as the result of wounds. Eighteen of those arriving to-day are "amputation cases." One of them, Lance-Corp. J. C. Madell, of Preston, Ont., lost both legs at the thigh, and another Pte. H. Johnston of Toronto, is minus his left leg and left arm.

PTE. ANDERSON DEAD.

Pte. Stuart Anderson, a well-known Peterborough boy, who went overseas with a university company, to reinforce the Princess Pats, and who has been reported missing ever since the battle of Zillebeke, June 2, last year, is now officially reported killed in action. Pte. Anderson had a host of friends in Peterborough who will be sorry to hear that hope of his being alive has been abandoned.

Montreal, June 15.—Lieut.-Col. R. R. Labatt of Hamilton, Ont., a member of the Board of Pension Commissioners for Canada, in an address before the Canadian Club of this city in the Windsor Hotel to-day, said that the annual pension bill of Canada, based on an average army of three hundred thousand, would be somewhere in the neighbourhood of $21,000,000, and with an overseas army of 400,000 men the annual pension bill was expected to be somewhere around $28,000,000. Col. Labatt stated that the case of every wounded soldier would be considered without reference to whether the subject for a pension had been making $10,000 a year or $1,000 before the war. Up to December 30 last, 6,320 pensions had been granted, he said; and this number would be increased to 10,000 by the end of March.

Lieut. R. Gliddon of the 57th Band has received the following letter from the officer commanding the 247th Battalion.

Sir,—I wish to thank you and the members of the band which you so kindly placed at the disposal of this Battalion to assist in the work of recruiting. The trouble you have taken in giving us this assistance has been very productive and it is a source of great satisfaction to me as Commanding Officer of this battalion to feel that we can rely upon your assistance when required.

Yours truly,
C. H. ACKERMAN,
Lieut.-Col.

Word has been received from Sergt. Instructor Herb. Clayton of Peterborough, that he is leaving for France to join the staff of the 2nd Imperial Army Training School. He has been loaned by the Canadian Army to the Imperial Army.

Dear Madam, Just a few words of thanks for the nice pair of socks which I received yesterday from one of our boys, it came through the Soldiers' 5th C.M.R. Wives and Mothers Club.

The trenches are very wet and muddy now and a change of dry socks is a great comfort. To-day is Christmas Day. I thought I would write you these few lines while waiting for the cook to get dinner ready. The boys all seem to be enjoying themselves, as we have not much to do to-day. Thanking you again for your kindness. I remain,

PETERBORO' VETERANS ATTEND FINE BANQUET

SERGT. INSTRUCTOR PATRICK DUGGAN, who has returned from the front after 14 months' service, during which time he was twice wounded.

Otonabee Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire Entertained the Returned Soldiers — Addresses by Judge Hoyche, Captain Burnham, M.P., and Others—A Message From the Front.

THOSE PRESENT

Last evening in the Recreation Room of the Armouries, veterans of the present war to the number of about fifty were the guests at a banquet given by the Otonabee Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire. It was an historic gathering representing as it did one of the most momentous occasions in the history of the world. Every well known struggle in which the Canadians have participated during the past two years and a half was represented by one or more veterans. From the first battle of Ypres when the Canadians stood up and held the line against overwhelming odds to the more recent battles of the past year, Peterborough men have participated. To meet the boys on such an occasion as last evening is like reading the pages of history and Canada's participation in the Empire-wide conflict. Some of the more recent additions to the veteran list are Privates R. J. Saffrey and Scout G. N. Cowpa, both of the 39th Battalion. Both men arrived home a few days ago with a priceless alice of national honour to their credit as well as a few scars to show for their efforts in the present war.

Message From the Front.

Captain J. H. Burnham, M.P., Paymaster of the 93rd Battalionо whose members are now fighting in France, was also present, not as a veteran as Captain Burnham himself would say, although he made every effort to get into the combatant class, but as a representative of the Government of Canada and of the Canadian Militia. Captain Burnham brought home a message from the front line trenches of France. The message was addressed to the manhood of Canada asking for reinforcements. Captain Burnham paid a glowing tribute to the nurses and unblushingly declared that he fell in love with about three thousand nurses while he was overseas.

Returned Soldiers.

The veterans present with possibly two or three exceptions, are as follows:

Major E. B. O'Flynn.
Captain Belton.
Captain J. H. Burnham, M.P.
Lieut. A. E. Brittain.
Lieut. T. W. Quinn.
Sergt. Major R. Biggs, 8th C.M.R.
Sergt. Peter Victor, 2nd Battalion.
Sergeant W. Dallidy, 3rd Battalion.
Sergeant J. Coppock, 39th Battalion.
Sergeant W. Stanley, 139th Battalion.
Lance-Corporal G. Hickford, 235th Battalion.
Lance Corporal J. Kilbrick, Royal Canadian Regiment.
Lance Corporal H. J. Staunton, 15th Battalion.
Lance Corporal D. Gunn 39th Battalion.
Pte. J. S. Crowe, 139th Battalion.
Pte. J. H. Wilson, 2nd Battalion.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC RECRUITING MEETING HELD IN NORWOOD

Lieut.-Col. Ackerman and Mr. R. R. R. Hall Were the Chief Speakers —Band of the 247th Battalion Was Present—Exhibit of War Relics

TRUE SENSE OF DUTY

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

A large and enthusiastic recruiting meeting was held in the Town Hall, Norwood, last evening. Every available seat was filled and a large number stood throughout the meeting, at the rear of the hall.

Mr. Cuffe acted as chairman of the meeting and pointed out the present need of more men to relieve and assist those who are fighting at the front.

Lt.-Col. Ackerman gave a most interesting speech describing the experience of the boys at the front. He exhibited, very much to the interest of the audience, a number of war relics which he had picked up in France, such as German helmets, water bottles, Gurka's swords, bayonets, belts, machine gun weapons, etc. He urged upon the young men of Norwood the pressing need of more men at the front. It was unfair to the Canadian boys who were now in the trenches not to have them properly supported and assisted in the gigantic effort that they were making in the cause of Canadian freedom. Every man and woman and every boy and girl was interested in the triumph of Canadian arms, and in the having of a final and satisfactory peace with Germany that would relieve us from the eternal vigilance and expense in future to guard against German treachery! Canada is one of the richest and greatest Dominions in the possession of the British Crown and German writers and economists have cast envious and covetous eyes upon this rich possession. The Canadian people, therefore, owed a duty to themselves to see that the German plans to enter into possession of our heritage should be defeated. That can only be done by the Canadian young men coming forward, voluntarily doing their duty and joining the ranks. The sooner they do it the better. The pledge given by Sir Robert Borden to raise 500,000 men must be redeemed, and it is for the young men to say whether or not that pledge shall be redeemed by voluntarily and manfully coming forward and enlisting, or whether stronger and more drastic means must be taken to show them the duty that they owe to themselves and to their country.

MR. R. R. HALL.

Mr. R. R. Hall in a very effective speech drew attention to the fact that the Canadian people must not be misled by the peace talk which was emanating from German sources. If the Allies were to accept the peace terms

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

TUESDAY, JAN. 16, 1917

CONGRATULATIONS.

The Examiner shares the legitimate pride Mr. W. H. Moore, K.C., may feel in being re-elected president, for the eighteenth consecutive time, of the Little Lake Cemetery Company. This justifies the cordial congratulations thereby extended, especially in consideration of the added fact that he has been a member of the Board of Directors for twenty-eight years. We don't know to the year, how long Mr. Moore has been a member of the Town Trust Commission, but it has been many years, and for many years also he has been a member of the Water Commission. These continuously retained services in important public capacities is direct testimony to intelligent and satisfactory service, and are only a logical sequence in recognition of Mr. Moore's long years of public-spirited discharge of all the higher duties of citizenship.

WEST SIMCOE.

West Simcoe, like Ephraim, is "joined to its idols"—it is still true, with a boosted party majority, to its dirty complexion. The result of the polling yesterday was the election of Mr. Allan, Conservative candidate and lawyer, over Mr. Scott, Liberal candidate, and farmer. The farmers of a chiefly rural riding, have rejected the traditionally honest farmer and preferred the traditionally—otherwise—lawyer. As might have been expected, a hopelessly Conservative constituency stood by the Government by a majority reduced from 1086 in 1914 to 636 yesterday. The victory is one that adds no strength to the already too strong—in numbers only, be it always understood—Hearst Government. It adds another lawyer to the legislature of a province of farmers who do not seem to consider themselves fit to govern themselves. Out of 111 members in the Ontario House, there are only 17 farmers. While the election is no gain to the Government, it is a distinct gain to the Liberal party. The Liberals were outvoted, but they won a victory for decency and honourable discussion of public questions, in contrast with the disgustingly vituperative and abusive campaign of personal slander and appeal to prejudice and bigotry, of their opponents. The Government campaigners completely dominated the campaign, and their appeals, forcing dividing issues that were not legitimate issues went far to destroy the spirit of popular unity that should weld our people together, and taught the electors of West Simcoe to pull apart instead of pulling together. All the Government forces have done is to elect a party candidate. What the Liberals have done is to sow the seed of good principles. Specifically, the campaign has been a victory for the people. The Liberal speakers exposed the illegal compact made by the present Prime Minister, when he was Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines, with the Teuton-tinctured International Nickel Company, giving that otherwise highly favoured corporation, a flat rate of taxation, whereby the province was deprived of between two and three million dollars of revenue in the form of the taxation the law required. The Liberals so stirred up the question, and showed the financial iniquity of the deal that Premier Hearst has been forced to promise that he would try to recover the amount due. One of the seven sleepers has been awakened—for the moment.

MAKE IT TIGHT.

The United States Supreme court has handed down a decision, which sustains the legality of forbidding the shipment of intoxicating liquor from "wet" into "dry" states. This decision is no interference with the autonomy of the individual states, but is federal action to prevent the violation of states laws, the laws of states that have decided that strong drink shall not be a beverage of its people.

In Ontario the legislature has passed a law whose spirit and intention are to prevent popular access to strong drink. Yet the spirit of this law is violated every day and many times a day. The prohibition law of Ontario is violated and the government winks at its violation for it has the power to prevent the violation of the law it has enacted.

There has been no authoritative decision like that of the United States' Supreme court; but Premier Borden has told a deputation that the provinces, which includes Ontario, of course, have the power to prohibit and prevent the importation of strong drink from the United States or from the other provinces where the sale of liquor is legalized.

If the Premier is right, and no doubt he is, the Ontario government has the power to prevent the strong trickle of strong drink, that is pouring into Ontario by the eastern and western gateways of the province. It is in duty bound to act at once. If the power of the government is undoubted, an order-in-council might be employed—there is no need to wait for special legislation. The Government felt an order-in-council was enough to justify the outrage of forgiving the International Nickel Company two or three millions taxation legally due the province; and it might, if necessary—as it is necessary—strain a point to prevent the violation of the prohibitory act passed unanimously by the Legislature of the Province.

There is need for prompt action. The Ontario Temperance Act is on trial and it deserves a fair trial in view of the verdict the people will be called upon to pronounce in 1919. he Act in itself is its own justification. It has shown that it does not produce the evils of business stagnation its opponents predicted for it. It has shown its positive character as unmistakably. It has been a great success. Public offences against the law of the land, due to drink, have been decreased almost to the vanishing point. The chief minor offences, the police and courts have to deal with, are due to the crime committed by the government itself in not using the means SirRobert Borden says it possesses, to dam the source of supply that is the chief, if not only cause of, damming the act itself. There is no longer ammunition for crime coming from the open bar. The leak by importation should and must be stopped. We must not have the Act discredited by failure to make it whisky tight as we have the power to do.

The government will be to blame if it does not use its power to prevent the discrediting of the Act by failure to make it effective to the extent intended. The intention of the legislation was to outlaw and make inaccessible to the people, strong drink as a beverage. The failure to stop the leak by use of the hung the government possesses will serve to perpetuate the chief weakness that can be urged against it, the importation feature.

BATHING AND SWIMMING.

If this year's City Council does not solve the problem of providing public bathing facilities for the citizens of Peterborough, it will not be for want of suggestion to action, nor want of information as to their desirability and the duty of the city. If we want to keep pace with other less important towns and cities; if we want to do our duty to our citizens of all ages; if we want to be public-spirited; if we want to show appreciation of the splendid water front opportunities presented by the splendid river of pure water that flows past our doors, we shall not rest content till the authorities take the necessary steps to provide facilities for keeping our citizens clean and placing them "in the swim." "In the swim" means not only opportunities for learning to swim, but keeping in line with other progressive towns and cities. Mr. Meserve of the Y.M.C.A., and chairman of the special Playgrounds Association committee, has in his contribution of information published in The Examiner yesterday, given us excellent and suggestive light as to what other places are doing. Since it is impracticable to repeat the details, it is enough to call the attention of our aldermen to this evidence; and ask their careful study of it.

Particular attention is called to the case of Guelph. This city has nothing like the water front — double water front—Peterborough has. It has only the River Speed, a stream not much more important than the creek that runs through the town. With no water compared to Peterborough, and with 4,000 fewer population, Guelph is reported as having "one public bathing house with several dressing rooms." Orillia, like Peterborough with splendid water—but no better—and with only 7,400 population, "has two bathing places in the public parks, supervised by the city." London, Ontario, which has only an apology for a river, has "two public bathing places controlled by the city which pays all expenses."

John Wesley—not the Scriptures as some fancy, though his saying is true as Scripture—says that "cleanliness is next to Godliness." Peterborough doesn't think so. We have about twenty churches maintained at an annual cost of about half a million dollars to promote one condition, yet we don't spend half a cent to promote popular "cleanliness."

There is no necessity for arguing at length the wisdom and the necessity and the duty of providing, especially in summer, facilities for the practice of the health-giving virtue of cleanliness and learning the life-saving art of swimming, any more than of urging the duty of enlisting. Doing, not debating, is what is called for.

The subject can be safely left to the citizens and the city fathers. The citizens will do their share to show the way of duty to the city fathers, and the latter are intelligent enough, public-spirited enough, broad-minded enough, and open-handed enough—with the people's money—to spend some of it, as they can do to splendid advantage, in the public interest by dealing generously with the problem of public bathing and swimming provisions.

The people interested are urged to make use of The Examiner's "Voice of the People" column to let that voice be heard by the aldermen. Let somebody write a little one day touching upon some point or argument, in favour of public bathing and swimming places properly equipped and supervised; and let somebody next day take up a point that has not been touched upon, and so on, till the flow of argument and reasoning rises to an irresistible flood—till the aldermen like the people in the matter of the cause in question, have water on the brain.

MAY TAKE OVER MINES.

Government Awaiting Final Decision of Fernie Miners.

OTTAWA, Jan. 15.—A policy of watchful waiting is being followed by the Government to-day in regard to the coal mining situation in the Fernie district. Word is being awaited as to the action of the miners. If they quit work, as has been their intimation, another effort will be made by the Government to bring the operators to time. Failing that, the Government will presumably operate the mines itself, ensuring an output necessary for domestic and munitions uses, and charging the expense to the mine owners.

HOW TO MAKE PERMANENT THE SUPPLY OF FARM FUEL

Nearly ten per cent. of the standing timber of the United States is included within farmers' woodlots, according to Government reports. While the percentage in Canada has not yet been determined, it is believed that it will fall below five per cent. Census statistics show that some 14,700,000 acres, or nearly six per cent. of the farm lands of eastern Canada are occupied by woodlots. According to the Dominion Forestry Branch, the average woodlot in Canada, under proper management, is capable of producing about three-quarters of a cord per acre per year. If they were all thus managed, the annual production of hardwood would be over 10,000,000 cords, or over 5,000,000 feet board measure—a quantity twenty times as great as the whole hardwood cut in Canada in 1913.

Unfortunately the woodlot does not, as a rule, receive the attention to which its importance entitles it. Much preventable damage is caused by the grazing of live stock and by fires, both of which not only destroy young growth but injure the larger trees, in addition to causing deterioration of the soil, thus seriously reducing the productive capacity of the woodlot.

According to studies made by the Dominion Forestry Branch, the typical woodlot of to-day does not contain the quality of material that it might, had it not been neglected. The careless removal of the sound and vigorous trees of the better species, and the leaving of over-mature and decaying ones as well as the inferior kinds, has resulted in its present poor composition. Inferior species are occupying space that should be growing more desirable trees. Poplar, willow, hawthorn, ironwood, hemlock and juniper have taken the place of the maple, ash, hickory, elm and pine. Old trees, long over-mature, have been left standing, though their wide-spreading tops shut out the light from younger trees and prevent their proper development.

Such undesirable conditions should be changed and all future cuttings should be directed with this object in view. Unsound, crooked broken and dead trees should be removed. They are merely acting as a breeding place for the organisms of decay which from them may be transmitted to the sound trees. All inferior species which are acting as seed trees or interfering with the growth of better species, should be cut.

It is not advisable, however, to remove such "weed trees" where they are necessary for the protection of the soil and where their removal would permit grass and brambles to establish themselves. The appearance of grass is a sign that no more cutting should be done until it has been shaded out.—Conservation.

BY JOVE!

said a well educated man the other day when he was asked this question:—"Why, when you have a cold, a cough or bronchitis (troubles, you will note, of throat and chest) do you persist in pouring cough syrups, lung tonics and the like into your stomach, which is perfectly sound?"

Ever think of it? The stomach and the lungs are not connected, otherwise food swallowed would choke you. Lung and throat troubles were never yet cured by dosing the stomach. To cure coughs, colds and bronchitis, you must breathe the cure. Peps provide the rational treatment for these ailments. Peps are tablets made up of pine extracts and medicinal essences, which when put into the mouth turn into healing vapors. These are inhaled down direct to the lungs, throat and bronchial tubes—not swallowed down to the stomach, which is not ailing. Try, a 50c. box of Peps for your cold, your cough, bronchitis or asthma. CHAMPION HIGH JUMPER.

An African Antelope That Can Clear More Than Twenty Feet.

The pallah, a species of African antelope, is probably the greatest living high jumper. Travelers have often asserted that this beast could jump more than twenty feet high. Mr. Cottar, an old African hunter, saw a number of these antelopes leap over the tops of some small trees, and then he measured the trees. They were fifteen feet high.

The animals have the curious habit of jumping over one another's backs, either when frightened or when simply playing. It is an ordinary sight on an African veldt to see a herd of these antelope jumping over one another like boys playing leapfrog. When frightened the first impulse of a herd of pallah is to rush together; then they begin leaping, one after another, going high into the air, clearing small trees, their fellow antelopes or anything else that gets into the way. They do not require a run before the "take off," but jump as well from a standing position as with a running start.

The lion was long supposed to make tremendous bounds when charging his prey, but modern sportsmen say that a lion runs low to the ground, bounding into the air only on his last leap, when he expects to strike. Even such bounds, they say, are of no great length. Stewart Edward White says a lion can run a hundred yards in six seconds, which certainly is fast enough to catch most sorts of game.—Youth's Companion.

An Easy Way To Get Fat and Be Strong

The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on "stuffing" their stomach or stuffing it with greasy foods; rubbing on useless "fat creams," or following some foolish physical culture stunt, while the real cause of all trouble goes undisturbed. You cannot get fat until your digestive tract assimilates the food you eat.

There is a preparation known to reliable druggists here everywhere which scientifically combines the nutritive elements needed by the digestive organs to help them convert food into rich fat-laden blood. This modern treatment is called Sargol and has been heralded the greatest of flesh builders. Sargol aims through its properties to compel the powers to drive the stomach and intestines to literally take up the fattening elements of your food and pass them into the blood, where they are carried to the starved, broken-down cells and tissues of your body. To note readily picture what results this amazing transformation should produce as with increased weight the cheeks fill out, hollows about neck disappear and bust enlargement and from 10 to 20 pounds of solid, healthy flesh is added to the body. Sargol is absolutely harmless, inexpensive, efficient, and leading druggists of this vicinity have it and will refund your money if you are not satisfied in per the remarkable found in every package.

If you find a druggist who is unable to supply you with Sargol send $1.00 money order or registered letter to the National Laboratories, 29 St. James street, Montreal and a one full ten days' treatment will be sent you postpaid in plain wrapper.

MODERN ARMY RIFLES.

The gun is the little brother of the cannon. Artillery was made first, but it was easy to see that something a man could carry was needed, and in the fourteenth century the Flemings were the proud possessors of hand cannon, small copies of the bigger weapon fitted to a stock. They were interesting more than effective, however, and did little damage beyond scaring badly every one who faced them for the first time.

Improvements came in the course of time, and the arquebus, also called the calliver, and which was modeled somewhat after the crossbow, came on the market. The work the Spanish did with the new weapon was not a joke. And under the Duke of Alva, a little later, they also introduced the musket, an improvement on the arquebus, but still a clumsy affair, fired by a match and so heavy that it could only be aimed from a rest. It had a tremendous bore, however, and could stop a horse at 500 yards, so it soon became the universal military arm.

Early in the eighteenth century the matchlock displaced the matchlock. The Charleville musket, introduced by Lafayette and the first regulation gun in the hands of American soldiers, was of this type.

A Scotch clergyman, Alexander Forsythe, was responsible for the next big advance, the percussion cap, which he invented in 1807. The Prussian needle gun was the first successful military breechloader, although the principle was not new—the Spanish had them aboard the ships of the armada.

Rifling also is very old. Gaspard Koller of Vienna and August Kotter of Nuremberg were rivals for the honor of the invention about 1520. As has been pointed out, however, these improvements had to be laid aside until a day of better workmanship.

Most of the fighting up to 1850 was done with smoothbores, even Napoleon discarding the rifle. Breechloaders were used near the close of our own war, and very soon the muzzle loader became a curiosity.

Winchester, an American, invented one of the first successful repeating rifles, and the Turks used them against the Russians in 1877. Then all the great military powers began rearming their troops with small caliber repeaters, using high power smokeless powder. One of the best is our own Springfield rifle.

No one need wonder what the weapon of the near future will be. All war departments of the world are eagerly searching for the perfected automatic rifle, which will be a terrible weapon indeed—a miniature machine gun.

"BROTHER JONATHAN."

Career of the Patriot Who Gave Us This Lasting Title.

Jonathan Trumbull, the original "Brother Jonathan," was born on Oct. 12, 1710, in Lebanon, Conn. He was graduated from Harvard college in 1727, preached a few years, then studied law, and at the age of twenty-three years he was a member of the assembly. He was chosen lieutenant governor in 1766 and became ex officio chief justice of the superior court. In 1769 he refused to take the oath enjoined on officers of the crown, and in the following year he was chosen governor. He was the only colonial governor who espoused the cause of the people in their struggle for justice and independence.

In the absence at congress of the Adamses and Hancock from New England Trumbull was considered the Whig leader in that region, and Washington always placed implicit reliance upon his patriotism and energy. When Washington took charge of the Continental army at Cambridge, Mass., he found it in want of ammunition and other supplies, and this want continued more or less for months. Trumbull was then governor of Connecticut. On one occasion at a council of war, when there seemed to be no way to make provision against an attack by the enemy, Washington said, "We must consult Brother Jonathan on this subject." He did so, and the governor was successful in supplying many of the needs of the army.

When the army was afterward spread over the country and difficulties arose it was a common saying among the officers as a byword, "We must consult Brother Jonathan." The origin of this phrase was eventually lost sight of, and "Brother Jonathan" became a title of our nationality, like "John Bull" of England. Trumbull died in Lebanon, Conn., on Aug. 17, 1785.

Teeth in Their Stomachs.

Whatever it may be that the lobster and the crab, rapacious, never dainty, are eating they always see something else that they want and can't wait until they have masticated the first before attacking the second. But they don't give up the first, not by any manner of means. Nature, humoring this rapacious beast, has fitted the lobster and the crab with teeth in their stomach, and they swallow their half masticated food and finish the chewing process with their stomachs while they seize and chew the other thing that has attracted them. Lobsters and crabs have no teeth in their mouths. They chew with their claws what they have time to and hand the unfinished job down to their stomachs to do the rest of the chewing.

OLD BOSTON LIGHT

The First Mariners' Beacon to Be Kindled in America.

TWICE BURNED AND REBUILT.

Then It Was Destroyed by the British Revolutionary Naval Forces and Again Rebuilt Through the Efforts of Governor John Hancock.

The first lighthouse of which there is any record was built by Ptolemy II. on the island of Pharos, at the entrance to the harbor of Alexandria, Egypt.

Probably the most famous lighthouse of modern times is the Eddystone light, which was one of the first built in Britain and which has been famous because of its dangerous situation and of its having been four times destroyed by the angry waters of the English channel.

Minots Ledge light, at the entrance to Boston harbor, is among the most noteworthy of American lighthouses and shares with Old Boston light the interest of every voyager who enters the tortuous channel to the city of Boston.

Boston light is famous in its way. It was the first lighthouse built in America. It is one of the most important lighthouse stations on the north Atlantic coast. Every sailorman and seagoer knows Boston light. Every school boy and girl has read the many tales of shipwreck in which Boston light figures. It was captured and recaptured several times in the early days of the Revolution.

On the evening of Friday, Sept. 14, 1710, the light was first "kindled," to use the expression of the chronicler of the day.

For some years the shipowners and merchants of Boston agitated the project of establishing a lighthouse at the entrance to the harbor. The general court took the matter up on petition of John George and others. The town officials of Boston also considered the proposition and urged the colonial authorities to make an appropriation to erect a suitable light. At last favorable action was taken by the authorities, and the building of the light on the outer Brewster began.

When the light was ready to put into commission George Worthylake was appointed keeper. He and his wife and daughter were drowned two years later.

Benjamin Franklin wrote a ballad on the drowning of the family. The salary of the first keepers of the light was $250 a year.

On the death of Worthylake Captain John Hayes, a shipmaster, was appointed.

The early lightkeeper had many other duties to perform besides looking after the light. He had to act as pilot for vessels and discharge the duties of health officer of the port. In the case of a vessel being in distress it was his duty to go to its rescue.

In 1720 the lighthouse was burned and rebuilt. Again in 1751 the lighthouse and other buildings were burned and were again rebuilt.

Robert Ball, the keeper who succeeded Captain Hayes, remained until the British fleet sailed from Boston to Halifax during the Revolutionary war. According to the stories at that time, Ball sailed away with the fleet and never returned.

The British wantonly destroyed the harbor property, including the light, before they sailed away when they evacuated Boston. Thus it is that the island on which Boston light stands is the last soil in Massachusetts occupied by British armed forces.

The destruction of the light was a great loss to mariners and the merchants, and shipping interests induced Governor John Hancock to send a special message to the Massachusetts legislature recommending an appropriation for the rebuilding of the light. With commendable promptitude the legislature complied with the request of Governor Hancock, and plans were made for one of the finest and largest lights on the coast. This was in 1780.

The new structure was of stone. Oil lamps furnished the light. Then the government took over the lighthouses and assigned their care and maintenance to the treasury department, under whose jurisdiction they still remain. The island and the light were formally ceded to the United States government in 1790.

The treasury department has always given Boston light a great deal of attention because of its importance and because it is the most widely known landmark to the entrance to the second port in America.

It has been improved and enlarged from time to time, and the accommodations for the keepers and their families are all that could be desired. Despite its age the light station is, for all practical purposes, essentially modern and up to date. It displays an incandescent oil vapor light, giving a white flash of 100,000 candle power every thirty seconds, visible sixteen miles in clear weather, and as an auxiliary aid in foggy weather sounds a powerful first class siren, with a double blast of five seconds each every minute.

Maids of the Mist.

The old Maid of the Mist passed through the Whirlpool rapids once. She was built originally to cruise about in the comparatively quiet waters at the foot of Niagara falls. Becoming involved in debt and being threatened with seizure, her owner tried to escape with her through the rapids and did so, though she was badly battered and lost her smokestack. This happened in 1864, and she never tried to ascend the rapids. The name, given by Sir Walter Scott to the heroine of "Anne of Geierstein," has been taken by succeeding boats which cruise about the foot of the falls.

FAMILIAR QUOTATIONS.

Gems For Which We Are Indebted to Rev. Edward Young.

Among the older English poets sententious quotations from whom have passed into the very warp and woof of our daily speech, the first place, of course, belongs to Shakespeare. The second belongs to Pope and the third not to Milton or Dryden, but to the Rev. Edward Young, whose "Night Thoughts" lay on the reading tables of the pious ancestors of those of us who had them. Young has been called "Pope in woolen stockings." Perhaps he would be more accurately described as Pope in cassock and bands.

To him is due the possession by almost every one of the knowledge that "Procrastination is the thief of time," that "we take no note of time but from its loss," that we should "be wise today—'tis madness to defer," that "at thirty man suspects himself a fool, knows it at forty and reforms his plan," that none the less "a fool at forty is a fool indeed," that "all men think all things mortal but themselves," that "blessings brighten as they take their flight," that "man wants but little, nor that little long" (echoed by Goldsmith), that "by night an atheist half believes a God," that "Death loves a shining mark," that "pygmies are pygmies still, though perched on Alps," that "all may do what has by man been done," that "the man that blushes is not quite a brute," that "too low they build who build beneath the stars," that "an undevout astronomer is mad," that "none think the great unhappy but the great," and that "fondness for fame is avarice of air."

"Insatiate archer, would not one suffice?" is a familiar query which he first propounded. The very first line of the first Night in which he achieved his funeral thoughts, "Tired nature's sweet restorer, balmy sleep!" has often been repeated as Shakespeare's—no doubt by confusion with Macbeth's eulogy of the sleep he had murdered.

BAGPIPES ARE ANCIENT.

Scotland Didn't Adopt Them Till the Fifteenth Century.

Neither Scotland nor Ireland can claim to have invented the bagpipes. Greeks, Romans, Assyrians and Chinese all played bagpipes of sorts long before the time of Christ, and the instrument actually figures on one of the coins of Nero, who may have played it. The Breton bignou, the Calabrian zampogna, the German sackpfeife and the French cornemeuse are all bagpipes under different names.

It was actually a Scotsman and no less a man than the lord advocate of the time who publicly declared fifty years ago that "the bagpipe is an English instrument, essentially English. The English were the original bagpipers." He pointed out that, while Shakespeare often speaks of bagpipes, he never does so in "Macbeth" and that it is in Lincolnshire and Yorkshire that he localizes the pipes. To Chaucer and Spenser also they are English. James IV. and other Scottish kings paid for "inglis pyparis" at their court, while Edward I., Edward III., Henry VI. and Henry VIII. seem to have had native pipers.

The highlanders never used the pipes in war before the fifteenth century. The harp was Scotland's instrument.—London Chronicle.

Diplomacy.

"Before we were married," his better half complained, "you always engaged a taxi when you took me anywhere. Now you think the bus or the street car is good enough for me."

"No, my darling, I don't think the bus or the trolley is good enough for you. It's because I'm so proud of you in a taxi you would be seen by nobody, while I can show you off to so many people by taking you in the bigger conveyance."—Exchange.

Free Trip For Him.

"The best thing about this trip," said the retired merchant as he lay back luxuriously in the comfortable chair on the porch of a twelve dollar a day hotel, "is that it is not costing me a cent."

"How's that?" asked an envious spectator.

"It's all coming out of what I'm going to leave to my heirs," said the man, smiling happily.

Encouraging.

"Did the doctor give you much encouragement?"

"Sure."

"Said you would soon get well?"

"Not exactly. But he told me I could pay his bill when I got the money."

RUSSIA ENDS CRUSADE

CONSTANTINOPLE HAS LONG BEEN SLAV HOLY CITY.

Great Britain's Mistaken Support of the Turk Prevented the Slav Empire Securing an Ice-free Port Many Years Ago, But Russian Byzantium is Now Assured.

THE Russian Premier's announcement in the Duma of an agreement made by Great Britain, France, and Russia, in 1915, consented to by Italy afterward, establishing "in the most definite manner the right of Russia" to the Dardanelles and Constantinople, confirms officially what has long been rumored and believed. The promise of such a realization of the secular hope and necessity of Russia must be a powerful impulse to the national patriotism. The enthusiasm of that vast awakened people is stirred not merely by the passion, freshly seen again in the fall of Stuermer, to overthrow German dominance and influence, but by the opportunity to fulfill a strong and lasting aspiration. Economically Russia gains the long-sought outlet of the Black Sea and access to the Mediterranean. But there is much more than that in the Russian popular feeling. Byzantium is a holy city to the Russians, who have crusaded against the Ottoman infidels. A religious emotion supplements the economic motive, and to the Slav temperament is even more appealing.

It was a long blunder of British foreign policy, the support of Turkey against Russia, a blunder apparently founded on the myth that it has been the permanent aim of Russia to deprive Great Britain of India and achieve world power. A spurious "Testament of Peter the Great," which made its first appearance in 1811 and has been attributed to Napoleon, may have been the origin of the myth. Napoleon coquetted with Alexander I. about Constantinople, which he pretended to offer him. His talk of assailing India by land with Russian assistance helped the growth of English suspicion of Russia. Castlereagh was so afraid of her designs that at the Congress of Vienna he objected to the cession of Poland to her. More than once in the nineteenth century it seemed that Turkey's hour to decamp from Europe had come. Great Britain postponed it. Nicholas I. naturally objected to the possession of the Dardanelles and Constantinople by a power of the first rank like England. Such a power established there could control the Black Sea and assail Russia in her weakest spot. To their occupation by a small power or to their internationalization he would not object.

In 1853, before the Crimean war, as in 1829, when the Russians got as far as Adrianople, his policy was fair. He was willing to let England have Egypt if Russia's position in the Black Sea was not endangered. England would not listen. She was possessed by Russophobia. The Crimean war, many slaughters of Christians, the Russo-Turkish war, are in no small measure due to Great Britain's mistaken support of the ungrateful Turk. After the war of 1877 she helped rob Russia of the fruits of her victory. Russia consoled herself by bothering her enemy in the East. On the Indian border, in Afghanistan, in Baluchistan, everywhere, Russian intrigue and Russian force were felt or suspected. So Disraeli worked steadily into the hands of Bismarck. So for years England pretty steadily played the game of her enemies. "The more absurd an effort to attack India would be, the more it will scare the English," Napoleon chuckled. Since the Entente of 1907, more especially since the war, the Russian bugaboo has faded. Doubtless there are lingering dupes of it in England still. Doubtless, too, the agreement mentioned by Premier Trepoff contains provision for naval bases or other privileges for the other contracting powers.

A saying of Napoleon's, or attributed to him, that Constantinople is "the key to the world," may have helped the growth of the British legend of the woes that would follow the creation of a Muscovite Constantinople. Bismarck once said in the Reichstag that if the Dardanelles are the key to world dominion the Sultan must have dominated the world since 1453. Dr. Paul Rohbach of "German Thought" fame, now views with alarm "The Russian Danger." He is convinced that "either Constantinople will mean world power for Germany by stifling Russia or will give it to Russia by stifling Germany's future." Weltmacht again! Bismarck, the old-fashioned statesman who was content with a Germany "sattiate" with power, had the Machiavellian thought that it would be "a good thing for Germany if the Russians were to establish themselves at Constantinople and had to defend it." It is, in fact, a hard position to defend.

It must be from 190 to 200 miles from the Dardanelles entrance to the Bosporus egress. Is Russia to have the inland region up to the famous "Enos-Midia line," 120 miles long, from Enos, over against Samothrace, to Midia on the Black Sea? Gallipoli peninsula, the coast of the Gulf of Saros, the Dardanelles passage, must be defended. And unless Russia is to occupy the Asiatic shore and hinterland, assault from that quarter must be guarded against. "The freedom of navigation for the Roumanian flag," spoken of by Mr. Trepoff, reminds us that Russia cannot reach Constantinople by land save through Roumania and Bulgaria. Northern Asia Minor would [illegible] route from the Caucasus [illegible] Straits.

Is Russia's long quest of an ice-free port to be ended at last? Mr. Trepoff's announcement is evidently meant to show, among other things, the entire harmony of the Allies. So the Berlin-to-Bagdad dreamers in Germany a Russian Constantinople is the end of the world.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

MR. WOOD'S APPOINTMENT IS IMPORTANT ONE

The following clipping from The Daily Province of Vancouver, B.C., will be read with intereat by the many friends in the city of Mr. H. S. Wood, former Peterborough boy, and son of the late R. E. Wood, County Crown Attorney. News of the appointment was given in The Examiner several days ago, but this item gives some further particulars.

The new regime in the attorney-general's department has been marked by the retirement of the firm of McKay & O'Brien, barristers, as prosecutors in the county criminal court at Vancouver and the appointment of Mr. Herbert S. Wood, to act as prosecutor instead. There is some confusion as yet as to the date on which the change will be made, the Victoria authorities having assumed that the change would take place on January 1st, whereas Messrs. McKay & O'Brien claim to have a yearly appointment which expired on March 31st of each calendar year.

The office of prosecuting attorney in the county criminal court is regarded as one of the plums for the lawyers in the gift of the Government. The duties of the office are not heavy and do not interfere with the private practice of the incumbent. The salary allowed has been $800 per month with an extra allowance of $60 per month for office assistance, so that the position is regarded as one of the plums for the very substantial sideline for a practising attorney.

Is Able Lawyer.

Mr. Herbert S. Wood, the new county prosecutor, was for many years associated with Mr. L. G. McPhillips, K.C., in the firm of McPhillips & Wood, but has recently been practising alone. He is regarded as a sound and able lawyer, and enjoys the general esteem of the bench and bar of Vancouver. In addition to having been for several years a member of Ward One Liberal Association, Mr. Wood has enjoyed a long and intimate friendship with Hon. M. A. Macdonald, which dates back to their student days at Osgoode Hall Law School several years ago.

Mr. Wood was one of the original Liberals who earned the nickname of the "purity squad" owing to their efforts to secure the return of John T. Scott and get to the bottom of the plugging investigation, but in the recent ministerial bye-election he was a strong supporter and worker for Hon. M. A. Macdonald.

Sermon By The Rev. R. Pogue Of St. Paul's

The January number of the Evangelical Christian, Toronto, contains a full summary of a recent sermon delivered by Rev. Robert Pogue, of St. Paul's church, this city. The sermon was the second in a series on "The Fullness of the Blessings of the Gospel of Christ." The following are the closing paragraphs of this sermon:

"Not until a man sees his sin does he become anxious about it. Not until he sees he has sinned against God is he prepared to seek the forgiveness of God. And not until He sees that the one explanation of powerlessness, of want of peace and joy, is that he has been harbouring things in his life which are displeasing to God, will he be willing to make confession and turn and seek the Lord.

"This, then, is the first thing God asks of you, the confession of all discovered sin. And I ask you to be honest with God and honest with yourself, and not to attempt to conceal anything.

"And, then what next? Well, just here is where it is possible to err. You may do the wrong thing. You may go to the wrong source. You may seek to do in your own strength what only Divine grace can accomplish.

"For example, what more natural thing to do when confession has been made than to seek in your own strength to deal with your sin, to fling it from you, to get the victory over it? And as a matter of fact your sin is a very precious thing to you. The reason why you have not parted with it is because you love it, and it exercises an all powerful influence over you. You are its captive, its slave. And you simply cannot give it up. It is like cutting off the right hand or plucking out the right eye. And you cannot do it.

"Of course you cannot. Only God can do it. And that is the truth which we shall emphasize again and again in these addresses, and which we shall look at from different angles. You cannot pluck up out of your breast your darling sin and cast it from you. But God can. And He can do it as your dentist can extract a diseased and useless tooth. He can do it painlessly. He can do it in such a way that there shall be no regret, no struggle, no holding back. It will be a supernatural work, and yet it will be a very natural work. It will be accomplished by the expulsive power of a new affection, a new love, and that love, the love of God shed abroad in your heart by the Holy Ghost. When that love comes flooding into your heart like a great tide you will have such a desire to please Christ that you will gladly part with your dearest idol, your most cherished sin. Oh! may that love, even as I speak, be shed abroad in all our hearts, and may the love of Christ constrain us to live not to ourselves but to Him who shed His precious blood for us all."

ANNIVERSARY CONCERT WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

The anniversary concert of Trinity Methodist church contributed by the choir with the assistance of Miss Warner of Cobourg, organist and Mrs. Dr. Wilson, violinist was a most enjoyable success and provided a delightful evening for a very large audience last night. The choir showed the effect of careful training in its numbers, the two patriotic selections "O Canada", and "Rule Britannia" which closed being given an especially effective rendition. The soloists all scored heavily. Miss Taylor's singing of the "Angels' Serenade" was delightful and Mr. Arthur Milton gave a spirited rendition of "The Trumpeter." Mr. Fred Hartshorn took the solo in Neidlinger's "Birthday of a King" very effectively. The duets by Messrs. S. Lee, and F. Hartshorn and by Miss Taylor and Miss Pollard were thoroughly appreciated as was the quartette "The Rosy Hues of Early Dawn" in which the choir gave valuable assistance. Miss Warner contributed several organ numbers in masterly style and Mrs. Wilson was heard to great advantage in her double violin numbers playing an aria from "Il Trovatore" and a Gavotte by Gossec. The complaying aria from "Il Trovatore"

Mayor Duffus Has Returned

The Culmination of a Seven Day Trip Down Through the New England States and a Peek at the Wonders of New York

"I don't think so," replied Mayor Duffus, when asked to-day at noon if he had anything to say regarding his seven-day trip down through the New England States. It was a week ago Monday that the Mayor, immediately following the inaugural meeting of the City Council, and in company with Alderman F. H. Dobbin, the newly elected chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, shook the dust of Peterborough from their heels and a few hours later, found themselves browsing through a menu at a banquet tendered in Toronto to the Bonne Entente. A couple of days later a native runner brought in the information that both Mayor Duffus and Alderman Dobbin were making their way down through the snow clad hills of Vermont. When next heard of they were in New York. Mayor Duffus did not say how many cabarets they visited, but he did say they visited a number of fire stations where they were privileged to inspect equipment such as Peterborough cannot hope to have in a thousand years. Aerial trucks eighty feet long were among the marvels of modern fire-fighting apparatus. Mayor Duffus and Alderman Dobbin returned to their native heath by way of Montreal.

Are Watching Harry K. Thaw

Detective Force is Increased by Two Members

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16.—The detective force detailed to watch Harry K. Thaw while he convalesces in St. Mary's Hospital from self-inflicted razor slashes, was increased by two members to-day.

A detective is now stationed at every door and window in Thaw's apartment; one at his bedside and one at each of the corridors leading to the would-be suicide's rooms. "We will take no chances" was the only comment from Captain of Detectives Tate.

Visitors are still barred from Thaw's rooms. There will likely be a protracted legal fight against extradition to New York.

An Enthusiastic Recruiting Meeting

indicated by Germany then the result of the war would be that Germany would achieve a triumphant victory. The Allies would be false to their trust and to their duty if they left any part of Belgium, Poland, Serbia and Montenegro in Germany's hands and without just reparation. It is inconceivable that the Allies would accept terms of peace which did not carry with them a just and righteous punishment to the murderous agressors in this great war.

It has taken the Allies upwards of two years and a half to properly arm and equip themselves to meet on even terms the German Agressors who have been for years secretly planing the overthrow of the Independent countries of Europe and the ultimate domination of the whole civilized world. We in Canada are as much interested in the outcome of this war as are the people living in Northern France and in the British Isles. The young men of this country are on trial. They are expected to voluntarily come forward and enlist. It would be a matter of regret if drastic means had to be used to show them their true sense of duty and they were called upon to join the ranks on less favourable terms and conditions than can now be obtained.

NO SHODDY WAS USED

Sir Charles Davidson's Report on Auburn Cloth is Made Public —Material Not Quite as Good as Sealed Sample

OTTAWA, Jan. 15.—Sir Charles Davidson's report on the charge of shoddy manufacture made against the Auburn Woollen Mills Company, of Peterborough, has reached the Government. While it finds the charge not proven at the same time the company's product is adjudged not quite up to the sealed sample.

The Auburn Company had a contract from the Militia Department for the manufacture of cloth for uniforms for the Canadian soldiers. Among those prominently interested in the firm is Mr. James Keadry, ex-M.P. The accusation against the company, which came from a former employe named Graves, was that it had put a considerable quantity of shoddy into the cloth supplied to the department. To ascertain whether this had been the case Dr. Milton Hersey, of Montreal, was asked to make a chemical analysis of the cloth, as compared with the sealed sample, according to which it was required to be manufactured, and evidence was taken at Ottawa and Peterborough.

The commissioners' report is that while there was no shoddy in the cloth supplied by the Auburn firm, and consequently no attempt thus to defraud the country, the material was at the same time not quite as good as the sealed sample.

Rev. Griffith-Thomas Addressed Ministerial Association Last Night

Rev. W. H. Griffith-Thomas, D.D., of Wycliffe College, Toronto, was the speaker at an open meeting of the Ministerial Association of Peterborough, last evening, in the Y. M. C. A. hall. He delivered an exceedingly thoughtful and illuminating lecture on the subject of "Germany and the Bible," which was followed with the deepest interest by his audience. Musical numbers were contributed by Mr. and Mrs. James Locke of Mark Street Church, and Miss McLaren of St. Andrew's. At the close refreshments were served, and a social time enjoyed.

The meeting was pronounced one of the most successful in the history of the Association.

A New, Harmless Way To Banish Hairy Growths

(Beauty Topics)

By following this suggestion any woman can, in the privacy of her own home, remove every trace of hair or fuzz from her face: With powdered delatone and water mix enough paste to cover the hot wanted hairs; apply and in 2 or 3 minutes rub off and wash the skin. This method is unfailing, harmless and quick in results, but care should be exercised to get the genuine delatone.

SUMMON 400 FOR SPITTING.

Health Authorities Renew Sanitary Crusade, with 100 Men on Duty.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15. — Approximately four hundred persons have been summoned to appear in the various magistrates' courts on Monday morning accused of violating the health ordinance regarding spitting in public, according to a statement made yesterday by Dr. Haven Emerson, Health Commissioner.

"During the last few days," said the Commissioner, "the department has had sixty sanitary inspectors, in addition to forty uniformed policemen of its sanitary squad, looking for those violations. From now on New Yorkers will do well to see that they do not spit in street cars, on sidewalks or other public places. If brought to court they are certain to be fined. In fact, repeated offenders are liable to imprisonment. Last year policemen arrested 1,261 persons for violating this ordinance. Of these only twenty-five were discharged. The rest were fined from one dollar to ten dollars."

Washing Won't Rid Head of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

Welcomed the Boys.

His Honour Judge Huycke, who presided, welcomed the boys on behalf of the organization whose guests they were. "You have honoured me by asking me to be present, and honoured me more by asking you gentlemen to be present," said Judge Huycke, addressing the veterans. Continuing he said: "You are all heroes and gentlemen. You are the King's soldiers. I know the people of Canada will make every effort to recognize the services you have rendered to the Empire, and will do everything in their power to make your lives happy. The name of Canada has been made brighter by what you have done. I never was so proud of Canada in my life as I am to-day, yet at the same time I was never so ashamed of the land of my birth as when I read of the thousands of young men who have sneaked out of the country. They are not Canadians, and I hope the Government will keep them out and never let them return. I am proud of you men here to-night. Some of you are wearing scars but they are scars of honour."

Captain J. H. Burnham, M.P.

"There is one particular phase of this war which has to be seen to be fully appreciated, and that is the nurses," said Captain Burnham. "I fell in love with about three thousand of them and do not think that enough is made of the nursing sisters." Captain Burnham described the progress of the wounded men from the front line trenches to the hospitals where they come under the soothing ministrations of the nurses. Speaking of enlistment, Captain Burnham said that he did not think that Canadians as a whole were lacking in courage or patriotism, but they are slow to realize the gravity of the situation. A meeting is to be held in Toronto shortly with a view of starting a campaign to arouse Canadian opinion to such a high plane that Canadians will see that in fighting for Canada they are fighting for their own existence. Unless we keep the units now overseas up to strength they will have to be merged with other forces and will subsequently lost their identity as Canadian troops. Standing in the trenches thirty yards from the German lines I asked the boys if there was any special message they would like to send home, and with one accord they replied—"Tell the Canadians to come on, we can't stay here forever, but we will stay as long as we can."

Major E. D. O'Flynn.

Major E. D. O'Flynn, second in command of the 247th Battalion, who is also in the veteran list, on behalf of Lieut.-Col. Ackerman, who was unavoidably absent, thanked the ladies for their efforts in entertaining the returned soldiers. "If the men stood by their country as well as the ladies we would have no difficulty in filling up the ranks," said Major O'Flynn. The speaker said that more credit was due the mothers, wives and sweethearts at home than the nurses at the front. They are staying at home "carrying on." Major O'Flynn urged the men present to use their influence in getting one or more recruits for the 247th Battalion.

Captain Belton, another veteran of the present war, who was the next speaker has been hard hit by the war, having lost two brothers. His only sister is a Red Cross nurse. In addition to this he lost two brothers in the South African war, and he, himself, has seen service at the front in the present war. Captain Belton said that he felt with great pride that his parents had instilled into the family something that was more than patriotism. "I can't understand," said Captain Belton, "the man who says he is a patriot and a Canadian who does not make any attempt to serve his country. When you get over there and fight with the British Tommy you fight with one of the best."

Absent Guests.

In referring to the "absent guests" Dr. H. G. Park, who has one son overseas, told the story of an employer in the Old Country who went to the military hospital to visit one of his clerks. The man had enlisted a few weeks before and had both legs shot off. Describing his feelings as he stood in the presence of his former employee, the man said: "My God I didn't feel worthy to stand in the same room." That is the way I feel here to-night, said Dr. Park. It is hard for us. I sometimes feel that we were born out of our place. It is hard for us to have to stand back and urge others on. In filling out the National Service Card, Dr. Park signified his willingness to serve anywhere with or without pay.

"This is not a mere temporary outburst," said Dr. Park. "We are not going to forget the boys who have served their country."

An excellent musical programme was provided and the speeches were punctuated with songs, recitations and also selections by fifteen members of the Conservatory Orchestra under the leadership of Mr. R. Gliddon.

Sergeant Peter Victor, President of the Returned Soldiers' League, favoured the gathering with a number of songs, and also thanked the ladies on behalf of the returned soldiers for the entertainment provided. "You made no mistake when you elected your president," was Judge Huycke's comment when he made a second call on Sergeant Victor for a song selection. Pte. Horace Urquhart contributed a song, while Pte. Joseph O'Leary, cousin of Sergeant O'Leary, whose exploits with the British forces, and his winning of the Victoria Cross, are known throughout the world, delighted the gathering with a recitation. Pte. C. J. Wilcox also gave a recitation, and Pte. Sidney Jolliffe, a song. Mr. Asa Huycke contributed an excellent vocal solo.

The Committee.

Mrs. E. C. Huycke is Regent of the Otonabee Chapter, while Mrs. C. Fessenden was convenor of the special committee in charge of the entertainment, which was composed of the following members: Mrs. (Dr.) Carmichael, Mrs. (Dr.) Buchanan, Mrs. Sherwood, Mrs. Coulthard and Mrs. Spence.

At the close of the meeting three cheers were given for the ladies in charge of the entertainment, after which the "Maple Leaf" and "Auld Lang Syne," was sung by all present.

Will Start the Rehearsals of The Greek Slave

The Peterborough Operatic Society meet to-night at 285 Park Street, as follows: Ladies at 8, gentlemen at 9. Please be punctual.

The new opera is "A Greek Slave" by Sydney Jones, a musical work which has not been produced by amateurs in Canada as far as can be discovered. The incantation scene is grand opera work, and includes wonderful concerted passages exceedingly difficult to memorize. The work has been produced under the direction of Mr. R. J. Devey, in England, and no effort will be spared to bring the opera up to the standard of former productions. Musicians will be welcome, to take part, but-triflers are most cordially invited to stay away, as this form of study needs regular practice and rehearsal.—Richard J. Devey, Musical Director.

STOMACH MEDICINES ARE DANGEROUS

DOCTORS NOW ADVISE MAGNESIA

Just how dangerous it is to indiscriminately dose the stomach with drugs and medicines is often not realized until too late. It seems so simple to swallow a dose of some special mixture or take tablets of soda, pepsin, bismuth, etc. after meals and the folly of this dragging is not apparent until, perhaps years afterward, when it is found that gastric ulcers have almost eaten their way through the stomach walls. Regrets are then unavailing; it is in the early stages when indigestion, dyspepsia, heartburn, flatulence, etc., indicates excessive acidity of the stomach and fermentation of food contents that precaution should be taken. Drugs and medicines are unreliable and often dangerous—they have little or no influence upon the harmful acid, and that is why doctors are discarding them and advising sufferers from indigestion and stomach trouble to get rid of the dangerous acid and keep the food contents bland and sweet by taking a little pure bisurated magnesia instead. Bisurated Magnesia is an absolutely pure alkaloid which can be readily obtained from any drug store. It is absolutely harmless, is practically tasteless and a teaspoonful taken in a little warm or cold water after meals, will usually be found quite sufficient to instantly neutralize excessive acidity of the stomach and prevent all possibility of the food fermenting.

It's A Long Worm That Doesn't Turn; This One Finally Did

For Twelve Years Husband Received $21.50 a Week and for Twelve Years His Wife Received That Same $21.50—Court Dismisses Her Complaint

Christmas comes but once a year; and it's a long worm that does not turn.

It was upon those platitudes that Felix Grasse, a printer of No. 414 East Sixty-fourth street, New York, unburdened himself and his grievances to Magistrate Cornell in the Domestic Relations Court. Grasse had been taken before the court, accused of non support since Christmas Day by his wife, Mrs. Anna Grasse.

After listening to his side of the matter husbands who had growled regularly for years at the breakfast table because the coffee was cold went home loaded with flowers and candy and kisses for the wives they had suddenly learned to appreciate.

For twelve years, Grasse told Magistrate Cornell, he had received every Saturday $21.50. For the same period of time he had deposited $21.50 in his wife's lap every Saturday night. On Monday morning, he said, she would return to him $1.50, and from that amount he had to pay his car fare, buy his lunch, treat his friends, pay club dues and purchase any luxuries he wished. After lunches about the only thing with which he could tip the waiter was his hat.

For a time, he said, he lived at South Aqueduct, L. I., and in order to save car fare he could rise every morning early and walk the four miles to the nearest station, walking back in the evening from work, sometimes getting home early enough to meet himself getting up to go back to work. Sleep to him, he said, was just taking off his shoes, throwing them across the bed, crawling over and putting them on again and going back to work. The exciting life at South Aqueduct continued for five years, he admitted.

It was on Christmas Day, he declared yesterday, that he suddenly found himself with a holiday on his hands and nowhere to go. But when he explained to his wife what a great day of rest it was to be she simply ruined the whole of Christmas Eve by shewing him his schedule of operations for the day following, such as cleaning the furnace, sweeping out the house, putting up new pantry shelves, et cetera and so forth.

It was then, said Grasse, that he struck for $2 a day. Belgium in all her invaded wrath was never more filled with righteous indignation than Grasse said he felt himself to be. Although he neither smoked, drank, gambled, carried matches nor expectorated, he decided that Christmas Day was to be his Waterloo from an English viewpoint.

"I had been henpecked long enough," he told the Magistrate, "and I felt like the fifth wheel of a carriage. I determined to assert myself and carry my own pocketbook."

"Madam," said Magistrate Cornell to Mrs. Grasse, "you have one husband in ten thousand. The case is dismissed."

An Election In Ennismore

EXTENSION OF TERM.

Liberals Will Caucus Early to Decide on Course.

OTTAWA, Jan. 15.—A group of western members of Parliament who reached Ottawa to-day are the first arrivals for the session. Some Maritime Province Senators are here, but the bulk of the sessional people will not come till Wednesday or Thursday, more particularly as the formal opening will not occur until Friday.

The principal theme of speech speculation relates to the extension of the term of Parliament, and the outcome is more or less of a puzzle. Developments in respect to it will take place only when the debate on the address, starting a week from to-day, is disposed of. The Liberals will early go into caucus on the question to determine the attitude.

From views expressed by some who have arrived already, it appears that the proposal may be treated as premature, and an attempt made to defer consideration. Another element would make a national or coalition Government a condition to further prolongation of the term of Parliament.

CANADA TO HER ALLIES.

Messages Sent to Montenegro, Serbia, Roumania and Russia.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 15.—On the occasion of the Greek Church New Year (Saturday) the Government sent messages to the kings of Montenegro, Serbia and Roumania and the Czar of Russia, expressing admiration for the great services they and their armies have rendered the allied cause, coupled with sympathy for the people who have suffered so much. The messages also express the determination of the people of Canada to continue unflinchingly to victory.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE LITTLE LAKE CEMETERY COMPANY

At yesterday's meeting of the Little Lake Cemetery Co., Mr. W. H. Moore resigned from the presidency and was succeeded by Mr. E. D. H. Hall.

Mr. W. H. Moore, K.C., president, presided. The following shareholders were present: Messrs. T. H. G. Denne, W. G. Morrow, E. H. D. Hall, T. A. S. Hay, J. J. Howden, Geo. Duncan, Wm. Langford, B. F. Ackerman, E. A. Peck, A Sawers, A. L. Amys W. Meusics, D. Drummond and others.

SEC. TREAS. REPORT.

Mr. E. A. Peck presented the following financial statement, showing a balance to credit for the year of $3129.31.

SUPT'S REPORT.

Ladies and Gentlemen:

I beg to submit a report of work done in your cemetery during the past year.

A block of land in section O containing about 50 burial plots of 116 superficial feet each was graded and seeded and will be in a condition for burials the coming season. It was my intention to proceed with this work as soon as possible, as this is practically the only ground available for family plots at present. It will be speedily taken up.

It was the intention of your board to open the piece of ground known as section L, but owing to delay in getting a survey and the difficulty of obtaining laborers at the wages paid it was impossible to undertake it in any case.

The open drain running through the southeast section of your cemetery was thoroughly cleaned and banks sloped back last year, but owing to the nature of the ground and the action of the frost it had to be all done again this year. Nothing but a large tile or cement drain will answer to carry off the water that accumulates in the single grave section.

The set of stone steps leading to the display fountain at the entrance was taken out and replaced with cement 12 feet wide, which will be found of great benefit and also add to the appearance of the approach.

It was found necessary to overhaul the south greenhouse and rebuild the old wooden benches. When at this work I excavated under part of the centre bench and built a cement pit for the storage of soil and pots, which will not only be a great convenience to the florist, but will be a saving on plots as there is always a considerable loss from frost if piled outside or in a damp shed.

The inside of the iron fence surrounding the west side of the cemetery was given a coat of paint. This work should be completed in the spring.

Owing to the high water in the river during the past season, not much of the riprapping was done, but as this work is absolutely necessary to save your banks, it should be proceeded with as soon as possible.

The coping around the Nicholls plot was removed and a cement footing put in and the coping reset. The plot was also stripped of sod and regraded, giving it much improved appearance.

All of which I respectfully submit.

F. WISE,
Superintendent.

JUNIOR CLASH ON FRIDAY ONLY HOME GAME OF THE WEEK

Fans Are Anxiously Waiting For Battle at Brock St. Rink Which May Decide the Race for the District Honours—Reserved Seats Are Now on Sale and Only a Limited Number Will Be Disposed of—The Game of the Season Scheduled For Friday.

As the 247th team have been unable to arrange an exhibition game, the clash between the Oshawa and Peterborough junior teams on Friday night at Brock Street Rink will be the only game of the week on Peterborough ice and promises to attract the biggest crowd of the season, not only on this account but also because of what is at stake and because of the sensational battle the two teams had at Oshawa last week. A defeat would be fatal to the Peter. Chances of winning the district so that Capt. Graham and his team mates will be played up to top pitch for Friday's engagement, which promises to be by long odds the most exciting and hardest fought of the year.

In order to avoid a rush on Friday night the Peterborough junior hockey club have placed a number of reserved seats and balcony seats on sale at the Warne Drug Company's store. There will be no plan but only a limited number will be sold, so that purchasers can be sure of a comfortable seat on Friday night. These tickets are now on sale and may be obtained at the Warne Drug Company at any time up to 5 o'clock on Friday afternoon. As the number is limited it will be a case of first come, first served and the fans are advised to take no chances.

The Oshawa team which plays here on Friday is a mighty nice junior aggregation. Smith the goal keeper and Rowden the Port oHpe boy at rover have both had intermediate experience and Venini the Italian lad who plays right wing is good enough for any man's team. Feagan the soldier boy from the 183rd Battalion who plays on the defence is another capable youngster and although manager Bradley's outfit are a cloughty aggregation who will take some beating.

No fan who enjoys a game in which and heel. Then at heel, 7-9-ridge Friday's engagement. It is the last scheduled home game in the junior group and the Peterborough youngsters should be cheered on by an old-time crowd.

COBOURG QUITS AND LINDSAY AND 247th WILL FIGHT IT OUT

Soldiers Will Play Their Postponed Game in Lindsay To-morrow Night and a Win Will Give Them a Big Lead For the District Honours

The Cobourg Hockey Club have dropped out of the intermediate group, leaving the fight for the district honours between Lindsay and the 247th Battalion. The Cobourg gang played three games, in which they were badly beaten, a total of 63 goals being scored against them, and as they had not the slightest chance for the district they have decided not to prolong the honours. As a result Peterborough and Lindsay are left and the 247th will play their postponed game in Lindsay to-morrow night. A win for the Soldiers will make it necessary for Lindsay to win the next two games to get even a tie for the district, so that to-morrow's game in Scugogville will be a red hot affair. Rumour has it that the Lindsay team has been considerably strengthened, but judging by the manner in which the Soldiers have been going, Cap. Simpson's outfit will need all the reinforcements they can get. The standing of the district, including defaulted games, is as follows:

	Won	Lost	To Play
247th, Peterborough	5	0	3
Lindsay	4	1	3
*Cobourg	0	3	0

*Defaulted Jan. 15th.

"Jack" Munro Back Home in Canada

ST. JOHN, N.B., Jan. 15.—Because his heart is as big as his massive frame, big "Jack" Munro, the famous heavyweight boxer, who arrived here on the ship bringing wounded soldiers, delayed his home-coming for a full week in order to recover a lost dog. Munro was mining in the Cobalt country when he enlisted with the Princess Pats. After eight months at the front he was wounded in the right arm and hand, which have not entirely healed. He had been on shipboard when he missed the dog, formerly mascot for his battalion, and he slipped ashore and found it next day in Liverpool.

When the train which bore the returned soldiers from the west side docks at Quebec was made up, there was a Pullman car full of men who had been so badly wounded that they were unable to look after themselves. Most of them had lost a limb, some of them more than one.

CAMPBELLFORD TO COBOURG..

Campbellford's Tankard curlers passed through the city this morning on the way to Cobourg, where they play to-day. Such a grouping does not appear to be convenient to the Campbellford players. Had they remained in the Peterborough district they could have played here to-day.

"CUBS" CUTTING SALARIES

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—Salaries of six members of the Chicago Nationals who held "war" contracts have been reduced $1,000 or more. President Weegman announced to-day. The salaries paid were: Pitcher Seaton, $8,500; Catcher Archer, $7,000; Pitcher Lavender, $6,000; Pitcher Hendrix, $6,000; Catcher Wilson, $5,500; Infielder Zelder, $5,000. Archer and Wilson have declined to sign. Weegman said that salaries of players who played winning ball last season will not be reduced.

THINKING MEN

An encouraging feature of the campaign for equal franchise in Ontario is the interest taken in the question by the thinking men of the country. Men of all shades of politics, both in England and Canada, are publicly stating that women should possess the franchise, not as a regard for the zeal and self-sacrifice they have shown since the war began, but because they have shown that women possess the sense of responsibility, and the ability that go to make full citizenship. Sir George Foster has declared himself in favour of woman suffrage, and says: "When the inequality of voting is done away with, a new impetus will be given, especially in questions of social and moral reform, to the great body of the democracy of the country."

Hon. Mr. Pugsley is working to secure the Federal franchise for Manitoba women, who now have the vote and are also entitled to a seat in the Legislature.

Hon. N. W. Rowell has supported the equal franchise movement for years.

At present the men of Manitoba, Alberta, Saskatchewan and British Columbia have granted the vote to women, have made her a partner in the duties of citizenship. Can the men of Ontario do less?—Com.

Workshop Environment.

We cannot ignore the influence of surroundings upon the mental condition and therefore upon the spirit and efficiency of a working corps. Attractive buildings and pleasant surroundings very distinctly make for a higher tone and a better class of workers, even if they do not show an immediate increased productive efficiency, which it is maintained they actually do. And, whatever else may be said, grass plots instead of cinder piles, occasional trees instead of scrap heaps, vines or shrubbery instead of unsightly fences or sheds, certainly tend to make factory life less disagreeable and more pleasant to those obliged to live it and cannot fail to be, therefore, worth while intrinsically.—O. M. Becker in Engineering Magazine.

A Window Washer's View.

A window washer was called upon one day to clean the windows of a business concern on the nineteenth floor of a skyscraper in Lower Broadway. The cleaner passed in wonderment as he passed through the lines of typewriter operators as they clicked off their correspondence and went to the window and fastened the two straps dangling from his belt to hooks at the side of the window frame. He cast another surprised glance at the men operating the typewriters, and as he swung outward over the dizzy height, his weight sustained by the slender straps, he muttered:

Worse and Worse.

A negro elevator man in a Broadway office building was telling Bide Dudley, the New York theatrical writer, that his landlord had forced him out of his home because he could not meet an increased rental.

"So he dispossessed you?" said Dudley sympathetically.

"Wuss'n dat, boss," said the darky; "he disfurnished me!"—Railroad Red Book.

A Protest.

"What I want," said the restless person, "is an eight hour day."

"Why, you don't do more than two or three hours' actual work any day."

"That's the trouble. If I don't get occupation enough to consume more time it'll soon begin to look as if they didn't need me at all."—Washington Star.

Admiral Dewey Is Dying

At Age of 79, Hero of Manilla Bay is Passing Away.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.— Admiral George Dewey, hero of Manilla, who has been confined to his home here for the last five days, by a general breakdown, was reported as "slowing sinking" by his doctors at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Born in Vermont Dec. 6, 1837, he entered the Naval College in 1854, was with Farragut's squadron which forced the passage of Fort St. Philip (1862) and gained possession of New Orleans. Dewey's ship, the Mississippi, grounded within range of the enemy guns, and he poured oil on it and set it on fire to avoid capture. In 1896 Dewey became commodore, and although little known as a sailor, was recognized as a hard fighter. He was in command of the Asiatic squadron in 1898, and near the time for retirement when ordered to locate the Spanish fleet, which he did in Manilla Bay, destroying eleven and capturing the rest of the Spanish ships and all the land forts without the loss of a man on the American side. He was promoted at once to rear-admiral, and later to admiral. In 1900 he became president of the General Board of Naval Strategy.

THE OYSTER CROP

One of the Most Valuable of Those Gathered From the Sea.

ONLY THE HERRING BEATS IT

Of the More Than Forty Million Bushels of These Nutritious Bivalves Gathered Yearly This Country Supplies Over 90 Per Cent.

Of all the products of the water, oysters are, with the single exception of the sea herrings, the most valuable and most important to the human race. They owe that economic pre-eminence to the fact that they have high food value and that they are palatable, cheap, widely distributed and easy to cultivate.

Oysters occur in greater or less abundance on the shores of all temperate and tropical seas, but the supply in the arms of the North Atlantic ocean exceeds that in all other waters combined. There are at least a hundred different kinds or species of oysters, with a wide range in habits, flavor, shape and size. All the oysters on the eastern and southern coasts of the United States belong to one species, which has, however, many local varieties; the native oyster of the Pacific states of a wholly different species.

In about thirty-five countries oyster farming is a special industry. The annual oyster crop of the world now amounts to more than 40,000,000 bushels, for which the fishermen and planters receive about $25,000,000. The United States furnishes nearly 90 per cent of the crop.

Few animals are more prolific than oysters, but of the millions of microscopic young that a single full grown oyster produces only a very small percentage survive infancy. The heavy natural mortality among oysters at all times is particularly marked in their early months. The newly born young are for a few hours free swimming creatures, wafted about by tides and currents, and unless they settle down on a suitable surface they quickly perish. After attaining the size that is visible to the naked eye they are not able to change their position. When the temperature, density, tides and currents are favorable the floating young go to the bottom and become attached to the shells of old oysters or to any other hard surfaces that may be present, but all that fall on a muddy or soft, sandy bottom or on slimy surfaces soon perish. Modern oyster culture aims primarily to save the free swimming young, and oyster planters therefore provide clean shells, tiles and other hard objects to which the "spat," as the young oysters are called, can attach themselves.

Oysters have been under culture longer than any other shellfish. A simple type of cultivation flourished in China at a very remote period and probably antedated by some centuries the beginning of oyster culture in Italy, which was about the year 100 B. C. With the increasing demand for oysters they came to be cultivated in all the important maritime countries of Europe. In other parts of the old world and in the western hemisphere the growing of oysters by artificial means has become an important industry, so that today oysters are the most extensively cultivated of all aquatic animals.

The human animal is not the only one that looks with favor upon the edible qualities of the oyster. At every stage in its career it is attacked by a horde of dangerous enemies, some of which are most destructive after the oyster has put on its stoutest armor. Before the young oyster attaches itself it is extensively consumed by adult oysters and various other shellfish as well as by fishes that strain their food from the water. When the oyster attains its shell a new set of shellfish enemies provided with drills begin their attacks and extract the soft parts through minute holes that they make in the valves.

The oyster growers of Long Island sound and adjacent waters suffer heavy losses from the inroads of starfishes, which, moving in armies over the bottom, devour every oyster in their path. In a single season they have been known to destroy in one state several hundred thousand bushels of marketable oysters. It seems strange at first that a weak creature like the starfish should be able to prey on an animal so strongly armed as an oyster. The starfish attaches itself to the lips of the oyster shell and exerts a steady and long sustained suction with each of its numerous small suckers. After a time the powerful adductor muscle of the oyster becomes fatigued, the valves open, and the starfish inserts its stomach and devours the helpless oyster at leisure.

Other enemies of the grown oyster are fishes with powerful jaws armed with crushing teeth. On the Atlantic coast the most destructive fish is the black drum, a school of which may virtually clean out an oyster bed in one night. On the Pacific coast a species of sting ray is the chief offender.

The United States is particularly fortunate in its oyster supply. The output here is larger and more valuable than elsewhere. Moreover, on account of the relative low cost of oysters to the consumer in the United States, the consumption in proportion to the total population is greater than in any of the other leading oyster producing countries.

Our annual oyster output is worth about $17,000,000 to the producers. The yield has increased 70 per cent in quantity since 1880, and under the favorable conditions that now prevail is becoming larger every year.—Hugh M. Smith, Commissioner of Fisheries, in this Companion.

Proverbs of the Highway.

Thank the Lord that most of the deep rivers to cross are those we see in dreams.

Don't want a world so bright that we won't enjoy the glory that's waiting for us hereafter.

We spend lots o' time praying for Providence to help us, and it never occurs to us to surprise Providence by helping ourselves.

It's too great a compliment to trouble to be always hunting it—especially when you know the old fellow will come to you if you only wait for him. —Atlanta Constitution.

BURIED FOR SIXTY YEARS.

Aged Belgian Nun Had Never Seen a Train.

The death, which occurred recently at the convent of Abbeyfeale, County Wexford, Ireland, of Abbess Fynes, a member of the community of Irish nuns of Ypres, recalled an interesting story of her flight from Belgium during the German invasion. The abbess, who was a Belgian and 80 years old, took refuge in the Irish convent after a long and tedious journey from her stricken country. In this she was accompanied by other nuns from Ypres.

Before the German bombardment drove the abbess and the other nuns into the world she had never been outside the walls of her convent since she entered it as a novice some sixty years before. She had never before seen a railway train, and it is said there was the greatest difficulty in persuading her to enter the train that carried her to safety.

The nuns were unable to bring anything away with them and were destitute when they reached England. A place was bought for the community at Abermaia. One of the members is a niece of John Redmond, who has always taken a keen interest in the community, and who helped them to secure their present home.

Before leaving Ypres the nuns managed to bury in a safe place their precious historical possession — the flag captured from the British at Fontenoy by the Irish brigade, then in the service of France. The Dames Irelandaises, as they were known, fled from Ireland to Belgium in the reign of William III. The connection with Ireland was always maintained, novices coming over from Ireland regularly, although a few Belgians have been admitted from time to time. Their convent, which is close to the Ypres Town Hall, was wrecked by German shells.

A Story That Varies.

There is a story more or less diffused of a young bride on her wedding day playing the game of hide-and-seek and concealing herself in one of those ancient carved chests of large size. After she had waited in the old chest and she found herself unable to raise it again, for it fastened with a spring and she was shut in. Search was made for her in every quarter but the right one, and great perplexity and distress were caused by her disappearance. It was not till years after when chance led to the opening of the chest that the body of the young bride was discovered and the mystery of her disappearance solved.

The story is found in so many places that it may be questioned whether it is true of any one of them. Rogers tells it of a palace in Modena. The chest in which the poor bride was found is shown at Bramshill, in Hampshire, the residence of Sir John Cope. Another similar chest with precisely the same story attached to it was long shown at Marwell Old Hall, between Winchester and Bishop's Waltham.

The folk tale of Catskin or Peau d'Ane represents the girl dying with her bridal dresses from a marriage that is repugnant to her, and as this tale is found all over Europe it may have metamorphosed itself into that of the bride who got into a chest and died there.—Cornhill Magazine.

Labour Men Are Heard

Deputation Waits Upon Premier Borden and His Cabinet To-day

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Jan. 16.—Headed by President J. C. Watters, a delegation of Trades and Labour Congress to-day made the annual call on Premier Borden and colleagues to urge legislation for organised labour. They asked for the abolition of the compulsory clauses in Lemieux industrial disputes act, an increase in wages of fifty cents a day for all letter carriers, and sundry other matters. The deputation urged that the Dominion of Canada recommend to the Allies that terms of peace in the present war should provide that the civil and religious rights of the Jewish people should be preserved everywhere. It was also urged that government take steps to prevent speculative on soldier's land grants.

Premier Borden was very definite in his assurances to the Labor Delegation that no industrial conscription was contemplated by the government. If any change in this policy was considered he said the labour men would be called into conference before a radical change was made.

MORE TAXATION EXPECTED.

War Outlays May Be Met in Part From Corporation Coffers.

OTTAWA, Jan. 15.—Additional taxation by way of helping meet the abnormal outlays of the war is anticipated at the coming session of Parliament. There is talk of assessing the profits of munition makers and imposing additional taxes on corporations and individuals, perhaps by taxes on income, as well as of adjusting somewhat the existing schedules.

What will be done in the matter will be known only when the budget is delivered. By reason of the effect upon the financial and other markets, there is no state secret quite so carefully guarded as tariff changes or taxes embodied in the budget. As a matter of fact it is often the custom to finally decide these matters by order-in-Council only upon the morning of the day when the speech is delivered. Up till then, the Minister of Finance has a practically exclusive knowledge of what is coming.

The taxes imposed last year are working well and bringing in every dollar which it was estimated they would produce. This fact suggests the improbability of extensive or radical changes in the situation. Issues, however, are looked for.

A GERMAN RAIDER SINKS NINETEEN MERCHANT SHIPS

The Greek Situation Reaches an Acute Stage

A GERMAN RAIDER IS AT LARGE IN THE SOUTH ATLANTIC

Nineteen Merchant Steamers, Mostly British and Two French Schooners Reported Sunk—237 Survivors Landed—Some of the Survivors Were Aboard the Raider For 28 Days.

"VOLTAIRE" IN THE LIST

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

BUENOS AIRES, January 17. — A German raider believed to be the steamer "Vineta," has sunk nineteen merchant steamers, mostly British, and two French schooners in the South Atlantic, according to despatches received here to-day from Pernambuco and Rio De Janeiro, detailing the landing of survivors at Pernambuco.

One additional message from Rio declared that the raider had sunk still another British ship, without warning, causing the loss of 400 persons.

The Brazilian Minister of Marine has made a formal request for a report from Pernambuco but as yet has not received a reply. A subsequent message reported the sinking of English and French merchantmen off the Brazilian coasts, including the "Voltaire."

A despatch from Rio added the steamships Samara, Drina, Ortega and Hammershus to the list of victims.

In all, 237 survivors from the victims of the German raider were landed at Pernambuco, the despatch said. These survivors described the raider as armed with twelve cannon and four torpedo tubes.

Some of the survivors were aboard the vessel for twenty-eight days. Still another report from Rio to-day as to the faiders activities said only seven ships had been sunk and nine captured.

The latest German sea raider on the fact of despatches to date, apparently has set a record in destructiveness of commerce, only exceeded by the exploits of the famous Emden, Germany's prize raider. The new German raider, whose name is said to be the Vineta, is credited in South American despatches with accounting for nineteen merchant ships and is still at large.

NEW YORK, January 17.—The Belgian seamship Sanland, reaching here from Rotterdam, brought word that she had been stopped December 4 off the Irish coast by a German raider which, after searching her and finding she was a Belgian food ship, allowed her to proceed. The first warning of a German commerce raider from the Britsih Government was on December 9, when warnings were flashed from warships and from naval wireless stations.

Wheat Prices Are Very Firm

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—Complete figures showing that the United States visible supply of wheat fell off 3,385,000 last week had a bullish effect yesterday on prices. The decrease was much greater than for the previous week and was in striking contrast to a year ago when there was an actual increase. Authoritative advices from Berlin that the answer of the Entente Allies to President Wilson barred for the present any further steps by Germany to bring peace, tended also to lift the market. Opening quotations, which ranged from 1-4 to 1 1-8 higher with May at 195 to 195 1-2 and July at 149 were followed by decided additional gains.

CATTLE MARKETS

There was a better tone to the trade at the stock yards yesterday and prices were firmer throughout the list. Buying was fast and animals went over the scales in quick order. Choice to good steers were in strong demand at steady prices. J. B. Shields had one choice load which sold at $10.25. Butcher cattle held a fast demand, selling around $9.75 to $10.00. Fat cows and butcher bulls were in steady to strong demand. Prices on these grades were only steady. The stocker and feeder trade is very dull, but if the animals are at all killable they are being used as butchers rather than feeders. This will account for the high levels of these grades. Milkers and springers were very slow and unless the animals are real choice and selling at reasonable levels buyers will pay no attention.

Light sheep and choice calves were steady, selling around $14.50. Dunn and Levack had one load which sold at $15.00. Hogs were steady.

May Send Home Canadian Women Now in England

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Canadian authorities here are seriously contemplating the advisability of ordering Canadian wives and women relatives of soldiers to return to Canada to help the food situation here and avoid the possibility of future shortages. Lord Shaughnessy, who is strongly in favour of such action, has been in conference in this connection with a very high personage here.

It is estimated there are sixty thousand wives and other relatives of Canadian officers and men living here, and all thinking Canadian deplore this state of affairs, which puts an extra and often needless tax on the food resources of this country at a critical time, helps raise rents, and generally makes it harder for the wives of British soldiers, who have no separation allowances like the Canadians.

GET BARGAIN MEAT

It is stated that the wives of Canadian officers at British base camps often obtain the army meat rations at rates which are much below the open market. Many Canadian women come over here against the express wishes of their soldier relatives. It is known that the Canadian authorities have disapproved of Canadian women coming to England. War work is frequently an excuse, but many Canadian women here are doing practically nothing.

In many a home, the keystone of the family's health, is a daily ration of the splendid whole wheat and barley food—

Grape-Nuts

The reason lies in the fact that this food contains an abundance of those elements—the mineral salts—so necessary for well-balanced bodies, brains and nerves. Grape-Nuts also includes the entire nutriment of the grains, in concentrated, easily digestible form, ready-to-eat from the package.

Grape-Nuts is usually eaten with cream or milk and the flavour is wonderfully delicious. It also combines in numerous attractive, special dishes

Better digestion, better health, better accomplishment with Grape-Nuts as a daily food.

Canada Preparing To Care For All Soldiers Wounded In Fighting

Col. Labatt of the Pension's Board in Address Before the Canadian Club Yesterday Outlines Preparation Nation is Making to Protect Those Who Are Victims of the Fierce Battling Overseas.

DIVIDING THE PENSIONS

MONTREAL, Jan. 17.—The evolution of the gigantic pension scheme that Canada, through the Pension Commission, is working out, was described fully and eloquently to the members of the Canadian Club at their luncheon yesterday afternoon in the Windsor Hotel by Colonel R. H. Labatt, a member of the Board of Pension Commissioners for Canada. Col. Labatt, who went over in command of a battalion with the First Contingent and was seriously wounded while leading his men, was a pleasing and entertaining speaker, with the result that what promised to be a 'dry' subject was illuminated by many flashes of eloquence and sympathy which drew applause time and again from the members.

At the outset Col. Labatt gave his hearers some idea of the tremendous task ahead of the Pension Board and the country at large, by stating that, based on the overseas army of 300,000 men, the annual pension bill of Canada would be somewhere in the neighbourhood of $21,000,000, while with an overseas army of 400,000 men the annual pension bill was expected to be somewhere around $28,000,000.

To date the Canadian casualties total 68,290 men. Of these 10,854 have been killed, 4,010 have died of wounds 494 have died of illness, 1108 have died while pensioners, 2,907 are missing, and presumed dead, and 28,454 have been wounded.

He called attention to the small proportion of men who had died from illness in the Canadian army, namely 494, and stated that the greatest feat of all the war was the manner in which the medical forces had gone about their task. If this war had been conducted in the same manner as previous wars so far as sanitation was concerned and the proportion of men who had previously died of disease had succumbed since 1914 then the pension list of Canada would have been such as to have been unbearable by the Dominion.

Col. Labatt traced the foundation and organization of the pension board in Canada and stated that the generosity of this country was such that the pensions that would be granted Canadian soldiers or their dependents were the greatest and largest ever granted by any nation.

Dividing the Pensions.

The pensions will be divided into six classes, based on the first class of total disability from earning a livelihood. All members of the rank and file totally disabled will be paid a pension of $480 per annum; company and staff sergeants will receive $510; regimental sergeants, $620; warrant officers, $680; lieutenants, $750; captains $1,000; majors, $1,200 and lieut-colonels $1,500.

The six classes of pensions will consist of the total disability of 100 per cent. men then 80 per cent. of total disability, 60 per cent of total disability, 40 per cent., 20 per cent. and men slightly disabled who will receive a straight grant of from $25 to $100. There are also certain grants for the children of wounded soldiers.

Col. Labatt then dealt with the question of how the class to which a wounded man will belong will be determined which will be through the joint work of the military hospitals commission and the Pension Board. When a man is returned from the front he will be examined by the Military Hospital Commission which will determine whether he can be trained to some form of labour that will enable him to earn a proper living and from them he will pass to the Pension Board, who with the evidence of the Hospital Commission at hand will be able to properly determine what class of pension the soldier is entitled to.

Fair for Everybody.

He was emphatic in his declaration that no class distinction or politics would enter into the working of the pension board in this country. "It will not make the slightest difference," he declared amid applause, "whether the man who is the subject for a pension was making $10,000 a year or $1,000 before the war he will be judged on his merits as a wounded soldier only when the question of his pension comes up for settlement."

As an illustration of the manner in which pensions could be easily misused he related some of the swindles that had been perpetrated on the American Government in connection with the pension list which was now millions of dollars greater than when the Civil War was only a few years over. He also told of a case that had already come before the board in Ottawa, where a fraud had been very nearly successful and a woman and two children, the wife and family of a lieutenant, almost deprived of their proper pension.

On December 30th, 1916, Col. Labatt stated, 6,320 cases had been disposed of and pensions granted. By the end of March he expected 10,000 pensions would have been granted, and by the end of March, 1918, it was expected that between 35,000 and 40,000 pensions would have been granted.

Col. Labatt closed his address with an eloquent plea to the business men of Montreal to see that everything possible was done to facilitate the proper working of the board that had to deal with this matter and to see that the men who were going forth to fight for the cause of the right were properly looked after when they came back, and that if they never came back that their dependants were treated in the fair and square manner that was necessary to keep the name of Canada clean

Gives you pep, vigour, and 100 p.c. more strength in 10 days.

Dr. Mainprise of Saskatchewan, advises people who are weak, run-down, anaemic and nervous, to start to-day to strengthen themselves by taking Iron for their blood. It has always been an understood fact that Iron was an excellent remedy for the blood, but owing to its constipating, nauseating effect it has been eliminated from use. Doctors have overcome this by combining the iron with phosphorus which forms a new iron and at the same time the phosphorus used acts as one of the greatest nerve tonics known to medical science. You now have what is known to your druggist as Bonised Phosphorus with Iron. Dr. Mainprise finds this to be four fold in action. It charges the system with new blood, strengthens nerves, gives greater strength and a new Digestion. Your stomach will now be ready for good, big hearty meals that will be thoroughly digested. Start to-day and take Bonised Phosphorus with Iron if you are thin, pale, weak, tired, run down, anaemic, nervous, etc., and in ten days you will be full of pep, bright, vigorous, alert, attaining the glow of happiness. Stop taking all sorts of worthless patent medicines, cheap laxatives, for what you imagine will cure kidney troubles, stomach pains, rheumatism, etc. What you want is good strong pure blood and strong nerves, making your system immune to all these everyday complaints.

Bonised Phosphorus with Iron, as spoken of here, does not contain one atom of arsenic or strychnine, which is found so harmful in almost every tonic. Arsenic and strychnine act only as a temporary stimulant, making you feel better only for the time you are taking them; while Bonised Phosphorus with Iron goes to the root of the trouble, builds you up, strengthens your nerves, giving you a new lease of life. It is dispensed only by one druggist in each city. Agent for Peterborough is F. C. Weber, Charlotte Street.

OUR SERIAL STORY

"DESTINY"

By CHARLES NEVILLE BUCK

And always to the sunken-eyed anxiety of his mother and the puffy-eyed misgivings of his father, and the quaking terror of his brother, he gave back laughing assurances of his unquenchable power. To them he treated as technicalities, which he would casually brush aside, Federal prosecutions and congressional investigations, and the solid phalanx of financial interests that constantly drew their strangling cordons around him. He never admitted to others or to himself as a possibility the reckoning that was sure beyond question. Yet except for a detail of months or weeks, he was as irremediably ruined as though already the tape of the stock-ticker had spelled out its unemotional announcement, "Hamilton Burton cannot meet his obligations." He had been wounded through the one vulnerable joint in his armor: his great self pride and unquestioning assurance were struck to the quick of his heart. His day was done.

Since he had lost in dozens and in scores of millions and could return to his preeminence only by mighty leaps, he plunged again in dozens and scores of millions, as befitted a mighty gambler. And in scores he lost and in scores again he plunged, to his ruinous and total undoing.

* * *

As the Burton fortunes were dwindling, Loraine Haswell, who had come now from the Riviera to Paris, found her state of mind reaching an anxiety that threatened first her composure, then almost her reason. She knew of her husband's ruin, and had written him a letter of condolence rather more human than any of her other communications to him had been of late.

But that the shattering of such a moderate financier as Len Haswell should foreshadow the total ruin of a money czar like Hamilton Burton, and impoverish his parasite brother, was an idea too colossal to grasp in its entirety. Yet in the news from America it slowly dawned. In the Paris edition of the New York Herald it was convincingly chronicled, and the beautiful dark haired woman who had thrown away her husband began to see that she had no reserve upon which to fall back. Had Len's modest fortune survived that tempest it would have been easy to have put back into port. A little contrition and confession that she had tried living without him and saw it was impossible, would have won his forgiveness, because his heart had been too sore to calculate. But now Len was bankrupt and Paul would be likewise.

In these days Carlos de Metuan was no longer a speaker of veiled phrases. He was playing the role of the generous Platonic friend, watching her moods and seeking to comfort her.

There was no strain of iron in this woman's soul, and that suited his purpose. Just now he would gain more by merely standing by. Her increasing alarm would one day turn to panic and she would lose her head. For that day he could afford to wait.

Loraine was undergoing an agony, and when the time came which the duke regarded as the psychological moment, and he boldly offered her his his proposition, she made a lovely picture of a woman in distress converted into a righteous fury.

She sent him away with blazing eyes and words that should have scorched, and he went with a shrug of the shoulders and smiled when he was out of sight. "It is not for long," he told himself.

In that cynical conviction Carlos de Metuan was correct. Loraine tried poverty and loneliness for a while in Paris, and because she was still a creature of rare beauty, several other men with greater or less degree of skilled language suggested similar solutions.

At last she met the duke again. He had been in Andalusia and had returned once more to Paris. He was driving in a motor car and came upon her walking near the Arc de Triomphe. He halted the car and asked her to let him drive her home. At first she demurred, but in the end consented to let him drop her at her pension, provided he would promise to leave her immediately at her door.

"Assuredly," agreed the man very gravely. "But in return, you will do me a favor, you will let me call for you tonight, and will dine with me?"

Carlos de Metuan arrived promptly that evening.

Loraine had made her fight, and regarded herself as a defeated martyr. The hour and a hour before his coming she had not devoted to tears but to beautifying herself. She met him radiant and from her eyes and lips all the disfigurement of distress was vanished. She laughed and chatted throughout dinner and over the coffee leaning forward a little, she asked:—"Where do you mean to take me from here?"

"To a comedy, perhaps, wherever you like."

There was a brief pause, then she looked up and put a second question. She put it with the best nonchalance that she could surrender. It did not sound like unconditional surrender.

"And after that?"

Carlos de Metuan lighted a cigarette.

"I have leased for you a very good apartment not far from the Champs Elysees. I think you will find it comfortable."

For an instant the woman's eyes hardened.

He shook his head, and smiled.

"I merely hoped," he assured her.

CHAPTER XXIX.

Possibly some day a historian versed in the intricacies of high—and low—finance will record in detail, comprehensively and convincing to those who thirst for statistical minutiæ, the last chapters of Hamilton Burton's history. Here it will only be set baldly down that the weeks for him went galloping toward and over the brink of things—until he found his affairs still reckoned in millions, but all in the millions of liabilities.

He was pointed out derisively in those expensive hotels where once every head had bowed obsequiously at his coming. Then one night he went to his office, carrying a leather portfolio in his hand. He still walked with his head up and met the gaze of every man who cared to gaze into his own. About his neck was turned up the collar of a sable lined overcoat—relic of his days of splendour. As he walked down town he met no one who knew him and this suited his purpose. Lower Broadway after nightfall is as murky and silent as upper Broadway is aflare and noisy. The steep buildings are like cemetery shafts save where belated clerks work over their books and night watchmen guard their posts.

Burton's offices, still his under a nitaire and accessories—since the shernitaire and accessories—since the sheriff had already begun his confiscations here.

But to-night Hamilton Burton meant to use them for another and a grimmer purpose—in fact a final. The one. The portfolio which he carried contained a dilapidated old blank book, such as one buys in a cross roads store, a volume of verse, and an automatic pistol, carefully loaded. When the now inevitable moment came which should leave his family reafless—he would not be there to see.

There is no saying what small matters may, at a given crisis, bring solace to a man who requires it. Now, Hamilton Burton appeared to find the necessary comfort in the boast which he nursed to his heart, that his exit from the world, with which he had played duck and drake, was to be entirely voluntary, and in no wise forced: that though he was closing life's door upon himself he was still crossing the Stygian threshold the captain of his soul.

His face was calm enough as he turned on the light and drew down the blinds of his private office. He had no knowledge of another tall figure, bearing abundant signs of adversity that, from the opposite side of the street, halted to glance up just as he showed himself there in the window.

Hamilton Burton deliberately unlocked the morocco brief case with its gold clasp. First, he took out the pistol and carefully examined it, nodding his head in satisfaction. Still, as there was no table left, he laid it on the window sill, near at hand. He next withdrew the book of verses and after that the country store notebook with its dog eared and age-yellowed pages. These proceedings left the case empty save for a note directed, "Coroner's Agent, City."

In the days of his magnificence Hamilton Burton had regarded life-insurance as a poor man's buffer between his heirs and want.

For himself it had meant nothing, and he had passed it by. Only since he had secretly half-admitted his vulnerability, had he thrown such an anchor to windward, and all his policies were new—too new to hold validity against self-destruction.

And yet the brain that had been so cool always, so logical, had of late assumed a dozen unaccountable eccentricities. Through his thoughts with the obstinacy of an obsession ran one refrain: "'Twas no foeman's hand that slew him: 'twas his own that struck the blow!"

Men must not think of him as one beaten and murdered. They must remember him as his own executioner. Surely the lawyers would find a way. Surely their cleverness would circumvent the restrictions framed by these gamblers on the chances of life and death.

He opened the poetry volume at a point where a page was turned down, then, standing by the electric light, boldly straight, and without the air of a man who entertains fear of death, he read aloud, and with excellent elocutionary effect.....

"I only loved one country in my life
And that was France: I saw her break her heart
Against the cruel squares; then the last order
Broke from my lips as coolly as a smile.
God! How they rode! All France was in that last Charge; and France broke her heart for me...."

He paused and a deep melancholy spread over the features until the eyes might truly have been those of broken dreams gazing seaward from the rocks of St. Helena. He glanced again at the pages and quoted softly.

"Ninette, Ninette, remember the Old Guard!"

After that he laid the book aside, and turned the thumbed pages of the blank book. These were pages that were scrawled across in a boy's round hand. The man who had once been that boy stopped when he came to an entry written long ago by lamplight in an unheated attic, with frozen branches scraping the roof and the eaves.

The Value of Brains

Business success is the result of a careful and proper combination of CAPITAL and BRAINS and the lives of such men are a valuable asset to every Company, and as such should be adequately insured.

In proof of above Elbert Hubbard consulted a New York Financier who agreed to take a Bond issue for $100,000 at par, provided he held a Life Insurance Policy on Mr. Hubbard's life for a like amount. Why? Because Mr. Hubbard's brains were the CHIEF ASSET of the "Raycrofters." His mind was the THINK FACTORY, and the product of the business was the direct result of Mr. Hubbard's ideas. With Hubbard alive success was reasonably assured, but with Hubbard gone his loan would not be considered for a moment.

John Wannamaker and his son Rodman carry large amounts of Business Insurance, because it strengthens their credit and banks are beginning to require it.

Have you ever SERIOUSLY CONSIDERED what YOUR POSITION would be should your FIRM or Partnership lose through DEATH the BRAINS that have been the means of bringing success to your Institution. For a small sum you can guarantee again such misfortunes.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THEIR REAL WEDDING

By F. A. MITCHEL

John Burnes, foreman at an ironworks, had an assistant, Peter Rucker. Peter was as necessary to the works as the engine that supplied the motive power, and he worked as steadily as the flywheel which turned just so many revolutions every day in the week. Burnes often told the superintendent that he could get on without any one under him except Rucker.

Peter was thirty-five years old and unmarried. Burnes took him home to supper with him one evening, and there he saw for the first time Burnes' daughter, Madge, sixteen years old. Rucker was looked upon by the girl as a friend of her father and of another generation. But while Rucker was talking shop with Burnes he had an eye for Madge, and he wished he could knock ten or fifteen years off his age so that she would look upon him in a different light. When he left the Burnes home Mrs. Burnes said to her husband:

"Did you see the looks he gave Madge?"

"No. What d'ye mean?"

"I mean that he's a chance for the lass to get a good husband."

"Tush, mother! She's only a child, and when she comes a year or two older she'll be thinkin' o' some laddie with a sproutin' beard."

"She's thinkin' o' one o' that kind now. There's a younker that comes to deliver goods from the store that's caught her eye."

The result of this interview was that Rucker was asked again to supper, and when the meal was over Burnes had a headache and must go to bed and his wife must nurse him. That left Madge to entertain Rucker, which she did with a poor grace, for she was thinking of the grocer boy, Bob Decker, with whom she had an engagement for the same evening.

Rucker divined this to be encouragement on the part of Madge's parents, and since Madge kept her feelings to herself his heart leaped for joy. With much stumbling he asked Burnes if he would object to his trying to win his little girl for a wife, and Burnes assented. But it was Mrs. Burnes who won Madge for the wooer, though he thought he had done it himself. The mother held a picture of comfort with Bucker and one of poverty with Decker should she marry him, for his salary was but $15 a week, with no prospects.

So on the day Madge was seventeen she gave her hand to the sturdy mechanic, while her heart remained with the grocer's delivery boy.

Rucker did not expect much demonstration of affection from his wife. He calculated on her growing dependent upon him and thus drifting into that affection which follows later in life between married couples. But he noticed that she had none of the elasticity, the spirits that should be in one on the threshold of life. This seemed to go from bad to worse, and one day he said to her:

"Tell me, little one, what troubles you. No matter what it is, I will make it right if it is possible."

Her only reply was tears. Rucker spoke so kindly to her, urging her to cast her burden upon him, she trusted him so implicitly, that at last she told him that she loved Bob Decker, but could not have married him because he was poor. She had therefore yielded to her mother's persuasion that she should marry Rucker.

Had the ironworker been struck by one of the sledges used in the works he could not have been more completely knocked out. But the soul of a strong man will stand up when his body will go down. Not a twinge did he permit his young wife to see. It was some time before he spoke again; then he said:

"I didn't know I was standing in the way of your happiness, little one, or I would not have done so. But I am in honor bound to undo what I have done. I will see that you secure a legal parting with me, and not only that, but to make amends for the wrong I have done you I will make it safe for you to marry the man you love. I have a bit saved and will give it to you that you may not want."

There was a strange look in the young wife's eyes when she lifted them to her husband. But she said nothing. There was going on within her something that she did not recognize. The young man to whom she was to be given came up before her. He was a very ordinary youth, whom she had set up in her mind to worship. But somehow she could not conceive of his doing anything like this. The man whom thus far she had looked upon as standing between this young lover and herself now suddenly loomed up as something grand, something noble. In a twinkling it was revealed to her that to exchange him for the other would break her heart.

Words could never undo the words she had spoken. Fortunate is woman that she has something stronger than words with which to express herself and which seldom fails with man. Tears came again.

"Don't cry, little one. It will soon be all right. It can be undone and you will yet be happy."

He reached for her hand to soothe her. She threw her arms around his neck.

"You may go tonight," he said, "and I promise you that within a year you shall be living contentedly"—

"I don't want to go!" she sobbed.

That was their real wedding. The former one had been a sham.

PAPER IN THE MAKING.

Wood Pulp Is the Basis of Most of the Modern Product.

Two thousand years ago paper was made by hand in little cradles. The word paper is derived from papyrus, a plant from the leaves of which a pulp was made by pounding and macerating in water. Nowadays, of course, improved machinery is used to make paper, and in this one item of manufacture America leads the world.

Writing paper is made mostly from rags, but for practically all other grades wood pulp is the basis. The wood used is spruce or poplar or hemlock. Poplar is used for fine book papers and spruce pulp goes into newspaper, wall paper and bag paper.

The fine wood pulp must, of course, be treated with a preparation containing clay, dyes and other ingredients and called "stuff" before it finally becomes paper. But by a careful process of filling in the open spaces with clay and pressing through heavy steel rollers or mangiers, the wood pulp takes on the appearance and texture of paper.

As the product comes from the paper machine it is wound off on a reel, making a large roll. A roll of newspaper will weigh almost a ton and is often handled by a derrick, says the Philadelphia Ledger.

PIMPLES and BOILS
ALL OVER FACE AND BODY

When the blood becomes impure you will find that pimples and boils will break out all over the body, and although they are not dangerous trouble, they make you appear unsightly both to your friends and yourself.

Miss Sylvia Swanson, Theodore, Sask., writes: "I am letting you know what great value your B.B.B. has been to me. A year ago I started to grow pale and weak, the cause being bad blood. I got so many pimples and boils all over my face and body that I would not let strangers see me, and I used to avoid company. I tried many remedies but all seemed a failure. I read about how good your B.B.B. had been to thousands of people so I got a bottle and after I had finished the second one my pimples and boils had all disappeared. People thought it a miracle how well I looked.

"Your grand old remedy sure has been as good as gold and better, to me".

Burdock Blood bitters has been manufactured for the past forty years by The T. Milburn Company, Limited, Toronto, Ont. See that our name appears on the wrapper.

WEATHER AND APPETITE.

People Eat More on Stormy Days Than They Do on Fine Days.

Watch what you eat the next time it rains or snows. Perhaps you think the weather takes away your appetite. It doesn't. It makes you eat more. The American Magazine explains what weather does to the restaurant business. The writer says:

"A study of weather and business has its surprises. For instance, restaurant men know that appetites are not the same on a dark, gloomy day as on a day that is bright and cheerful. Natural enough! The surprising fact is that people eat most on the day that is dark and dismal.

"'On a cloudy day,' an old restaurant man tells me, 'people just sit and eat. There is nothing else to do. On a nice day they eat less and hasten out into the open. But the less they eat the more particular they are about the quality.'

"Not so long ago a young woman opened a good little restaurant near the department of agriculture in Washington. Most of her customers are employees of that department. She does a big business every day, but the rush is greatest when the day is the stormiest. On a fine day the men from nearby buildings walk to restaurants farther away, just for the exercise. Those who do not go to other restaurants cut down their eating in order to spend all the time possible in the open air."

SAYS WE BECOME CRANKS ON HOT WATER DRINKING

Hopes Every Man and Woman Adopts This Splendid Morning Habit

Why is man and woman, half the time, feeling nervous, despondent, worried; some days headachy, dull and unstrung; some days really incapacitated by illness?

If we all would practice inside-bathing, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of thousands of half-sick, anaemic-looking souls with pasty, muddy complexions we should see crowds of happy, healthy, rosy-cheeked people everywhere. The reason is that the human system does not rid itself each day of all the waste which it accumulates under our present mode of living. For every ounce of food and drink taken into the system nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out, else it ferments and forms ptomaine-like poisons which are absorbed into the blood.

Just as necessary as it is to clean the ashes from the furnace each day, before the fire will burn bright and hot, so we must each morning clear the inside organs of the previous day's accumulation of indigestible waste and body toxins. Men and women, whether sick or well, are advised to drink each morning, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of washing out of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the indigestible material, waste, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Millions of people who had their turn at constipation, bilious attacks, acid stomach, nervous days and sleepless nights have become real cranks about the morning inside-bath. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will not cost much at the drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate to anyone, its cleansing, sweetening and freshening effect upon the system.

Belgium Loses Great Poet

Although Belgium had not enough to suffer at the hands of the men who kill her sons or send them to captivity, a cruel fatality has deprived her accidentally of her most glorious children. This summer our great economist, Emile Waxweiler, who was to supervise the restoration of our national life, was killed in the streets of London by an automobile. This month a train in Rouen crushed to death Emile Verhaeren, the great literary figure of Belgium.

We had hoped that the same powerful voice which magnified the great industrial effort of Belgium and with a wild energy denounced the annihilation of all its attainments at the hands of the invaders would concentrate the vigor of an exceptionally virile talent in an inspiring hymn of triumph for the day when Belgium will be free again. This privilege has been refused to a man who deserved it so well, not only because he was a great artist, but because he is eminently a Belgian poet, uniting in his talent both the Flemish mentality and the French power of expression.

He was born in St. Amand, near Antwerp, in 1855, on the banks of the Scheldt, a region of gloomy mists, but with a fertile soil and a sturdy and lusty race of men. As a student in Louvain University, Verhaeren founded a literary periodical, La Semaine.

He soon became a friend of Maeterlinck. Edmond Picard, the editor of L'Art Social, converted Verhaeren to socialism. From the very beginning of his literary career the young poet had found himself especially interested in workmen and peasants. His first book, "Les Flamandes," aims to describe the Flemish farmers. Prompted by his juvenile extravagance, he drew of them a picture hideous and immodest beyond measure. The critics were severe upon the young artist, who tried to give loftier descriptions in "Les Moines" ("The Monks").

As an adolescent, he had been profoundly impressed by the mystical figures of the monks of Borahem, near his native place. In order to revive his impressions he had spent some time with the Trappists near Chimay. The picture he gives of the monk, however, is hardly less exasperated than the description of the "Flamandes." The friars are for him a disconcerting vision of a fierce asceticism in an inhospitable surrounding.

In both works his tumultuous soul, like a lens, was amplifying everything and overheating the eye of the observer. These, moreover, were the first symptoms of a mental and moral crisis through which Verhaeren had soon after to struggle.

Turned into a hypochondriac, he was more and more attracted by gloomy and dark visions. He went abroad and found a congenial surrounding in the foggy immensity of London. During his sojourn in the English city he wrote a trilogy of tears, fears, and despair, "Soirs," "Debacles," "Flambeaux noirs".

In 1891 he recovered from his illness and his despair in the conviction that he had a social mission. Like his friend, E. Picard, he thought that art should be made accessible to the people and help the conversion of the working classes to the ideal of collectivism. Verhaeren's social ideal, true it is, is more or less unprecise and negative. His vehement soul had conceived an immoderate hatred against the evils of our present society at the same time as an immense affection for the toilsome existence of the humble. He became the chanter of peasants and workmen, of their quiet and laborious life in the small towns, and the indefatigable denouncer of the unquenchable thirst of our modern ugly cities for more men to swallow up in their factories and their turmoils of money and pleasures. Verhaeren's style is somewhat harsh and irregular. The strength of the expression, the intensity and the sincerity of the feeling are its beauties. The sensations of the poet are intense and concentrated. Verhaeren accumulates in his soul the vision of the whole world and the strain oppresses him. His verses often are like the discharge of an overheated boiler, though they may also be serene and illumined by a soothing light as the ocean after a hurricane. Those are lulls in a tempestuous soul, never satisfied because it is too strong to put up with the meanness of a life without an ideal. It was born for a holy religious anger at the sins of the world, for a violent asceticism allied with an evangelican sympathy with the humble. The loss of the Christian ideal of its youth and of so many generations of Flemish Catholicism bewildered that powerful mind.

This explains why Verhaeren could not be neutral and at the end of his life became a preacher of atheism. In quest of a luminous ideal, he eagerly welcomed the visions of that world of dreams in which scintillate the wan lights of universal fraternity, regeneration of mankind in love and equality, community of goods and souls, consciousness of a liberated mankind, religion of science, life of the universe, and to those idols he sacrificed with the hyperbolic faith of a Victor Hugo and the bitterness of a man who has never recovered from the loss of his first love.

The moral as well as the physical sufferings of Verhaeren have been productive of beauty. He is a great poet because while he has gone through the same struggles and made the same efforts as thousands of his contemporaries he could find the words that gave a powerful and imperishable existence to what was only vaguely apprehended by the crowds. He was the Rubens of the mentality of a portion of mankind during the last generation. He dies in a tragic manner while an immense tragedy is shaking the ideals of those who, like him, had an unrestricted faith in man.

Dye Before You Patch.

"Never patch a garment just before it goes to the dyers," was the advice of a young woman in a dyeing establishment. "Unless the patch and the thread it is sewed on with are exactly the same kind of material as the garment they will come out of the dye pot different shades. Here is a blue skirt that was brought to us cream colored. The cloth had worn through in several places, and the owner had patched the tiny holes so painstakingly that the patches could not be detected in the original color, but after the dyeing they showed up a darker hue. The amount of dye any material will take depends upon how much cotton, wool or silk it contains. It is so hard to determine that exactly that any garment that has to be mended can be matched much better after dyeing."

6 BOXES CURED PSORIASIS

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Cornwall, Ont., writes: "Three doctors described my trouble as psoriasis, and one said could never be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and hands, and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment and can entirely recommend a cure to be sure. I can hardly praise this Ointment enough."

Needed a Sea Turn.

Captain Lane had retired from active pursuit of his beloved calling and had turned his attention to town affairs. Having succeeded in rousing the citizens to the need of a drinking fountain and also to the need of two coats of paint on the town hall, Captain Lane felt himself a valued and important person.

One day he was asked by a sojourner in the town to give his opinion of the present administration.

"It's pretty fair," said the captain slowly. "Of course there's things that could be different and would be better so, but on the whole 'tis pretty fair. But now I'll tell ye—I'm speaking from experience, you understand—things at the seat o' government won't be run as they could be run till the people o' this country make up their minds to stop confining their votes to 'andjubbers!"—Youth's Companion.

SONGS OF THE FELINES.

Why Lions and Tigers Can Roar and Cats Purr and Mew.

One of the most interesting discoveries made lately is that of Sir Richard Owen that the lion roars, instead of purring, simply because the hyoid bone in his throat is loose.

In the cat this bone is stationary, so that the cat purs and cannot roar. But in the lion and tiger the hyoid is loose, and therefore when they calling to their mates the larger members of the cat family roar. The roars of the jaguar and leopard are like "hoarse, barking coughs, an interval of about one second separating the expiratory efforts," says this observer. They may be easily reproduced or imitated by sawing a piece of pine board with a coarse toothed saw. The cheetah, however, calls with a drawn mew, very much like that of the cat.

R. I. Pocock, superintendent of the London zoo, explains that those felidae, or cat family, that have an elastic ligament between the cartilages and the upper elements of the suspensorium—lion, tiger, leopard, jaguar—roar, but never purr, while all the other species of the felidae, with normally constricted hyoids, purr, but never roar, and among these are the cheetah and puma.

A Printer's Problem.

Marie bit upon a problem the other day more perplexing than George II.'s apple dumpling. She peered between the uncut leaves of a magazine and said:

"Mother, how did they ever get the printing in there?"—New York Times.

CROUP HAS NO TERRORS FOR THE MOTHER WHO ALWAYS HAS READY AT HAND A BOTTLE OF Chamberlain's COUGH REMEDY

Weakened By Anaemia Doctors Gave No Hope

Said She Was Threatened With Consumption, and Gave Her Three Weeks to Live

Anaemia is indicated by thin, watery blood. The gums and eyelids grow pale, there is great weakness and fatigue and digestion fails.

Since Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood, it is naturally most suitable as a treatment for anaemia. This letter proves its efficiency in the most severe cases.

Mrs. J. Adams, Port Hope, Ont., writes: "About six years ago I was taken with very weak spells and though I doctored with the family physician and used other medicines for two years, I got very little relief and, in fact, continued to grow weaker. I was so weak I could not wait on myself or raise my hand to my head and decided to go to my daughter in Toronto. When examined by Toronto doctors they pronounced me to be in a dangerous condition, threatened with consumption and other ailments and said I would not live for three weeks. One day I was looking through Dr. Chase's Almanac and read about the cure of anaemia by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I began the use of this treatment at once and am now well on the way back to health, after having used the Nerve Food for six months. I want my friends to know that my cure was effected by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food alone and after my discouragement from the use of other treatments, I feel it my duty to let everybody know about this remarkable cure."

As a restorative for persons who are pale, weak and run down there is no treatment to be compared to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Gradually and naturally the red corpuscles are increased in the blood, the color is restored to the cheeks and the strength comes back to wasted nerves and muscles. Revolution Coming In Germany Says Returned Neutral

LONDON, Jan. 16.—A neutral who left Germany last month informs the Times: "I lost fifteen pounds weight a month. All the time I was in Germany I saw no butter Saccharine is used instead of sugar, and affects the gums and causes diarrhoea, as does also the artificial coffee, which is horrible to drink. People are living mainly on potatoes and fish The only thing fit to eat is chocolate. Everyone is showing characteristic signs of jaundice—yellowish tinge of skin and white in the eyes. Money will not buy food, but the poor are under the impression that the officials are getting food from Belgium, presumably food intended for the relief of the Belgians. No sort of grumbling or criticism in public places is allowed by the authorities. As for clothes I had to wait two hours for permission to buy two pairs of socks, two shirts and six handkerchiefs.

"The national service law will kill all the small businesses. The middle classes, however, are ruined already. Middle-class morale has conspicuously deteriorated. A strong anti-Prussian anti-Berlin feeling is growing outside Prussia One of the objects of the national service law is to send to the front as many non-Prussian young men as possible so as to be able to release Prussians to keep Prussia's end up when the time comes.

"I met no one who thought Germany was going to win the war. Emperor William and the Crown Prince are finished. No one talks of them, but only of Hindenburg The really important men are Lucendorff and Gen Tappen, Mackensen, the chief of the general staff in Austria, is never mentioned.

"It is considered that England has been given far too much time to prepare for defences against the Zeppelins. I understand the German submarines now work in threes. It is popularly believed there is going to be an invasion of Holland or Denmark for the sake of the food they contain, and that Germany will attempt no further offensive on the western front.

"I confidently expect a revolution in Germany. There are said to be 10,000 deserters, including officers, in Holland awaiting events. Socialism is raising its head wherever it dares In a well-known district on the Rhine one is actually made to take off his gloves in the trains, for to wear gloves is a mark of the non-Socialist Nitrates made from air are good only for making nitric acid for munition purposes, and do not act properly when made into fertilizers for the soil, which is becoming exhausted."

PRINCES ARE COMMENDED

Brother of Austrian Empress Serving in Belgian Army.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—Prince Sixtus of Bourbon de Parm, and his brother, Prince Xavier, brothers of the Austrian Empress, who are serving in the Belgian army, have been commended in French army orders in the following terms. "They spontaneously offered their services in the cause of right, and attached to the section of stretcher-bearers in the first line, have on all occasions given proof of devotion and complete contempt of danger. At the beginning of the war the two princes sought to enlist in the French army, but could not be taken on account of the law excluding from the army all members of the former French Royal Family, whereupon they joined the Belgian forces."

$50,000 LOST, SHE ENDS LIFE.

Miss Julia P. Snow Kills Herself After Fortune Goes in Stock Market.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 15.—Despondent because she had lost $50,000 in the stock market after the recent peace note "leak," Miss Julia P. Snow, thirty-nine years old of Portland, Me., drank chloroform on the Charles River bank this afternoon and died soon after being taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

Miss Snow left No. 266 Bay State road, where she had been staying, at six o'clock this morning, and was unconscious when found by the police on the bank of the Charles. She was the daughter of a Portland lawyer, who died a few years ago. The $50,000 lost in the stock market was her entire fortune.

There is no use telling a boy to stop doing something he ought not to do, unless you show him something better to do in its place.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed With Sulphur It Brings Back Its Beautiful Lustre at Once

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural colour is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

WANTON DESTRUCTION IS NEUTRAL VERDICT

Zeppelin Crews Unable to Distinguish Cottage From Factory—German Official Reports Lie

S. S. McClure, the magazine publisher, who has been rather pro-German since the beginning of the war, was in Germany and there read of the frightful damage done by a Zeppelin raid. When he returned to England on his way home he took the trouble to visit the places where the Germans claimed to have wrought their destruction. He checked the British official statements, and then announced that the British figures were correct, and the German claims absurd.

Similar testimony has been given by a correspondent of the Springfield Republican, who appears to have been sceptical of the British reports. He was provided with credentials which took him to the districts visited by raiders, and there was permitted to interview witnesses of the raids, to count the dead and independently estimate the damage. He reports, as Mr. McClure reported, that the British figures are absolutely to be depended upon; and that the German claims are mere inventions. He asserted positively that it is impossible for the Zeppelin raiders to know anything of the damage they do; impossible for them to recognize the districts over which they are flying.

Germans do Not Know

A captain of one of the Zeppelins brought down in England, when asked how he could reconcile his conscience to dropping bombs on women and children, denied that this was done, and asserted that bombs were dropped only on military works and public buildings. Asked how he could tell where a bomb dropped on a dark night when he was a couple of miles up in the air he replied, with some mystery, that the Germans have their way of knowing. If this is true, then it is plain that the German reports of munitions works being destroyed and thousands of people killed are deliberate inventions, and not founded on the reports of the Zeppelin officers.

Even British Fail

British aviators flying at various heights over London in order to test the efficacy of the methods employed to darken the city on the approach of a Zeppelin agree that at a much lower altitude than that usually maintained by the Zeppelin it is impossible to distinguish prominent places. If those who are flying over London every day cannot tell one landmark from another, how is it possible for strangers flying much higher to do so?

SOLDIERS AS SPORTSMEN

Heavy War Between Canadian Sportsmen's Battalion and Greys

When the 147th Battalion, the Greys of Owen Sound, won the brigade lacrosse championship from the 199th, the Toronto Sportsmen, at Camp Borden, by the significant score of 16 to 1, the whole camp made merry at the 199th's expense. The Sportsmen were forthwith nicknamed "Bryan's Babies"; a dove of peace was suggested as their mascot, and grape juice was accredited with being the favorite beverage in their canteen. One night, shortly after this game, the two battalions met on the road when out at night manoeuvres. Immediately every man in the Greys began to count in a mocking roar, "One, two, three, four—" on up to sixteen. Why there was not a riot only the officers of the two battalions, who acknowledge having put in a bad half hour, can tell.

The Sportsmen later settled this score by winning the brigade soccer championship from the Greys by the heartbreaking score of 1-0. Men who saw that game have said it was one of the hardest fought, yet cleanest matches they ever saw played.

THE ALL-NIGHT CHURCH

Many Overseas Soldiers Attracted by a Little Lamp

"As many as thirty people often find their way into the church during the night," said the Rev. H. R. L. Sheppard, rector of St. Martin's-in-the Fields, Trafalgar square, the first church to remain open all night. "The little lamp outside the church," he said, "attracts a wonderful variety of people. We get many soldiers, chiefly from the Dominions, who are waiting for trains at Charing Cross Station, and often a poor homeless man or woman creeps in to rest for an hour or two. Even if the soldiers or wanderers do sleep, it is something to get them to church at all."

Doing Our Bit

All of us cannot fight. All of us—men, women and children—can do something towards winning the war.

Are we seeking that "something," or are we evading it? Are we looking for the "bit" we should do, or trying to forget it?

Take the Canadian Patriotic Fund. It has been created to care for the families of our soldiers in those cases—and those only—where need exists. Experience has shown that this means in two families out of three. Up to December 1, 1916, the people of Canada have given $16,500,000 to the Fund.

That is generous giving, isn't it? But the country is still at war; our armies are still growing; the soldiers' families are still in need; the Fund must still be maintained. And what do we find? In every part of the country men crying that they have given enough to the Fund—that Government should now take the burden.

Given enough! When the Canadian lad in the trenches is dead-tired, ready to drop in his tracks, does he chuck his job, declare he has given enough, and call on Government to get another man? Given enough! Is there a man in Canada has given enough if women and children are in need while he, the stay-at-home, has a dollar to spare?

No! This Fund, above all funds, has a claim on every citizen who is not himself a pauper. The fact that Government has not assumed responsibility for it is the fact that makes every man responsible for it—even if he thinks the Fund should be maintained by Government moneys.

Are YOU helping to insure this home against need?

Government Should Not Control, Because—

1. Government would have to treat all alike. The Fund helps only those in need. If Government paid the families of each soldier the average sum paid by the Fund the extra burden on the country would be between eight and nine million dollars yearly.

2. By paying the average sum those families in districts where cost of living is low would receive more than they need; those in high-cost areas would be paid too little.

3. Costs of administration would be enormously increased. This work is now done, for the most part, by willing workers without cost. Of every hundred dollars subscribed, Ninety-nine Dollars and Forty-six Cents go to the families! Never was a voluntary fund so economically administered.

4. The work would suffer. There would be no more of the friendly, almost paternal, relation now existing between the administrators of the Fund and the families. Government works automatically. The Fund's visitors are friends in need, therefore friends indeed.

5. Taxation would be unequal, for some counties and some provinces are already taxing their people for this Fund. Are they to be taxed again by the Federal authority?

6. The richer classes would be relieved of work they are cheerfully doing. They are now bearing, and bearing because they have the financial power and the patriotic willingness, the larger share of the burden.

7. The Fund blesses him that gives. It is a vehicle for public spirit—a channel for patriotic endeavor. The work of administering it has uncovered unknown reservoirs of unselfishness and sacrifice. Men and women have thrown themselves into this work because they found in it the "bit" for which they looked—their contribution to winning the war. Why stay their hand and stifle their enthusiasm?

8. Last, but not least: Government control means raising the money by selling Government bonds. Government bonds mean future taxation. And that means that the returning soldiers will pay, through long years, a large share of the cost of caring for their families—a cost we, the stay-at-homes, pledged ourselves to bear.

Men and women of Ontario: Bend your backs once again to this burden of

The Canadian Patriotic Fund

If you live in the rural districts see to it that your county councils make grants worthy of the counties and of the cause. If in the towns, start campaigns for individual subscriptions. And personally, taxed or not taxed, give as you can afford, give as your conscience tells you is your duty, your war-time part, in this day of national sacrifice.

Ontario will be asked in January to insure the Canadian Patriotic Fund that it can depend on having six million dollars in 1917 for the families of Ontario's soldiers.

Four million of these dollars must be secured from individual subscriptions. If there is no Branch of the Fund in your town or county send your subscription direct to the Head office, Canadian Patriotic Fund, Victoria street, Ottawa.

PROMPT MEASURES TO DESTROY RAIDER

ANOTHER RUSSIAN VICTORY IN ROUMANIA

Russian Forces Have Stormed And Recaptured City of Vadeni

Petrograd Officially Announces That City Has Been Re-taken By Czar's Troops---British Admiralty Admits Sinking of Merchantmen by Raider in South Atlantic and Announces That Prompt Measures For Its Destruction or Capture Have Been Taken.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PETROGRAD, January 17.—Russian forces have stormed and retaken the Roumanian City of Vadeni, to-day's official statement declares.

Commerce Raider To Be Hunted Down

Examiner Special:

LONDON (Bulletin), January 17.—The British Admiralty to-day confirmed the reports of the sinking of eight British merchantmen and two French ships by a German raider in the South Atlantic. Prompt measures have been taken to put an end to this menace to allied and neutral commerce. The capture or destruction of the raider is momentarily expected.

The Admiralty stated that the vessel St. Theodore was captured by the Germans and a prize crew put aboard. The St. Theodore in turn captured the Yarrowdale and pue aboard the latter vessel 400 members of the crews of other vessels which the raider had captured. No further information has been received as to the whereabouts of the Yarrowdale.

The Admiralty gave the names of the following British ships sunk: Voltaire, Dramatist, Radnorshire, Nertherby, Hall Mount Temple, King George, Georgic, Minieh. The Admiralty also announced the loss of the French ships Nantes and Asnieres.

The total tonnage o fvessels to-day officially reported sunk in the South Atlantic by German raiders was fifty-one thousand and captured ten thousand.

NEW YORK, January 17.—Included among the ships destroyed was the White Star liner Georgic, one of the biggest freight carrying vessels in the world. The Georgic sailed from Philadelphia on December 3, carrying a cargo composed largely of cotton. Being bound for Liverpool, it is obvious that the Georgic was not sunk in South Atlantic waters. The operations of the raider were first reported from the south, but the sinking of the Georgic convinces steamship men here that the raider performed an almost unbelievable feat. They believe the raider swept the ocean from north to south after eluding the British patrol, and that the Georgic was encountered in northern waters. That others reported last may have been in the same zone and that the raider then swept southward, capturing or sinking vessels not yet reported to the London Admiralty. From the Admiralty statement it would appear there are now possibly three raiders at large.

Grave Disturbances in the City of Cologne

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, January 17.—Grave disturbances, quelled only by the use of troops, have forced the closing of the railway station at Cologne, according to Central News despatches to-day from Geneva. The closing has been in effect three days, it was stated.

French Patrols Have Penetrated Foe's Lines

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS (French Official Communique), January 17. — French patrols penetrated the German lines at several points on the heights of the Meuse and in Apremont Forest.

German attacks at several other points were repulsed. After the bombardment reported in yesterday's communication the Germans attacked the French lines east of Clery and south of Bianche last night. The attack was repulsed. A small attack was made at Esparges, but this was also repulsed after lively hand-to-hand fighting.

American Contract For English Firm

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WASHINGTON, January 17.—The Navy Department to-day announced that Hadfields, Sheffield, England, had been given a contract for the manufacture of 14 and 16-inch armour-piercing projectiles for the United States Navy. Hadfields quoted a much lower price than United States firms.

Neutral Steamers Are Now Reported Sunk

Examiner Special:

GALVESTON, Texas, January 17.—Rumours were current in shipping circles here this afternoon that the Swedish steamers Consul Corntron and Consul Olsson, and the Norwegian steamer Asborg, all of which sailed from this port in November, have been sunk by the new German raider. The Swedish steamers were bound for Havre with 20,000 bales of cotton, and the Norwegian vessel carried ten thousand bales for Genoa.

Serious Disorders Are Reported in Berlin

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, January 17.—Rome's wireless press messages from Berlin declare disorders there are such that the military authorities have issued a threatening manifesto. The wireless also carried the rumour that the Reichstag may meet elsewhere than Berlin, because of these disorders.

WASHINGTON, January 17.—The British Admiralty is working out a plan for the convoying of British merchantmen through the Atlantic waters by fast cruisers and sea-going destroyers, it was learned to-day.

ATHENS, January 17.—A mixed commission of Allied and Greek officers has been formed to carry out the military guarantees demanded in the Allies' ultimatum. The same body is charged with the transfer of troops and munitions from Northern Greece to Peloponesus. On the committee are seven Italians.

DOLLAR DAY THE BIGGEST BARGAIN FESTIVAL OF YEAR

January 25th Has Been Selected as the Date for Big Event—Fifty-six Cash Bonuses Will Be Given Away By the Merchants

LIST WILL BE PUBLISHED

It is scarcely necessary to remind Peterborough residents of the delights of the big annual shopping day, that Dollar Day in winter has now come to mean. Now that the date, Thursday, January 25th, has been announced, and with only seven days left before the big day comes round, the excitement has already begun. Speculation as to what the stores will have to offer, and who will secure the fifty-six cash bonuses the merchants are giving away, is already rife. One hundred and seventy-five dollars to be given entirely free is enough to get a little enthusiasm into a shopping crowd, and promises to be the big outstanding feature of Dollar Day this time, as before.

The full list of between forty and fifty stores that are participating in the big event, will be published as soon as it is complete. With this list, and the sign of the Dollar Day Pennants in the windows, the public will soon be familiar with the stores that give away the estimating blanks.

AN APPEAL FROM FRANCE TO ST. PETER'S PATRIOTIC CLUB

TO THE YOUNG WOMEN OF CANADA:—

You who have worked so bravely and so diligently during the war, will you respond once more to the needs of the French soldiers in the trenches?

THEY NEED SOCKS, SOCKS AND AGAIN SOCKS.

"You will never know, you women of Canada, how, just by your knitting, you have helped to win the war." It was a French officer who said this quite recently at the Secours National. He himself has, many a time, gone without socks and speaks from bitter experience.

Wool is scarce in France. The Secours National hopes to ship ten thousand pairs of Warm Socks, knitted in Canada, to provide the brave "poilus" with warm footwear for this winter. The task before us is a hard one.

France will never forget what the Canadian soldiers and the Canadian women have done during this war.

Young Women of Canada, lay aside your fancy work and KNIT, KNIT, KNIT, and do not forget your French brothers in the trenches.

Those who cannot knit could assist by supplying wool or money.

MRS. FLETCHER, Secretary Treasurer, Sock Committee, Secours, National, 51 King St. W., Toronto.

St. Peter's Patriotic Club in response to an appeal last spring sent sixty pairs of socks to Verdun, and the secretary of the Club feels confident that this appeal will be generously received and that the members will be only too glad to do their bit for France.

FOUR RECRUITS FROM LANG HAVE JOINED THE 247th BATTALION

Signs of a Recruiting Revival Throughout the County---Successful Meeting at Millbrook Last Night With Good Prospects of a Number of Recruits--Dr. Frederick is Recovering--To-day's General Military News.

Sergt.-Major Harry Latimer took a little recruiting jaunt to Lang, in Otonabee, at the beginning of the week, with splendid results returning this morning with five recruits, four of whom were successful in passing the examination and becoming members of the 247th Battalion. The four successful recruits were all born in Otonabee. One of them, Pte. Spears, has two brothers overseas with the 93rd Battalion. The recruits were as follows:

John Alexander Keitel, Lang.
James Thomas Edwards, Lang.
Wm. Crossley Edwards, Lang.
Nelson Victor Spears, Lang.

The Edwards boys are brothers, and are the first pair of brothers to become members of the 247th Battalion. It will be remembered that the 93rd Battalion was noted for the number of family groups in its ranks.

Recruiting throughout the county is showing every sign of a revival. Herman McMillan, of Norwood, was taken on the strength yesterday, and Isaac A. Post, of Oak Lake, this morning. The greatest falling off in recruits is apparent in the City of Peterborough. If the city was doing its share as it did for the 93rd, Lt.-Col. Ackerman's battalion would be much bigger than it is at present.

A very successful recruiting meeting in the interests of the 247th Battalion was held at Millbrook last night. The Band of the 247th was in attendance and played a very enjoyable programme. Lt.-Col. Ackerman addressed the gathering telling them just why more men were needed, and then followed up his speech by exhibiting a number of most interesting war souvenirs. A duet by Mr. and Mrs. Johnston was thoroughly enjoyed. Before the meeting adjourned the nucleus of a 100 club for Millbrook was formed. The prospects are very bright for a number of recruits from the Millbrook district. After the meeting last night Lt.-Col. Ackerman swore in one well known young man whose example will be followed by a number of others.

Word has been received to the effect that Trooper Claude Barlett has been sent to England to have an operation on his knee. Trooper Barlett was kicked on the knee by a horse while on duty with the transport service at the front.

Mrs. J. Watking, 148 Park street has received the following letter from Pte. A. Pritchard, a Peterborough Prisoner of War in Germany.

Sunday, Dec. 10th

Dear Madam,—Just a line to let you know I have received your parcel on the 8th of December in good condition. It was a great surprise to have the flour and we have not seen any for some considerable time now, so it came as a surprise. Also the socks are very welcome now the winter is set in. Please thank everyone concerned in connection with the parcel so gladly received and give them my heartfelt wishes for a happy Christmas.

A. PRITCHARD.

No Casualties.

Major Cunningham, in writing to a friend, states that on the last occasion of which the 21st Battalion moved from the billets to the front line of trenches the movement was carried out without a single casualty. He reports that the battalion is now occupying the quietest postion on the British front.

Mrs. Guerin, 120 Sophia street, whose son, Pte. M. J. Guerin, formerly of the 93rd Battalion, was reported wounded a few days ago, has received the following letter:

Trenches, Dec. 30th.

I am sorry to have to write to tell you that your son, Pte. M. J. Guerin, was wounded at noon to-day by a shell. I am glad to state that the wounds are not serious. There are two, one in the leg and one in the back. The medical officer has just told me that they are not serious. In haste.

Yours sincerely,
SIDNEY BURNHAM, Capt.

KINGSTON, Jan. 16.— During the first two weeks of January, 1,003 men were enlisted in the Third Division (Kingston-Ottawa). The 230th Battalion secured 157 and the 240th 153.

At the Royal School of Artillery the officers attending the new course just opened were asked if they failed to secure commissions would they enlist as gunners for overseas service. About one-quarter of them stepped out, signifying their willingness to go with the lowest rank.

Pte. C. F. Davison, a Canadian prisoner of war in Germany, writes to the Soldiers' Wives' and Mothers' Club acknowledging the receipt of two parcels in good condition.

MONCTON, N.B., Jan. 16.—Twenty-train crews off the Canadian Government Railways to volunteer for service on the new military railroad in France are called for by an official circular issued to-day from the office of the General Manager, F. P. Gutelius, here. These railways are sending three hundred miles of rails and twelve hundred switches to the front, to be used in the construction of a railway and necessary terminals for the handling of supplies, munitions and men between the seaboard and the war zone. This new railway in France is being built by the Canadian Railway Construction Corps, and sufficient engines and cars are being sent from this side to equip it.

The crews will enlist as soldiers, and go for brief periods of military training, with the understanding that their employment will be the railway work, and with the further understanding that they will receive wages, made up of military pay supplemented by railway pay, equal to their present pay.

CITY WILL BE ASKED TO SUBSCRIBE $6,000

Fund is Being Raised in Canada for the Benefit of the Widows and Children of the Men Who Go Down in Ships—Peterborough's Opportunity of Recognizing the Work of the Sailors.

MEETING LAST NIGHT

"Why should we wait to see what others do. It doesn't matter what Brantford or any other place gives, let us do what we think is right."

The speaker was ex-Mayor W. H. Buller, and the occasion was a meeting of the local supporters of the British Sailors' Relief Fund, which was held last evening in the Patriotic Rooms in the City Buildings. The meeting had been dragging along for nearly an hour. Every man present was invited to get up and make a speech, and needless to say every man present endorsed the object, which is to create a fund for the benefit of the widows and children of British sailors of both the navy and mercantile marine. It is proposed to raise five hundred thousand dollars in the whole of Canada, and at the meeting last evening it was decided that Peterborough's share of this amount would be ten thousand dollars.

Appeal to the Council.

The bone of contention was the manner in which this money should be raised. After considerable discussion it was decided to appeal to the City Council for six thousand dollars and depend upon the County Council to provide the remaining four thousand dollars.

"This is the first time that Canada has had the privilege of recognizing in a practical way the work of the British sailor," said ex-Mayor Buller. "This thing of going from door to door is worn out," he added.

A strong deputation will wait upon the City Council at a meeting to be held at an early date, when the matter will be submitted to the tender mercies of the Aldermen.

At last night's meeting, Ald. Worth pointed out that the Bonner-Worth Co. Ltd. had only lost about five thousand dolalrs worth of goods in two years and a half of war. This splendid tribute to the effectiveness of the navy is only one of many cases that concern Peterborough alone. As one man pointed out if it were not for the British Navy every industrial plant in the City of Peterborough would be idle. As it is, local industries have suffered very little in the way of losses on the high seas.

In the Battle of Jutland six thousand men lost their lives. The mortality in the navy and mercantile marine is very high and the need of relief funds is every increasing. This is the first time that an appeal of this kind has been made in Peterborough.

Mr. F. D. Kerr presided at the meeting, while Mr. V. Eastwood filled the position of secretary.

Peterborough Health Association Meeting

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Health Association will be held in the City Council Chamber on Friday evening next. Reports of the district nurses will be received. This is an important meeting and all members are asked to be present.

TORONTO, Jan. 17.—Surgeon Colonel H. G. Barrie, originally of Peterborough and educated at Trinity University and with a surgical fellowship in Edinburg, is at the Queens, on his way from China to England, but he hopes to return to the front. Col Barrie has two Serbian decorations, and he earned them. In England when the war broke out, he offered his services, and was given command of a Red Cross hospital in Serbia. It was a small unit of eighteen, but it played its part in stamping out the typhus epidemic that ravaged Serbia. Certain Americans have claimed the cred it, but Col. Barrie, agreeing with an American author gives the credit to the British agencies. At the same time Col. Barrie has highest praise for American nurses. Like the British nurses, they regarded the work as more important than their lives.

Colonel Barrie is a great admirer of the Serbians. They remind him of his Scotch forebears. Honest, industrious, simple in their lives and their tastes the Serbs fight bravely and "it has been their business, their existence even, to fight the Turks, the Bulgars and now the Germans. Their struggle has evolved admirable qualities. They are unselfish, heroic and religious. They may be a trifle superstitious, but an admirable people. Serbia has not had a chance to set her house in order, but after this war she will be able to develop her resources. Her young men have been going to Berlin, Vienna, Paris and London. It does not follow that the Serbs have loved the Germans or Austrians. They have gone to the Hun Capital for academic reasons.

OPTION TO LEASE OF PRESENT GROUNDS WILL BE CONSIDERED

Annual Meeting of Peterboro' Industrial Exhibition, will be held on Saturday

The Board of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition met at Hooper's lunch room last night and discussed matters pertaining to the Exhibition and cleaning up affairs previous to the annual meeting which will be held on Saturday afternoon next. President G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., was in the chair. It is understood an option for the lease of the present grounds for a term of years will be considered at the meeting which can be cancelled on notice by either parties.

TAKE AN INTEREST.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Health Association will be held on Friday evening next. This is a simple announcement, yet it has a large significance and should elicit a very warm interest.

The public know, in part, what are the general objects and work of the Association; but it is doubtful if there is an extensive popular appreciation of its importance in our highest interest, the health of a considerable proportion of our citizenship, both from the aspect of the remedial treatment of disease and of the auxiliary agencies, which, if not directly curative, represent conditions that promote health restoration.

The activities of the Association are concerned with cases and conditions of illness that, if cared for at all, depend upon treatment that must be brought to homes where the conditions rather lend themselves to aggravation of disease; where means to provide proper conditions or proper nourishment, or skill to prepare it, are lacking; where means must be provided by some organization like the Health Association, whose activities in such cases are voluntary, and must, obviously, depend for sustained efficiency upon voluntary support. This, in turn, is contingent upon awakened and convinced public interest and sympathy. It is hoped that the meeting on Friday night will comprise the presence of every member of the Association at the City Council Chamber.

In the interests of humanity and in the spirit of Christianity, which makes humanity, especially the sorrowful and the suffering, its special care, there is no organization in Peterborough — not even the churches, which does as much good; which gives the true, Good-Samaritan touch to its merciful ministrations. This is the opinion expressed to-day by a Christian gentleman, whose relations and duties bring him in contact with cases of illness and suffering that are the care of the Association.

What makes its work particularly appealing, is the fact that it is the friend of the friendless; the succorer of the afflicted that have not the means, or are not in circumstances to demand the freely-given medical skill, the tender nursing, the needed nourishment that illness requires, and that—the Association provides.

Where victims of the dreadful white plague, prostrated by its weakness, racked and torn and shaken with its convulsive cough; worn and wasted with its consuming fire; the earning power gone, with lack of skilled care and strengthening food—the only defence against hopeless suffering and a living or actual death, the Health Association doctors and nurses, and the noble women of its membership come to the rescue, as they are doing in this very city, in many cases day after day, the year round.

Where illness in any form, coupled with want, or squalid surroundings, lays its heavy hand; where with scant means another little mouth to be fed is added to other hungry mouths, the care, the daily attention that lack of means otherwise forbid, come in the guise of the devoted and skillful and sympathetic nurses.

Wherever disease and suffering that otherwise would hold its unchallenged course; whatever human suffering appeals to the Christ-spirit in humanity, the Health Association, within the bounds of its capacities and resources, does its work. Skilled medication, skilled nursing and advice, nourishing food, and even delicacies, are provided.

All this costs money; all this costs hard work. These the doctors and nurses and active members can and do supply, but needed medicines and nourishing foods and protecting clothing for bed and body, must come from the generosity of the Christian public.

If the history of the daily and weekly and yearly activities of the Peterborough Health Association could be written, it would include gruesome and sordid tales of suffering, of destitution and want and wasting sickness that one could hardly think possible in a Christian community, but in splendid compensation would include with the sufferings, tales of splendid succor and heroic sacrifice, to the full limit of capacity and resources.

As we pass through our streets, beyond the walls of many a sorrowful home there is suffering, which for our peace of mind we do not know and cannot picture as possible, needing help—your help—by the proxy of your purse, if in no other way.

Is it nothing to you, all ye that pass by?

PREACHING AND PRACTICE.

Consistency, implies honesty; and honesty to be consistent must be honesty. We have Hon. W. T. White the Canadian Minister of Finance calling for national economy, popular saving, popular avoidance of unnecessary expenditures. This call is an admirable thing, but there must be government consistency. In the first place has the Finance Minister taken any trouble to see that the public money he hands out is spent with economy by the various government departments to which he distributes it? Are any of them practicing the economy what Sir Thomas calls upon the people to practise as a patriotic duty? Is he appealing to the Militia Department to be more careful in its expenditures. Is he trying to provide that every dollar ostensibly spent for military purposes is spent directly for purposes that contribute to useful service in waging war—that every bullet, silver or otherwise finds its billet?

Sir John Hendrie, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario has done an admirable thing. As Honourary President of the Penny Bank he has addressed a letter to each teacher seeking their co-operation in "instilling into the minds of children, especially for the duration of the war ideas of saving and thrift." His letter points out that "much can be done to help the cause of the allies by denying oneself needless and foolish luxury and at the same time encouraging habits of thrift." Admirable sentiments in social science but applying to others than school children, but without the touch of honesty and sincerity that example would give. One can without being a socialist or communist ask how Sir John Hendrie as Lieutenant Governor has sacrificed in the interest of saving and thrift to help the cause of the allies? Such an inquiry may be thought impertinent but is it? He is theoretically a public servant and the people pay $10,000 a year, and the cost of maintenance of his residence in a million dollar castle a hundred times too costly and elaborate for a democratic province like Ontario—the cost of the coal bill alone would keep a dozen war prisoners; the cost of one official tea-drinking would buy a dray load of shells.

One will not assert that expenditures like this are not legal, whether or not in war time, they are legitimate, but the conditions seem to have logical relation to injunctions to school children to "cut out" butter Scotch and other "needless and foolish luxury" to help the cause of the allies."

When honest King George in saving to serve, cuts down his bill of fare to a three course dinner, soup, roast beef and pudding without wine, we may expect governors as well as governments to set an example.

The Ontario government has the greatest warrant for retrenchment for it has been outrageously extravagant, having trebled the provincial expenditure since it took office, built an unnecessarily elaborate residence for the Lieutenant-Governor at a cost of a million and burdened the Compensation Act with "over-head charges" of $26,000 in the shape of extravagant officials before a widow or orphan of an employer can get a dollar of compensation.

Nobody wants to cheese-pare in the matter of public expenditure or adequate remuneration of public officials; but when we get injunctions to saving and thrift, we expect that there will be some evidence that the enjoiners to some small degree, practice what they preach, realize the spirit of Chaucer's "Preste"—

Cristes lore and his apostles twelve
He preached; but first he practised it himselve.

Any man, whether Bishop or Finance Minister who preaches without practising hasn't much advantage in the matter of consistency over a drunken sailor devilering a temperance lecture.

BEATTY YOUNGEST CHIEF.

Commander of British Naval Forces Beats Even Nelson's Record.

Sir David Beatty, Commander in Chief of the British North Sea fleet, is the youngest officer who has ever exercised so great command in the history of England. Commenting on this fact The Naval and Military Record of London says:

"Nelson was only 46 when he hoisted his flag on the Victory to achieve his last and greatest triumph. On assuming command of the Grand Fleet Sir David Beatty is only 45 years of age. He is by many years the youngest officer who has ever held command of the principal naval forces of a great naval power. His only rival in point of age is Vice Admiral A. V. Kolchak, who this year assumed command of the Russian Black Sea fleet—a comparatively small force.

"It has been remarked that Admiral Beatty is already 'something of a hero to the man in the street.' Other Admirals have shared that distinction. Nelson himself was the idol of the British people at a moment when he was distrusted by the Admiralty.

"Whatever popularity Sir David Beatty enjoys he has won by his achievements and by no meretricious effort on his part. In three successive engagements he has confronted the enemy, and we anticipate that his appointment will not be popular in Germany. He is credited with a courage which borders on rashness. We believe this to be completely unfounded. Sir David Beatty has never shown himself as rash as Nelson was on more than one occasion in his career."

A MINISTER WHO DOES NOT REPRESENT THE SENTIMENT OF LOYAL BRITISH CANADIANS

The Liberals of Dorchester County, where the Hon. Albert Sevigny, Minister of Inland Revenue, is now standing for re-election, are meeting to-day to discuss whether or not they will nominate a candidate to contest the election. Although it was at first thought that the new minister might be allowed re-election by acclamation, so strong an opposition has developed against the appointment of the avowed Nationalist of 1911 to a seat at the council board of the Dominion in time of war, that it is possible that resentment is likely to find vent in a bitterly-contested election. The Liberals of the county have made it plain to Sir Wilfrid Laurier that they desire an opportunity to express their convictions and are not disposed quietly to allow Mr. Sevigny to reap the reward of his anti-British sentiment of 1911. The slogan is "No quarter to any Nationalist" and it is probable therefore that a Liberal candidate will be nominated.

The Liberals of the county are confident that they can defeat the new minister, and they believe that it is in the national interest that he should be defeated, as being indicative of Quebec's real sentiment towards Nationalism. In the last provincial elections Mr. Lucien Canon, a brilliant young Liberal, was elected by a majority of over 500. Mr. Sevigny, who had a majority of less than 200 in 1911, is standing for re-election in practically the same constituency. Although Mr. Sevigny probably classes himself a straight "Blue" at the present time, the Liberals of Quebec have not forgotten his straight Nationalist speeches in 1911. It is recalled that at one meeting in 1911 he expressed himself as follows: "The Laurier Cabinet is a Cabinet of Imperialists, disposed to sacrifice the interests of Canada and to launch us into wars which do not concern us. What has England ever done for us? She has no need of our aid. She is strong enough to defend herself. You should protest against the idea of aiding England in her wars. If you do not protest you will certainly have conscription." Again at St. Flavie in July of 1911 he declared: "To-day they would give us a Navy which would serve only the interests of England. When they speak of war with Germany, with Russia or perhaps with France, they would seem to make Canada, which has always been happy and peaceful, furnish cannon and war vessels to make war on these big countries."

In view of sentiments like these, which have never been publicly repudiated by Mr. Sevigny so far, the Liberals of Dorchester are naturally decidedly bitter and are anxious for a fight against the man who now aspires to a position in a war cabinet. Had a straight Conservative been brought into the Cabinet there would undoubtedly have been no contest. Or possibly had the constituency been vacated by death, it might have been allowed to have been filled by acclamation, in accordance with the policy laid down by Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the course of his correspondence with Sir Robert Borden relative to the extension of Parliament and the filling of vacancies. But in the present instance the vacancy in Dorchester has not been brought about by death but is due to the promotion of another Nationalist to the Borden Cabinet.—Montreal Herald.

English Munition Factories Show Enormous Increase

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—The following Associated Press correspondence from London, date Jan. 5, is published here to-day: English munitions factories are now turning out every forty-eight hours more heavy gun ammunition than they manufactured in the entire first year of the war, and the production is still increasing week by week in preparation for the great offensive on the western front which British military critics believe will come next spring.

Although figures of the actual production of guns and munitions are jealously guarded, and there is no avowal on the part of the Ministry of Munitions of any intention to discontinue the importation from America, there is an evident feeling of optimism among the officials in the big munitions headquarters just off Whitehall, as well as a willingness to give out "comparative figures" to justify that optimism.

Tremendous Increase.

"The improvement in our position may be illustrated in this way," remarked an official of the Ministry. "We are now manufacturing every week three times as many 155-millimeter shells, five times as many 200-millimetre shells, and three times as many 230-millimetre shells as we manufactured during the whole first year of the war.

"Of smaller shells, we are turning out in about a week the same quantity as was produced during the first year. Finally the number of shells of all kinds completed during the past week exceeded by about thirty per cent the entire stock of munitions held in reserve at the outbreak of hostilities."

Dealing with guns in the same way, it is found that, representing the number of guns manufactured during the first year of war as 100, the number for the second year would be 841 and for the third year will be somewhere in the neighbourhood of 1,360. The manufacture of lighter pieces has had to be slackened recently, owing to the fact that the equipment of the British army in light field pieces is approximately complete, and it is only necessary to provide for replacements and renewals.

The improvement is the manufacture of machine guns, rifles, grenades and explosives has been equally satisfactory. Representing the total number of machine guns delivered to the army during the first year as 100, the total for the second year was 1,250, and for the third year will exceed 6,000.

The production of trench mortar ammunition and grenades has been so much developed that any further increase scarcely seems necessary. The increase in the manufacture of explosives has been tremendous. For every ton of explosives employed in September, 1914, 350 tons were employed in July, 1915, and 12,000 tons in July, 1916.

Moth Killer.

If moths get into a closet saturate a cloth twelve inches square with formaldehyde; place cloth in the closet and close up tightly for twelve hours. The same plan may be used in chests, trunks or boxes where clothing is stored. The fumes will kill moths as well as their eggs.—New York American.

RESERVED SEATS FOR FRIDAY'S GAME ARE NOW ON SALE

Only Limited Number Will Be Issued--Biggest Crowd of Year Will See Two Past Junior Organizations Battle For the District Honours.

Reserved seat tickets for the Oshawa-Peterborough junior, O. H. A. game at Brock Street Rink on Friday night went on sale yesterday at the Warne Drug store and will be available while they last up to 5 o'clock on Friday afternoon. As only 135 reserved seats on the west side and 50 balcony seats are on sale before the game the fan who wants to be sure of a seat should not close this opportunity. The game promises to be the hardest fought if the season on local ice as the Oshawa team are coming up on Friday, determined to wind up the district race once and for all by beating the Petes here. The red white and blue team, however, expect to have something to say about that and there will be few dull moments. Either Dr. Jerry Laflamme or Lawson Whitehead will handle the game.

The Peterborough team had a lively practice game with the 247th. intermediates last night and with another workout on Thursday night should be in the pink of condition for Friday's battle. Inquiries for seats have been made by Lakefield and Millbrook fans and the probabilities are that by far the biggest crowd of the year will be on hand to see the two fast junior teams battle for district honours. It may be the decisive game in the group race; at all events the young Petes cannot afford to lose. The continued cold snaps promises the best of ice.

OSHAWA EASILY BEAT BOWMANVILLE BY 16 TO 4

OSHAWA, Jan. 16 — The junior team from Bowmanville played here to-night in the O.H.A. junior series, and Oshawa needed this one to stay in the running for the group championship. Oshawa scored six and Bowmanville one in the first period, Oshawa five and Bowmanville one in the second, and Oshawa five and Bowmanville two in the third, making a total of sixteen to four.

A CURLING STORY FROM LINDSAY'S SECRETARY

The Lindsay Warder says: There are perhaps few curlers in Ontario who can equal "Bob" Knowlson, of the Lindsay Curling Club, in point of popularity—and hale fellow well met. There are few who can "hold a candle with him" in the point of curling, and fewer still who can equal him in telling a good story.

The other day a number of the devotees of the roarin' game were congregated in the "Chamber of Horrors" at the Lindsay rink telling stories about crooked ice, inwicks, kisses, chaps, and other mysterious pet names, when 'Bob' got off the following story, for which he called on the veteran J. D. Flavelle to verify:

"Talk aboit crooked ice," said Secretary Knowlson, "but I will never forget a game we played at Peterborough before their new rink was erected. The ice had a slant on like a pig's back, and in order to make a draw shot Skip Flavelle was giving us ice 15 feet out, and to the side of the blue circles. On this occasion Peterborough were lying shot, unguarded (except for the crooked ice), and Lindsay wanted the shot out, very badly. Mr. Flavelle asked me what I would play, and how I would carry the shot through "the house," and I replied that I thought the only way would be to play a fast runner. So I up and delivered one of my very fastest runners. Well, fortunately, I missed the shot and it went clean through to the bank ripped a board off and landed in the back yard. There was no door at the rear of the rink, and the aperture made by the missing board was too small to get through comfortably, so I had to go out the front door, walk away round and down an alley to the rear of the rink, climb a small picket fence, get my stone and carry that 45-pounder back again through the front door and to the ice. Can you beat that!"

Nobody could. "Bob" had them all beat.

Three points to the good, with the score 29 to 26 in their favour, Peterborough won the primary Tankard round from Lindsay yesterday afternoon after an exceptionally close game. The personnel of the rinks and the scores were are follows:

Skip 13	Skip 17

SCORE BY ENDS.

O'Connor ..xx3xxxx36xx12x11xx—13
Waddell .. ..18x21 21xx18xx1xx11— 17

The Little-Lang game was finished first leaving Lindsay up one. Coming home on the last end Waddell was three up but with only two stones to play O'Connor was lying three and had a comparatively safe looking layout. Waddell wicked off one of the Lindsay stones and lay shot and in attemping to take him out O'Connor missed the shot and Peterborough took the end, the game and the round.

There was a lot of good curling shown yesterday and a slight dilution of what is called "off colour." Pete Lang was up against a skillful and experienced player in George Little of whom it is said that he has never lost a Tankard game in Peterborough and he has been coming along for quite a number of years.

He plays the game to win, the first end as carefully as the last and any of the others as if the game rested upon it. Lang made a good finish coming along with five counters on the last three ends. For sixteen ends Little either cut down the score or drew the shot, a steady unrelenting pressure all the way. Rollie Waddell played a splendid game. His rink gave him good support and he made good use of the preliminary work they set up. He took an early lead and held it all the way although O'Connor gave him a battle on every end.

PHILLIES SIGN HAMILTON PITCHER.

HAMILTON, Jan. 17.—Norman Lutz, who pitched for the Century Club in Toronto against the Royal Canadians for the city championship, has been signed by the Philadelphia Nationals. Lutz received his contract from the Phillies last week. He is credited with having pitched a no-hit game against the Mounted Rifles at Britannia Park, Hamilton, last summer for the city championship, and in the game against the Royal Canadians he let that club down with but one hit.

RECRUITERS INVADE TRENTON POOLROOMS

254th Bn. Gets Permission of Proprietors to Put Two Men in Each.

TRENTON, Jan. 15. — The 254th (Hastings and Prince Edward Countries) Battalion is introducing a novel method to aid recruiting here. They have secured permission from the proprietors of the pool-rooms here to place a desk in each pool room with two men stationed there to plead with young men to join the battalion. Some of the leading citizens have volunteered to assist and will make short recruiting speeches to the players and assist the recruiting men in the pool-rooms.

HOCKEY GOSSIP

The Peterborough juniors will practice at Brock Street Rink to-morrow night at 7 o'clock in final preparation for their big game with Oshawa on Friday. Only the following players are expected out:

Murray, McIntyre, Montgomery, Graham, Cherrett, McFee, Bartley.

With the Whitby team on the ice warming up, a 'phone message was received at 8.10 at Whitby last night to say that the Bowmanville intermediate team had missed their train. As a result the scheduled intermediate O.H.A. game was called off, much to the disappointment of several hundred spectators, many of whom had driven several miles to witness the game. This default puts Bowmanville out, and the club must also settle Whitby's expenses for the default.

Although he had not played for years and is almost 20 pounds overweight, T. R. & A. A. are making every effort to induce "Ack" Hunter to turn out with them. In condition "Ack" would be a valuable acquisition to the Blue and White. Hunter figured on the T.R. & A.A. champion team of 1913.

Amateur hockey clubs and players are warned that all tours and exhibition games must be sanctioned either by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association directly or through the Provincial bodies which are in affiliation with the C.A.H.A.

The Lindsay Warder says: The Midgets had a great workout last night in preparation for the game against Peterborough Wednesday night, and although it is whispered that Peterborough will be strong, a surprise may be in store for them. For a certainty it will be no ping pong, cream puff affair and Lindsay fans are assured of something real stirring. Don't miss this chance to see the old rivals clash again.

Hockey fans will sympathize with Joe Dwyer, the former Peterborough junior and intermediate player, and now goal keeper with the Sarnia team, in his bereavement in the death of his father, Mr. Jos. Dwyer, Rubidge street, Peterborough.

The Oshawa Juniors who clash with the Petes here on Friday night, jumped into the leadership of the group last night when they beat Bowmanville easily at Oshawa by 16 goals to 4. The Petes will have to beat Oshawa here Friday to tie up the group, so that it will be a battle royal. The standing:

	Won.	Lost.	G. For.	Ag.
Oshawa	2	0	27	14
Peterborough	1	1	18	12
Bowmanville	0	2	5	24

The 247th intermediates leave for Lindsay on the 5.35 G.T.R. train this evening and will go into action against the Midgets to-night. It promises to be a hard-fought game. The Soldiers will line up as follows:

Goal—Legros.
Rover—Flanagan.
Centre—Armstrong.
Right Wing—Adams.

FULTZ TALKS CONFIDENTLY

Says Major League Players Will Support the Fraternity.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—A number of baseball players visited President David Fultz of the Fraternity at his office during the day, but they were as uncommunicative as the magnates. Fultz stated that matters were progressing satisfactorily from the players' standpoint, and that encouraging reports were coming in from all sections of the country.

"A number of the club owners," said Fultz, "have given it as their opinion that the requests of the players must fall flat since the major league players will not strike in support of their minor league brothers. They appear to forget that, with a few exceptions, the major league player begins and ends his baseball career in the minors. I venture to say that more than one hundred major leaguers at the present time will be in the minors before the close of the 1917 season, providing our differences are settled. They all know that the conditions the minors are fighting against at the present time may be the ones under which they will have to play in a comparatively short time themselves. If the club owners could only be brought to a realization of our strength and backing they would listen to our request without further delay."

Ban Johnson, of the American League, said on his arrived here Monday: "If the players want a strike let them go ahead. There will be baseball just the same this summer. I question whether many of the ball players want to make trouble for themselves, and I believe that the threat is purely made to justify the existence of an organization."

FREE WORLD IMPOSSIBLE

So Long as Ireland is Bound, Says T. P. O'Connor.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—T. P. O'Connor dined the inmates of the Perkins Bull Hospital at Putney. Describing Canada as the greatest triumph of the greatest institutions of our Empire, he continued: "If there be any among my old opponents and friends on the Irish question who expect this federation of our Empire can be consummated without the close of the struggle between England and Ireland by a concession to Ireland of autonomy, which has proven the salvation, the spiritual cement of the Empire, then I have to say to all that the world cannot become free and Ireland remain bound. There is no section which counts in the English schools of thought which is not convinced that such a measure of self-government to Ireland is not only an appeal to justice, but also to Imperial interest and repute. What stands in the way is not English opinion, but the relics of old divisions in Ireland itself coming from the dark and distant ages of unwise government. I speak in the well founded hope that this year will not have passed without seeing England and Ireland completely reconciled. By the side of your glorious country of Canada there lives, with only an imaginary boundary between, the most powerful democracy the world has ever seen. When the issue now before the world is decided I pray and hope that the democracy of America will unite in safeguarding the verdict of the battlefield."

Gunner H. Wilson, 26th Battery, in a letter to Mrs. Watkins, 148 Park street, takes this opportunity of thanking the Soldiers' Wives' and Mothers' Club for the parcel of socks which they sent him, and which he has distributed.

Dr. Frederick Better.

Notice has been received by one of Dr. Frederick's friends, that he has almost recovered from his attack of malaria fever and has been attached to the General Hospital, Alexandria, Egypt, as one of the staff. He was offered sick leave home, but declined in order that he might earlier give his professional services to those who needed his attention, as there is a shortage of doctors in Egypt and on the Mesopotamia expedition.

Mrs. J. Sanderson, 577 Harvey St., is in receipt of the following letters:

France, December 28.

Dear Friend,—If I may have the privilege of calling you such, I take pleasure in answering a note which I found in the toe of one of the pairs of socks that the ladies of St. Paul's Church sent to the boys of the 93rd. I can tell you they appreciated them very much as their feet were very wet, but we had a hard time changing them as Fritz was shelling us very heavily. Tommy Campbell was killed, and Charlie Jones and William Woodrow were wounded. Woodrow will lose his right arm. There were a lot of other lads hit, but these were the only Peterborough boys that I know of getting it as yet. Well, I am not allowed to tell any war news or mention any names, so you will have to excuse my short note, and especially this dirty paper and the scribbling as we have to hunt a dry place to write. I am in an old hole, and the water is dropping all around me, and so are Fritz's shells, but I trust to luck and duck by nut. So by-by, with the compliments of the season from your servant.

T. E. KIMBALL,
Late 93rd Battalion.

Dear Friend, — Just a line to say that I got your socks O.K., and they were just what we needed as it is so wet and muddy that we have to change about twice a day. We have to have lots of them, and we are sure getting lots for they are coming in every day.

Thanking you a thousand times for your kindness.

CLAYTON MONTGOMERY,
Late 93rd Battalion.

Mrs. Wm. Stanley, of the Soldiers' Wives' and Mothers' Club has received a post card from Pte. Alfred David of the Princess Patricias, who is a prisoner in Germany, acknowledging the receipt of a parcel of comforts. "Many thanks for the fine Christmas parcel," writes the Canadian boy.

Peterborough Y. M. C. A. Has Had A Very Busy and Successful Year

Annual Meeting Last Night at Which Reports Were Presented, Showing Many Activities During the Twelve Months Just Closed—Seventy Members of the Boys' Department on Active Service

THE DIRECTORS ELECTED

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Young Men's Christian Association was held last evening with President G. A. Gillespie in the chair and a good attendance. The annual reports presented indicated that the past year has been an unusually successful one, and that the Association has been active in many lines.

The four retiring directors this year were Messrs. G. A. Gillespie, Thos. Barrie, J. J. Howden and Dr. A. Moir. Mr. Howden and Dr. Moir were unable to continue as directors, much to the regret of the meeting. Mr. Howden has been a member of the Board for over fifteen years, and Dr. Moir has done valuable work. Messrs. Gillespie and Barrie were re-elected, and the other vacancies were filled by the election of Messrs. R. L. Dobbin and J. E. Smith. The directors will elect officers at their first meeting.

The following reports were presented:

Boys' Work Department.

The annual report of the Boys' Work Department for the year ending December 31st, 1916, was presented as follows:

Gentlemen,—In presenting this the report of the Boys' Work Department for the year 1916, we want to first thank all those who have given of their time and kindly co-operation with what we consider the most important work in our fair Dominion to-day, namely, the development of religious education for our Canadian boys.

Without the help of our leaders our Boys' Cabinet and the splendid way in which Mr. McCarrell the energetic chairman of the Boys' Work Committee supported your staff, the work would not have had the place that we believe it holds in the estimation of the public to-day.

Membership.

We have at the present time in the Boys' Department the largest membership of any time in the history of the Peterborough Association. The membership is made up as follows:

Junior Boys	231
Intermediate Boys	90
Expirations	35
Total	356

Of the 356, 195 are new members. Enlisted in the Canadian Army for overseas service, 70.

Of the seventy boys who have enlisted, two have given their lives for their country, namely, Charlie Hatchford and Bill Morris.

Harold Devins and Fred Lebar are prisoners of war in Germany.

Religious Work.

The attendance at the Boys' Bible study groups for the year has been very encouraging.

Number of Bible study sessions 74, attendance 1,280. We have an enrollment of 155 boys in Bible study classes. April 11, sixteen boys wrote on the local Bible study examinations and were successful in passing.

Sunday evening, April 3rd, a church parade was held to the St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, where the Rev. Mr. Pogue preached a very helpful and instructive sermon for the boys.

The religious work for the season was opened Sunday afternoon, September 24th, when a Bible study rally was held.

Mr. Wearing of the Board of Directors gave an address on the importance of Bible study, which proved very helpful to all.

Educational Work.

The observation trips which were held in the spring were a good success. On May 3rd, by kind permission of Col. Johnston, the boys had the privilege of visiting the Armouries and seeing the life of a soldier in barracks. Lieut. Crisp explained the working of the machine gun to the boys, which interested them very much. Attendance 109.

Observation Trips.

May 10th, visited the Wm. Hamilton Co. to witness the making of shells.

May 17th, visited the B. F. Ackerman Co.

Boys' Cabinet.

Tuesday, September 19th, the Boys Cabinet organised for the season. This organization of boys has done excellent work in handling and promoting activities in the Boys' Department.

Boys' Conference.

The older Boys' conference which was held in Toronto from November 10th to 12th was a wonderful success when we see the result of the conference locally. Your Boys' Secretary had charge of working up the Peterborough delegation, which included thirty-eight boys from the different churches and the Y.M.C.A. An interesting programme has been arranged for the Standard Efficiency Groups, which meet in the Y. M. C. A. every Wednesday night.

The Programme of Practical Talks.

The Telephone; Sex Education; Books and Reading; Craftsmanship; Collection Night; How to Classify Birds; History of Religion; Music; Nature; First Aid to the Injured; The Growth of Altruism in the individual; Art, Sculpture, Painting and Architecture.

Social Work.

We are pleased to report that the social work of the department has not been neglected, and that many a pleasant hour has been spent by the boys, socially.

During the year eight social gatherings have taken place at the building, also hikes, bicycle and war canoe trips have been held for the boys.

Tournaments.

The checker, chess and billiard tournament, which was held for the boys in January, proved a good success and many interesting games were played.

Skating Rink.

The skating rink was opened Dec. 22 and is proving a good drawing card for the boys.

Mothers' Club Social.

Friday evening, March 3rd, the Mothers' Club provided a very pleasant social evening for the parents and friends of the boys.

We wish to thank the Mothers' Club for their kind co-operation in helping to bring the parents in closer connection with the work for the boys.

Boys' Banquet.

The boys' banquet which was held Friday evening, March 31st, was a splendid success, 245 boys and invited guests sat down to the well-filled tables provided by the Ladies' Auxiliary.

Capt. Lamb of the 201st O.E.F., Toronto, a prominent worker with boys in our country, was the speaker of the evening.

The Captain's address on "The Paths to Greatness" proved very interesting to the boys.

The Fourth Annual Flower Day of the Boys' Department was held Saturday, Sept. 16th, when the boys distributed 65 bouquets of flowers to the sick of the city.

The boys take great joy in bringing cheer and comfort to those in sickness and sorrow and we know that their acts of kindness are appreciated by sick and the citizens in general.

Membership Campaign.

In the membership campaign which was held in November, we succeeded in bringing in 49 new members and 24 renewals. Total of 73.

November 27th we had the pleasure of a visit from Captain Pearson, Y.M.C.A. representative in France, who gave the boys an address on the work that has been undertaken by the Y.M.C.A. in France. The Captain also told the boys a number of stories relating to the life of the soldier on the battlefield.

Christmas Vacation.

The Christmas vacation is a time that the boys look forward to as they are allowed extra hours and privileges in the "Y.".

This year the rooms were opened from 9 a.m. to 9.30 p.m. and at any time of the day large numbers of boys could be seen enjoying the privileges.

We could not close this report without again thanking all those who have helped in making the work of 1916 so pleasant and profitable.

To the Ladies' Auxiliary and the Mothers' Club, for their kindly interest in which they have shown for the boys and staff. To the Board of Directors, for their cooperation and help. To the Boys' Cabinet and the leaders, for their fidelity to the classes and work in general.

Special mention should be made of the attention and interest that the Chairman of the Boys' Work Committee, Mr. P. M. McCarrell, has taken in his department. Mr. McCarrell's interest in the work has gone a long way in making the boys work the success in which we find it to-day.

It is with great regret that we announce the removal of Mr. McCarrell from our city, where his work in the interest of boys has counted for so much.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

G. L. GALLEY,
Boys' Work Secretary.

Annual Report of Physical Department.

The year 1916 has been a busy one in the Physical Department. The attendance at the regular class sessions has been very gratifying, especially during the fall season. 351 classes have been held with a total attendance of 5,801.

A special feature of the year's work was the use made by the 93rd Battalion of the gymnasium and baths. The Physical Training of the Battalion was conducted for a period of two months in our gymnasium, and no less than 3,745 baths were taken by the soldiers of the Battalion.

A Church League (basketball) was organized and run off during March; eight teams of older boys were entered. Basketball has also been a feature of the class leagues of which there were 4 with 16 teams.

Baseball. A Church Baseball League for older boys was organized in June, with five teams. Unfortunately this League schedule was not completed owing to the rain which interfered with almost every scheduled game.

Playground Swim. The Playground Association was given permission to use the Swimming pool during four periods each week. The average attendance was 30 and the total for two months, 1,080.

Tennis. The tennis courts were busy during the summer and early fall. Total attendance was 712. A tournament for older boys was conducted and a team entered in the City Tennis League. The Physical Director was a member of the Executive of the City Lawn Tennis Association which took over the Bowling Green Tennis grounds and conducted city tournaments.

Athletics. The annual city championships were conducted at the Oval, this year, in September. Assistance was given by the Physical Director at the Collegiate road races and field day.

The Heptathlon was conducted in the Spring, when the boys made a creditable showing. Athletics have formed a part of the regular class work.

Apparatus Work. The majority of the classes have been graded for apparatus work, and the International graded cards used. The leaders have done splendid work in conducting this work with the different squads. A revival of interest has been noticeable during the last two months in this branch of the work, an attendance of 198 has been recorded during that time of members using the apparatus outside of class periods.

Leaders. The Junior Leaders Corps was organized in January and there are now 27 boys serving on the two corps.

Life Problem Club. This club for Senior Employed Boys is conducted by the Physical Director. Thirty-six boys are enrolled. Eight class sessions have been held up to Dec. 31, and the average attendance has been 16.

Handball. This splendid game has been very popular, and 181 have attended for this feature outside of class periods.

General Secretary's Report.

The General Secretary's report was presented as follows:

Dear Fellow Members and Workers: It is with real gratitude to Almighty God that we recount His many mercies and blessings during the year 1916. Though the record of this year is now a closed book, its memories, successes, failures and experiences remain with us forever.

1916 was blessed with unity of purpose, harmony of methods, energy of effort and courage of conviction on the part of our Board of Directors. These men have had the most sympathetic relations with the employed staff and have held constantly in mind the interests of the members whom they represent and to each and every one of them under God we owe the successful progress made by our dear Association.

To our President, Mr. G. A. Gillespie, to our Treasurer, Mr. J. J. Turner and to our Finance Committee Chairman, Mr. Thomas Barrie, we are especially indebted for days of valuable time and wise counsel.

The employed staff have lived and wrought together as brothers and the membership as individuals and as a body have responded enthusiastically to programmes and plans that promised progress.

The citizens of Peterborough have supported our work nobly, notwithstanding the continued demands made by war on time and money or the heartaches caused by the steady march to the front of fathers, sons and brothers, whose names have appeared only too often on the dreaded casualty lists.

The churches of Peterboorugh, always ready to give of their best to the young people of the city, have recognized the Y.M.C.A. as a stalwart son and have given him a place of fellowship in the family of church societies. The Christian forces of Peterborough control our organization and the prayers of the mothers and fathers of our city are felt as the very inspiration and impulse of our work.

We have walked hand in hand with our active and aggressive little sister, the Young Women's Christian Association. The ideals upheld by her are reflected by womanly influence upon our young men and proves a strong auxiliary to Y.M.C.A. efforts. We trust also that homes of to-morrow may be made the happier by husbands and fathers, mothers and wives who are now being moulded in both Y. buildings.

We would gratefully acknowledge the splendid efforts of the Woman's Auxiliary and the Y.M.C.A. Mother's Club. The members of these societies have given time and thought to the young men at home even though their hearts are filled with anxiety for the boys at the front and their hands engaged in efforts to send little home comforts to our soldiers who are so loyally defending the right at any cost.

The ladies have assisted in serving 80 suppers, teas and banquets during the year and both organizations assisted with funds during the alterations to our building.

To the many friends and supporters of our work, though we find it impossible to mention each by name, we extend our deep appreciation and our one desire this New Year is to make good in your sight and to honour our Christ. This must be our

LINDSAY COUNCIL THANKS PETERBORO'

LINDSAY, Jan. 17.—The Chairman of Town Property (Ald. Baker) was instructed to write to the city council of Peterborough, thanking that body for the generous manner in which the Fire Brigade was treated on the occasion of the Quaker Oats fire.

Town Clerk Kay—The men were handsomely treated at Peterborough.

Voice of The People

Correspondence under this heading, containing or involving attacks on individuals or violent or extreme statements, must to secure insertion, be signed with writer's real name, the owner of which thus assumes the responsibility.

Peterborough, Ont., Jan, 17, '17.

To the Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir,—More power to your pen in advocating better bathing facilities for Peterborough. At this time of the year, when our municipal budget is in the making, our City Fathers are very careful to express their undying loyalty to the ratepayers when it comes to looking after their interests. But what do we hear about the children? We must not forget that the boy of to-day is the man of to-morrow, and one of our duties in striving to make manly men out of our boys is by teaching them to swim and how to act in an emergency while on the water, and I feel sure that I am voicing the popular opinion of the people in the North Ward when I say that we bespeak the support of our most genial representatives for proper bathing facilities at Inverlea Park, because our boys of the North Ward are second to none and are ready to prove it by boosting the alderman who is with them, or by swimming across the Otonabee and back oftener than the boys of any other ward in the city could.

Yours truly,
G. O. CAMERON.

JUDGE RUDDY IS REMEMBERED BY LAW ASSOCIATION

Mr. Robert Ruddy, K.C., recently appointed Judge of Ontario County, was presented with a handsome gold clock, by the members of the Peterborough Law Association, yesterday afternoon, at the annual meeting, held in Mr. R. R. Hall's office. Accompanying this gift was a beautiful bouquet of roses for Mrs. Ruddy, and the best wishes of the Association for the future success of Judge Ruddy and the happiness of himself and Mrs. Ruddy, in their new home at Whitby. The presentation was made by Mr. D. W. Dumble, who, on behalf of the local bar, also congratulated Judge Ruddy upon his appointment. It was a position that bulked largely in the eyes of lawyers because of the splendid traditions and character of our judges. To be a judge in any court of this country was a great honour. It was not gained by the system of election followed in the United States, where the barroom vote had a great influence, but the office was held in Canada because of the worth of the gentleman appointed.

Mr. Dumble was confident that the best that was in Judge Ruddy would be brought out in his new duties. He recalled the judiciary of Peterborough County, beginning with Judge MacKay, and his successors, Judges Hall, Boucher, Dennistoun, Weller, and Huycke.

Mr. Dumble regretted the fact that Mrs. Ruddy was unable to be present to receive the best wishes and good will of the Peterborough Bar.

Judge Ruddy said, in reply, that he deeply appreciated the kindness and thoughtfulness of the gentlemen of the Peterborough Bench and Bar, with whom he had enjoyed the most friendly relations since coming to Peterborough. He would make every effort to attain the high ideals of the Canadian Bench and would endeavour to show his worthiness of the honour. The Bar of Peterborough would compare favourably with that of any city in the Province, especially in their conspicuous patriotism in these strenuous times. Judge Ruddy acknowledged the remembrance to his wife and added that the latch of their Whitby home would always be on the outside for the members of the Law Association.

Judge Huycke, Capt. J. H. Burnham, Mr. Daniel O'Connell and Mr. R. R. Hall added their felicitations to their departing brother, and warmly congratulated him upon his elevation to the Bench.

TWELVE ARE IN UNIFORM.

Unique Record of Sturgess Family, One of Whom is Invalided Home.

QUEBEC, Jan. 16.—Among the returned invalided soldiers at the discharge depot here is Bergt. Frank Sturgess, of the 129th Battalion, who hails from Hamilton, Ont., who has nine brothers, two step-brothers and one brother-in-law in uniform. All are n.c.o.'s, and one served in the South African war with the sergeant. Another has been wounded three times. The last time was when a shell exploded near the motorcycle on which he was riding, and he was thrown into a crater with a terrible wound in his stomach. He stayed five hours, smoking cigarettes, until he was removed to hospital. He now has a silver plate in his stomach, but has qualified as a first-class mechanic with a flying corps.

Sturgess is a musician, and in company with Bandmaster Rickwood and Pte. Rose, two other returned invalided soldiers, he sang at St. Andrew's Church Sunday morning, and in two other churches in the evening.

Annual Meeting of Peterborough Branch of the Patriotic Fund

How Some of the Local Members of the Fund View the Manner in Which Soldiers' Wives Are Being Cared For--The General Opinion is That They Deserve All They Get and That the Best is None Too Good For Them.

OFFICERS ELECTED FOR THE YEAR

The annual general and quarterly meeting of the Peterborough Branch of the Patriotic Fund was held last evening in the City Buildings. His Worship Mayor Duffus presided. Mr. F. H. Dobbin, secretary of the Fund, was instructed to communicate with the Honourary Secretary of the Fund and ask if the question of increasing the separation allowance to women with four or more children, had ever been considered in view of the high cost of living. Some of those present last evening were of the opinion that the women were not overpaid. On the other hand Mr. H. C. Stabler expressed the opinion that the soldiers' wives of this city were better off than ever they were before. "That is the working class," corrected Mr. Stabler.

Mr. C. H. Pennefather pointed out that had the men stayed at home instead of enlisting they would have been getting the big pay that the men at home are getting.

"The fellow who goes out and takes a chance with his life deserves all he can get," observed Mr. Harstone.

Mr. V. Eastwood did not think that Mr. Stabler's remarks applied to all cases. Under the circumstances the only proper course was to err on the side of generosity.

Mr. Stabler said that many of the soldiers' wives had failed to save any money, and a number did not pay their bills.

"The merchants shouldn't give them credit," replied Mr. W. H. Dunsford.

Some of the members present were inclined to the opinion that a higher separation allowance should be granted to women with four or more children.

Election of Officers.

With one or two exceptions all the officers of the local branch were re-elected. Mr. R. R. Hall succeeds Mr. D. O'Connell as vice-president of the Fund. Following is a list of the officers for the year 1917: President, Mayor J. J. Duffus; vice-president, Mr. R. R. Hall; secretary, Mr. F. H. Dobbin; treasurer, Mr. F. Adams; auditor, Mr. W. R. Morris.

Finance Committee—Mr. J. A. Aylmer (chairman), Messrs. E. A. Peck, W. H. Dunsford, C. H. Pennefather, T. F. Matthews, F. H. Dobbin, J. Crane, B. F. Ackerman.

Relief Committee—Mr. W. H. Buller (chairman), Messrs. J. Lynch, W. Stocker, R. Harstone, V. Eastwood, H. C. Stabler, C. C. Abbott, His Honour Judge Huycke.

Membership Committee — Messrs. J. H. Burnham, M.P.; G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P.; B. D. Hall A. H. Stratton, H. Worth, V. Eastwood and Mayor J. J. Duffus.

This year the Fund will be paid five thousand dollars a month by the city representing a yearly appropriation of sixty thousand dollars. The remaining forty thousand dollars needed for the ever-increasing burdens of the Fund will come from the County Council. A strong deputation will wait upon the County legislators at their forthcoming meeting for the purpose of strengthening the hand of the Council.

The meeting adjourned to meet again when the auditor's report is ready.

MR. R. R. HALL IS RE-ELECTED PRESIDENT OF LAW ASSOCIATION

Precedent of Second Term For President Recognized — Other Officers Also Re-elected—Secretary's Report Presented by Mr. Wearing Indicates Activities of Past Year.

A FINANCIAL BALANCE

The officers of the Peterborough Law Association were re-elected at the annual meeting held yesterday afternoon in the offices of Mr. R. R. Hall as follows:

President—R. R. Hall.

Vice President—F. D. Kerr.

Secretary and Librarian—Joseph Wearing.

Treasurer—B. D. Hall.

Trustees of the Law Library—E. H. D. Hall, J. E. L. Goodwill and G. N. Gordon.

Mr. R. R. Hall was re-elected president for a second term, following a precedent that is gradually becoming established in the affairs of the Association. The unsettled conditions consequent upon the war, and the detailed work of restoring the law library a task to which the 1916 officers have devoted themselves were particular influences that prompted the retention of the executive.

Mr. Wearing reported a small but satisfactory financial balance and also stated that the entire insurance claim of $4,500 covering the damage to the library had been paid.

THE SECRETARY'S REPORT

The Secretary's report presented by Mr. Wearing emphasised the fact that the past year had been quite an eventful one for the Association. It was read as follows.

To the Members of the Association:

The Executive Committee beg leave to present the following report for 1916.

During the year Mr. George Edmison, one of the former members of our Association and until a short time ago our County Magistrate, died at the home of his daughter in Toronto. The late Mr. Edmison had a large practice in Peterborough for many years, and afterwards was Police Magistrate for the County for many years more. For a period he was Acting Judge of the County. He was widely known and respected by all and his death was a distinct loss to our Association.

Major S. T. Medd of the 8th Canadian Mounted Rifles returned last Fall from overseas service, the condition of his health demanding a period of recuperation. Major Medd returned overseas a few days ago, his leave expiring on February 1st, 1917. 1917.

Lieutenant J. F. P. Binie until recently associated with Mr. R. R. Hall, joined the 52nd Battery, 13th Brigade C.F.A., C.E.F. and is now overseas.

Mr. J. F. Strickland associated with the firm of Bennett and Goodwill offered his services during the year and is now a lieutenant in the 247th Battalion, C.E.F. stationed at Peterborough.

Mr. V. J. McElderry of the firm of Peck, Kerr and McElderry enlisted recently as a private in the 247th Battalion, C.E.F. but on account of his ability and training has been sent to Kingston to take an Officer's training course.

MR. RUDDY'S APPOINTMENT

Mr. Robert Ruddy, K.C., of the firm of Ruddy and Burnham has been appointed Judge of the County of Ontario. He was called to the Bar in 1889 and before coming to Peterborough about six years ago, successfully practised for many years in Millbrook. He has the distinction of having appeared as counsel before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. He will carry with him to his new and higher sphere of labour the best wishes of every member of our Bar.

MR. O'CONNELL'S DEPARTURE.

Mr. Daniel O'Connell, one of the leading counsel of Peterborough and of the Province and one of the most popular men of this city, has opened an office in Toronto, where he intends to practise. His popularity and reputation as a lawyer in the Province was shown during the year when he was elected by the members of the Provincial Bar as a Bencher of the Law Society of Upper Canada. The citizens of Peterborough showed the high esteem in which he is held by honouring him recently with a public banquet at which representatives of every profession and interest in Peterborough testified to the high public service rendered by Mr. O'Connell during the twenty years he has practised here and to the high reputation he has attained as a lawyer and a citizen. He will continue his connection in Peterborough and has entered into partnership with Mr. John R. Corkery.

THE COURT HOUSE FIRE

On Monday, the eleventh day of December, 1916, our Law Library at the Court House was almost entirely destroyed by fire and water due to the conflagration at the Quaker Oats plant which set fire to the Court House. As soon as possible steps were taken to save as many books as could possibly be saved and all the books recovered are now in the south room of the Library which was only partially damaged. Your president and librarian spent considerable time investigating the damage done to the Library and were able to make a reasonably satisfactory settlement with the adjuster of the assurance companies for the sum of $4,500. A few weeks before the fire your librarian added $2,000 to the insurance then on the Library and $1,800 from this policy has been paid by the Insurance Company. It is expected that the $2,700 due from the other policy will be paid in a few days.

A committee consisting of Messrs. R. R. Hall, E. H. D. Hall, F. D Kerr, G. N. Gordon, J. E. L. Goodwill and Joseph Wearing has been appointed for the purpose of selling or otherwise disposing of damaged books and to purchase other books. The Law Reports have been sold to Mr. Daniel O'Connell and the Committee has ordered on favourable terms, the English Reprint, the English Revised Reports to complete our present set, the English Law Reports and the English Digest. The members of the Association are urged to co-operate with the committee in making the best provision necessary for the new Library.

Included verbally was a welcome to Capt. J. H. Burnham of the 93rd Battalion now engaged with the recruiting staff of the Militia Department.

Don't Spoil Your Hair By Washing It

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain granulated cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

Moving Pictures That Vividly Instruct Public In Methods of Safeguarding Against Disease

The value of moving pictures for instructing the public in methods of preventing disease and of otherwise safeguarding the health of the individual and the community, was well illustrated in the series of films presented yesterday afternoon and evening in the Salvation Army Sunday School at Byersville. They were secured by the Board of Health of North Monaghan from Dr. Clinton, District Officer of Health under the Provincial Board. Dr. Greer, M. O. H. for the Township, presided at the afternoon meeting, yesterday, at which over two hundred persons, mostly children, were present. At night Reeve Rye was chairman, and Dr. Amys was also present. Nearly two hundred saw the night pictures. Interesting illustrations were given of the cause of tuberculosis and its methods of spreading; also the means of combatting it, the value of fresh air, good food and sanitary surroundings. Another film dealt with the proper care of milk and emphasised the fact that impure milk causes many diseases. The fly nuisance, its menace, and how to prevent its propogation was shown, and another film showed the importance of the care of the teeth. It pictured the right method of keeping teeth clean, and illustrated the necessity of an early acquisition of this habit, and indicated the diseases that are caused by decayed teeth.

Altogether the films were decidedly instructive and must have left an impression on those who attended that will have a permanent and salutary effect.

OFFICERS OF ROYAL SCARLET CHAPTER

The Royal Scarlet Chapter of Loyal Orange Lodge, district No. 3 held a most profitable meeting in the Orange Hall, George street last night at which meeting the officers for the ensuing year were elected. WHOOPING COUGH.

Mrs. Charles Lovell, Amesia, B.C., writes: "Seven of our nine children had whooping cough the same winter, and we attribute their cure to Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. We always have it in the house, and recommend it as the king of all medicines. I was formerly entirely cured of protracted piles by using Dr. Chase's Ointment."

Some folk clutter up their rooms with furniture. That is really a wasteful thing to do. Just enough for use—no more—is the best rule. Then keep what you have in good condition.

Peterborough Y.M.C.A. Has Had A Very Busy and Successful Year

best year of service, for the results of the past year which we report here should be but the foundation on which a better future is built.

The alterations to the building have fully met our expectations, increasing the efficiency of supervision and making possible a great forward step in boys' work at a most strategical time. The building changes increased dormitory accommodations for young men from twelve to twenty-six and consequently our cash receipts from this source for 1916 were $1721.25 or about double the yearly average of the past. We have appreciated the opportunities of serving a larger number of young men who are away from home influences and are pleased to state that 175 different men have occupied our dormitories during the past year.

Work For Boys.

Work for boys 18 years of age and under has been the big feature of Y. M.C.A. endeavour this past year and will continue to be so at least until after the war. We are fortunate in having for a Boys' Secretary a man thoroughly informed regarding the Canadian Standard Efficiency Movement, for these tests are the basis of all lines of Association efforts in Peterborough. Outside of the Y.M.C.A. Mr. Galley has given much time to promoting and developing the Efficiency Tests in Sunday school classes and has made great progress in raising the ideals of both Sunday school teachers and students. Mr. Galley's report gives the boys activities in detail and shows most pleasing results.

Boys 16 to 18 years of age have of necessity been granted senior privileges during restricted hours as the increase of our boys' work has even now outgrown the recent enlarged facilities. We will face an actual problem after the war when the regular senior work is fully resumed, for the prospects are that the capacity of our building will be taxed to its utmost, but this problem is really a pleasant one to anticipate.

Our Physical Director, Mr. Roper, in his report presents the work of his department in detail and we are pleased to note that classes for boys under 18 years of age and for business men and professional men have increased greatly in attendance, intgrest and efficiency. The senior gymnasium class has suffered more than any part of the work as the result of the demands of war, but it is a credit to our work to note that military men speak in the highest terms of the quality of recruits obtained from the Y.M.C.A. We are fortunate in having a physical director who not only ranks high in his profession, but who is also brotherly and sympathetic as well as trained and efficient. Every young man in Peterborough would be better for personal contact with Mr. Roper.

Our Senior Social Work has been successful, the enlarged reception room being much used and our pianos busy at all hours.

Bowling and billiards in the basement have worked well together and both games have increased in popularity on the part of business men, seniors, soldiers and intermediate members.

Billiard fees show the tables in use 3,360 hours or perhaps a total of 5,400 games played.

The New Year's Reception Jan. 1st, 1916, was the only formal reception of the year but proved an enjoyable affair. More than 1,500 strangers and out of town visitors have been welcomed at our building and served in some capacity in addition to the service rendered our local young men.

The Religious Work has been most gratifying twenty-seven Sunday afternoon meetings being held with an average attendance of thirty young men. While Mr. Galley's report covered the Boys' Bible Study groups, and Mr. Roper presents the "Life Problem Club," we would especially note here the successful Senior High School Club of which the General Secretary is mentor. These High School young men meeting every Friday evening for tea and a discussion of subjects most vital to a young man just entering upon a life work. Mr. Howe of the Collegiate staff, Dr. Neal and several others have contributed much to the success of this older boys group. From 125 to 150 boys and young men are found each week in some form of Y. M.C.A. special religious work, but the religious work extends still further; hundreds of others are being impressed with the highest religious ideals as a result of Y.M.C.A. efforts.

That we may not unduly burden you with statistics we would draw toward a close with a few facts that may interest you.

Over twenty city organizations, church patriotic and athletic have used our building for meetings during the past year.

Membership 675.

The membership of our Association, men and boys, stands at 675.

Soldiers have been on a free membership basis and over 30,000 visits by men in uniform have been made at our building during 1916.

253 men and boys have enlisted from our membership since the war began.

Our budget for 1916 will allow us to contribute $450 to overseas Y.M.C.A. work. One tenth of all subscriptions collections are given to this work.

We also participated in a special canvas for overseas funds conducted by our National Council in December when over $3,000 was realized.

Officers of the Association and the employed staff have participated in many civic enterprises outside the Y. M.C.A. programme. Our leaders have had a share in every patriotic canvas since the war started.

Members of the staff have given considerable time to church clubs and classes, also assisted in promoting playgrounds, public supervised bathing, etc.

It is stated that at least 100,000 visits by all people and for all purposes have been made to the Y. M. C. A. building during the year.

The Treasurer's report showing the amount of cash received and disbursed by him will be presented by him.

The Finance committee's report shows the 1916 budget of expenses and the expenses actually incurred.

So it remains for me only to remark that considering the unusual conditions of the year and the extraordinary feats of the $8,000 subscribed for Y.M.C.A. work in Peterborough in the last four months of 1916, $3,000 goes overseas, our local work has been most efficiently financed.

In closing I would impress upon every member the need of great conservation, courage and unity of purpose as we open the New Year of 1917 with its opportunities. May we be more faithful to the Christ who is the head and heart of our Association and whose character and ideals we must continue to lift up before the young men of our city.

Respectfully submitted,
C. M. Meserve,
General Secretary.

WEDDING BELLS

KEARNS—CADIGAN.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Tuesday, Jan. 9th, by Rev. Father McGuire, when Miss Hannah Cadigan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Cadigan, of Enniamore, was united in marriage to Frederick Kearns, of Monkham, Alberta. The bride was attended by her sister, Stella, and Mr. John Cadigan acted as best man.

After the wedding the happy couple drove to the bride's parents, where a wedding repast was served, the guests numbering about forty.

The groom's gift to the bride was a gold La Vallere set with amethyst and pearls, to the bridesmaid a beautiful gold brooch, and to the best man a gold pair of cuff links. The bride was the recipient of numerous presents, showing the high esteem in which she was held.

Mr. and Mrs. Kearns left on Wednesday evening by train for western points. The young couple will be home to their friends in Alberta after Jan. 17, where they will make their future home.

Soldiers Began New Year With a Bath

Chief Thompson received a letter today from Sergt. George Cookman written on January 1st in which the former Peterborough police constable stated that they had begun the new year with a warm refreshing bath, and had freed themselves from pests that weren't Germans. Sergt. Cookman went over with the 93rd and has now been in the trenches three months. He wrote that everything was going well, and the men would be content to remain three years providing they attained the end for which they went over.

House On Fire In Absence Of The Occupants

A fire at the home of Mr. Herb. Batten, Edinburgh street, did considerable damage last night. Mr. Batten, who is a miller employed by the Campbell Milling Co., and was away at work, while Mrs. Batten was at the home of a sick neighbour, when a fire broke out in the attic, probably due to a defective chimney or overheated pipes. The alarm was sounded at 9.40 p.m. and the brigade soon extinguished the blaze. The roof of the house was badly damaged and considerable damage was done throughout the building by water. The damage to the house is estimated at about $500 and to the contents about $400. While the brigade were returned to the hall to thaw out their frozen hose, a second blaze commenced in the attic and some one again sounded the alarm. No damage was done by the second fire.

North Monaghan Agitating For Good Roads Now

North Monaghan's interest in the good roads question refuses to subside even under the pressure of war conditions. The younger element in the township are determined that the old ideas must go, and though only a beginning may be made in the near future, the favourable sentiment, it is hoped, will continue until after the war.

On Monday night a public meeting was held in May's school house, with Reeve Rye presiding, at which the road question was discussed at considerable length. The township was well represented from the city section out to the remote concessions. Mr. W. G. Howden moved a resolution seconded by Mr. Herb Foster, that if the township can secure assistance from the Provincial Government on the basis of the County scheme for road building that one mile of stone road be constructed this year, the township to comply in full with the regulations of the Department at Toronto.

Buy Stone Now.

Another resolution provided for public announcement that the township would pay $3 a cord for stone to the drawn to some place near the city to be specified later. It is hoped, thereby, that a beginning may be made this winter on whatever work will be prosecuted during the coming summer.

WARSAW ITEMS OF INTEREST

Concert Given by the Warsaw Choral Class

WARSAW, Jan. 7.—The concert given by the Warsaw Choral Class, assisted by members of the Lakefield class on Friday evening, was a splendid success musically, and with Mr. Treneer's able training the class is showing marked improvement at each succeeding concert. The soloists also, who are pupils of Mr. Treneer, were much enjoyed. It is to be regretted that a larger crowd was not present as the programme was a most enjoyable one from start to finish and an organization of such value to any community should have the heartiest support. The programme was as follows.

Chairman's address — Rev. Mr. Clare.

"Sweet and Low"—Choral class.

Solo, "Night of Nights"—Miss Bessie Aikins.

"Ring Out Ye Bells," from the cantata, "The Hope of the World" — Choral class.

Ladies' quartette, "Wouldn't You?" —Mrs. Hamblin, Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Wason, Miss Aikins.

Solo, "Daddy"—Mr. Treneer.

"Hail, Royal Babe," from "The Hope of the World"—Choral class.

"March Onward, O Ye Soldiers True," from "Eli"—Choral class.

Mr. Treneer delighted his audience by singing "The Deathless Army" as encore to "Daddy."

After the concert refreshments were served by the Women's Institute.

Next Monday, Jan. 22nd, Mr. Lees, Inspector of Public Schools, will give a lecture on "Consolidated Schools," illustrated by lantern views, in the Methodist church at 8 o'clock. Post & Flagg.—It seems to be the general conviction now that the war must go on for some time. Buyers of copper metal who have been holding back in anticipation of lower prices, are now coming forward, and the shares representing this industry are especially firm.

Shearson, Hammill & Co.—There is a good investment enquiry for bonds, but can see nothing at the moment except waiting market with bullish operations in some special stock. There is no question but what there is a large short interest outstanding in the market.

Lnidlaw & Co.—The great ease in money is evidenced by the increase of $140,000,000 in the surplus reserves of the New York clearing house banks in the last month has been a big factor in increasing the demand for investments.

Bryant, Dunn, & Co.—From all accounts, a new British loan will soon be offered, and in all probability easily absorbed, as the demand for high-grade bonds is reported as being very large, a fact which in its relation to stock market prices, should not be lost sight of. The immediate prospects are for a continuance of a trading position, but the short interest seems to be getting a little larger all the time.

With banks overflowing with money it is scarcely possible that stock market prices will remain for long as low as recently on the average. Nothing unfavourable has transpired over the week end and it is likely that a good buying movement will set in without much wait. The remarkable demand for steel and iron has by no means been harmed either by the peace suggestions or the plain attempt of the Allies to use Canadian rather than American munition factories. This demand on us for raw materials goes into the very basic conditions surrounding general business and means plainly increasing rather than diminishing prosperity. In the nature of things it is steel iron and coal stocks that must go forward. Coppers will do to buy on every market weakness also. The Smelting stocks we favour greatly and so-called tariff stocks are also worthy consideration. The Sugar issues among these should not be disregarded. U.S. Rubber should recover sharply. Incidentally Industrials acted splendidly while beast hammered Rubber on possibly a false conception of the financing plan as affecting the Common stock. Mexican and Californian Petroleum looks very good to us. Atlantic Gulf and the Marines we consider wonderful bargains for patient holders. Can. common should rally sharply now. Central Leather is worth buying. We expect to see stronger prices to-day. We would sell Wheat on good bulges and Cotton also buying breaks.—Town Topics.

THE BRITISH ADVANCE ON A SIX HUNDRED YARD FRONT

Three Hundred Yards Taken By Canadians

Need Another Million Men on Western Front

Britain Must Place Sixty Divisions More on Western Front Declares the London Times Military Expert in Discussing the Needs of the Future—Germany Has One Hundred and Twenty-eight Divisions Opposed to the Allies.

A CRYING NEED FOR MEN

LONDON, January 18.—The Times military correspondent maintains that the prolongation of the war, "as the result of the foredoomed failure of the peace move" throws upon all the Allies the duty of making greater efforts in order to deserve victory. He says that Germany did not wait for a reply to her peace offer but initiated measures a month ago to expand her supply of men and munitions.

"We ought to see," the correspondent writes, "clearly enough now that our efforts on land, especially on the western front, have not been adequate to secure a decision or even to deserve it."

Referring to the imputation, "with a tendency to exaggeration," that the British have 2,000,000 men in France and the French have 3,000,000 he says:

"Statements of this nature serve rather to obscure the issues than to illuminate them. It ought to be known and admitted that the aggregate national strength do not express the real value of fighting armies. We all ought to count in bayonets and guns in order to ascertain our chances of victory and when we count in this manner the figures dwindle to quite a different total. The truth of the situation in the west is that Germany has 128 divisions opposed to us and that the number of French, British and Belgian divisions is not yet such as to promise a decision in an offensive war.

MODERN MEANS OF DEFENCE.

"The offensive devolves on us in order that we may evict the enemy from the territories of our Allies and such an offensive against modern means of defence, demands a great superiority in strength, particularly in heavy guns, infantry and all other modern military machinery. Before the war we supposed a two, or even three to one superiority not too great for the attacker and must repeat again and again that we have nothing like this superiority and that victory depends on obtaining it. It is always possible for the Germans to place in the west the floating balance of strategic reserves which they used against Roumania and if in 1917 we only employ against the enemy a slight superiority of force nothing better than a slight success can reasonably be anticipated."

The writer declares that there is a crying need for more men and that there has been a great remissness in the creation of new divisions along the lines of Kitchener's original conception. He refers to the military plan published in the Times in 1914, which he says Lord Kitchener himself revised and declared would insure Britain of being capable to continue the war when the other powers were exhausted. According to the correspondent this plan has gradually lapsed from many reasons, chiefly the recruiting muddle in the autumn of 1915, which, he says, even now is far from cleared up. "We need another sixty divisions in the west," concludes, "the necessary men exist and there is every probability that their appearance in the field will decide the war."

Factories are Turning Out in 48 Hours Now, as Much as they Made in the Entire First Year of the War—Reliable Report from London, Tells of an Almost Unbelievable Advance in Munitions and Guns, the Comparative Figures Being Amazing.

BIG INCREASE IN MANUFACTURE

NEW YORK, January 18.—The followng correspondence from London, dated January 5, is published here:

English muntions factories are now turning out every forty-eight hours more heavy gun amnuniton than they manufactured in the entire first year of the war, and the production is still increasing week by week in preparation for the great offensive on the western front which British military critics believe will come next spring.

Although figures of the actual production of guns and munitions are jealously guarded, and there is no avowal on the part of the Ministry of Munitions of any intention to discontinue the importations from the United States, there is an evident feeling of optimism among the officials at headquarters just off White Hall as well as a willingness to give out "comparative figures," to justify that optimism.

"The improvement in our position may be illustrated in this way," remarked an official of the Ministry:—"We are now manufacturing every week three times as many 155 millimetre shells, five times as many 200 millimetre shells, and three times as many 280 millimetre shells as we manufactured during the whole first year of the war.

"Of smaller shells, we are turning out in about a week, the same quantity as was produced durimg the first year. Finally, the number of shells of all kinds completed during the past week exceeded by about thirty per cent. the entire stock of munitions held in reserve at the outbreak of hostilities."

Dealing with guns in the same way, it is found that, representing the number of guns manufactured during the first year of war by 100, the number for the second year would be 841 and for the third year will be somewhere in the neighbourhood of 1,850.

The manufacture of lighter pieces has had to be slackened recently, owing to the fact that the equipment of the British army in light pieces is approximately complete, and it is only necessary to provide for replacements and renewals.

The improvement in the manufacture of machine guns, rifles, grenades and explosives has been equally satisfactory.

Representing the total number of machine guns delivered to the army during the first year as 100, the total for the second year was 1,350 and for the third year will exceed 6,000.

The production of trench mortar ammunition and grenades has been so much developed that any further increase scarcely seems necessary.

The increase in the manufacture of explosives has been tremendous. For every ton of explosive employed in September, 1914, 350 tons were employed in July, 1915 and 12,000 tons in July, 1916.

WEST FRONT OFFENSIVE.

Gen. Neville and Field Marshall Haig at London Conference.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—There is a possibility that another big offensive by the Entente Allies in Belgium and France is in contemplation. A two days' conference has been held in London between Premier Lloyd George and his war council and the British and French commanders-in-chief, General Nivelle and Field Marshal Haig.

Important measures for augmenting the British military strength are announced. Half the men under the age of 25 who are now employed in agricultural work are to join the colours. A number of men under 30 who are engaged in shoe-making, have been summoned. The official announcement promises farmers that arrangements will be made as quickly as possible to supply them with several thousand men from the exempt military class to replace their farm hands.

Had Bronchitis FOR YEARS

Bronchitis comes from a neglected cold and it, if neglected, will surely turn into pneumonia. The first symptom is a short, painful, dry cough, accompanied with rapid wheezing and a feeling of oppression or tightness about the chest.

The phlegm raised from the bronchial tubes is at first of a light color, but as the disease progresses it becomes of a yellowish or greenish color, and is very often hard to raise.

Dr. Wood's Norway is just the remedy that you require as it loosens the phlegm and heals the lungs and bronchial tubes

Mrs. Chas. Breau, Amherst, N. S., writes: "I was troubled for years with bronchitis, and could not find any relief. I was especially bad on a damp day. I went to a druggist and asked him for something to stop the constant tickling in my throat. He gave me a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, which I found gave me instant relief. I think it is the best remedy for bronchitis that I know of. I now take care that I always have a bottle on hand."

"Dr. Wood's" is the genuine, put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, price 25c and 50c.

Marvellous Control Of The Modern War Inventions

Lester Barlow, a young American, who has recently perfected some really wonderful inventions in aerial torpedoes, has recently completed a number of highly successful tests under the auspices of the United States government. The Barlow aerial torpedoe is about seven and a half feet long and weighs about 100 pounds. It carries a heavy charge of very powerful explosive. It is designed to be carried in a compartment in the base of an aeroplane and automatically released at the instant that the aeroplane sights register on the target. As soon as the released torpedo has dropped three hundred feet it automatically sets itself for explosion, and explodes at exactly a given point, regardless of the height from which it has dropped. Every operation is automatic and it has been tested from altitudes of 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7 thousand feet, with unfailing results

At the same time as Barlow's developments, John Hays Hammond, Jr., has perfected a radio or wireless control of marine torpedoes. He has reached such perfection that he can start a torpedo in one direction, then, by radio means, change that direction, so exactly as to make the torpedo hit a bamboo rod 1 inch in diameter, nine times out of ten, at a distance of three miles. His experiments and work are also being done under the auspices of the United States government. It seems that the United States is finally realizing that, possessing, as she does, a greater number of prolific inventors than any other country, she should benefit fully by their genius, instead of allowing other countries to acquire valuable improvements in war machines, as in the past.

PAPER ECONOMY IN SCHOOLS.

East Orange Requires Pupils to Write on Both Sides of Sheet.

ORANGE, N.J., Jan. 17.—In an effort to save that precious commodity, paper, the pupils in the East Orange public schools have been instructed to write on both sides of the sheet and to reduce margins to the "irreducible minimum" in order to make the supply on hand go as far as possible. While some grades of paper are hard to procure, and have advanced as much as 125 per cent., the system has not yet been forced to have recourse to the old-fashioned slate to relieve the paper shortage.

A purchasing system installed some years ago gives East Orange some advantage over Boards of Education in other communities, as was shown in a recent investigation by the State, which resulted in a report that East Orange was paying the lowest of all school systems

How You Can Quickly Remove Hairy Growths

(Aids to Beauty.)

A well known beauty specialist advises this treatment for the removal of hair from the face. Mix into a paste some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface and after about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and every trace of hair has vanished. This method is quick and entirely safe. To avoid disappointment, however, it is well to make certain you get genuine delatone.

JAPAN TO SHOW SYMPATHY

Will Raise Fund and Send Commission to Allied Countries.

TOKIO, Jan. 17.—At a gathering of representative Japanese to-day, among whom was Premier Terauchi, it was voted to send a popular commission to all the Entente countries, probably in April, to express Japan's sympathy for the wounded and for other war sufferers.

An appeal will be made throughout the Empire for subscriptions in an effort to raise as large a fund as possible. The movement is national in scope and is supported by the Government, the Diet, all political parties and business interests and the press. Prince Tokugawa, of the House of Peers, is chairman.

PRISONERS LOSE REASON.

TRENTON, N.J., Jan. 17.—Thirty two convicts, it is said, have recently been taken from the New Jersey State Prison and placed in insane asylums. It is alleged that conditions at the prison are very unsanitary and an investigation is in progress. It is charged that many prisoners are dying of consumption, contracted while in cells with tubercular companions; five hundred men are confined in cells, three and four to a cell, where there is no running water and no sanitary appliance, and they are not permitted to leave these cells from five in the afternoon until six o'clock next morning. The prison was erected in 1835, and has been condemned by the State Board of Health.

BERLIN LACKS POTATOES.

Per Capita Ration Has Been Reduced this Week.

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 17.—The food situation in Germany has grown much worse during the last six months, according to the experience of an Associated Press correspondent who has returned from a trip to Berlin. Potatoes are so scarce that this week's per capita ration in Berlin was less than four and a half pounds This is attributed in part to the farmers withholding shipments until February 15, when higher prices will be permitted.

No cheese has been on the market since August and eggs are unobtainable, except surreptitiously at sixteen to twenty cents apiece. Berlin's daily milk receipts are about 350,000 litres (about 625,000 pints) against a normal 1,000,000 and it is impossible to buy clothing, shoes, stockings, or blankets, except by permission of the police, though the shops appear well stocked with clothing.

In some cities the situation seems to be better than in others, and a Berlin business man told the correspondent he had spent Christmas week in a Rhine city where he got plenty of meat and bread without being required to show a bread card or meat card.

FRENCH WAR MEASURES.

New Proposition for Enlisting Previously Rejected Men.

PARIS, Jan. 17.—The bill introduced by General Roque, then Minister of War, to submit to further medical examination all men temporarily or permanently rejected by army medical examiners as physically unfit, is to be withdrawn for another measure to be drawn up by General Lyautey, War Minister. It was maintained that Roque's bill would cause an economic convulsion and fill the military hospitals with invalids. The Cabinet also fixed a minimum rate of payment to munition workers in the Paris district, and will decree compulsory arbitration of disputes between the workers and their employers.

PARALYZED LIMBS.

To-day it is sleeplessness, headaches, digestive trouble, and irritability. Next thing you know some form of paralysis has developed. Mr. Alex. Hawkesley Morris Street, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "Nervous trouble developed into paralysis of the limbs so that I became helpless. Doctors failed me, but after using two boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I resumed work and now feel better than I did for twenty years."

The normal temperature of horses men and tigers is about the same. That of chickens is 111 degrees Fahrenheit.

SIMPLE WAY TO END DANDRUFF

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

RETAILERS REFUSE CREDIT.

One Means of Enforcing Economy That Britain May Experiment With.

LONDON, Jan. 7.—There is a possibility of the suspension of the credit system in retail shops as a means of enforcing economy. The National Service Department have sent out to retail traders the following proposals with a view to obtaining their criticisms, 1—That credit accounts between retail traders and the public be discontinued; 2—No retail tradesman directly or indirectly to call or send to any place of residence to solicit orders for any article of food; 3—That it be compulsory on every retail purchaser of foodstuffs to take away at the time of purchase all articles less than 14 pounds in weight.

The Board of Trade Labour Gazette tates that on Jan. 1 the food average increase in prices over those of July, 1914, were 87 per cent. A year ago it was only 45 per cent. Of the total increase of 87 per cent. 6 per cent. is due to additional taxation on tea and sugar. Bacon prices are now 60 per cent. above those prevailing before the war. The price of fish about one-third higher than a year ago. Bread is 753 per cent. above the normal level retail prices. Flour has risen 68 per cent., butter, 70 per cent.; cheese, 75 per cent. Potatoes remained comparatively normal until April, 1916, but last month the average charge was 139 per cent. higher than in December, 1915.

Retail food prices in Berlin in November last were 111 per cent. higher than before the war. November prices in Vienna were approximately 177 per cent. above those of July 1914.

MAKING IT PLAIN

A common mistake which some people continue to make is to accept from a druggist an "extract" of cod livers thinking they will get the benefits of an emulsion of cod liver oil.

The difference is very great. An "emulsion" contains real cod liver oil, which has had the hearty endorsement of the medical profession for many years, while an "extract" is a product which contains no oil and is highly alcoholic.

Scott's Emulsion is the standard emulsion of the world. It guarantees the highest grade of real cod liver oil, skilfully blended with glycerine and hypophosphites, and is endorsed by good physicians everywhere.

OUR SERIAL STORY

"DESTINY"

By CHARLES NEVILLE BUCK

"There is something in me," he read, that tells me no man was ever greater than I have got it in me to be. John Hayes, Hammond, Carnegie, Rockefeller, Frick, were all poor boys....." He paused once more and let his eyes wander to the bottom of the page and dwell upon this addendum. "P.S.—I sold them to Shivers Martin for ten dollars (10.00) and they only cost me seven—and he had to go after them."

As he held the book in his hand he was interrupted by a low knock on the door. Perhaps the night watchman had come up with a question. Hastily laying the diary of his boyhood over the pistol, so as to conceal it, he opened the door—and Len Haswell entered.

The broker's ruin had been complete, and his dual troubles had evidently driven him to demoralization of another sort. His face wore a set such as artists give the features of Death—the pale implacability of doom. He loomed there gigantic and silent; strangely altered by his chalky pallor and the dark rings out of which his eyes burned. After a moment Hamilton Burton inquired coolly," —"Well, Haswell?"

"You may recall," said the deep voice in a tone of menacing quiet, "that during the two days that you scattered ruin broadcast—and ruined yourself into the bargain—I led your forces on the floor of the Exchange."

"Perfectly," was the calm response. "I recall that you lost everything."

"So did I. We seem to be fellow unfortunates."

"You say I lost everything." Haswell drew a step nearer and held out his two mighty hands. "You are mistaken. I still have these."

A trace of annoyance stole into the voice of the fallen Napoleon. It is disconcerting to be interrupted during one's last moments of life.

"And with them," he ironically inquired, "you mean to begin over and make an honest living?"

Haswel shook his head. His tone took on, in its level pitch of implacability, a quality indescribably horrifying. "No—an honest killing. I am going to kill you."

"That," suggested Burton, "will not be necessary. I am on the point of saving you the trouble—and the personal danger. In my bag there is a note stating that fact—and my reasons."

Haswell held out a letter. "I am not complaining about my ruin in the Street," he patiently explained. "I knew that game and took my chances along with the rest. That is not what has been driving me mad. I got this letter a week ago."

Hamilton glanced at the envelope.

"From Loraine," went on Len Haswell in a voice of even deadlier quiet. The voice and the chalky face seemed twin notes of sound and color. "I would not care to tell you what happened to her—after she pinned her faith on your promise to buy her freedom—from me—for your brother. She lost out all around, you see. I would not care to tell you about that—and its consequences. But something's going to be paid on account—here—tonight!"

After a moment, Burton said slowly:

"I am through. I'm just ending it."

Once again the huge man shook his head. A strange and bitter smile twisted his lips.

"No," he persisted in that level intonation with which men sometimes speak from the scaffold. "No; that won't do. You see I've whetted my appetite on anticipation—ever since that letter came. I must have the pleasure of killing you with my own hands; of seeing the breath go out of your throat—afterward the suicide will be my own.

To lay down one's life of one's own volition is one thing. To permit another to take it in a fashion of his own arbitrary selection is quite another. Hamilton Burton had never been submissive. He meant to die as he had lived—"captain of his soul"—and so he turned quietly toward the window ledge where he had laid the automatic pistol. Perhaps, some clairvoyant sense, loaned by the closeness of death, gave Haswell an intimation of the other's intent. He reached the window first—at a bound—and stood before it. Then suddenly a hideous expression came into his eyes, until out of them shone the horror-worship that had obsessed his soul; and the maniac's cunning for draining his greed of vengeance to its dregs.

He had jostled aside the blank book containing the diary and seen the weapon, which he calmly slipped into his pocket. Then he raised the window as far as it would go.

"This is the twentieth floor," he commented with a ghastly significance—"I know because I walked up. I did not want to be stopped—too soon. It won't take you so long to get down."

As he spoke he jerked his head toward the raised blind and sash. "It's rather a symbolical finish for you, Burton—you must confess as much—an idol hurled down from his high place."

One quality Hamilton Burton possessed. If he was to die he would leave no satisfaction of final cowardice to comfort his assassin's self-destruction. He would attack, but a sudden thought stayed him.

"If we are to have a death struggle here," he asked with a strange composure, "will you give me a moment—for a matter that had no bearing on your determination"

Haswell yet again shook his head, with his executioner's smile as he sardonically inquired, "Time to get another gun?"

"No. To tear up a note to the coroner—unless you will be good enough to do it for me. If I am not to kill myself there is no advantage in an ante-mortem confession!"

"What difference does it make? To me it seems trivial."

"Just this—that my family will save my insurance out of the wreck."

"And Paul may once more sing golden songs to the wives of other men—not that I so much resent Paul. Without you he would be harmless enough—but society is safer with him poor."

Hamilton Burton had caught a rift in the clouds and with this denial his calmness deserted him for passion. The old family love, strong even though he had himself so violated it, burst into flame in his heart. Once more he would fight for those he was leaving. Why had he never thought of the window himself? That might logically seem accidental, yet his brain had not served him well of late. It had been clouded and unresourceful—and he had invented no method of masking the authorship of his death. His enemy had suggested it—but first there must be a moment to destroy the confession which would rob his mother of the one asset which might be saved to her. With an oath he leaped upon his visitor, and fought tigerishly. But for all his superb physical fitness and strength it was like a child leaping upon a powerful gladiator.

With one mighty arm about his waist crushing him until his bones seemed to crack and one huge hand cutting off the gasp of his throat, his body was bent back in this gorilla embrace and a purple mist spread dimly before his eyes. He had just enough tremor of consciousness left to know that he hung limp and was being lifted and swung to and fro as one swings a sack which he means to toss into a cart.

A few minutes later the giant stood panting from his exertion as he stretched out a steady hand for the pistol which lay on the window ledge.

CHAPTER XXX

In a certain dictionary appears this substantive and this definition.

"PARASITE (par-a-sit), n., one who frequents the table of a rich man and gains his favor by flattery; a hanger-on; an animal or plant nourished by another to which it attaches itself. (Greek.)"

If the animal or plant to which these other animals or plants attach themselves goes first to its death, it is inevitable that its parasites must very speedily follow. There is no longer anything upon which to feed.

Hamilton Burton was gone and his parasites were withering. His will provides a princely fortune for each member of his family—save his sister, for whom they would care. But a will presupposes an estate—here were only enormous liabilities and vanished assets.

This man's dream of power in a single hand—the hand that could produce—had held so firm that he had never made any provision for their independent fortunes while he lived, and held at his finger ends the touch of Midas.

Now he was dead. The coroner said, after viewing the evidence, he had killed Haswell first and himself next—so they added to all the sins of his overcharged account the crowning infamy of murder.

Those men who gather and print the news have their fingers on the pulse beat of things and sometimes they develop an occult sense of prophecy.

On the night of Hamilton's death as a certain city editor in Park row read the proof of the "day's story," he called one of his reporters to his desk and let him wait there while he himself rapidly pencilled out the "Stud-horse head" which should, tomorrow morning, shock many breakfast tables. Finally he glanced up, under a green eye-shade, and shifted his dead cigar from one corner of his mouth to the other.

Smitherton rolled a cigarette. "The follow-up to-morrow will be a big one, too," he prophesied.

"Sure, but I am not only talking about the follow-up. As to that you handle the introduction and general. I'll have the various other ends covered. I refer to next week and next month and next year—"

"Go look up the word 'parasite' in the dictionary. Maybe after that research you will understand what I mean. There is copy in this for a long while. The branch is dead, and the leaves will be dropping."

The stunned parents, the ashen-lipped brother and the sister, not yet recovered from her collapse, had some months for realization; nightmare months during which hordes of creditors arose with legitimate, with wolfish hunger from everywhere, and the courts adjudicated and the world learned that not a remnant of shredded fortune nor a ragged banknote, would remain to the family which had dazzled New York since its Monte Cristo star rose on the horizon.

While the wolves were picking the remains of the estate to the naked bones, old Thomas Burton still went occasionally to his place in the club and gazed out of the Fifth avenue window. He wore a band of crepe around his sleeve, and a defiant glint in his eyes, and since he was left very much to himself he drank alone. He was no longer the same portly and immaculately fashionable man. His flesh had shrunk until his clothes hung upon him in misfit. His face was seamed and his hair instead of being gray and smooth was white and quite stringy. But no pride is so inflexible as acquired pride, so he came to the club where he was snubbed, because, "By, Gad, sir, I have the right to come here. I am Thomas Standish Burton, and I will not permit myself to be driven away, even though adversities have befallen me!"

He reflected upon "pursuits" to which a gentleman of my age may, with fitting dignity, apply himself," and his ideas were random and impractical, but after a sufficient number of toddies they appeared to himself feasible and meritorious. One day when he called for his first afternoon drink the negro waiter shuffled uncomfortably, and said, "I am sorry, sir, but I was told I could not serve you!"

"Why?" demanded the member, stiffening with indignation.

"Your name, sir, is posted on the suspended credit list. That's my orders, sir."

Tom Burton rose and stalked very stiffly, though no longer with his old-time cock-sureness, for the last time out of the National Union Club, and spent the afternoon in the rear room of a saloon further east.

Paul, whose plight was as pitiable as that of a pet pomeranion turned out of a perfumed and cushioned boudoir to hold his own among foraging street curs, for a while bore up with an artificial courage. Under the long strain of successive anxieties his mother had broken in body and mind, and Paul was with her much though sometimes she did not recognize him but called him Hamilton and begged him not to leave the mountains lest the life in a new world should hold worse things than poverty.

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys If Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or side, headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

What Brought Her Home

By ETHEL HOLMES

John Cook had been married ten years, during which time, except the first few months after the wedding, he had never been away from his wife for more than a few days at a time. But after ten years' living together there came a brief separation. They had not been able to go to the country during the summers, for John's income would not admit of an outing. But all of a sudden his business sprang up, and when August came around it was decided that Mrs. Cook and the children had better spend a few weeks in some rural district where there was pure air. John could not leave his business, which was increasing every day, so he packed them off without him.

Mrs. Cook had exacted a promise from her husband that he would write every day. The first day after her departure he kept his promise. He wrote the following brief letter:

Dear Ellen—I hope you and the children arrived safely. It's very hot here, but I presume you are rejoicing in cool breezes. I dined in a hurry last night at a restaurant and went back to the office, where I remained till 11 o'clock. I am obliged to work nights in order to keep up with the rush, so you see that I haven't much time to spend writing any letters that don't pertain to business. Ta ta. Kiss Tommy and Nellie for their

AFFECTIONATE FATHER.

"That," said Mrs. Cook, "looks as if he were very busy and that the children are the only ones who can draw from him any expression of affection."

The next day Mrs. Cook looked for another letter from her husband, hoping that it would be signed "your affectionate husband" instead of "the children's affectionate father." But to her surprise no letter came, nor did she receive one the day following or the next or the next. It was not till a week after the arrival of the first letter that another came. This one was as overflowing with affection as the first was devoid of it. Its beginning was as follows:

Dearest Nell—It is three days since I have seen your dear face or kissed your sweet lips. It seems three years—no, not years, ages. If ever I get back to you I vow I will never consent to be separated from you again. Last night I wrote you twelve pages, which, I presume, you have by this time received and digested. Yours written yesterday is here, and I have read it a dozen times already. I woke up in the middle of the night and got up to read it again.

Mrs. Cook had read thus far when she stopped and shuddered. What did this remarkable burst of affection mean? The newspapers had noted that the thermometer in the city had hovered around 98 degrees and the humidity varied between 90 and 100 degrees. There had been many cases of sunstroke, and several persons had been made insane by the heat. Could it be that her husband has been thus affected?

The letter trembled in her hands as she read on. Skimming over a lot more of this "incoherent nonsense," as she called it, the letter closed:

With a million kisses, your own true love, JACK.

What caused the greatest fear in Mrs. Cook's breast was the fact that there was not a word about the children. In this epistle there was surely no reason to be jealous of them. But if he had forgotten them his delirium must surely be terrible. What should she do—telegraph him to ask if he had been sunstruck? That, of course, would be absurd. She might inquire of others, but when she came to think over her husband's intimate friends she remembered every one of them was out of town. Besides supposing there was nothing the matter with John or suppose—she wilted at the thought—that he had written another woman while writing his wife and got the letters in the wrong envelope? No. Whatever she did she must keep the matter from the world. There was but one thing for her to do—go home.

In an hour after this decision she had left her children in care of the landlady and taken a train. She arrived in the city before dark and drove directly to her house. She found the front door unlatched and entered. The table was set for dinner for one in the dining room. She ran upstairs and saw her husband in his bedroom tying his cravat before a mirror. He turned and looked at her in astonishment.

"Great heavens! What brought you home? Anything the matter with the children?"

Mrs. Cook, by this time convinced that the letter she had received had been written to another woman than herself, drew it from her bag and handed it to her husband. He looked at it, and a singular, shamefaced expression appeared on his countenance.

"Who is the woman?" cried Mrs John.

"My dear, did this bring you home?"

"It did."

"Thank heaven!"

"What do you mean?"

"Why, I was so crowded with business that I have no time to write. I found in your desk a bundle of my old letters to you, written when we were first married. I thought I'd make them do while you were away."

It was now Mrs. Cook's turn to look shamefaced.

"Do you mean," she faltered, "that you ever wrote that—that kind of a letter to me?"

"Loads of them. And got the same kind from you."

"Oh, John, I was afraid"—

"Afraid of what?"

"That you had been made mad by the heat."

HER GIFT OF MIMICRY.

Cissie Loftus Could Imitate Irving and Bernhardt Equally Well.

Walter Prichard Eaton in the American Magazine says in an article about famous mimics:

"In the days when Cissie Loftus was delighting vaudeville audiences with her imitations she used to give an imitation of Lillian Russell. Miss Russell countered by giving an imitation of Miss Loftus' imitation of her. But to an artist like Miss Loftus that presented no difficulties. She merely came back with an imitation of Miss Russell's imitation of her imitation of Miss Russell! The fair Lillian thereupon retired from an unequal contest.

"Cissie Loftus could imitate anybody. The present writer once heard her in the course of a casual conversation imitate most thrillingly Sir Henry Irving in a blank verse death scene. Then an imaginary curtain descended, and you heard Sir Henry, in a totally different voice (no less unmistakably his), inquiring in very Saxon prose, where the deuce were the red lights?

"Standing on the stage of a theater, without change of costume, with the flicker of a smile on her rather wistful face, she would range from Sarah Bernhardt to Ethel Barrymore, so that you almost gasped at the uncanny cleverness of it, and if you shut your eyes you could hardly believe that the actual persons were not present.

"Hers of course was an extraordinary gift of mimicry, and it brought her in $1,000 a week, much more probably than she could command as an actress."

A Clean Record.

"What makes Jinks so proud of his ancestors? I never heard any of them did anything."

"That's exactly the point. So many persons' ancestors did do things which got them into trouble with the police."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

FOILING THE FLAMES:

Methods of Fire Prevention Should Be Studied In Every Home.

In bygone days the function of the chief of a fire department was merely to put out fires. Nowadays his duty is to prevent them.

Originally a fireman's work was defensive. Now it is also offensive. It attacks the cause.

Most fires are preventable. Individual carelessness is the chief cause. Education of the public—even involving punitive measures—is the remedy.

The simplest method of getting rid of fires is first to get rid of things that burn. "Cleanup days" are no novelty. They have undoubtedly reduced the fire loss ratio, but the very fact that there is need of an annual cleanup is proof that the public has not yet been rightly educated. Once a year is not often enough to wash the public's face or to brush its teeth and clean out its ears. This should be a daily task. Waste, rubbish and combustibles should not be allowed to accumulate.

The public education must go further. It should be carried into the home and should begin with the child.

A periodical lecture or talk given at least once a month in the public schools by a fireman in uniform would strike at the very root of the fire problem. An official in uniform always impresses a child, and his remarks and directions would carry the weight of authority. These lectures if illustrated by charts and diagrams would be more effective and would graphically present to the child mind not only the dangers of fire, but the methods of prevention and quick extinguishment.

In some cities juvenile police departments have been established with varied success, but a juvenile fire department, whether organized or merely existing in the educational equipment of children to prevent and extinguish fires, would be one of the most advanced steps taken toward the conservation of human life and property. —Insurance Press.

WOMEN'S AILMENTS

Come From the Heart and Nerves

Young girls budding into womanhood, who suffer with pains and headaches and whose face is pale and their blood watery, will find Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills build them up.

Women between the ages of 40 and 50, who are nervous, subject to hot flushes, feeling of pins and needles, smothering feeling, shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart, etc., are tided over this trying time of life by the use of this remedy.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have a wonderful effect on a woman's system, making pains and aches vanish, bringing color to the pale cheeks and sparkle to the eye.

The old, worn out, tired out, languid feelings give place to strength and vitality, and life again seems like living.

Mrs. Alfred Winter, Castor, Alta., writes: "I would like every woman who is suffering from nerves or heart trouble to know how much Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have helped me. For two years I kept a hired girl and was doctoring all the time. After having taken four boxes of your pills I am able to do all my own work. I would especially recommend them to women between 40 and 50, as at that time they are more liable to be far from well. One of my neighbors knows how they helped me, and she is now using them."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c, or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or sent direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Easily Settled.

"Be easy," said a rich merchant to a fault finding son-in-law, who was perpetually pestering him with complaints of his wife's shortcomings. "As her behavior is so intolerable, I will alter my will and cut her off with a shilling." The old man heard no more of his daughter's failings.

Rise a Little Higher.

Those who live on the mountains have a longer day than those who live in the valleys. Sometimes all we need to brighten our day is to rise a little higher.

A man ought never to quarrel with a woman. He should bear her unreason in silence.—Napoleon.

Flattering to the Original

But Imitations Only Disappoint

There are many imitations of this great treatment for coughs, colds, croup, bronchitis and whooping cough. They usually have some sale on the merits of the original, but it should be remembered that they are like it in name only.

BATTLE OF CHAPULTEPEC.

It Was the Last Serious Conflict of Our War With Mexico.

Chapultepec is the name of a hill three miles southwest of the City of Mexico, rising about fifty feet above the surrounding plain. On it the Aztec monarchs are said to have made their summer home, and here in 1785 Galvez, then viceroy of Mexico, began to erect an imposing fortified castle, which, though never completed, was used after 1822 as a military school. In the war between Mexico and the United States the hill was strongly fortified by the Mexicans and was the scene, on Sept. 12 and 13, 1847, of the last serious conflict of the war.

After the battle of Molino del Rey, Sept. 8, General Scott planned a movement against Chapultepec and on the 12th opened a heavy bombardment, under cover of which, on the following day, Generals Pillow and Quitman, supported respectively by Generals Worth and Smith, made gallant assaults, the former carrying the fortifications on the west and the latter on the southeast. The Mexicans, after making a stubborn defense, were driven in confusion back toward the city. On the 14th the Americans entered the City of Mexico, and the war was virtually ended.

During the three days (Sept. 12, 13 and 14) the Americans lost 703 in killed and wounded, General Pillow being among the latter, while the Mexicans are known to have lost a much larger number. On the side of the Americans about 7,500 men were engaged and about 4,000 on the Mexican side.

INSECT INVENTORS.

Clever Things Done by Spiders, Bees, Wasps and Ants.

"The best commentary perhaps on such a sentence as 'The inventor is just a clairvoyant who translates his forecastings to castings' is that among our greatest inventors are the insects," writes James A. Ford in America. "As a warning reflection on human cleverness these insect inventors should not be forgotten. The wasp made excellent waterproof paper ages before man ever thought of doing so, and made it from wood pulp. We have been using that material only for a couple of generations.

"The bee and the wasp used hypodermic needles long before man ever thought of them, and the bee uses formic acid as an antiseptic to preserve its honey from fermentation.

"The spider made the first suspension bridge according to all the rules of the craft, and some spiders make excellent airships. One of them even makes a diving bell.

"The bee makes a wax that we cannot imitate.

"The silkworm is still the unrivaled manufacturer of silk.

"To these we might add the ant, which makes tunnels and subways; the mason bee, with its cement work, and the great peacock moth, which calls its kind from a distance by wireless telegraphy. But to complete the story we should have to reprint Henri Fabre's books."

Stomach Was Very Bad Much Dizziness and Pain

The Liver Got Out of Order and the Whole System Was Poisoned

When the course of the food through the alimentary canal is impeded by sluggish action of the liver or bowels the food remains undigested and as a result it ferments.

This gives rise to poisonous gases which crowd about the heart, and cause dizziness and choking sensations as well as irregular action of the heart.

The liver struggles to remove the poisons from the blood, becomes enlarged, and finally fails, allowing the poisons to pass on to every part of the human system. Complications arise, and there is Bright's disease, hardening of the arteries and apoplexy.

The earlier derangements of the digestive system are such as are described by this letter from Mr. Rochon. He also points the way to cure by use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mr. Louis Rochon, R. R. No. 11, Ottawa, Ont., writes: "For about seven months my stomach was very bad. I was troubled with dizziness, and had gas on the stomach and awful pains in the right side. The liver seemed to be out of order so I began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This treatment seemed to be just exactly what I needed and before the first box was all used I was cured, and feeling as well as ever. I also used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food when feeling weak and suffering from nervous headache, and was soon restored to good health. I am proud of Dr. Chase's medicines, and recommend them above any doctor's medicines."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, twenty-five cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

A Clause in Napoleon's Will.

Peter the Great is said to have made a will in which he exhorted his heirs to approach as nearly as possible to Constantinople and toward India, but the authenticity of this document has been disputed, and it is shrewdly suspected to have been forged late in the eighteenth century by August Kotzebue.

Of the genuineness, however, of the last will and testament of Napoleon I. there can be no manner of doubt. One of its clauses was as vindictive as the testamentary injunction of Queen Austrigilda to her husband to have her two doctors killed and buried with her. The exile of Longwood absolutely bequeathed 10,000 francs to a fellow called Cantillon, who had been tried in Paris for an attempt to murder the Duke of Wellington. The man was still surviving in Brussels when Napoleon III. came to the throne, and Cantillon was duly paid his legacy.

THE BURDEN OF OIL.

The kidneys seem to be about the first organs to wear out and fail to properly perform their work. The result is weak, aching back, rheumatic pains and failing strength. Many people of advanced years have recovered health and comfort by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They ensure the healthful action of liver, kidneys and bowels.

Old Leather Bottles.

Leather bottles, or blackjacks, were common in Europe two centuries ago. The bottles were often made of the skin doubled up and closely stitched together, leaving an aperture for the neck. The stopper was made of wood, horn or old leather. A good deal of care was required in the preparation of the leather, which had to be oiled and worked with hammers to make it supple and then washed with a lye so that all the impurity was entirely removed, leaving the leather clean and dry. No moisture or air had any effect on it.

CALIBER OF A GUN.

What the Term Means as Applied to Artillery and Small Arms.

Confusion as to the meaning of the term caliber arises chiefly from its use as an adjective to indicate length, as when we say "a 50 caliber six inch gun." The word caliber as applied to artillery signifies the diameter of the bore of a gun measured diametrically from face to face of the bore, of course somewhat larger.

A gun, then, of six inch caliber is a gun whose bore is just six inches. For convenience and because the power of a gun when once its bore has been decided upon depends so greatly upon its length artillerists are in the habit of stating the length of the gun in terms of the caliber.

Thus the twelve inch United States naval gun, which is forty feet in length, is spoken of as a 40 caliber twelve inch, the length being just forty times the bore. The six inch rapid fire gun is a trifle under twenty-five feet in length and is therefore known as a 50 caliber gun.

In the case of small arms the caliber is expressed in hundredths of an inch, as when we say a 22 caliber revolver we mean one with a bore that has a diameter of twenty-two one-hundredths of an inch.

Mother's Cough!

It distresses you as much as her! Why continue to treat it by dosing the stomach (which is not ailing) with cough mixtures, syrups, tonics, and the like? You will never cure lung troubles by dosing the stomach. The Peps way is entirely different. Peps are tablets made up of Pine extracts and medicinal essences, which when put into the mouth turn into healing vapors. These are breathed down direct to the lungs, throat and bronchial tubes—not swallowed down to the stomach—which is not ailing.

Peps contain no morphia, laudanum, nor any of the poisons which are found in many of the old-fashioned syrups. Peps are, therefore, best for aged people and for young children. Peps do not disorder the stomach; they sweeten the breath, are pleasant to take, and are the latest and best that science can offer for the treatment of coughs, colds, bronchitis and allied lung troubles. 50c. all druggists and stores, or for price from Peps Co., Toronto. MILITARISM IN U. S.

ROME, via Paris, Jan. 17.— In a strongly worded editorial, the Messagero says, "President Wilson preaches pacificism, but under his administration the greatest military programme, surpassing even that of Germany, has been passed. America is preparing to become the second naval power in the world. American imperialism, after Cuba, the Philippines and the Sandwich Islands and Panama is now looking at Canada to the north and Mexico to the south."

INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM PERMANENTLY CURED

NEW BRUNSWICK LADY GIVES FULL PARTICULARS OF HER RECOVERY.

There are many types of rheumatism, but none worse than inflammatory.

It was this kind that almost killed Mrs. Edw. Warman, of Kent Jct., N.B.

Every known remedy she tried, different doctors gave their advice, but the disease increased.

Weak and despairing, she was at her wits' end when the remarkable cure of Thos. Cullen was published. This gentleman was cured of rheumatism by "Ferrozone." Consequently Mrs. Warman used the same remedy. Here is her statement:

"For five years I have been rheumatic. I tried various forms of relief without success. The disease increased, settled in my joints, and muscles; these swelled, caused excruciating pain and kept me from sleeping. My limbs and arms stiffened, my shoulders were lame and prevented me from working. Week by week I was losing strength and despaired of finding a cure. It was a happy day I heard of Ferrozone. Every day I took Ferrozone I felt better; it eased the painful joints, gave me energy and a feeling of new life.

Ferrozone has power to destroy cured it so that not an ache has ever returned. Even damp weather no longer affects me."

Ferrozone has power to destroy Uric Acid, neutralize and enrich the blood, and therefore does cure the worst cases. Mrs. Warman's statement proves this.

By removing the cause of the disease and building up a reserve of energy, Ferrozone is certain to cure. Sufferer, isn't it about time to stop experimenting? Ferrozone is a CURE, order to-day, 50c. per box, or six for $2.50, sold by all dealers or direct from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

BRITAIN'S WELFARE BODY.

The Ministry of Munitions Is Improving the Lot of Workers.

Under the caption "War and Welfare," the British Intelligence Service approved recently the following news article:

"The British Ministry of Munitions has started a Welfare Department. The other day I paid a call at a very old and respectable mansion in a very old and aristocratic quarter. I climbed up the backstairs to what I fancy, from the pattern of the Victorian wallpaper, must have been the housekeeper's bedroom in years gone by, and there I found a table and two chairs and a telephone and a friend ready to give a few minutes of his time to tell about the Welfare Department. That small upper room is the cradle of what will be revolution in English life after the war.

"Under the Munitions of War act the British Minister has power to give directions as to conditions of work. The new department is going to take charge of these conditions and see that they are enforced. The most important matters that will come under its sway will be the provision of clean and sanitary workrooms, facilities for securing good food under wholesome conditions, the arrangement of hours and shifts of reasonable length with rest intervals and opportunity of recreation, the examination into wages questions with a view not only to maintaining a fair rate of wages, but to see that the wages earned and paid are sufficient for proper subsistence.

"One point, regarded as important, is that an endeavour is to be made to bring the amenities of factory life nearer to the standard which men and women coming from respectable homes have a right to demand."

LOCAL WEEKLY MARKET REPORT

For some time potatoes have been selling steadily around $2.40 a bag, but with the advance of winter, and the decrease of supplies the price is expected to gradually strengthen. There has been already a tendency in that direction but it has not yet become general. Out of town markets report increased wholesale prices and general markets may be expected to show this trend in the near future.

Hogs this week are close to 13c a lb. The local price is $12.75, and Toronto reports $13.50 off cars.

RECORD SWINE PRICES STILL BEING PAID IN TORONTO.

Prices that have established a record in a season of high quotations for commodities are now being paid on the Toronto hog market, and there is no indication that there will be an immediate decline, says The Sun. The dealings on the first two markets of this week were not extensive, but the prices held steady. The fed and watered price was $13.25 and on the off car basis, $13.50 was paid. There is a strong demand for hogs, and prices on the other Canadian markets are closely in line with Toronto prices. The supply of hogs on the market is getting larger from week to week, and is now close to 14,000. If increases in the volume of shipments are continued the prices are bound to drop. Shipments are considered to be fairly heavy when 18,000 or 19,000 hogs are marketed in a week. At the present rate of progress this rate will be reached again in a very short time, and it must be figured that present prices are very attractive to the hog breeders, and that they will naturally be anxious to take advantage of the present price levels while they last. For the first half of this week, however, the hog market maintained a firm tone.

PROVISIONS.

Butter and eggs remain unchanged this week and cheese is colorless. (With few exceptions prices have changed but little since before the first of the year.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S FUR SET.

By Anabel Worthington.

In the history of women's clothes fur never reached such heights as it has this season, and the woman who has not a fur set or a set trimmed with fur for wear when the mercury drops will be cast out into utter darkness by Madame Mode. It is not necessary to have expensive furs; pieces from an old scarf that is not quite up to the mark for use this winter or parts of a discarded muff may be used effectively with plush, velvet or Angora cloth and give you cause to feel on good terms with yourself, from the style standpoint.

No. 8,065 shows a very becoming set that is easy to make and that will be prized by the possessor for its artistic charm as well as for the joy of its comfort giving qualities. The scarf is distinctly pleasing in its cut and if made of velvet or plush may be interlined with wool or cotton wadding, and the melon shape muff may have a similar lining when a muff bed is not used. In moleskin plush this set would be very effective—or in high pile velvet if rabbit or other fur contribute its share. Angora cloth, Arabian lambskin, or even corduroy, may also be used with satisfaction.

The pattern of No. 8,065 cuts in ONE size only. To make the scarf requires 1¼ yards 13 inch or wider fur for the outside and 1⅛ yards 19 inch lining; for the muff alone ⅞ yard 18 inch or wider fur for the outside and the same for the lining. For scarf and muff 1⅝ yards 19 inches for the outside and 1⅛ yards 19 inches for the lining.

To obtain the pattern send 20 cents to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 3 for 35 cents.

ST. PETERS PATRIOTIC CLUB BOXES, WERE WELCOMED BY BOYS

Received in Good Condition and at Opportune Time—Acknowledgments from Soldiers Who Express Appreciation of the Gift.

A BATCH OF LETTERS

That the Christmas boxes sent from St. Peter's Patriotic Club are giving much pleasure to the boys in the trenches is shown by the letters received daily by Mrs. Lehane, Secretary of the club. One of the boys, Pte. J. Cadigan, "Somewhere in France," said in his letter: "The mail bag is the most cheering thing in the British Army," as no matter how blue, wet, or tired the boys are "it seems to cheer us up to receive a parcel, letter, or even a post card from across the sea."

Another of the boys, Lieut. R. E. Picard, writes: "In this business one gets many surprises, and none greater or more pleasant than to receive a Christmas remembrance from St. Peter's Patriotic Club."

Pte. Henry Richardson writes from the trenches that the best way he can express his gratitude is by doing his bit to keep the Huns from our beautiful city; and he hopes the war will be over and that he will be back in dear old Canada by Xmas 1917; he also hopes we will be able to keep the "Home Fires Burning" till the boys come home.

Sergt. Harold Morrow writes that he was delighted with the very useful box sent from St. Peter's Club and wishes to all the members a happy and prosperous year in 1917.

A card just received from Pte. Chris. McGrath states that he received parcel and that he will send a letter later on.

Sergt. J. H. Desautel, writing from Bramshott Hospital, where he has undergone a severe operation, says: "It was a pleasant surprise to receive a parcel from St. Peter's Patriotic Club, as I did not expect to be remembered by the Peterborough societies when I did not enlist there."

Lance-Corporal A. Picard writes from the Freemason's Hospital, Fulham Road, England: "The parcel you sent me was very nice, and I can assure you the boys who will receive one in the trenches will be more than delighted to get it."

Driver W. J. Begley, who is in England, where he says they are working hard every day from 6 a.m. till 6 p.m. "Practising Action," referring to his Christmas box from St. Peter's Patriotic Club says:

"I have great pleasure in acknowledging your very welcome Christmas parcel, and I must say good judgment was shown in the packing, as everything was in perfect condition, and also very useful, particularly the tobacco."

The boys are all very grateful to the members of the club, and as St. Peter's sent 116 boxes overseas it is very gratifying to know they are being received so promptly, and that they are helping to brighten the hours in the trenches. Would it not be a good idea to let the spirit of Christmas be repeated oftener while the boys are away.

MRS. ALFRED LEHANE,
Secretary.

Peterborough Boy Is Decorated By General With Military Medal

Lance Corp'l. Bruce Blanchard Honoured for Bravery—Medal is Pinned on his Breast by Brigadier General Harston —More 93rd Officers and Men are now in France—Recruiting Rally will be held in Havelock—To-days Orders and General Military News.

Mrs. W. H. Blanchard, of Peterborough, wife of Capt. W. H. Blanchard, on active service overseas, has received the following letter from her son, Lance-Corp. Bruce Blanchard, of the 21st Battalion who, as announced in the Examiner some time ago, won the Military Medal at the front:

31 Halston Rr.,
Greenwich, S.E.

My Dear Mother—

I spent a night with father before he went back to the front, and intended to see him off the next morning, but there were no cars running, so after getting up at 6 o'clock, I was stung after all. Father looks well. He is getting quite gray, but is in the best of health and I think some stouter than when I saw him last.

Well, mother, I was decorated yesterday. Brigadier General Harston pinned on the medal. First they formed a square of all the men and N.C.O.'s and then read my name out. Well, believe me, I would rather be back bombing than to have a walk into that square again. The Brigadier pinned the medal on and wished me all kinds of luck and also said he would be pleased to grant me any favour that was in his power. He also said that it was an honour for him to pin any medal on to anybody for bravery, and he took pleasure in doing so. He had Underwood and Underwood of New York take the picture of him pinning the medal on and I took dandy. I will send you one when they finish them, and it is also going to be in "Canada" in the near future. "Canada" is a book dealing with Canadian soldiers, and you see that is some honour.

Well, mother, I do not know what to write about, as I think I have put in all the news I know of. I hope all at home are well and in the best of health, as it leaves me at present.

Your loving son,
BRUCE.

Wm. Andrew Ryder, of Bowmanville, became a member of the 247th Battalion to-day. He is the first recruit to be secured in that district for the local unit.

A recruiting meeting in aid of the 247th Battalion will be held at Havelock to-morrow night. The band of the 247th Battalion will provide music. Major O'Flynn will speak.

A letter received by Mrs. R. P. Watt of Peterborough from her husband, Major R. P. Watt, of the 93rd Battalion, states that Major Watt is now in France, where he is attached to the 19th Canadian Battalion. Major Watt's brother, Lieut. Jack Watt, who also went over with the 93rd, has been with the 19th Battalion for some time. Lt.-Col. Johnston is also attached to the 18th Battalion while Major K. G. Lech is with the 27th Winnipeg Battalion.

Ottawa, Jan. 17.—In the fortnight ending Jan. 15th 3,536 recruits were enlisted for the Canadian overseas forces. This is an increase of 1,036 over the preceding two weeks.

The Ottawa and Kingston division heads the list with 1,003; Toronto comes second with 505, and Montreal third with 404.

The aggregate enlistment since the war began is 387,409, made up divisionally as follows:

London, 31,568; Toronto, 85,889; Ottawa-Kingston, 42,207; Montreal, 34,318; Quebec, 7,756; Maritime Provinces, 35,158; Manitoba, 78,846; British Columbia, 39,079; Saskatchewan 939; Alberta, 34,659.

Saskatchewan was only recently created into a separate division. Previously it was merged with Manitoba The total of 78,846 credited in the official figures to Manitoba was in part contributed by Saskatchewan.

Harry Hampton, who yesterday was listed as wounded, is an Ontario boy who joined the 3rd C.M.R. at Medicine Hat shortly after war was declared and went overseas with his regiment in June, 1915. His father lives at Lakefield.

Toronto, Jan. 17.—Mrs. Geo. Tutton, of 76 Defoe street, after being officially informed that her son, Pte. George ("Harry") Tutton, was wounded Oct. 8th, received no further notification. On Dec. 26th she wrote Canada's Premier, and two days later received a personal reply. "Your letter of the 26th is at hand. I am directing the attention of the Minister of Militia, Hon A. E. Kemp, to your enquiry, and asking him to let you have any information that may be available. R. L. Borden." At 11 o'clock last night a telegram arrived from military headquarters stating that Pte. G. H. Tutton was wounded and missing since Oct. 8th.

Pte. Tutton was born in Port Hope, Ont., seventeen years ago. He went overseas from Brockville with the 59th Battalion in March last. His father, Pte. George Tutton, enlisted from Toronto with the 95th Battalion, and a brother, Pte. Jack Tutton, nineteen years of age, left with the 93rd (Peterboro) Battalion. Pte. G. H. Tutton is a member of St. Mark's Anglican Church, Port Hope.

Canadians Triumph In Daring Advance

LIST OF RAIDER'S VICTIMS INCREASED BY LATEST REPORTS

At Least Twenty-four Allied or Neutral Vessels Have Been Sunk or Captured by German Raider in the South Atlantic

SURVIVORS COMPLAIN

(By Charles P. Stewart.)
(Copyright 1917 by United Press.)

BUENOUS AIRES, Jan. 18.— The list of victim vessels of the new German raider who swept the Atlantic during the past month was raised to 24 to-day, with the possibility that it may reach 28.

Two more merchantmen, one British and one French, are missing. They have probably been captured or sunk by the Teutonic sea raider, it is believed here. In addition to the 23 vessels accounted for yesterday, it was definitely established to-day that the Japanese steamer Hudson Maru was included among the raider's prizes. Survivors landed from the Japanese vessel also told the first connected story of the operations of the raider to-day. The German raider is not only still at large, but she is plentifully supplied with food and fuel taken from her score and more of captures. The Germans adopted the greatest precautions in guarding their plans from the hundreds of prisoners taken aboard her prizes. The survivors were closely confined below decks, and so numerous that this cooping up forced severe hardships. Moreover, the food served them was utterly inadequate. All the survivors were bitter in their complaint of ill-treatment.

Survivors declare that the raider always used Danish or British flags, unless she was close to her victim, when she ran up the German ensign.

It is believed here that the activities of the British navy will soon put an end to the raider's depredations.

There are still from 300 to 500 members of the crews of the sunken vessels unaccounted for and they may be lost.

Four fast cruisers, including the famous Glasgow, which took part in the Coronel battle two years ago, are understood to be leading the hunt for the raider. A Japanese cruiser is steaming northward from Punta Arenas to join in the chase. In addition to the Glasgow, the British warships seeking the raider are understood to be the Vindictive, Orama and Edinburgh Castle.

Several Changes Are In Prospect On George Street

Upper Storeys of Buildings Now Occupied by the Bank of Nova Scotia to Be Turned into Apartments

Several changes in the heart of the business district are in prospect. Chief among them is the transfer of the offices of the Prudential Life Assurance Company to the second floor of the large and commodious premises now occupied by the Royal Bank at the corner of George and Hunter streets. It is understood that the Company will occupy the entire second floor of the building.

NEW APARTMENTS.

An architect from Toronto is in the city looking over the premises now occupied by the Bank of Nova Scotia with a view of converting the upper stories into apartments. This will mean a complete reconstruction of the upper part of the building and the installation of modern equipment.

MOVING THE STOCK.

Work on the building formerly occupied by the Royal Bank on Hunter street is being rushed to completion and Mr. R. J. Soden who is to occupy the premises has begun to move his large stock of goods from the George street store. The latter will be occupied by the clothing store of Merrell and Meredith while the Woolworth Company will take in the store now occupied by the Merrell and Meredith Company, thereby doubling their present floor space.

Enter German Trenches on a Front of Seven Hundred Yards and Penetrate to a Depth of Three Hundred Yards as far as the Second Line.

A SPLENDID SUCCESS

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, Jan. 17 (via London, Jan. 18, from a Staff Correspondent of the Associated Press).—In the grey half light of late mid-winter dawn and in the swirl of a cloud-like snowstorm which had lasted through the night a Canadian contingent of the British troops raided nearly a thousand yards of the German trenches north of Arras this morning. Besides inflicting heavy losses they came back with one hundred prisoners, one of them being a company commander, and former assistant professor of chemistry at Strassburg.

CAPTURE GERMAN MORTARS

As a raid to-day's attack establishes a record for the proceedings in the Somme sector in the last week, which netted three hundred prisoners in what have been classed in the official communications as "minor operations." In addition to a big haul of prisoners the booty to-day included two machine guns, which were found chained to the ground, and one trench mortar. The Germans have been using these mortars in lively fashion against the Canadians recently, and while it required a great effort to drag it back over the snow-covered No Man's Land the capture of this particular weapon gave the greatest satisfaction.

SECOND DAY-LIGHT RAID.

This was the second day-light raid carried out by the Canadians, the first resulting in the capture of sixty prisoners. It was marked by many of the same features that characterize all such daring and successful undertakings, except in this instance there was no marked increase in the preliminary bombardment, for the guns, which had been going steadily for eight days in this neighbourhood had cut to ribbons the much-vaunted protective barb-wire entanglements. It was just after dawn that the British barrage began to sweep over nearly four hundred yards of No Man's Land that separated the front trenches. As it formed its curtain shield of bursting shells the Canadians went "over the top." On either flank of smoke barrage had been flung out.

THEIR LOSSES SLIGHT.

Thus sheltered by the artillery the Canadians trudged forward, almost gaily, through the snow. It was like a touch of home to them. They encountered comparatively little resistance and a very light machine gun fire, and in little more than an hour they had cleaned out two lines of trenches and returned to their own lines with their prisoners and booty. The British losses were exceedingly light, and all the casualties were brought home. The prisoners were mostly Silesians and Poles, one of them having been a waiter in a popular London hotel before the war.

The Germans may have suspected that an attack was imminent from the heavy artillery fire of the past week, for their assembly trenches were well

CONCILIATION AND COMPULSION.

In every human relation, between families and in business relations, between employees and employers there is inevitably bound to be friction. In all these cases, the best way of arriving at a settlement, is quiet consultation, conducted with a spirit of conciliation. If a family disagreement were aired amongst neighbours the prospects of the "making up" which nearly always comes, would be destroyed and the divergence of opinion or demand would be fatally widened.

In like manner the disagreements that are bound to arise between employers and employees, in which it is possible for both to be a little right and both a little wrong, there is call for calm councils and counsels. Conciliation on both sides, may induce mutually satisfactory settlement; while a coercive or defiant attitude on both or even one side may, and in the majority of cases will, defeat the object, it is the interest of both parties concerned, to reach.

Coercion and compulsion are repugnant to human nature and result from arrogant assertion of rights or privileges of which no one side to any controversy has a monopoly. In labour disputes coercion is deprecated. A deputation of labour men asked Premier Borden for the repeal of the Lemieux industrial disputes and investigation act, for the reason, among others, that it had objectionable compulsory features. If their claim is correct; if the act, intended to substitute conciliation for compulsion in the adjustment of industrial disputes, has compulsory features the act itself is self-contradictory.

Anyway, this objection shows that the spirit of organized labour is opposed to compulsion and coercion; and it is only logical to assume that conciliation, the reasonable and reasoning way, should appeal to employees as well as employers. In nine cases out of ten, if the parties to an industrial or other disagreement, approach the discussion of the questions of difference involved, with open mind, each disposed to respect and weigh the other's point of view—the mountain turns out to be a molehill; whereas if each or either side takes an arrogant attitude, concedes no give and take, insists upon the pound of flesh, the molehill becomes a mountain—the trifling matter of disagreement becomes an open rupture, if not a deadly find.

In all the relations of men, whether industrial, social or political, temperate statement of demand or opinion or assertion of right is the correct principle; and in all disputes, moderate measures, mutually conciliatory consultation and quiet, temperate exchange of opinion among the parties themselves—especially keeping a family matter in the family—will tend to amicable settlement to mutual satisfaction.

"It ain't the guns or armament,
Nor funds that they can pay,
But the close cooperation
That makes them win the day.
It ain't the individual,
Nor the army, as a whole,
But the everlastin' team work
Of every bloomin' soul."—Kipling

EQUAL SUFFRAGE.

Few women would feel flattered by the statement that women are the equals of men; and few would dispute the proposition that women are the superiors of men. Leaving, however, these points in abeyance there is no doubt that women have equal rights with men and that, as the world goes, there is something coming to them, especially in the matter of suffrage. There is no more doubt of the abstract right of women to the ballot and all its use implies than there is of the right of a man to collect an honest debt. In the evolution of civilization and representative institutions the power to bestow the ballot upon women has fallen into the hands of men; and in his dealing with woman's rights Bobby Burns's pregnant reference to "man's inhumanity to man" becomes amiably beneficent, compared with man's inhumanity to woman. The Koran's denial of a soul to woman, isn't, everything considered, much more monstrous than man's denial of the vote to women. "Everything considered" includes woman's at least, average mental qualification to use the ballot as wisely as the average male voter, and her ability to fill many elective offices as well as the average male voter. It would be a sorry sort of womanhood that couldn't use a ballot more intelligently and honestly than many of the degenerate male voters, whose franchise is a marketable commodity. Discharge of the duties of citizenship is broadly contingent upon representation in the law-making and governing body of the state—upon power to make and unmake our law-makers. Farmers in West Simcoe bye election were told that they were outrageously unrepresented in the Ontario Legislature—only 17 farmer members out of a total of 111. Why waste pity on the farmers, when the million or more women of Ontario have no representative of their class at all, either in Legislature or Parliament or any elected body in the Province? And they will never get representatives till they get the ballot and the rights and privileges that go with it. The chivalrous gentlemen, who with good cause, dread woman's voting influence upon questions involving the liquor traffic and social rottenness, say that the power to vote is incompatible with womanly modesty and delicacy—and God knows and the devil knows how they respect them—the ballot would unsex women. It couldn't unsex her more completely and gloriously than, thank Heaven, the war has done. The war has made men of women—not men of the slacker kind, but men in doing war work in a way that is a reproach to the average male citizen and with a zeal and devotion and constancy that shame man's spasmodic, lukewarm and leisurely zeal. Besides—but this thing can't go on forever—the reader if he wants to know more about equal suffrage is requested and enjoined to attend the lecture of Miss Laura Hughes of Toronto, niece of Sir Sam Hughes, in the Collegiate Assembly Hall to-night. She has got the subject—of women suffrage—where woman has every subject—at her tongue's end.

PARTY BEFORE PATRIOTISM.

The Ottawa Government and its defenders, or apologists, seem to favour keeping in the rut. The idea is resented of both a war-time election and a cabinet shake-up, the sentiment seems to be, let-ill enough alone. The Government and its friends appear to take the position that it should be above criticism. That it is doing its best to promote Canada's share in the war, and that the Opposition should efface itself, and agree with everything the Government does, whether it be fairly good or exceedingly bad.

We can't do better, government or people, than to imitate the British practice and attitude. There the Asquith government, who were doing almost as well as the Borden Government in waging war, who had given their whole souls, their best abilities to the winning of the war, were bitterly criticised by press and politicians, who were not denounced as disloyal or unpatriotic because they wanted the best management of war interests. Mr. Asquith didn't whine; he held a higher ideal than holding office; the cause of the nation was higher than any party or personal considerations. If others could do better than he, let them try. An effort was made to do better, and a coalition government was formed. Even this Cabinet, of all the talents, representing all the parties and even factions, though it doubtless did almost as well, relatively, as the Borden Government, had to submit not only to criticism, but to extinction; and a national Cabinet rose on its ruins. And it is not escaping criticism.

Yet the Borden Government, in its smug self-sufficiency, cries "hands off." "The Government can't be improved; there is no need for reconstruction; there is no need for a coalition or national government. The very proposal is treasonable—to party interests. The Mail and Empire declares it is a device of the "Grits" to get power. While there is something flattering in the idea that a "national" government, devoted to the exploitation of the supremacy of national interests is tantamount to a Liberal government, the meaning, the fear and foreboding of the organ is that it means loss of office for its party; and office for its party, in its eyes transcends every national or imperial consideration.

A "national" government that would represent the best talents of both parties would, it seems, be more desirable in war interests than the present mere party aggregation, whose spirit of party uber alles is responsible for the fact that a returned soldier, to make him eligible for government employment—national employment—must join a Conservative ward association.

The idea that the Borden Government doesn't need strengthening; doesn't need any reconstruction; doesn't need any weeding out, or purging of disloyal elements, seems absurd from the fact that there are in the Cabinet three Nationalists, whose creed is anti-British, who declare that we owe nothing to Great Britain, no duty to help on the war for civilization and human liberty. The hide-bound, unreasoning Conservative politicians and organs hold up their hands in horror at the idea of a "national" government composed of the best brains and patriotism the country can produce. They prefer a "Nationalist," anti-British Cabinet to a "national" government. One implies inefficiency and indecision, and discouragement of the fighting, the recruiting spirit, but at the same time it involves sustained grip on office, and that is the great essential—party before patriotism.

PRACTICAL ARGUMENT FOR MAKING OUR EDUCATION PRACTICAL

When the Dominion Education Association meets in a short time at Ottawa, it is greatly to be hoped that its deliberations will include a serious and useful discussion of technical education and industrial training. This question has come forward very rapidly of late, and the time has surely arrived when it should receive in Canada the attention now being devoted to it in Great Britain and the United States.

Drastic reform of the regular educational system of Great Britain is under consideration to-day by an important committee of high authorities. The object sought is to replace the classics with the sciences all along the line and to supplement school education for the young who must work for their living with technical training.

In the United States, technical education has achieved national importance for the first time in history. President Wilson from whom, in view of his past career as an educationalist, no unwise radical proposal would come, included in his last message to Congress a strong recommendation in favour of more practical education with full recognition and approval of technical training.

Modern requirements demand of each citizen that he shall be fitted specially for some remunerative occupation. Ninety per cent. of those who attend school in Canada ultimately knock at the door of office, factory or shop seeking employment. Technical education or industrial training prepares the youth to be accepted; the conventional school system does not. Instead of trained workmen, our present system turns out a few professional men and a vast number of fairly intelligent office boys. After leaving school in Canada, the average youth enters a new world in which he must serve a lengthy and humiliating apprenticeship at starvation wages before he can hope to become a self-supporting and self-respecting citizen. Having no basic training, he is apt to drift from one chance position to another. And then we note the problem of the unemployed.

The trained man and only the trained man apart from those of independent wealth, is prepared for the battle of life. He does not have to see positions long, as a rule, because positions are seeking him. The training each man requires can be given him best at school. The greater number of school pupils, being destined for economic or industrial life cannot afford to spend all their time at school otherwise than in training themselves for work. It is a crime against the youth of the country to have no method in operation by which they are made fit to go through the greater part of their lives prepared for the task of earning their daily bread and supporting a family.

Increasing industrial development in Canada demands trained workers, an expanding economic situation requires them as well. In the country districts, greater farming possibilities call for men trained in agriculture. Women entering into business and economic life as never before, deserve preparation. All over America, millions of people are paying a needless toll of money each year to correspondence schools and other private institutions for the business and industrial training that they ought to get from the educational system which the public is taxed to support. Fortunes are being made by keen business men who give the public what it needs to earn a living and what it cannot get from the regular school.

The war has driven this lesson home in Great Britain and in the United States, where the unprecedented industrial activity has shown the lamentable lack of trained men. Germany's remarkable industrial "spurt" before the war was due primarily to a system of technical education which furnishes to her industries when needed skilled workers ready to start work. Her captains of industry found expansion easy because the men to work in new factories were always ready. In the highest interest of national development, even apart from the question of justice to the young, it is essential that Canada should have a system of technical education and industrial training as soon as possible—Ottawa Journal Press.

247TH SWAMPED MIDGETS, BEATING THEM 21 TO 8 ON THEIR OWN ICE BOX

Soldiers Cinched Their District Last Night When They Romped Away From Lindsay in an Exercise Gallop—Were Ahead 6 to 0 at End of First Period and 14 to 4 at Close of Second.

GAME NEVER IN DOUBT

The scoring machine of the 247th Battalion intermediate O.H.A. team was at work at Lindsay last night, and when the smoke had cleared the Soldiers had tucked the Midgets away to the tune of 21 to 8, which is about the worst walloping a Peterborough aggregation has ever handed the Bougogville outfit. As the score shows the 247th were never in danger, and although they lost the services of Bobby Armstrong, their crack centre man, after the first five minutes of play, the Soldiers always had the game well in hand. They had the score 6 to 0 at the end of the first period, and ran in nine goals before Carew and Co. found the nets at all. It was 14 to 4 at the end of the second period, and the last session found the Soldiers crowding in seven goals more while Lindsay scored four times.

The Peterborough aggregation were under wraps for the last two periods at that, and gave Lindsay plenty of opportunities, which the homesters generally failed to take advantage of. The Soldiers had it on their opponents in speed, stick-handling and scoring ability, and gave a grand exhibition of Canada's national winter pastime. They showed all kinds of cleverness in working in on the nets and had the Lindsay gang bewildered at times in trying to stop their attacks. While much of the work was individual effort, at times, uncorked some neat combination of the two-man variety that carried them in close for their goals; in fact practically all their counters were scored from the mouth of the nets. The small rink did not bother them as much as they expected, and on the whole they gave a great performance.

The only unfortunate feature of the game, from a Peterborough standpoint, was injuries to Bobby Armstrong and Barney Quinn. Armstrong scored the first two goals inside of five minutes, and then received a blow in the face that made a deep gash in his chin and loosened his teeth. It was an accident that deprived the Soldiers of their fast scoring centre for the balance of the game. Barney Quinn lost a tooth early in the fray and in the middle of the last period was knocked out completely, the game winding up with the teams five a side.

All the Soldiers showed fine form in spite of the lopsided score Legros had a lot of work to do, and he handled a host of shots beautifully. The Petes' forward line took things easy and only checked back spasmodically, with the result that Legros had to take care of a bunch of shots. Capt. Halpin starred all evening, checking nicely, while he showed a world of speed in his rushes. Two of his goals were on rink-length rushes that were beautiful to see. Quinn, his team mate on the defence, gave a good account of himself, checking and rushing well. All were good on the forward line with Evans particularly distinguishing himself by bagging eight goals. The left wing of the Soldiers gave his best performance of the season and his stickhandling especially in the last period was a treat. Adams found the nets six times on clever work, and was responsible for three more counters by neat passing at the proper moment. Flanagan only managed to break into the scoring column once, but he was always going, and had a lot of useful work. Armstrong was in the limelight while he was on and got the first two counters before he was hurt.

Lindsay had three changes in their line up. Griffis, Read and Art Carver were off the team, the latter being still laid up as a result of the injury he sustained in Peterborough. Chuck Carew was out at rover, while on the wings were Nattress, who once upon a time played for the Bell Telephone Co. team in the Peterborough City League, and Wortley, a Quebec man. Carew was the best of the bunch while he lasted, showing speed and cleverness, but he faded badly and had nothing left in the last period. Lefty McElroy was good all the way, with a burst of speed and stick-handling ability. Haugh, on the defence, never stopped trying and big Richman worked his head off to keep the score down. He was happy when he broke into the score column himself on an individual rush. O'Loughlin, the clever little goaler, was good all through, and saved scores time after time by brilliant stops. Referee Jerry Laflamme handled the game in his usual capable fashion. The teams lined up as follows:

Lindsay.		247th
	Goal
Loughlin		Legros
	Defence
Richman		Quinn
Haugh		Halpin
	Rover
		Flanagan
	Centre
McElroy		Armstrong
	Right Wing
Nattress		Adams
	Left Wing
Wortley		Evans

Peterborough started the scoring right off the reel. They broke away from the face-off and O'Loughlin had a shot to stop in the first fifteen seconds. Inside of two minutes Bobby Armstrong got away and, circling across the defence, scored the first counter on a neat side shot.

Richman drew a penalty for tripping and while he was off Armstrong batted in goal No. 2.

Almost immediately the big centre player was hurt and retired for the rest of the game, Lindsay dropping Nattress.

Richman came back, but Haugh was chased for dumping Halpin. The latter tore off one of the feature plays of the night a moment later. Losing the puck on a rush, he wheeled, checked back on McElroy, relieved him of the rubber and went the length of the rink for a goal, beating O'Loughlin with a beautiful shot from the side. He came down the boards and, shifting his grip on his stick, shot right handed for the goal—an unusual feat for a left-handed marksman.

A little later Halpin was benched for dumping McElroy and Flanagan also drew a penalty. Lindsay tried to break into the score column at this stage, but Legros was in the way, nailing two hard shots from Carew, and a dangerous drive from McElroy, in quick succession. The Lindsay gang were shooting hard, and true, but could not beat Legros.

A nice rush by Halpin gave Evans a chance to bat in goal No. 4, and a minute later, with Wortley in the penalty box for tripping, Adams slipped inside and beat O'Laughlin for the fifth counter of the evening.

Thirty seconds after Evans got away and scored from the side, leaving the score at the end of the period 6 to 0.

The second period had hardly opened when Adams tore off a dazzling rush and too O'Loughlin's measure. Evans worked his way in on top of the nets by neat stick-handling and scored goal No. 8, and Halpin made it 9 to 0, when he took the puck from behind his own goal, and went the length of the rink for a counter.

Lindsay got their first chance to cheer a minute later when McElroy slapped a goal past Legros on a pass from Richman. Carew followed it by another, in thirty seconds on a pretty rush, and repeated on a nice shot from well out. That left it 9 to 3.

Wortley and Richman of Lindsay drew penalties and before the latter got back Adams scored on a combination rush. Carew came back with a neat shot following a lone rush, making the figures 10 to 4.

Adams broke away and went in on top of O'Loughlin for goal No. 11, and Evans repeated the play. Flanagan made it 13 to 4 after an individual rush, and Adams followed with another dash for the last counter of the period.

Lindsay got the first two goals in the last period, McElroy getting the first on a pass from Carew and Richman went through alone for the second one. Adams got one back on an individual rush, and then combined with Evans for another, the latter scoring. That made it 16 to 6. Quinn was hurt at this stage and retired for the rest of the game, Richman being dropped to even up. Adams and Evans broke away for a nice passing rush and Evans once more found the nets. He came back alone from the face off and scored again in 15 seconds. Halpin was responsible for goal No. 19. Haugh brought Lindsay's total up to seven, when he scored on a nice shot. Evans tore in and fooled O'Loughlin in 30 seconds, and Halpin took a pass from Adams, and brought the count to 21 to 7. McElroy scored the last goal for Lindsay on a pass from Carew.

To-morrow's Junior Battle Will Start At Advertised Time

Lawson Whitehead Will Handle the Bell and the O.H.A. Has Promised That He Will Leave Toronto on an Early Train So That There Will Be No Delay—Oshawa Expect to Win the District by Beating the Petes Here.

Lawson Whitehead will referee in Peterborough Friday, Jan. 19th, and will leave Toronto on early train.

The above message received by the Peterborough Junior Club from Mr. W. A. Hewitt, secretary of the O.H.A., will be welcome news to Peterborough fans. Twice there have been long delays in commencing games, owing to the late arrival of referees and the local management made strong representations to the O.H.A. with the result given in Secretary Hewitt's message, which means that to-morrow's battle between Oshawa and Peterborough will commence sharp on the advertised time 8.15 o'clock.

The game promises to be the hardest fought of the season. Both teams are fast, and as the ice conditions will be of the best, the fans should get a treat to-morrow night. Oshawa are leading the group, with victories over Peterborough and Bowmanville to their credit, and the Petes must beat the fast going youngsters from the Lake front in to-morrow's battle or else hang up their sticks for the year. A win for Peterborough will tie up the group race and therefore more depends on this game than on any contest played here this season. Oshawa are very confident of winding up the district race by beating the Petes here to-morrow night. Both teams are in the pink of condition and with Lawson Whitehead to make them play hockey, the game should be a thriller from start to finish.

A number of fans from Lindsay, Millbrook, Lakefield and other points will be here for the game, which is attracting a lot of attention throughout the district.

HOCKEY GOSSIP

The decisive defeat inflicted on the Lindsay intermediates by the 247th intermediates last night, practically clinches the district for the Soldiers. The schedule is a double one, and the teams are slate to meet each other in two games, but it is hardly likely Lindsay will continue in the race. They would have to win the next two games to tie up the district and they haven't a chance in the world to do that. It is expected they will default. Counting Cobourg's defaulted games, the standing in the group is as follows:

	Won	Lost	Goals For	Goals Ag'nst
247th	6	0	78	28
Lindsay	4	2	52	39
Cobourg	0	8	28	63

The Peterborough juniors will practise to-night at 7 o'clock at Brock street rink in final preparation for their game with Oshawa to-morrow night. Bartley will be unable to practise to-night, as he is in Norwood on telephone work, but he will be back for the game to-morrow.

Curlers To Decide About Bonspiel On Friday Night

The members of the Curling Club are reminded of the general meeting on Friday evening at 7.30 o'clock, at which they will have an opportunity of saying whether they desire a local and open bonspiel or not. It is important that there should be a large attendance in order that the opinion of the Club may be expressed.

PHOTOGRAPHS OF PRESIDENTS.

Photographs of the Presidents of the Curling Club since 1904, the year the Thistles and Granites joined forces, will be added to the interesting picture gallery which is a feature of the assembly room at the rink. Fathers of the Club.

The most recent addition to the gallery is a very fine picture of Messrs. Robert Neill, W. G. Morrow, Thos. Brightman and T. F. Matthews. It bears the inscription "The Fathers of the Peterborough Curling Rink Company, to whose foresight and financial assistance the Peterborough Curling Club are greatly indebted for their present curling facilities." The picture was secured last season, but it is only recently that it has been noticed out in the gallery.

JAPAN A CREDITOR NATION.

War Brings a Swift Change in Financial Conditions.

TOKIO—One of the most striking phenomena that the war has created as regards Japan is her quick shifting from a debtor to a creditor nation. Since the Russo-Japanese war the world has got accustomed to thinking of the Japanese Empire as a borrowing country. Now the tables are turned and Great Britain, which loaned so much money to Japan in the past, has actually come here for a loan.

The recent flotation in Japan of a British loan for 100,000,000 yen or $50,000,000 was a great success. A few days after the lists were opened to the public the syndicate which had the issue in charge advertised that no more subscriptions would be received. The incident showed that there is plenty of available capital in Japan. The success of the British loan is to be attributed not only to Japanese confidence in British resources, but also to the preference by the Japanese public for short term loans. The English bonds are redeemable in three years.

Japan's cash payments aboard in addition to that for foreign securities amount to 391,600,000 yen or $195,500,000 since the beginning of the war and altogether Japan in that period has paid out in cash the huge total of 1,006,581,000 yet or $503,290,500. Adding to this the 200,000,000 yen or $100,000,000 by which the special holdings of the empire have been increased in the war period, about 1,200,000,000 yen or $600,000,000, represents the cash balance to Japan's credit in the international operations.

MR. TIVEY HAS BAD ACCIDENT

Aged Resident of East City Seriously Injured

Mr. R. Tivey, 137 Stanley Street, East City, met with a serious and what may prove, fatal, accident, whilst engaged in work at a house he is building on Roger street. On Tuesday he was alone in the house, and at 11 o'clock passersby heard him working, but at 12 groans were heard and on entering, a neighbour found him lying unconscious and badly chilled. He was taken home, but the exact nature of the accident could not be ascertained and he has been in a semi-conscious state since. Mr. Tivey, who is 87 years old, is a veteran of the war of '66, and was prominently identified with hunting circles, and has for many years held an honoured place amongst a wide circle of friends in the city, who hope for a favourable issue from his accident.

Y. M. C. A. NEWS

How to classify birds was the subject taken up by the Canadian Standard Efficiency Tests groups at the Y. M. C. A. last night. Mr. Elcome the local faxidermist, gave the boys an interesting and instructive talk on birds and how to place them in their proper groups.

Mr. Elcome selected for his talk last night the birds of North America and the British birds, telling of their characteristics and manner of living.

At the close of the address a hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Elcome for his kindness in preparing such an interesting and instructive talk for the boys.

Next Wednesday night, Collection Night will be held, when the boys will bring their collections of coins, stamps, minerals, different kinds of wood, or articles in the various stages of manufacture.

The checker, chess, and billiard tournament is proving a good success and some interesting games are taking place in the first round.

To-night the Senior Employed Boys' Life Problem will meet at 7:30. Gymnasium class at 8 p.m.

COUNTRY ROADS BADLY DRIFTED

Mr. A. W. Stabler the veteran drover, is in Peterborough this morning from a buying trip through Lakefield and Burleigh. Mr. Stabler reports the drifts this week to be the worst in his time. At Phelan's Corners, going north towards the House of Refuge, no horse has been through for two days. Many people who came into Peterborough from Lakefield yesterday had to remain all night at farmer's houses as going back until the road cleared up was impossible, and the stages from Buckborn and Lakehurst were snow bound at the Lakefield hotel.

RETURNED SOLDIER IS APPOINTED CHIEF OF POLICE AT WOODSTOCK

WOODSTOCK, Jan. 18.—Sergt. Walter Handy, a returned bandsman of the 71st Battalion, was appointed to fill the vacancy on the local police force caused by the resignation under somewhat dramatic circumstances recently of Samuel Bickley. Eighteen applicants, including several returned soldiers, were given an opportunity to state their claims at a meeting of the police commissioners this afternoon, and Handy was given the decision after a conference lasting rather less than half an hour.

Canadians Triumph in Daring Advance

filled, a fact which helped to swell the numbers of the prisoners taken. The raiding troops were somewhat chagrined when they were told that the German corps commander was in the trenches all day yesterday, leaving last night.

"Some wise old Teuton," said a Canadian Captain; "we should like to have pinched him."

HAIG'S STORY OF EXPLOIT.

London, Jan. 17.—To-day's British official report says:

"This morning another very successful daylight raid was carried out by Canadian troops northeast of Cite Calonne. The attacking party entered the enemy's trenches on a front of seven hundred yards and penetrated to a depth of 300 yards as far as his second line. Here also heavy losses were inflicted on the enemy, and all his dugouts were completely wrecked. We captured one officer and ninety-nine other ranks, two machine guns and a trench mortar. Our artillery and machine guns cooperated very effectively with the infantry. Our casualties were again small.

PERMANENT ADVANCE MADE

"After a heavy preliminary bombardment Wednesday morning we occupied a line of enemy posts north of Beaucourt-sur-Ancre. The whole of our objectives were gained on a frontage of some six hundred yards, with few casualties. The position gained considerably improved our observation in this area.

"After this an enemy counter-attack was broken up with heavy losses by our artillery barrage. The consolidation of the new position is proceeding. We had complete success yesterday and to-day in the neighbourhood of Lens.

"Late in the afternoon yesterday the German positions south of Cite Calonne, west of Lens, were entered under cover of a heavy bombardment. Our troops reached the enemy's support line and bombed and destroyed dugouts and inflicted many casualties. Our losses were small. We successfully blew a mine in connection with the operation."

"MORE LIVELY FIGHTING."

Berlin, Jan. 17.—The War Office statement to-night says:

"There has been more lively fighting near Beaumont, but aside from this no even of importance is reported from the western front."

PASTOR DONER CONCLUDES TALK ON THE GREAT WORLD WAR

The Struggle is Not With Mere Flesh and Blood But With Despotisms, the Empires and the Forces That Control and Govern This Dark World

Pastor Doner concluded his talk on the Great World War on Sunday night. Using Eph. 6:10-12 as a text, he showed that our struggle is not with mere flesh and blood, but with the despotisms, the empires, the forces that control and govern this dark world—the spiritual hosts of evil arrayed against us in the heavenly warfare. (Weymouth).

These demon spirits incorporate themselves in men and women and the result is war on earth. When man is at war with his Maker, he is also at war with his fellowman. The war that began in heaven between Lucifer and Jehovah ends on earth, when the Son of God returns to inaugurate His millennial kingdom.

Meanwhile the Holy Spirit is mobilizing the Church, and training her for the day of battle when Armageddon will be fought. To this elect body the Church is guaranteed by the Holy Spirit, a safe conduct through the air to meet her bridegroom and Lord. This event will fulfill the statement of 1 Thess. 4:13-18 and is called in the Greek, the Parousia.

It is not flight. It is not retreat. It is a marvellous strategic movement planned by the Royal Prince, Himself, by which He absolutely outwits and non-plusses the Dragon in consummating the arrangement made with the Bride-to-be (the Church) during His short stay on earth, when he acted as Ambassador to His Royal Father.

Satan's Rage.

Satan's rage at seeing the bridal Church thus escape, passing directly through his domain (the aerial heavens) is terrible indeed. Shortly after her arrival in the glorious queen's palace in the glory land, Michael, the commander-in-chief of all heaven's aerial forces, launches an overwhelming assault on the Dragon and his angels, resulting in his swift and eternal expulsion from the aerial regions so long occupied by him.

His operations are now confined to earth and stung to terrible fury and revengeful hate by his recent defeat, he immediately produces his master piece manifested in the great anti-Christ, and his corrupt system.

While the earth is filling up her cup of iniquity with harlotries and Christ denying blasphemies, God trains His long-range batteries from the citadel on the enemies' position and pours forth such a storm of fire and hail that men gnaw their tongues for pain. Death would be welcome at this time, but they seek it in vain. Suicide will be impossible. Escape out of the question. God's aim is deadly and the hour of His wrath is come.

Sun is Darkened.

Driven to his wits' end, Satan calls up his Hadean reserves, who respond in such multitudes that the very sun is darkened as they pass. Next came the dreaded Euphratean Cavalry Division, two hundred million strong, Rev. 9:16. And as these formidable hosts swing into battle line we lift our eyes aloft and yonder on the plains of light we behold another army in grand review before the King of Kings. This is the Imperial Horse Guards, also two hundred million in number, waiting for the long-expected order to advance. It is directly given in tones of thunder and in long, bending lines of riders uniformed in snow-white linen seated on horses as white as their robes, they descend the cloud hills led by the Prince of Heaven, in garments as red as blood. As they pass the sun, a mighty angel who cannot restrain his admiration salutes and cheers the majestic throng. The armies of the Dragon are agonized with suspense. Horses paw the dust and champ their bits with bloody foam. Messages flash like lightning. Officers hurry like demons from line to line. They come—swooping like eagles, they line up in the face of the foe. A few moments of awful silence, an imperial word of command and then a shout of triumph that would drown a thousand Niagaras. Satan's lines quiver and break before the terrible shock and the sword out of the mouth of the Imperial Prince, who is the Champion of the Church and the King of all the earth. Satan is arrested, gagged and bound, and hurled into the bottomless pit for one thousand years and the Millenium is begun.

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I was very much surprised to read in last night's Examiner the remarks by Mr. Stabler about the soldiers' wives. He has done recruiting a lot of harm, as men will hesitate to enlist and leave their wifes and children to be insulted. He says he means the working classes are better off with their husbands at the war. No money is too much for the anxiety they have to bear. He was afraid to say the other class was better off, but I challenge him. The only ones making money in the army are the officers with bigger pay than they have ever received before. I could, if necessary, mention a whole lot of them from Peterborough, and not all of them fighting at that, or likely to either. If I was a soldiers' wife I would refuse to go to the same church as Mr. Stabler until he apologised for those remarks, and he a pillar of George street church. What about officers' wives getting cheaper meat in England than the working women. It's the same old story. We used to sing in the army years ago, 'The officers' wives have puddings and pies, but we poor boys have skilly.'

ROUMANIAN PICTURES

The Real Roumania and Its Leaders

(By a Correspondent.)

Roumania to-day has only two prominent public men. One is Mr. Bratino, the Premier. Everyone who reads the newspapers in Europe or America knows his name. Excitable people call him "the cleverest statesman in Europe." He is known also as the Roumanian sphinx.

The other Roumanian public man, who stands out from the ruck, is Mr. Take Jonesco. Abroad, the readers of newspapers know more about him than Mr. Bratino. He has been much in London and in Paris. He has done a great deal to interest the world in Roumanian affairs and the affairs of the Balkans generally. He led the party in Roumania which was openly for the allies. He has made his reputation by eloquent talking. Mr. Bratino became famous through holding his tongue.

There never were two men more unlike. You cannot be in Mr. Take Jonesco's company for half an hour without learning his opinion upon a dozen matters of varied interest. Reading, Bacon said, makes a full man, and conference a ready man. Mr. Jonesco is both ready and full. He has a vast store of knowledge—knowledge of men and things. Only let him see that you share his interests and he puts his mind at your disposal. He is what Tennyson called James Anthony Froude once, "A jolly, vivid man." He enjoys life.

What are Mr. Bratino's opinions, what his special knowledge, what his attitude towards the universe, not even his friends can tell you. They know that he talks very little; that he is learning to play golf; that he wraps himself round with a veil of impenetrable mystery; that he says he never reads newspapers and does not want to know what they say.

In their manner of dealing with newspapers comes out the difference between these two Roumanian public men. Mr. Jonesco— but why do I write his name so? Only because it is usually written that way out of Roumania. The Roumanian spelling is Jonescu, and I suppose that the "scu" which is found also in a great many other names—for example Filipescu, Anghelescu, Constantinescu, or so on—is the same as the Russian and Polish "ski" meaning "son of"—the son of John, Philip, Angelo, Constantine. However, since he is known as Jonesco so vividly I will continue to write his name thus.

What I was about to say of him was that he appreciates justly the value and usefulness of the press. Here is an incident which illustrates what I mean. When he went to Athens in the autumn of 1913 to lend his aid towards making peace in the Balkans after the second Balkan war, he arrived in the middle of the day. He had much to do of course; many people to see; a great deal to occupy his mind, yet between five and seven o'clock, although he had to be at a state dinner party at eight and to make a speech requiring very special thought, he received and talked to eleven journalists. Not altogether, but each one separately. The result was that next morning all the papers spoke of his meditation in a favourable and hopeful tone. "It helped me a lot, you know," he says himself. "It gave my effort a good start."

He follows the same plan now. Every morning he receives journalists from half past eight to nine, every afternoon between five and seven. He has a newspaper of his own and writes in it a great deal, in addition to inspiring articles in many others. He is a believer in publicity. He understands the psychology of politics, and by politics I no not mean party politics, but the management of the affairs of state. Therefore, he does all he can to sustain opinion at a healthy, moderate level. Meanwhile Mr. Bratino, like Brer Rabbit, "keeps on lying low and saying nuffin," shunning journalists as he would shun a pestilence.

There is, I am bound to admit, more excuse in Roumania for Mr. Bratino's disdainful opinion of newspapers than there would be elsewhere. Here in Bucharest dark-skinned little boys, with brilliant gipsy eyes, shout fresh editions all day long. They begin at six in the morning. One of the Latin characteristics which separate Roumania from its slav neighbours, is the habit of getting up early. After six if you are staying anywhere near the centre of a town, it is impossible to sleep, for when Roumanians are awake they take care to let you know it. All day the newspaper sellers keep up their discord. They have a large choice of wares to offer. Quantity there is, but quality is absent. Very soon one ceases to take any interest in buying them.

Bucharest has, I suppose, more newspapers per head of population than any other town in the world, but they are very poorly supplied with news. They exist in ordinary times for the purpose of carrying on violent political and often personal quarrels. They allow themselves the license of speech, which recalls Dickens' ill-natured parody on the American press.

Bucharest is not really representative of Roumania any more than Petrograd is of Russia. It is an overgrown village. Its main street, the Calea Victoria, is little more than a lane, narrow, winding, uninspired; a lane that is lined with expensive shops and expensive hotels; a lane that interests, and here and there charms by its unexpected quaint irregularity, but always a lane, with none of the characteristics of a chief thoroughfare. For the most part the town is a tangle of lanes, a labyrinth without plan, a village which has transformed itself into a capital in a fit of absence of mind.

There are some new, broad boulevards, but these are not the central arteries of traffic. The only street which is used for the walking up and down, which is so strong a feature of the life in Bucharest is the Calea Victoria.

Certainly the rich villagers of Bucharest live in fine houses, many of them finer than the Royal Palace itself. White are they all and southern in appearance, rather like the villas on the outskirts of Nice. They lend the place a pleasant air of dignified ease. Each has its garden. In every street the eye is gladdened by green trees, with frequent peeps at smooth lawns, flowers and fountains.

Palatial are the public as well as the private buildings. Almost all government offices are handsome and imposing, both without and within, telling their tale of the riches yielded by the soil of this small country in grain and petroleum. Yet you are reminded of a village again when you see white oxen labouring past their elaborate facades drawing peasant carts.

Bucharest is artificial. To find the real Roumania you must go into the fields— the corn fields and the oil fields. Often the politicians have forgotten this. But now they know, those who are directing the policy of the little state, that they have they have the people behind them. Not a peasant family but thrills to the thought of grouping all the Transylvanian Roumanians under the flag with the Roumanians of Roumania. It is a national idea which has waited long for fulfilment. Now that its realization is in sight the whole nation is united. Mr. Bratino and Mr. Take Jonesco are working, each after his own fashion, for the same end.

One can still hear the Jonesco partisans make fun of Mr. Bratino for his studied aloofness. 'Born in the purple' they say, "son of a famous Prime Minister, easy in circumstances, imperious in character, he has only to stretch out his hand and take the sceptre of perpetual power. How can he be expected to descend into the arena with ordinary men?" One can still find references to Mr. Jonesco as "the political tourist," fonder of other countries than his own. But this is merely the backwash of long-established habit. In truth there is no division of aim. Each in his way, these two leaders of Roumanian opinion contribute to the [illegible] end. The one keeps silence; the other talks. Both are needed. Both are serving their country's needs.

Improvements Required at The Queen Mary Isolation Hospital

Number of Recommendations Included in the Annual Report Which Was Submitted to the Board of Health—One Hundred and Two Patients Were Treated During the Year.

Miss Hattie Reid, Acting Matron of the Queen Mary Isolation Hospital, includes in her annual report to the Board of Health, the following information concerning the work of the institution:

One hundred and two patients were treated during the year. Three cases proved fatal; cause of death being diphtheria.

Owing to the increased number of patients, also advanced prices, increased expenditures were necessary in every line, with the result that there is a very small amount of the appropriation left to make any necessary improvements. One improvement which has proved very satisfactory was the draining of the root house and cellar. Vegetables from the hospital garden are being stored in the cellar to good advantage.

Gardening Operations.

Gardening operations throughout the year were very successful. Splendid results repaid the work, done entirely by the efficient caretaker. No expense for labour outside of ploughing and harrowing was incurred.

With regard to the present condition of the building, the following may be presented for the consideration of the Board:

The walls of the various wards in north half of building are badly in need of repair and paint.

The floors on the second flat are very poor quality. They are badly opened up and unsanitary. Would suggest that these be replaced by hardwood floors similar to those on the first floor.

All exterior woodwork of the building is very badly in need of painting.

Shacks were built in the spring for the accommodation of smallpox and meningitis patients. It has not been necessary to open them owing to the absence of said disease. In case they are utilized, furnishings and fittings will be necessary.

Expenditures.

Expenditures for the year were as follows:

Groceries and provisions	$ 951.46
Drugs and medicines	218.14
Fuel	486.23
Light	46.83
Telephone	42.90
Water	60.00

THE GREAT "DADDY LONG LEGS" COMING TO PETERBOROUGH

Mr. D. W. Haynes was in the city yesterday arranging for the forth-coming engagement of the big "Daddy Long Legs" Company which occurs at the Grand Opera House in this city on Saturday, January 27th, when two performances of the pretty comedy will be given—matinee and night. The same company identically that began its tour of twenty Canadian cities by playing the week of January 8th at His Majesty's theatre, in Montreal, and the present week is playing at the Grand Opera House, in Toronto, to packed business, will be seen in Peterborough. The management of the Grand Opera House is fortunate in having secured such a notable attraction for its patrons. There are twenty-four members of the company and four splendid sets of scenery.

"Daddy Long Legs" is really one of the best-liked plays now before the American and British publics. Several months ago Mr. Henry Miller, the producer and manager of this attraction, formed another company and took it to London, England, where it is now playing to great audiences at the Duke of York's Theatre. So, at the present time there are two companies under the same management playing "Daddy Long Legs" within the British Empire.

If Peterborough patronizes this visit of "Daddy Long Legs" sufficiently to insure him a fair profit, Mr. Miller will send to the Grand Opera House his other comedy, "Come out of the Kitchen" which is now playing successfully at the George M. Cohan Theatre, New York. Also the great theatrical firm of Klaw & Erlanger, of New York, are watching this Canadian tour of "Daddy Long Legs" (with which they are interested with Mr. Miller) and if it is successful they will send a line of their other big attractions over the very same territory the present season.

The "Daddy Long Legs" Company will play the Russell Theatre Ottawa, on Wednesday and Thursday, January 24th and 25th. On the 26th it will play in Belleville, and the 27th in this city. Peterborough will be the seventh city on the tour.

SERGT. MARRIED FOUR WOMEN IS CLAIM

OTTAWA, Jan. 18.—Three bigamous marriages in five years is the alleged record of Sergt. J. C. Mann 240th Battalion, who is now being held by the Ottawa police on a charge of bigamy. He was arrested at Pembroke on Saturday where he was sojourning with his most recent wife, an Ottawa girl whom he married a month ago. He has four wives.

It is evident that Mann has a warm heart, for although he is said to have four wives he had not deserted any of them but paid them visits at regular intervals. The police say he became possessed of the mania to marry five years ago in Montreal, when he met the girl who became wife No. 1.

KEPT BOTH HAPPY.

A few months afterwards, under the name of McMann, he is supposed to have married wife No. 2. He was contented with these two women for a couple of years and lived first with one and then with the other.

Journeying to Smith's Falls, it is alleged, he became enamoured with one of the fair damsels there and under the name of F. A. Ryan went through a form of marriage with the woman. This marriage took place less than a year ago. He enlisted in the 240th and coming to Ottawa met the girl now known as wife No. 4.

TOO MANY CLAIMS.

It is understood that the wives came to know each other through correspondence with the Militia Department to whom they had written regarding the separation allowance due them because of their marriage with Mann. Three applications for separation allowance from three different women who claimed one man as their "alter ego" showed the authorities that there was something wrong. With the aid of the police Mann's arrest was made and his honeymoon with the Ottawa girl was brought to an end very suddenly.

The accused man is about thirty years of age.

FLEES GERMAN CAMP IN THIRD ATTEMPT

Frenchman Tells How, With His Three Companions, He Finally Reached Holland

PARIS.—A French Corporal, who for over a year was a prisoner in Germany and after three attempts to escape finally returned to France, has given me the following account of his adventures:

"I was captured September, 1915, by a surprise attack of Germans. I was interned at Darmstadt (Hesse), which continued to be my headquarters till I finally regained my liberty last month. The treatment was severe the food was unquestionably rank and insufficient, but at least I had the satisfaction of seeing the German guard eating and enjoying the same diet as we. The chief dish was an unpalatable stew consisting mainly of a peculiar kind of flour nick-named by the prisoners 'revolution flour.'

"I was first sent to work on a farm. At this period I made my first attempt to escape, with three comrades. We constructed a rope ladder and got clear of the camp, carrying out provisions, which we had accumulated for some days previously. We managed to cut the barbed wire and struck out across the woods and fields in the direction of the Dutch frontier, walking at night, lying low in the woods during the day. It was while hiding in the woods that we were discovered by a game keeper who came on us unawares.

"On being sent back to camp, where we knew we should be thoroughly searched, I managed to slip a compass we had used to guide us to a comrade as I shook hands on entering the camp. A compass and maps are the most treasured objects of prisoners, and every care is taken that they do not fall into the hands of the keepers.

"I was sent to work in a mine, the scaffolding of which was so rudimentary that part of the side once collapsed, nearly killing me. While in the mine, two comrades and I devised a new plan for escape, which we carried out successfully at nightfall, this time making for the Swiss frontier. For three days we made good headway, when our career was again cut short by running into a sentinel.

HAD A MAP.

"My last escape was in December, when, with three companions, I again got clear of the camp, unobserved. This time we had a map to guide us to the Dutch frontier. The map was one I had traced from a map lent to me by a British prisoner passing through the camp. For nine nights we marched and for nine days we hid in the December woods, shivering with cold. Once when near the frontier, trudging along a road, toward evening, we met a German officer. You can imagine how our hearts beat. However, we kept cool and marched two by two, as if going into the neighbouring town, and the officer passed on without stopping us.

"It was only when we were brought to a halt by a challenge in Dutch that we realized we were safe. You can imagine our delight, which was heightened by the unconcealed pleasure of our kind captors. They took us to a hotel. The next day we were sent on to Rotterdam. There we made the acquaintance of a supposed Sergeant of the Foreign Legion, who tried to question us about our experiences, but we were on our guard, as we scented him to be a German.

"There is no doubt things are in a very bad way in Germany, for as we passed through the country we could see signs of misery everywhere. The butchers' shops we caught glimpses of were practically bare. Another fact I discovered, which so far has not transpired, is that it is possible for Germans to obtain postponement of military duties for periods of three to six months by paying money, for the son of a farmer where I worked got exemption after turning over 4,000 marks to the authorities.

"Much has been said of the cruelty of the Germans to prisoners. But this I know—every one is sick and weary of the war. I have seen recruits weeping as they left for the front. What a difference on coming home. It seems incredible to find such a contrast, such cheerfulness and confidence."

"CATHEDRALS OF EUROPE" SUBJECT OF K. C. LECTURE

Rev. Father O'Gorman, of Cobalt, delivered a scholarly and interesting address on "The Cathedrals of Europe," at the Knights of Columbus Club last night. There was a large attendance of the members and their ladies, who enjoyed the instructive lecture and the illustrative slides that were shown. Father O'Gorman discussed the types of architecture displayed in the designs of the churches of France, Italy, England, Switzerland, Germany and other countries. The illustrations included the famous cathedrals of St. Peter's at home, Rhelms, Westminster Abbey, Cologne, Milan, Notre Dame and others.

At the conclusion of the lecture a vote of thanks, moved by Mr. F. F. Garden, and seconded by Mr. Harry Phelan, was conveyed to Father O'Gorman by Mr. John R. Corkery, Grand Knight, who presided. Bishop O'Brien, Rev. C. J. Phelan, Chaplain of the Council, and Mayor Duffus, spoke briefly upon the lecture and its subject.

An enjoyable musical programme was contributed by Misses O'Donnell, K. McCarthy, and Mr. Ed. Hanrahan, the accompanists being Misses M. Gorman, L. Hurley and M. Lonergan. The meeting concluded with the singing of the National Anthem.

To do away with the smell of fresh paint, put a pail of water into which an onion has been cut up in the newly painted room over night. If windows and doors are closed the odor will be absorbed by morning.

ALD. DUNCAN WAS RE-ELECTED TO THE BOARD

The 1918 Mayoralty Candidate Will Again head the Board of Health—Accounts passed

MILK TESTING

At a meeting of the Board of Health, held last evening, Ald. G. H. Duncan was re-elected Chairman of the Board for the current year. Ald. Duncan moved that Mr. James Murby be appointed, but the latter declined, and nominated Ald. Duncan, with the above result.

A report was received from Miss H. Reid, Acting Matron of the Queen Mary Isolation Hospital, respecting the work of the institution during the past year. The report showed that one hundred and two patients had been treated during the year. Three of these proved fatal. The financial statemnt showed a balance of one hundred and ten dollars.

Dr. C. H. Amys, Medical Officer of Health, was of the opinion that the fees at the hospital should be raised to one dollar a day for adults, owing to the high cost of living.

Milk Testing.

Mayor Duffus, who is a member of the Board, brought up the matter of testing milk. Dr. Amys said he was willing to instruct somebody in this particular work.

On motion of Mayor Duffus the Medical Officer of Health was instructed to bring in a recommendation regarding the milk testing situation. A committee composed of Mayor Duffus and Ald. Duncan was delegated to look into the matter of obtaining facilities for this work. They will wait upon the Chairman of the Utilities Commission regarding the use of the laboratory for milk testing.

During the year the regular meetings of the Board will be held the second Tuesday of each month at 8 o'clock in the evening.

Accounts Passed.

The following accounts were ordered to be paid: R. J. Boden, $3.00; Dnorss Fruit Co. $2.88; Wm. Brown $2.10; G. J. Jopling and Sons $6.64; J. Steinburg, 77c; Porter S. White, $2; Alexander and Miller, $4.50; Bell Telephone Co. $11.95; W. Scott Co. $2.00.

A GENERAL ELECTION IS PROPHESIED

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 18.—That there would be a general election in Canada within six months, possibly four months, was the opinion freely expressed to-day by members of both parties who gathered to formally elect a new speaker, E. N. Rhodes, M.P. for Cumberland. Sir Robert Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier both spoke briefly this afternoon. His Excellency's speech from the throne will be delivered to-morrow. The debate on the address will be moved on Monday by Gordon Wilson of Wentworth and seconded by J. A. Decarie of Jacques Cartier, in French. There are all kinds of rumours afloat, including the one that Sir Robert Borden may not attend the Imperial conference. Both parties will meet in caucus next week.

SIR CHARLES HIBBERT TUPPER IS CHOSEN AS A DIRECTOR

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Crown Life Insurance Company, held on Tuesday, January 16, 1917, Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper, of Vancouver, was elected a Director of the Company. Sir Charles Hibbert is the son of the late Sir Charles Tupper, Bart., the first President of the Crown Life. He has been a shareholder of the Company since its inception, and is keenly interested in its future progress.

WILL COME TO PETERBORO

Miss Ada L. Ward, who will leave on Saturday for Peterborough on her way eastward, has been revelling, as all our overseas visitors do, in the snow and the clear, bright air, and—the wonderful lighting of our streets. After darkened England she says our brightly-lighted towns seem like fairyland and she confesses, with amusing penitance, that she has been enjoying cake, something that the old land has scarcely known the sight of for months.—Toronto Globe.

GEN. VILJOEN, THE FAMOUS BOER, DEAD

MOST BITTER OPPONENT OF BRITISH RULE IS DEAD.

LA MESA, N. M., Jan. 18.—Gen. Benjamin J. Viljoen, who was known as "The Firebrand" during the Boer war and who was regarded as one of the most dangerous Boer leaders, is dead at his home here from pneumonia.

After the war he came here and established a colony of his countrymen. He acted as military adviser to Francisco I. Madero during the Madero revolution in Mexico. His son is now with General Pershing's forces in Mexico.

General Viljoen was in his 49th year and was born in Woodhouse, Eastern Cape Colony. At the age of 18 he joined the gold rush to the Rand, and in 1890 entered the service of the Boer Government. Three years later he began to help organize the Boer military forces, in which he soon rose to the rank of major. In 1896 he broke up the Jameson raid by capturing Dr. Jameson, and for his services was promoted to be commandant of militia and special commandant of burghers in the vicinity of Johannesburg. During the Boer war he gave the British great trouble, and at the end was exiled to St. Helena. In 1902 he was paroled, and, after returning to South Africa to bid his country farewell, forever, came to this country.

ACID STOMACHS ARE DANGEROUS

Nine-tenths of all Stomach Trouble, said to be Due to Acidity

A Physician's Advice on Cause and Cure.

A famous physician whose successful researches into the cause and cure of stomach and intestinal diseases have earned for him an international reputation, said in the course of a recent lecture that nearly all intestinal troubles, as well as many diseases of the vital organs, were directly traceable to a deranged condition of the stomach which in turn was due nine times out of ten to excessive acidity, commonly termed sour stomach or heartburn, which not only irritated and inflamed the delicate lining of the stomach, but also set up gastritis and stomach ulcers. It is interesting to note that he condemns the use of patent medicines as well as of medical treatment for the stomach, stating that he and his colleagues have secured remarkable results by the use of ordinary bisurated magnesia, which, by neutralizing the acidity of the food, removes the source of the trouble. He contends that it is as foolish to treat the stomach itself as it would be for a man who stepped on a tack to rub liniment on the foot without first removing the tack. Remove the tack and the foot will heal itself—neutralize the acid and the stomach troubles will disappear. Irritating medicines and medical treatments are useless, so long as the contents of the stomach remain acid; remove the acidity, and there will be no need for medicine—the inflamed lining of the stomach will then heal itself. Sufferers from acidity, sour stomach or heartburn should get a small bottle of bisurated magnesia from their druggist, and take a teaspoonful in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water after meals, repeating in fifteen minutes, if necessary, this being the dose which the doctor has found most effacious in all cases.

DE LAVAL PRODUCTS AWAY DOWN SOUTH

Interesting Revelations of a De Laval Officer on a Trip to Florida

A good trip to a big, bustling city, hunderds of miles away, is often the very best tonic a hard-working business or office man can take. Going into some live community, observing what the knowing ones are doing, and coming back with a newly acquired angle of things, is invigorating to one's mental machinery.

These thoughts have been suggested by the recent experience of one of the De Laval Company's busiest office men, who had an opportunity a few weeks ago to get away from his desk for an all too short fortnight's vacation.

That the De Laval cream saving separator has made thousands of friends all over the world received another confirmation by reason of this flying visit made under circumstances similar to what is outlined above.

The closing hours of 1916 found Mr. Chas. D. Cook, manager of the silo department of the De Laval Company of this city, along with his family, en route to the State of Vermont, where they were to enjoy a brief visit to their daughter, who is engaged in one of the largest educational institutions of that border State.

Having enjoyed a few fleeting days in a New Year's family re-union, Mr. Cook was permitted to relieve himself of family ties for a few days in order to gratify a long pent up desire to make a visit to Florida, just to have a personal experience of what sort of a climate existed there in winter time.

On board a U. S. through "flyer," Mr. Cook was rushed through to Savannah in standard time, going over the road at a clip calculated to make some of us who depend on Trent Valley transports feel slightly dizzy. Arriving in Florida he found the temperature up to 65 deg., only a few hours after having left his northern climate, which then registered 8 deg. below zero. Mr. Cook discovered that he had no use for his Canadian overcoat and some other extra baggage. His first experience was in an orange grove, where all he had to do was to put out his hand and pluck the juicy, sun kissed oranges, refreshing himself to his appetites fullest content. But this experience was not exactly what was calculated to satisfy the predominating instincts of a De Laval official. Mr. Cook was far away from home and if he could only come in contact with some of the products of his home works he would be more contented. With a little available help, he soon found himself on his way out to a fine Florida dairy farm where 150 head of cattle were browsing in green pasture fields. On entering his new found friend's premises the first thing that attracted his attention was a De Laval cream-saving separator, and a little farther away was a barrel of Wyandotte cleanser and cleaner. Mr. Cook felt himself at home at once, and while the charms of a Florida climate was strongly appealing to his physical senses, he forgot that he was a thousand miles and more away from his office desk in Peterborough.

Proud to see the products of his home factory in practical use away at the other end of the continent, Mr. Cook stayed round until he could stay no longer. Gathering new information for 1917, and bringing back some "follow-up leads" that would help to start the new year at a good De Laval clip.

"Did the Florida oranges taste any better than those you get in Peterborough?" was asked Mr. Cook.

"Can't say that they did. They just seemed a little bit riper than those picked for shipment north. But I think one can get almost as good an a-range from Mr. Oke as he could pick in Florida."

"Hear anything about the war away down south? "Very little, you wouldn't know that a war was going on. People down there don't talk war the way they do up north. The newspapers do not print any large "scareheads" and business appears to go on as if they didn't know much about the scrap going on in Europe.

A MODERN INVENTION.

It is said that a man who won't buy a paper because he can borrow one has invented a machine by which he can cook his dinner by the smoke from his neighbour's chimney.

The British Have Made Further Gains on the Western Front

Advance of Teutons in Roumania Is Now At a Standstill

Allied Generals Are Already Carrying Out Chief's Plans

The Meeting Emphasizes Anew the Harmony of Spirit to Win a Victory Which Now Animates the Allies—Will Continue the War Until the Allies Aim Has Been Achieved

FURTHER DRAFTS ANNOUNCED

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, January 19.—The recent Rome conference of Entente Premiers decided what steps the Allies would take in their future warfare. A conference of military chiefs of the Entente just concluded here mapped out how these were to be accomplished with the men and materials in hand.

This interpretation of the meeting called by Premier Lloyd George is generally made by the public to-day in emphasizing anew the harmony of spirit to win a victory which now animates the Allies.

All that was announced on the conference was that it was in line with the Entente reply to President Wilson, which announced the Entente's unswerving determination to continue the war until the Allies' aims had been achieved.

Among the participants were Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, Commander-in-Chief of the British forces, and General Nivelle, French Generalissimo, with a number of other commanders.

Coincident with the meeting came the announcement from the Government that citizens of the class exempted by the Military Service Law are to replace one-half of the farm workers under twenty-six years of age.

Apparently also the Government has decided that the shoe-making trade can stand further drafts of men, as drafts are out for a large number of workers in this industry under thirty.

A "Mine" of Frozen Potatoes Is Found By Railway Tracks

Carloads Dumped With Evident Intention of Keeping Up Food Prices—Engineers Make Discovery in Surveying Land For Sewer Project—Ten Carloads Were Sacrificed

HIGH PRICES MAINTAINED

MONTREAL, Jan. 19.—At least one tangible reason for the high cost of living in Montreal was discovered this week by three civil engineers, who came across a 'mine' of frozen potatoes on the Turcot flats, three miles west of Cote St. Paul, beside the tracks of the Grand Trunk Railway. Some ten carloads, worth at present market prices, $2.25 a bag, had been dumped into the discard at that point.

There has been much talk of the destruction of potatoes, and of the withholding of food products from the market to affect the prices paid by the consumer. This find affords conclusive evidence that such tales have basis in fact.

The potato 'mine,' which was visited by a representative of the press after the engineers had reported their discovery, appears clearly an attempt to conceal from public knowledge the wilful destruction of a very large quantity of food supplies, probably for the effect on the market price.

Good Potatoes Frozen.

Three civil engineers of Montreal, R. H. Greetham, Michael Downes and Gilbert Carroll, who are at present engaged in surveying the Turcot flats in connection with the Little St. Pierre River sewer project, were driving survey stakes in the vicinity of the 'disinfecting station' of the Grand Trunk Railway, about three miles west of Cote St. Paul boundary line, when they made the discovery. At one point they found that for a depth of three feet there was a solid bed of perfect, unblighted potatoes, frozen as hard as anthracite coal. Another two feet down, and steam from a repulsive, decaying mass of potatoes rose into the frosty air.

The engineers made further investigations and the full significance of the plot was revealed. Some 300,000 pounds of potatoes, they estimate, must have gone into that dump heap.

Mysterious Cars.

Three weeks ago, they ascertained ten mysterious box cars were backed down the railway siding to the disinfecting station, where cattle-cars, horse cars, etc., are habitually taken to be cleaned out and disinfected. The ten cars in question were also unloaded, as well as being cleaned and disinfected. To-day, beside the railway siding may be seen ten great heaps or mounds, carefully covered over with tons of manure to screen them from the public eye. Nature has seemed to join in the plot by placing above the manure another deep covering of snow.

To-day the farmer, who comes to the disinfecting station to purchase fertilizer for his fields, is paying $5 per ton for material that the public in general would have been glad to have at $40.

The ten carloads of potatoes that would have been exceedingly welcome in the Montreal market have been sacrificed to the economic law of supply and demand, in order that the present price for potatoes, $2.25 a bag, may be maintained.

SEIZE CLERGYMAN AS DRUG SELLER

NEW YORK—The Rev. Dr. William N. Ritchey, a retired Presbyterian clergyman, seventy-one years old, was arrested by detectives of the drug squad in Brooklyn at his home, No. 108 St. James place. They accused him before Magistrate Folwell in a Brooklyn court of having violated the Public Health law by dispensing morphine.

Dr. Ritchey asserted that his arrest was a great mistake. He has been known to members of the clergy in Brooklyn as a tireless worker among the derelicts of the poorer sections of the city. He himself says that he has saved more than six hundred "drug fiends" since he began the work fifteen years ago. He always works in co-operation with a physician, he says, although he would not reveal the practitioner's name.

When held in bail of $500, his son at once produced five one hundred dollar bills. Detectives Greer, Moog and Higgins, who made the arrest, say they have evidence that Dr. Ritchey has had at least one thousand ounces of morphine in his possession since they have been watching him. One of the detectives says he bought a bottle containing a solution of the drug before the arrest was made.

The Rev. Dr. S. Edward Young, of the Bedford Presbyterian Church, said that he had known Dr. Ritchey for twenty years and that his "intentions were of the best." Dr. Arnold W. Catlin, a physician, of the St. George Hotel, an old friend of the clergyman, called the arrest "an outrage."

PLOUGHMEN RECORD A HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL YEAR JUST CLOSED

Recommend Township Matches For the Consideration of the Directors —Mr. Joshua Smithson Re-elected President—Satisfactory Financial Statement

The annual meeting of the Peterboro Plowmen's Association was held on Thursday afternoon in the Court House, with John Gillespie presiding in the absence of Mr. Joshua Smithson, who was snowbound at his residence in Otonabee. With other members he could qualify for a first position in field plowing, but furrowing through the snow drifts with a light cutter was a more strenuous and wearying plodding than that which Gray immortalised. However, the attendance was fairly large, and the reports of the most encouraging character.

The officers were elected as follows:

President—Joshua Smithson.
1st Vice-Pres.—John Gillespie.
2nd Vice-Pres.—C. E. Moore.
Sec.-Treas.—Chas. Brown.
Directors for 1917:
North Monaghan—J. McIntosh and H. G. Webber.
Otonabee—W. A. Anderson and W. Cleghorn.
Enniamore — John Young and D. Crough.
Asphodel — Max Brown, William Breckenridge and Wm. Knox.
Douro—M. Walsh.
Belmont—Wes. Johnston.
Dummer—C. J. Darling.
Harvey—R. Shaw.
Smith—J. H. Garbutt and A. B. Mann.
Peterboro—H. B. Cowan.
Auditors—Wm. Collins and J. A. McGregor.

APPOINTED DELEGATES.

J. H. Garbutt and Wm. Knox were appointed delegates to the Provincial Plowmen's Association in Toronto on Feb. 8th.

Moved by Mr. Garbutt, seconded by Mr. Knox, that the treasurer send the annual fee of $10 to the Central Association.

TOWNSHIP MATCHES.

A suggestion was forwarded to the directors of the local county association to try to arrange a competition for the best plowed field of five acres or upwards, to be held in each township and that liberal prizes be offered. It was suggested that the district representatives might act as judges. This is merely a suggestion which it is expected the directors will fully consider. Enniamore already holds a township contest that is bearing good results.

A GOOD YEAR.

The financial statement was entirely satisfactory and from this standpoint and the success of the county match this year it was felt that 1916 had not only found the association flourishing but also making steady progress. Everything points to a continuance of this condition and 1917 is regarded with every hope of even better and bigger results.

Suffered From Severe Headaches

FOR TWO YEARS

Headaches are many and varying; but when the head starts to ache you may be sure there is some chief cause. The stomach may go wrong, the bowels become constipated, the blood may not circulate properly, but the presence of the headache clearly shows that unless the cause is removed some other baneful disease is liable to assert itself.

Burdock Blood Bitters has, for the past forty years, been curing all kinds of headaches and has proved itself to be a remedy that cures where others fail.

Mr. I. N. Peterhen, Dnieper, Man. writes: "I am only too glad to be able to state that I derived wonderful benefit from Burdock Blood Bitters. I suffered from severe headaches for two years. I was treated by several doctors but received no benefit until by chance I heard of B.B.B., and I at once procured two bottles and in a short time I was completely cured. I am and always will be grateful for what Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. I am glad to recommend it to all who suffer from headaches."

B.B.B. is the oldest and the best known blood medicine on the market to-day, having been manufactured for the past forty years by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

OUR SERIAL STORY

"DESTINY"

By CHARLES NEVILLE BUCK

Hamilton's dream palace, with all its splendid plunder of art treasures, had gone under the hammer in satisfaction of a court judgment. Next went the house which his parents had occupied, and before that all the servants had gone, save one. Yamuro's passion of devotion to Hamilton had descended in a lesser degree to Paul, and with the grave courtesy of the Samurai he waived aside all discussion of wages. Had he not saved much money for a Japanese boy who needed little? Already he could open a small shop and sell kimonos and jade trinkets and embroideries....but that could wait until such time as his usefulness ended here.

The final day came, and the shrunken household effects were removed to a small apartment in Greenwich village, so it was time for Paul to say good-bye to Yamuro. It was Yamuro who had found the flat and had haggled explosively over the terms of the lease. It had been to Yamuro, too, who had gone with Mary, when she carried her mother's jewels from place to place, offering them for sale. The faithful little attendant knew that what was salvaged from such bargaining must be the last resort and sole capital of this shattered family. As the lady with the pale but lively face looking out from the shadow of her mourning veil went from dealer to dealer, he followed a step behind her, watchful of eye, guarding her remnant of treasure against possible mischance.

Now he stood with Paul in the room which the musician would not again occupy, and Paul's eyes suddenly filled with tears while the son of a race called stoical turned away and occupied himself with a lump in his throat.

The Jap caught the extended palm in his own two hands and bent over it. He was not weeping and he was not talking but he stood with his head lowered until now the wiry black hair was visible, and in his throat rose guttural and incoherent noises like groans.

"I can't show my appreciation as I'd like," said Paul. "The day for that is gone but there are some clothes that I didn't pack. I left them for you—" Even in an hour which called for defence of every penny Paul was still an impractical man whose open heart and affectionate nature called for expression. "And this—" he put his hand in his pocket and drew out a watch upon which any pawnbroker would have advanced a goodly sum—"this was Hamilton's." His voice broke as he held it out. "I think he would like you to have it. His will left you twenty thousand dollars—but—well, you know."

Yamuro straightened up. He raised both hands in a gesture of protest and his words came fast and vehemently.

"No, no! Thanks ver' mutch—no—no! You great artist—you not un'stand making money. You need—mother—sister—father all need. No—please!"

He halted; then in a deep embarrassment, went on. "Me got money in bank. Me not want be impert'nent, but—" He paused, seeking a disguised and delicate fashion of volunteering aid and looked appealingly into the other's face for assistance.

Fresh tears welled into Paul's eyes. "I understand you, Yamuro," he said laying a head on the stocky shoulder. "No; Yamuro, you have done enough, God bless you!" He could not trust himself further and so he turned abruptly and left the room.

These rooms in the twisting by-ways of picturesque old Greenwich Village, seemed mean and dry to their new tenants but they were very good as compared with what Mary knew must follow. The pitiful store of money which her last stand financiering had raked together would not be renewed when spent, nor would it last long. It was only that they might have a temporary refuge in which to think out the future that the girl had chosen these quarters.

Then very shortly came the day when the house that had been the home of the elder Burtons also went under the hammer, and an unconquerable magnetism drew Paul to the spot though he knew that the place would be filled with people who to him must seem pillagers. He had nerved himself to ask a thing for which he had been longing ever since those doors had closed upon him. In that house was the pagan temple which his brother had built for his shrine of dreams, and the organ which might have graced a temple. If they would allow him ten minutes there alone—ten minutes to finger the keys for the last time—at least he meant to ask it. It was a much changed man who presented himself diffidently at a house to which the public had been invited by the commissioner's advertisement. His clothes were already beginning to indicate his deteriorated condition, although thanks to Mary's care, they were scrupulously neat. The things to be sold this morning could find purchasers only among the very rich, and for that precise reason the occasion had attracted a host of people who came as they might have gone to a fire or to a museum. Paul Burton found it easy enough to meet those eyes. It was when he encountered the gaze of old associates that he shrunk and trembled.

The sale had not yet begun and the crowds were drifting hither and thither, bent on preliminary inspection, jostling arms with the men from the detective agencies assigned to the occasion.

Paul found the person who seemed vested with authority and to him put his request. The individual looked at this pale young man and recognized him. There was a pathos in his face that could hardly be denied — and there was no reason for denying him.

"Certainly, Mr. Burton," he said. "I'll instruct the door man not to let any one else in—unless you have friends that you would like to take with you."

Paul shook his head. "I'd rather be alone," he said. But as the two elbowed their way through the crowd he found himself face to face with a dark haired, deep-eyed woman in fashionable and becoming mourning, upon whose fingers sparkled a number of rings. The musician halted in his tracks and turned desperately pale. He had heard that Loraine Haswell had returned from Europe—and he had heard vague rumours which had deeply shocked him. If they were based on truth it seemed improbable that she would care to risk meeting any of her old associates. Yet when his eyes encountered hers he found her laughing gaily, and he realized that, whatever else had happened to Loraine Haswell, she had lost none of her beauty.

"Loraine!" he exclaimed, his voice betraying his excitement, and she responded calmly, but with no emotion, "Good morning, Mr. Burton." It was as though they had parted yesterday, but also as though they had never met, save casually. Before that parting; as though their lives had never touched more intimately than in the brushing contact of passers by. To Paul it seemed very cruel and he was about to pass on when she stopped him.

"Mr. Burton," she suggested, in a cautiously guarded voice, "I wish that you would send back my letters. I am stopping at the Plaza."

The man was silent for a moment, then he said simply:

"I have already burned them."

She searched his eyes for a moment and seeming satisfied of their truthfulness, smiled. "That will do. It's just as well. Thank you. Now silly they were to write them, were they not?"

Paul hurried after his guide, who had been deferentially waiting a few steps distant, but at the entrance of the music room he halted again—and this time his cheeks blanched with a greater astonishment. There, standing within arm's reach, was Marcia Terrell, though her face was averted, she did not see him.

"What brings you here?" he asked in a low voice, and as she turned to face him her hands went spasmodically to her breast.

"I didn't know that you would be here," she said faintly, but did not tell him that she had come in response to the same instinct which draws pilgrims to shrines has followed by association; because this had been the temple of his art.

"They have promised," Paul told her, "to let me have fifteen minutes in there undisturbed—to play my organ for the last time." His eyes met hers and he added in an earnest undertone, "Won't you go with me, Marcia?"

The woman's eyes glistened with a moisture. "Are you sure that you wouldn't rather be quite alone Isn't it rather sacred to you?"

"That is why I want you," he eagerly declared. "It will be something to remember afterwards."

They went in and for a moment the girl stood gasping at the magnificence of the place, of which she had read descriptions, but which she had never seen. Then her eyes flooded and, with a sense of revelation, she forgave him every frailty and fault—even her isolated horror of longing she had been carrying in her heart. So sensitive a soul, as his could not have been expected to stand out Spartan-bold against the voluptuary blandishments of such surroundings—and such a life. He looked at her for a long while and once, unseen by her, he put out his arms, but caught them back again with a swift gesture and shook his head. Now he knew in all bitterness what Loraine Haswell and his own cowardice had cost him—and it was too late.

Loraine Haswell and his own cowardice! He had not fully realized it before, but from that episode when he fled to Hamilton from his lunch with her had sprung the rest of every succeeding chapter of tragedy—and for her he had lost Marcia! Then he led her to a place of vantage and went to the keyboard.

Never had Paul Burton played like that before for as the music swelled and pealed through the place his heart was singing its swan song. In a moment of manhood beyond his moral stature he had drawn back arms that were hungry for her—and he now knew too late, that there was no one else who counted. But the organ was not so repressive and as she listened she knew that the tragedy was not hers alone. While his fingers strayed to the improvising of his yearning and despair the woman sat spellbound and finally he swung into that tritest of time-worn airs, "Home, Sweet Home."

A gasp came into Marcia's throat. As Paul Burton left his seat, and came down to her, his face was drawn, and he said bluntly, "She is here to day."

She did not have to ask details or if it was ended. The music had told her everything. In a sudden gust of feeling and wrath against this woman who had stood between her and happiness, she wanted to say bitter things—but she only nodded.

"Now that matters have turned out as they have," the man spoke deliberately, but tensely, "I shall not see you again. Now that I'm a bankrupt and it's all over, Marcia, I want you to know that I love you—that I love you without doubt or hesitation. In this world, and whatever other worlds there are, there is only you....you whom I lost because the coward must lose every good thing life holds." He broke off and asked very humbly,—"Just in farewell—may I kiss you—once more?"

With a torrent of sobs she came into his arms. "From the first," she declared, "I've been just yours. I have never thought of myself except as yours. Take me! Poverty doesn't frighten me. I've known it too long—it's like an old friend. Let's fight our way back together."

There are moments which turn mice into lions and make heroes of the craven. Unfortunately they are apt to be ephemeral. Paul Burton shook his head as he looked into her eyes, and answered with an unwonted resolution.

"No," he said bitterly, "not now. Now I am a bum."

(To be continued.)

"Astonishing how my

"It was astonishing how my strength and fitness came back," says Mr. G. C. INMAN, of 330, MARGOURT STREET, STURGEON CREEK, WINNIPEG, "I, for many years a well-known man in the business life of Canada. Mr. Inman continues: "It is about three years now since I first used Dr. Cassell's Tablets. I was terribly run-down and weak. Sometimes I felt I should have to leave off altogether, my work was such an effort to me, I ate little, I had no appetite, and I suffered if I forced myself to eat.

Mr. G. C. Inman.

"My nerves of course were in a bad way, and my sleep very disturbed. I got to feel, in fact, pointed to a nervous breakdown. It was then a friend told me about Dr. Cassell's Tablets, and I got some to try. The first result was that I could sleep at nights, and then my health rapidly improved. It was really astonishing how my strength and fitness came back.

"I may add that some time ago my mother was very ill with pernicious anæmia. I urged her to take Dr. Cassell's Tablets, but she would not, so I crushed them down and gave them in food without her knowing. She was confined to bed before she had the Tablets, and now is about again well and bright."

Mr. Inman is now in England, having had to return there some little time ago to take control of the well-known firm of A. W. Inman and Son, Printers and Publishers, Leeds. Letters will reach him there.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores its Natural Colour and Lustre at Once

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Parting Dinner

By ALAN HINSDALE

"Our marriage," said the wife, "has been a mistake. The sooner a mistake is rectified the better. I am going to leave you."

"That's not a bad idea," said the husband. "A bit of freedom from this new life that neither of us has yet become used to will give us a breathing spell, and if we come together again we will appreciate each other all the more for it."

"That 'if' is well put in."

"And if we don't come together again just think of the fun we'll have!"

"Fun?"

"Yes. I can remain out at a poker party till 3 o'clock in the morning if I like, smoke and drink to my heart's content, spend no end of time sitting on a stool before a glove counter with a pretty girl on the other side smoothing down my fingers with her soft hand"—

"If these things are so delightful to you why did you marry?"

"I haven't come to your own enjoyments consequent on the break yet. You can sit all day beside your mother, holding her hand and listening to her advice to you how to manage a husband. Won't that be just too nice for anything?"

"If you loved me one-tenth as well as mamma does there would be no need of a separation."

"Oh, I could never compete with a mother's love! That is not to be expected. I suppose that's what gives her a right to tell you just what course to take respecting your husband. Now that you're going to leave me, her advice with respect to me will be no longer necessary, and I wonder what you and she will talk about when you nestle down for a morning chin-chin."

She was inclined to think that, the one interesting topic being removed, the chin-chin would be rather dull, but she did not say so.

"There's one thing I propose to do," continued the provoking husband. "As soon as you are gone I'm going to take down these curtains. I have endured them simply for your sake. They shut out the light."

"Indeed, you will do no such thing!"

"Why so? It will not matter to you whether there are curtains here or not. I shall make a smoking room of this, and you have always declared that when smoke gets into curtains it's hard to get it out."

"A smoking room of this cozy apartment! Why, I arranged everything here myself!"

"So you did, and a delightful room you made of it. I remember when I first saw it I thought how many delightful seances we would have here. I little thought that a few short months would end it all."

"Whose fault is it?"

"Mine."

"Why don't you do better?"

"I can't. I'm naturally wicked. If I were not you wouldn't need to leave me."

"Of course I don't want to leave you, but you can't expect me to endure such treatment forever."

"Certainly not. I deserve it all. But it's sad to think of my having to dismantle this pretty room for a lot of fellows who will throw cigar and pipe ashes all over the carpet and"—

"They will do no such thing! —you're going to have those horrid men here I—I—won't"—

"Won't go?"

"Yes, I'm going. I have come to that decision after long and careful deliberation."

"And consultation with your mother." This was a home thrust.

"If there is any one who knows what is best for the child she has cared for and loved from babyhood it is surely her mother."

"I agree with you. Therefore the daughter should never leave her mother."

"The daughter is not expected to marry a—a"—

"Brute! But we are wasting time. When do you go?"

"Are you in haste to be rid of me?"

"Not at all. I merely wish to make arrangements for your departure. Will you permit me to see you to your mother's house?"

"Who said I was going to mamma?"

"Very well. I will take you wherever you wish to go."

"You'll have to dine elsewhere today. I have made no preparations for dinner here."

"Suppose we have a last dinner at Skinners, with a bottle of that wine you like so well?"

She hesitated, and he suggested that she telephone her mother that she would not arrive till after dinner. This last reference to her mother, though highly respectful, called a frown to the wife's brow. Nevertheless she went to the phone and sent the message. Then she dressed for the dinner and came downstairs looking very lugubrious.

"Have you sent your baggage?" he asked mildly.

"No!" she snapped.

They dined with handsomely dressed ladies and gentlemen to detract their attention from their troubles, and music soothed them, and the wine warmed them. The dinner was excellent, and they spent an enjoyable evening together. When they drove away he made no mention of the fact that she had expected to go to her mother, but directed the driver to take them to their own home.

And that was the end of the fracas.

ANCIENT BANQUETS.

Cleopatra Didn't Have to Spend Much, For Things Were Cheap.

We hear a great deal about the luxury and extravagance of Cleopatra, the queen of the Nile, and of the gorgeous feasts she and Mark Antony had together, yet these little dinners and suppers for two cost Cleopatra only about 4 shillings, with wine and attendance.

If Cleopatra had lived in these times she could not possibly get a supper at 2 shillings a head, with waiter and wine included.

In those days a large jar of wine cost only 4 shillings, and this probably lasted a long time. A pigeon was dear at 2½ pence, and a quantity of vegetables which lasted for months could be bought for about 8 shillings.

Slaves were easy enough to get, and their dress was so scanty that liveries couldn't have been expensive.

Cleopatra once went in for a very costly drink. She melted a priceless pearl in a glass of wine and presented it to Mark Antony. But the queen of Egypt did not go in for such extravagances every night.

Nero, the tyrannical emperor of the Romans, famed for his extravagant, luxurious living, who gave twenty-two course dinners, where the guests reclined on ivory and silver couches and dipped their fingers into finger bowls which contained costly wines, did not spend nearly so much on feasting as many modern millionaires.—London Answers.

Zulu Songs'ers.

The arrival of a European in a Zulu village, the opening of a railway, a war, a famine, a plague of locusts, a pestilence may become topics for semi-public songs that are soon circulated among the people. Songs are used at the public functions of chiefs, such as the feast of the first fruits and at royal marriages. War and tribal songs are possessed by every chief and tribe. At marriages and other public ceremonies it is the Zulu custom to render not only the songs of the living chief, but those made famous by his father and grandfather.

Waiting For Him to Start Something.

"I'm just waiting for my husband to complain about my extravagance this month."

"Ready to give him an argument, eh?"

"You bet I am. By mistake his golf club checks came to the house, and I've got 'em."—Detroit Free Press.

Hay Seeds For Confetti.

Weddings in China are arranged by "go-betweens"—usually the busy old gossips of the district—who get a commission on the amount paid by the bridegroom to the father of the bride. On the wedding day the bride is clad in red and carried in a Sedan chair covered with red. Anybody has a right to turn back the chair curtains and take a look at her. Her hair is elaborately oiled, and so all the other girls throw hayseeds at her, which stick. On reaching the home of her husband the bride has to submit to the candid criticisms of the entire family. The strange wedding ceremony consists in the husband and wife eating rice from each other's bowl. Of course there is a feast, but it does not cost much, for every guest is expected to contribute something.

DRINK HOT WATER BEFORE BREAKFAST

Says you really feel clean, sweet and fresh inside, and are seldom ill.

If you are accustomed to wake up with a coated tongue, foul breath or a dull, dizzy headache; or, if your meals sour and turn into gas and acids, you have a real surprise awaiting you.

To-morrow morning, immediately upon arising, drink a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is intended to first neutralize and then wash out of your stomach, liver, kidneys and thirty feet of intestines all the indigestible waste, poisons, sour bile and toxins, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal.

Those subject to sick headaches, backache, bilious attacks, constipation or any form of stomach trouble, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store and begin enjoying this morning inside-bath. It is said that men and women who try this become enthusiastic and keep it up daily. It is a splendid health measure for it is more important to keep clean and pure on the inside than on the outside, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing disease, while the bowel pores do.

The principle of bathing inside is not new, as millions of people practice it. Just as hot water and soap cleanse, purify and freshen the skin, so hot water and a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate set on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Limestone phosphate is an inexpensive white powder and almost tasteless.

How's That?

At the conclusion of the assizes at a provincial town the legal luminaries indulged in a cricket match. A certain well-known judge presently occupied the wicket, and so persistantly did he display the stone-walling tactics that his opponents despaired of getting him out. After a futile appeal of "leg before," the judge said to the umpire:

"I wonder if I am to be imprisoned here until the next assizes?"

He had hardly spoken when an extra fast ball removed the cross-pieces.

"No, my lord," replied the umpire, with a sly grin; "you are bailed out."

Morbidly Suspicious.

"If you want to fight I'll hold your coat," said the bystander to the quarrelsome man.

"Great Scott! Can't a man even stand in the street without having a check boy try to work a tip out of him?"—Washington Star.

SOCIAL ANNOYANCES.

Somewhat Similar in the Tenth Century to What They Are Today.

That there were objectives in the social amenities of life in the tenth century similar to those observable at the present day is shown in a remarkable book, "Makura no Zoshi," which was the work of Sei Shonagon, a postess of the ancient Japanese court. One of her chapters she devotes to "Detestable Things," and these included:

"A visitor who sits down to regale you with a long tale when you are in a hurry. If by chance he is an intimate friend you can pack him off until another time. But those whom you cannot summarily dismiss are detestable indeed.

"Babies who cry or dogs that bark just when you are trying to overhear something.

"A dog that barks at visitors. I have often wanted to kill such dogs.

"People who interrupt your story to show off their own cleverness. All interruptors, young and old, are very detestable.

"People who when you are telling a story break in with 'Oh, I know,' and give quite a different version from your own.

"Either at home or in the palace to be roused up to receive an unwelcome visitor in order to avoid whom you have been pretending to be asleep."

INDEXING BOOKS.

The Custom Is an Old One That Developed Rather Slowly.

The custom of indexing books developed gradually. Cicero used the word "index," but in the sense of a table of contents. Seneca provided scrolls which he sent to a friend with notes of particular passages, "so that he who only aimed at the useful might be spared the trouble of examining them entire." This was at least a partial "index" in the modern sense. Annotated, or at least explanatory, tables of contents seem to have preceded the index proper.

Such tables followed the order of appearance of the subjects in the book itself. Alphabetical arrangement, which was the beginning of the real index, appears not to have been thought of until the invention of printing, and even then it spread but slowly. Erasmus was one of the first to provide his works with alphabetical indexes. The custom did not become universal until well into the sixteenth century.

The first index to an English book is said to be that printed in Polydore Vergil's "Anglise Historiae" in 1546. An edition of this work published ten years later has an index of thirty-seven pages.

It Wasn't Catching.

At a local cricket match the fielding of the home team was very poor, catch after catch being dropped in aggravating persistence. Geordie, who bowled mainly for catches, was riled to see catch after catch dropped from his bowling, and when one of the offenders, failing to hold the ball, muttered something about an "epidemic," Geordie angrily retorted:

"Hepedemic be blowed! It canna be a hepedemic, cos it's not catchin'."

The Flint Razor.

The man of modern times shiveringly trying to shave himself as he stands before the mirror in the early hours of a bitter winter morning may find some comfort in the reflection that he is grappling with a task which has taxed the patience of man for several centuries. In all ages men have set high value on the razor as an adjunct to health and cleanliness.

Discoveries made at St. Achiaul, France, by archaeologists as recently as 1800 would indicate that prehistoric man used razors chipped out of pieces of flint. The flint razor may have been precursor or ancestor of the razor "body snatcher," the first record of which is found in the Book of Job.

While the Egyptians and Romans used razors of flint and bronze, the men of the Middle Ages depended largely upon a slow process of "trimming the skin," to quote Pepys, with pumice stone. It was in the early part of the eighteenth century that the steel razor, a cumbersome hatchet-headed affair with a heavy wooden handle, came into general use.

It remained for American invention to revolutionize the character of the razor, and out of the torture-inflicting weapon to evolve the finely tempered, honed blade which is used to-day.

Discussing a Verb.

As an intransitive verb to "materialize" will no doubt be pilloried by purists as an undesirable slang, but with little effect, for it has long since been commandeered for useful service, though it has not yet gained scholastic support. Like the verb to wire, now in general use, this particular intransitive no doubt comes from America, where it is common to "fix up" an appointment with some one who may "fail to materialize" or wait for a conveyance that misbehaves itself in a similar way.—London Chronicle.

The Mexican War.

If the histories are to be believed the Mexicans during their war with this country in 1846-7 did not win a single battle, notwithstanding the fact that in nearly every encounter the Americans were outnumbered from 2 to 1 to 5 to 1.

TO CHECK A COLD.

It is easy to check a cold if you begin in time. Persons[illegible] of Dr. [illegible]'s Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine will loosen the cough loose, allay the inflammation, and so prevent it extending to the throat, chest tubes and lungs. Mr. H. E. Shapp, Sherwood, B.C., writes: "I wish to state my gratitude for Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, for it cured a cold which a friend said would put me in the grave."

Suffered From Severe Headaches

FOR TWO YEARS

Headaches are many and varying; but when the head starts to ache you may be sure there is some chief cause. The stomach may go wrong, the bowels become constipated, the blood may not circulate properly, but the presence of the headache clearly shows that unless the cause is removed some other baneful disease is liable to assert itself.

Burdock Blood Bitters has, for the past forty years, been curing all kinds of headaches and has proved itself to be a remedy that cures where others fail.

Mr. I. N. Peterman, Dnieper, Man. writes: "I am only too glad to be able to state that I derived wonderful benefit from Burdock Blood Bitters. I suffered from severe headaches for two years. I was treated by several doctors but received no benefit until by chance I heard of B.B.B., and I at once procured two bottles and in a short time I was completely cured. I am and always will be grateful for what Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. I am glad to recommend it to all who suffer from headaches."

B.B.B. is the oldest and the best known blood medicine on the market to-day, having been manufactured for the past forty years by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

OUR SERIAL STORY

"DESTINY"

By CHARLES NEVILLE BUCK

Hamilton's dream palace, with all its splendid plunder of art treasures, had gone under the hammer in satisfaction of a court judgment. Next went the house which his parents had occupied, and before that all the servants had gone, save one. Yamuro's passion of devotion to Hamilton had descended in a lesser degree to Paul, and with the grave courtesy of the Samurai he waived aside all discussion of wages. Had he not saved much money for a Japanese boy who needed little? Already he could open a small shop and sell kimonos and jade trinkets and embroideries....but that could wait until such time as his usefulness ended here.

The final day came, and the shrunken household effects were removed to a small apartment in Greenwich village, so it was time for Paul to say good-bye to Yamuro. It was Yamuro who had found the flat and had haggled explosively over the terms of the lease. It had been to Yamuro, too, who had gone with Mary, when she carried her mother's jewels from place to place, offering them for sale. The faithful little attendant knew that what was salvaged from such bargaining must be the last resort and sole capital of this shattered family. As the lady with the pale but lively face looking out from the shadow of her mourning veil went from dealer to dealer, he followed a step behind her, watchful of eye, guarding her remnant of treasure against possible mischance.

Now he stood with Paul in the room which the musician would not again occupy, and Paul's eyes suddenly filled with tears while the son of a race called stoical turned away and occupied himself with a lump in his throat.

The Jap caught the extended palm in his own two hands and bent over it. He was not weeping and he was not talking but he stood with his head lowered until now the wiry black hair was visible, and in his throat rose guttural and incoherent noises like groans.

"I can't show my appreciation as I'd like," said Paul. "The day for that is gone but there are some clothes that I didn't pack. I left them for you—" Even in an hour which called for defence of every penny Paul was still an impractical man whose open heart and affectionate nature called for expression. "And this—" he put his hand in his pocket and drew out a watch upon which any pawnbroker would have advanced a goodly sum—"this was Hamilton's." His voice broke as he held it out. "I think he would like you to have it. His will left you twenty thousand dollars—but—well, you know."

Yamuro straightened up. He raised both hands in a gesture of protest and his words came fast and vehemently.

"No, no! Thanks ver' mutch—no—no! You great artist—you not understand making money. You need—mother—sister—father all need. No—please!"

He halted; then in a deep embarrassment, went on. "Me got money in bank. Me not want be impertinent, but—" He paused, seeking a disguised and delicate fashion of volunteering aid and looked appealingly into the other's face for assistance.

Fresh tears welled into Paul's eyes. "I understand you, Yamuro," he said laying a head on the stocky shoulder. "No; Yamuro, you have done enough, God bless you!" He could not trust himself further and so he turned abruptly and left the room.

These rooms in the twisting by-ways of picturesque old Greenwich Village, seemed mean and dry to their new tenants but they were very good as compared with what Mary knew must follow. The pitiful store of money which her last stand financiering had raked together would not be renewed when spent, nor would it last long. It was only that they might have a temporary refuge in which to think out the future that the girl had chosen these quarters.

Then very shortly came the day when the house that had been the home of the elder Burtons also went under the hammer, and an unconquerable magnetism drew Paul to the spot though he knew that the place would be filled with people who to him must seem pillagers. He had nerved himself to ask a thing for which he had been longing ever since those doors had closed upon him. In that house was the pagan temple which his brother had built for his shrine of dreams, and the organ which might have graced a temple. If they would allow him ten minutes there alone—ten minutes to finger the keys for the last time—at least he meant to ask it. It was a much changed man who presented himself diffidently at a house to which the public had been invited by the commissioner's advertisement. His clothes were already beginning to indicate his deteriorated condition, although thanks to Mary's care, they were scrupulously neat. The things to be sold this morning could find purchasers only among the very rich, and for that precise reason the occasion had attracted a host of people who came as they might have gone to a fire or to a museum. Paul Burton found it easy enough to meet those eyes. It was when he encountered the gaze of old associates that he shrunk and trembled.

The sale had not yet begun and the crowds were drifting hither and thither, bent on preliminary inspection, jostling arms with the men from the detective agencies assigned to the occasion.

Paul found the person who seemed vested with authority and to him put his request. The individual looked at this pale young man and recognised him. There was a pathos in his face that could hardly be denied — and there was no reason for denying him.

"Certainly, Mr. Burton," he said. "I'll instruct the door man not to let any one else in—unless you have friends that you would like to take with you."

Paul shook his head. "I'd rather be alone," he said. But as the two elbowed their way through the crowd he found himself face to face with a dark haired, deep-eyed woman in fashionable and becoming mourning, upon whose fingers sparkled a number of rings. The musician halted in his tracks and turned desperately pale. He had heard that Loraine Haswell had returned from Europe—and he had heard vague rumours which had deeply shocked him. If they were based on truth it seemed improbable that she would care to risk meeting any of her old associates. Yet when his eyes encountered hers he found her laughing gally, and he realised that, whatever else had happened to Loraine Haswell, she had lost none of her beauty.

"Loraine!" he exclaimed, his voice betraying his excitement, and she responded calmly, but with no emotion, "Good morning, Mr. Burton." It was as though they had parted yesterday, but also as though they had never met, save casually, before that parting; as though their lives had never touched more intimately than in the brushing contact of passers by. To Paul it seemed very cruel and he was about to pass on when she stopped him.

"Mr. Burton," she suggested, in a cautiously guarded voice, "I wish that you would send back my letters. I am stopping at the Plaza."

The man was silent for a then he said simply:

"I have already burned She searched his eyes f ment and seeming satisfied truthfulness, smiled. 'That just as well. Thank you, we were to write them, were

Paul hurried after his had been deferentially waiting steps distant, but at the e the music room he halted a this time his cheeks blanch greater astonishment. There within arm's reach, was M roll, though her face was a she did not see him.

"What brings you here?" in a low voice, and as she face him her hands went ap ly to her breast.

"I didn't know that you here," she said faintly, but not tell him that she h response to the same insti drawn pilgrims to shrines h association; because this ha temple of his art.

"They have promised," her, "to let me have afte in there undisturbed—to gan for the last time." et hers and he added in undertone, "Won't you Marcia?"

The woman's eyes glist moisture. "Are you sur wouldn't rather be quite a it rather sacred to you?"

"That is why I want yo erly declared. "It will b to remember afterwards."

They went in and for a the girl stood gasping at the of the place, of which descriptions, but which seen. Then her eyes flooded and, with a sense of revelation, she forgave him every frailty and fault—even her isolated horror of longing she had been carrying in her heart. So sensitive a soul, as his could not have been expected to stand out Spartan-bold against the voluptuary blandishments of such surroundings—and such a life. He looked at her for a long while and once, unseen by her, he put out his arms, but caught them back again with a swift gesture and shook his head. Now he knew in all bitterness what Loraine Haswell and his own cowardice had cost him—and it was too late.

Loraine Haswell and his own cowardice! He had not fully realized it before, but from that episode when he fled to Hamilton from his lunch with her had sprung the rest of every succeeding chapter of tragedy—and for her he had lost Marcia! Then he led her to a place of vantage and went to the keyboard.

Never had Paul Burton played like that before for as the music swelled and pealed through the place his heart was singing its swan song. In a moment of manhood beyond his moral stature he had drawn back arms that were hungry for her—and he now knew too late, that there was no one else who counted. But the organ was not so repressive and as she listened she knew that the tragedy was not hers alone. While his fingers strayed to the improvising of his yearning and despair the woman sat spellbound and finally he swung into that tritest of time-worn airs, "Home, Sweet Home."

A gasp came into Marcia's throat. As Paul Burton left his seat, and came down to her, his face was drawn, and he said bluntly, "She is here to day."

She did not have to ask details or if it was ended. The music had told her everything. In a sudden gust of feeling and wrath against this woman who had stood between her and happiness, she wanted to say bitter things—but she only nodded.

"Now that matters have turned out as they have," the man spoke deliberately, but tensely, "I shall not see you again. Now that I'm a bankrupt and it's all over, Marcia, I want you to know that I love you—that I love you without doubt or hesitation. In this world, and whatever other worlds there are, there is only you....you whom I lost because the coward must lose every good thing life holds." He broke off and asked very humbly,—"Just in farewell—may I kiss you—once more?"

With a torrent of sobs she came into his arms. "From the first," she declared, "I've been just yours. I have never thought of myself except as yours. Take me! Poverty doesn't frighten me. I've known it too long—it's like an old friend. Let's fight our way back together."

Ther are moments which turn mice into lions and make heroes of the craven. Unfortunately they are apt to be ephemeral. Paul Burton shook his head as he looked into her eyes, and answered with an unwonted resolution.

"No," he said bitterly, "not now. Now I am a bum."

"Astonishing how my

"It was astonishing how my strength and fitness came back," says Mr. G. C. INMAN, of 330, HARCOURT STREET, STURGEON CREEK, WINNIPEG, for many years a well-known man in the business life of Canada. Mr. Inman continues: "It is about three years now since I first used Dr. Cassell's Tablets. As I was terribly 'run-down and weak. Sometimes I felt I should have to leave off altogether, my work was such an effort to me, I ate little. I had no appetite, and I suffered if I forced myself to eat.

Mr. G. C. Inman.

"My nerves of course were in a bad way, and my sleep very disturbed. Everything, in fact, pointed to a nervous breakdown. It was then a friend told me about Dr. Cassell's Tablets, and I got some to try. The first result was that I could sleep at nights, and then my health rapidly improved. It was really astonishing how my strength and fitness came back.

"I may add that some time ago my mother was very ill with pernicious anæmia. I urged her to take Dr. Cassell's Tablets, but she would not, so I crushed them down and gave them in food without her knowing. She was confined to bed before she had the Tablets, and now is about again well and bright."

Mr. Inman is now in England, having had to return there some little time ago to take control of the well-known firm of A. W. Inman and Son, Printers and Publishers, Leeds. Letters will reach him there.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores its Natural Colour and Lustre at Once

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Parting Dinner

By ALAN HINSDALE

"Our marriage," said the wife, "has been a mistake. The sooner a mistake is rectified the better. I am going to leave you."

"That's not a bad idea," said the husband. "A bit of freedom from this new life that neither of us has yet become used to will give us a breathing spell, and if we come together again we will appreciate each other all the more for it."

"That 'if' is well put in."

"And if we don't come together again just think of the fun we'll have!"

"Fun?"

"Yes. I can remain out at a poker party till 3 o'clock in the morning if I like, smoke and drink to my heart's content, spend no end of time sitting on a stool before a glove counter with a pretty girl on the other side smoothing down my fingers with her soft hand"—

"If these things are so delightful to you why did you marry?"

"I haven't come to your own enjoyments consequent on the break yet. You can sit all day beside your mother, holding her hand and listening to her advice to you how to manage a husband. Won't that be just too nice for anything?"

"If you loved me one-tenth as well as mamma does there would be no need of a separation."

"Oh, I could never compete with a mother's love! That is not to be expected. I suppose that's what gives her a right to tell you just what course to take respecting your husband. Now that you're going to leave me, her advice with respect to me will be no longer necessary, and I wonder what you and she will talk about when you nestle down for a morning chin-chin."

She was inclined to think that, the one interesting topic being removed, the chin-chin would be rather dull, but she did not say so.

"There's one thing I propose to do," continued the provoking husband. "As soon as you are gone I'm going to take down these curtains. I have endured them simply for your sake. They shut out the light."

"Indeed, you will do no such thing!"

"Why so? It will not matter to you whether there are curtains here or not. I shall make a smoking room of this, and you have always declared that when smoke gets into curtains it's hard to get it out."

"A smoking room of this cozy apartment! Why, I arranged everything here myself!"

"So you did, and a delightful room you made of it. I remember when I first saw it I thought how many delightful seances we would have here. I little thought that a few short months would end it all."

"Whose fault is it?"

"Mine."

"Why don't you do better?"

"I can't. I'm naturally wicked. If I were not you wouldn't need to leave me."

"Of course I don't want to leave you, but you can't expect me to endure such treatment forever."

"Certainly not. I deserve it all. But it's sad to think of my having to dismantle this pretty room for a lot of fellows who will throw cigar and pipe ashes all over the carpet and"—

"They will do no such thing!"

"Why, you're going to have those horrid men here I—I—won't"—

"Won't go?"

"Yes, I'm going. I have come to that decision after long and careful deliberation."

"And consultation with your mother."

This was a home thrust.

"If there is any one who knows what is best for the child she has cared for and loved from babyhood it is surely her mother."

"I agree with you. Therefore the daughter should never leave her mother."

"The daughter is not expected to marry a—a"—

"Brute! But we are wasting time. When do you go?"

"Are you in haste to be rid of me?"

"Not at all. I merely wish to make arrangements for your departure. Will you permit me to see you to your mother's house?"

"Who said I was going to mamma?"

"Very well. I will take you wherever you wish to go."

"You'll have to dine elsewhere today. I have made no preparations for dinner here."

"Suppose we have a last dinner at Skinners, with a bottle of that wine you like so well?"

She hesitated, and he suggested that she telephone her mother that she would not arrive till after dinner. This last reference to her mother, though highly respectful, called a frown to the wife's brow. Nevertheless she went to the phone and sent the message. Then she dressed for the dinner and came downstairs looking very lugubrious.

"Have you sent your baggage?" he asked mildly.

"No!" she snapped.

They dined with handsomely dressed ladies and gentlemen to detract their attention from their troubles, and music soothed them, and the wine warmed them. The dinner was excellent, and they spent an enjoyable evening together. When they drove away he made no mention of the fact that she had expected to go to her mother, but directed the driver to take them to their own home.

And that was the end of the fracas.

Cleopatra Didn't Have to Spend Much, For Things Were Cheap.

We hear a great deal about the luxury and extravagance of Cleopatra, the queen of the Nile, and of the gorgeous feasts she and Mark Antony had together, yet these little dinners and suppers for two cost Cleopatra only about 4 shillings, with wine and attendance.

If Cleopatra had lived in these times she could not possibly get a supper at 2 shillings a head, with waiter and wine included.

In those days a large jar of wine cost only 4 shillings, and this probably lasted a long time. A pigeon was dear at 2½ pence, and a quantity of vegetables which lasted for months could be bought for about 8 shillings.

Slaves were easy enough to get, and their dress was so scanty that liveries couldn't have been expensive.

Cleopatra once went in for a very costly drink. She melted a priceless pearl in a glass of wine and presented it to Mark Antony. But the queen of Egypt did not go in for such extravagances every night.

Nero, the tyrannical emperor of the Romans, famed for his extravagant, luxurious living, who gave twenty-two course dinners, where the guests reclined on ivory and silver couches and dipped their fingers into finger bowls which contained costly wines, did not spend nearly so much on feasting as many modern millionaires.—London Answers.

Zulu Songsters.

The arrival of a European in a Zulu village, the opening of a railway, a war, a famine, a plague of locusts, a pestilence may become topics for semi-public songs that are soon circulated among the people. Songs are used at the public functions of chiefs, such as the feast of the first fruits and at royal marriages. War and tribal songs are possessed by every chief and tribe. At marriages and other public ceremonies it is the Zulu custom to render not only the songs of the living chief, but those made famous by his father and grandfather.

Waiting For Him to Start Something.

"I'm just waiting for my husband to complain about my extravagance this month."

"Ready to give him an argument, eh?"

"You bet I am. By mistake his golf club checks came to the house, and I've got 'em."—Detroit Free Press.

Hay Seeds For Confetti.

Weddings in China are arranged by "go-betweens"—usually the busy old gossips of the district—who get a commission on the amount paid by the bridegroom to the father of the bride. On the wedding day the bride is clad in red and carried in a Sedan chair covered with red. Anybody has a right to turn back the chair curtains and take a look at her. Her hair is elaborately oiled, and so all the other girls throw hayseeds at her, which stick. On reaching the home of her husband the bride has to submit to the candid criticisms of the entire family. The strange wedding ceremony consists in the husband and wife eating rice from each other's bowl. Of course there is a feast, but it does not cost much, for every guest is expected to contribute something.

DRINK HOT WATER BEFORE BREAKFAST

Says you really feel clean, sweet and fresh inside, and are seldom ill.

If you are accustomed to wake up with a coated tongue, foul breath or a dull, dizzy headache; or, if your meals sour and turn into gas and acids, you have a real surprise awaiting you.

To-morrow morning, immediately upon arising, drink a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is intended to first neutralize and then wash out of your stomach, liver, kidneys and thirty feet of intestines all the indigestible waste, poisons, sour bile and toxins, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal.

Those subject to sick headaches, backache, bilious attacks, constipation or any form of stomach trouble, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store and begin enjoying this morning ine side-bath. It is said that men and women who try this become enthusiastic and keep it up daily. It is a splendid health measure for it is more important to keep clean and pure on the inside than on the outside, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing disease, while the bowel pores do.

The principle of bathing inside is not new, as millions of people practice it. Just as hot water and soap cleanse, purify and freshen the skin, so hot water and a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Limestone phosphate is an inexpensive white powder and almost tasteless.

How's That?

At the conclusion of the annual at a provincial town the legal luminaries indulged in a cricket match. A certain well-known judge presently occupied the wicket, and so persistently did he display the stone-walling tactics that his opponents despaired of getting him out. After a futile appeal of "leg before," the judge said to the umpire:

"I wonder if I am to be imprisoned here until the next annual?"

He had hardly spoken when an extra fast ball removed the cross-pieces.

"No, my lord," replied the umpire, with a sly grin; "you are bailed out."

Morbidly Suspicious.

"If you want to fight I'll hold your coat," said the bystander to the quarrelsome man.

"Great Scott! Can't a man even stand in the street without having a check boy try to work a tip out of him?"—Washington Star.

SOCIAL ANNOYANCES.

Somewhat Similar in the Tenth Century to What They Are Today.

That there were objections in the social amenities of life in the tenth century similar to those observable at the present day is shown in a remarkable book, "Makura no Zoshi," which was the work of Sei Shonagon, a poetess of the ancient Japanese court. One of her chapters she devotes to "Detestable Things, and these included:

"A visitor who sits down to regale you with a long tale when you are in a hurry. If by chance he is an intimate friend you can pack him off until another time. But those whom you cannot summarily dismiss are detestable indeed.

"Babies who cry or dogs that bark just when you are trying to overhear something.

"A dog that barks at visitors. I have often wanted to kill such dogs.

"People who interrupt your story to show off their own cleverness. All interrupters, young and old, are very detestable.

"People who when you are telling a story break in with 'Oh, I know,' and give quite a different version from your own.

"Either at home or in the palace to be roused up to receive an unwelcome visitor in order to avoid whom you have been pretending to be asleep."

INDEXING BOOKS.

The Custom Is an Old One That Developed Rather Slowly.

The custom of indexing books developed gradually. Cicero used the word "index," but in the sense of a table of contents. Seneca provided some books which he sent to a friend with notes of particular passages, "so that he who only aimed at the useful might be spared the trouble of examining them entire." This was at least a partial "index" in the modern sense. Annotated, or at least explanatory, tables of contents seem to have preceded the index proper.

Such tables followed the order of appearance of the subjects in the book itself. Alphabetical arrangement, which was the beginning of the real index, appears not to have been thought of until the invention of printing, and even then it spread but slowly. Erasmus was one of the first to provide his works with alphabetical indexes. The custom did not become universal until well into the sixteenth century.

The first index to an English book is said to be that printed in Polydore Vergil's "Angliae Historiae" in 1546. An edition of this work published ten years later has an index of thirty-seven pages.

It Wasn't Catching.

At a local cricket match the fielding of the home team was very poor, catch after catch being dropped in aggravating persistence. Geordie, who bowled mainly for catches, was riled to see catch after catch dropped from his bowling, and when one of the offenders, failing to hold the ball, muttered something about an "epidemic," Geordie angrily retorted:

"Hepedemic be blowed! It canna be a hepedemic, cos it's not catchin'."

The Flint Razor.

The man of modern times shiveringly trying to shave himself as he stands before the mirror in the early hours of a bitter winter morning may find some comfort in the reflection that he is grappling with a task which has taxed the patience of man for several centuries. In all ages men have set high value on the razor as an adjunct to health and cleanliness.

Discoveries made at St. Achiegul, France, by archaeologists as recently as 1899 would indicate that prehistoric man used razors chipped out of pieces of flint. The flint razor may have been precursor or ancestor of the razor "body scratcher," the first record of which is found in the Book of Job.

While the Egyptians and Romans used razors of flint and bronze, the men of the Middle Ages depended largely upon a slow process of "trimming the skin," to quote Pepys, with pumice stone. It was in the early part of the eighteenth century that the steel razor, a cumbersome hatchet-bladed affair with a heavy wooden handle, came into general use.

It remained for American invention to revolutionize the character of the razor, and out of the torture-inflicting weapon to evolve the finely tempered, honed blade which is used to-day.

Discussing a Verb.

As an intransitive verb to "materialize" will no doubt be pilloried by purists as an undesirable alien, but with little effect, for it has long since been commandeered for useful service, though it has not yet gained scholastic support. Like the verb to wire, now in general use, this particular intransitive no doubt comes from America, where it is common to "fix up" an appointment with some one who may "fail to materialize" or wait for a conveyance that misbehaves itself in a similar way.—London Chronicle.

The Mexican War.

If the histories are to be believed the Mexicans during their war with this country in 1846-7 did not win a single battle, notwithstanding the fact that in nearly every encounter the Americans were outnumbered from 2 to 1 to 5 to 1.

TO CHECK A COLD.

It is easy to check a cold if you begin in time. Frequent doses of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine will relax the cough tubes, allay the inflammation, and so prevent it spreading to the bronchial tubes and lungs. Mrs. H. E. Shore, Sherbrooke, B.C., writes: "I wish to express my gratitude for Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, for it cured a cold which a friend said would send me to the grave."

TROY, 1915.

Past the gray shore, faint in the mist, as when
The shadow ships lay high in drifted sand,
Swing the dim dreadnoughts. Hosts of silent men
Hurl from the decks new ruin upon this land
Of ancient wark, where death still lies in wait
And restless winds bring echoes of mad tears—
Where sounds, above the cannon's steel-mouthed hate,
The boom of falling walls in far, sad years.

What fires, dust-smouldering, flare,
What quarrel now,
For beauty wronged, stirs passionate strength to dreams?
Alas—the world grows old! A broken vow
Wakes not the curse—but fear, greed-fondled schemes.

Helen, sleep well—no woman's yearning lips
And eyes, love-weary, launch these deadly ships!

Was Completely Laid Up With Severe Case of Piles

Sworn Statement From a Man Who Has Unbounded Confidence in Dr. Chase's Ointment

There is no longer any debate as to the best treatment for itching, bleeding or protruding piles But since about one person in every four suffers more or less from this annoying ailment it is necessary to keep on telling the people about Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mr. Wm. Shaw, Island Brook, Que., writes: "I am writing this to let you know the benefit that I have derived from your Ointment. I have suffered more or less for years with protruding piles and last winter I got so bad I was completely laid up with them. I went to our local storekeeper and asked him if he had anything that was good for piles and he recommended Dr. Chase's Ointment. I purchased a box and took it home and used it according to the directions and for ever one year I have not been troubled with piles. I had tried other remedies before but they only gave me temporary relief and that one box of your Ointment did more for me than all the others, as I have not been troubled since last winter. I consider it to be the best remedy for piles I have ever used and shall always carry a box with me, although I don't think I will need it for piles. We have used it for other purposes in the family, such as burns, and cuts and scratches, etc., and my wife says it is one of the best remedies for such purposes we have ever had in the house. Although you only charge sixty cents a box for it it is well worth $5.00 a box for anyone who is afflicted with piles. Now you can use this letter if you wish or refer anyone to me who wants to know about it for piles. I might say that in my business I am known all over the English portion of Quebec, and am having this statement sworn to before a Justice of the Peace."

"Sworn before me this first day of April, 1916, M. M. Holbrook, J. P., Island Brook, Que." Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60c a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S FOUR GORE SKIRT.

By Anabel Worthington.

8111

Although women do not take kindly to the skirt of decided length, in the newest models it is noticeable that a compromise between the really long and decidedly short skirt has been reached and for the winter sidewalk skirts will come down to almost cover the ankles. There are many detail features of pleasing value to give variety to the models, so that one may have a change from the one-piece frock to a pretty blouse and separate skirt when fancy directs the choice.

A most attractive model on smart, dignified lines is illustrated here. The garment is cut in four gores and has the upper edge of the back gore gathered on a slightly raised waistline; the effect is not unlike that of shirring and answers the purpose of a belt. Making two plaits in each half of the front gore for the plaited panel was a clever idea to produce the popular straight line feature, and the decorative belt stitched to the top of the front gore and outlined with covered buttons is also in excellent taste.

For copying the design one may choose serge, broadcloth, duvetyn, velour, satin or velvet. By using the pattern you will appreciate that you can cut your clothes expense without sacrificing style or smartness.

The skirt pattern, No. 8,111, cuts in sizes 24 to 32. To make in size 24 requires 4⅛ yards 36-inch material.

To obtain the pattern send [illegible] to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

CATTLE MARKETS

Union Stock Yards; Receipts yesterday 51 cars with 556 cattle, 104 calves, 2,198 hogs, and 279 sheep and lambs.

Trade was decidedly slow yesterday. The market was overloaded with a lot of half-fat cattle and the good to choice were few and far between. Prices for common to medium butchers were from 40c to 50c lower than the opening prices for the week. The best butchers were steadier, but even these were affected by the generally slower demand.

Sheep, lambs and calves were firm at the week's advances.

WANTED, MORE MEN.

Wanted more men, 'tis the Empire that's calling,
Her dutious sons, in the hour of her need,
While tyranny forges, vile fetters so galling
In vain with those sons, shall the dear mother plead.
Let cowards and cravens of every description
Wait coldly, unmoved, till the strong arm of law
Compels them at length, with slave whip conscription,
The sword for their king and their country to draw.

Wanted, more men, who are loyal and willing
For the cause of mankind and fair freedom to stand,
And assist the brave boys who so nobly are spilling
Their blood for us all, in a far foreign land,
Who would buy a base peace, with the blood of their brother,
Or shrink the steep pathway of duty to tread.
Dull sitting at ease by their fireside while others
To their deathless disgrace, fight, or fall, in their stead.

Wanted, more men, for the task is gigantic,
Men whose hearts with true patriot valour beat high,
To quell the proud despot, beyond the Atlantic,
Good men leal and true, and none else need apply,
Should you wait till the fierce German, red from the slaughter
Of Belgians and Serbs, in his mad purblind hate
Our homes to lay waste, and wife, sister and daughter
To degrade in the dust, thunders loud at our gate.

Wanted, more men, to teach the grim tyrant,
That sons of the soil, where the maple tree waves
While flows in their veins, the warm blood of the Briton
Will die, but will never, no never, be slaves.
Then gird on your arms, for the Kaiser is vaunting,
That the nations must bend to his merciless sway,
Ne'er let it be told that Canadians were wanting
When honour and duty were leading the way.

Wanted, more men, shall their call go unheeded,
Nay, hardy Canuck, to blest liberty born,
Will be found in the front ranks, where heroes are needed
To shirk duty, or danger, full proudly they'd scorn.
Our Empire needs men, and no time this to dally,
Then strike while ye may, 'ere it yet be too late.
Round her glorious banner of liberty rally,
Crush the power of the foeman, or yours Belgium's fate.

Wanted, more men, hark, war's bugle is shrilling
To summons each gallant Canuck to the fray,
The ranks, with the flower of our manhood are filling,
But there's room yet for more, so then make no delay,
For our brave volunteers, there waits martial glory,
Shining laurels enwreathed, is the patriots need,
And fame shall inscribe on her annals the story,
In letters of flame, their heroic deeds.

—Mrs. A. F. Calder.

A WONDER WORKER.

"To heals like magic!" is a favorite expression when Dr. Chase's Ointment is used. It works quickly stops all itching at once, often heals in a single night. For eczema, salt rheum, barber's itch, skin irritations or eruptions, it is a most satisfactory treatment. Being antiseptic it prevents blood poisoning.

LONDON, January 19.—Advces from Petrograd indicate that two progressive Russian Ministers and friends of the Allies, Pokrofsky and Shakovskoy, have been given "sick leave," which probably means that their services are dispensed with. Moving Picture Man With German Raider

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

NEW YORK, January 19.—Buenos Aires despatches report survivors of the sunken ship Radnorchire as saying that the German raider was accompanied by one or two other ships, and a moving picture operator calmly took pictures of the sinking of ships while the operation was in progress. There has been no confirmation here of the report that the raider has been sunk, though this is hourly expected.

British Freighter Has Brush With Sub

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PORTLAND, Me., January 19.—Bearing the marks of shells, and with two wounded seamen aboard, the British freighter Palm Branch, came into this port to-day telling of a 40-minute chase by a German submarine in the English Channel. She was suddenly approached by the submarine which came to the surface within a few hundred yards. Captain Malling changed his course and put on steam while the submarine followed firing high explosives from a large gun. Fortunately all the hits were above the water line. Four of the life-boats were carried away and one shot exploded in the engine room. Suddenly the submarine submerged.

GOD SAVE THE KING

Liquor Is Prohibited In French War Zone

HAZELBROUCK, France, Jan. 19.—Traffic in spirituous liquors has been prohibited by the military authorities in the zone occupied by the army. The decree announces that the step has been taken because of a recrudescence of drunkenness in the zone, involving danger to the health of the troops and the civil population. Both the civil and military authorities had complained of the scourge as a hindrance to the development of production required for the national defence. It was the unanimous wish of the patriotic population of northern France, the decree asserts, to have the traffic restricted as the only effective means of fighting alcoholism. Natural wines, beers and cider are not affected.

Another British Peer Killed at the Front

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Major Lord Gorell, killed in action on Tuesday, after a year and ten months' continuous service, was the eldest son of the former president of the Probate, Divorce and Admiralty Division, who was raised to the peerage in 1909. His son, who was a barrister, succeeded to the title in 1913. The award of D.S.O. was gazetted in November, the official account stating that he pushed forward and handled a battery under heavy fire, with the greatest courage.

THE WEATHER

Sharp again, and with a promise of still colder to come. This morning's figure was 9 degrees below, and it has not risen to the zero mark all day. Some of the coldest dips of the year are frequently around this date, or a few days previous or afterwards. On the morning of Jan. 19, 1904, (13 years ago), we had it 30 degrees below zero. This was the morning n which studio on Hunter street, and will be remembered by some of the firemen. Another cold Jan. 19th, was in 1901, when it was 18 below zero in the morning, and 12 below at noon. The following year on the same date, it was 12 below. On Jan. 19, 1897, we had a temperature of 18 below.—W.P.

DEGREE OF D. D.

A coloured congregation in Louisiana, hearing that a college in Kansas was conferring the degree of D. D. for the reasonable 'consideration' of fifty dollars, decided to add to their prestige by raising the required sum and having their pastor decorated with those dignified initials, relates Harper's. Strenuous effort failed to raise more than half the amount; but nothing daunted, they forwarded twenty-five dollars, with the request that the college would forward the first "D," so that they could begin addressing the reverend gentleman as Doctor, a favour which they were sure would assist them very much in collecting the price of his "Divinity."

EXTENSION OF PARLIAMENT'S LIFE WILL BE SOUGHT

Speech From the Throne at the Opening of the House of Commons This Afternoon Shows That This Step Will Be Taken By Government

A CONTENTIOUS POINT

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Jan. 19.—The ceremonial and official opening of the seventh session of the twelfth Parliament of Canada, which took place at 3 o'clock this afternoon, and excited the usual interest at the Capital this afternoon, despite the fact that some of the usual features were lacking. It was the first formal opening since Parliament took up the new quarters in the Museum Building and limited space and lack of galleries in the improvised Senate Chamber deprived the event of its chief social features. There was the usual brilliant group to the right of His Excellency, including Sir Robt. Borden, in his Windsor uniform, and the officers of headquarters and naval staffs. The Duchess of Devonshire sat to the left of His Excellency. No military escort was provided for the Vice Regal party, but the customary guard of honour awaited their arrival at the parlament buildings, and the usual salute was fired from Nepean Point.

The announcement that Sir Robert Borden's Government will ask for the extension of the term of parliament, thus avoiding an election, and also of the intention of the Government to have an appropriate celebration of the fifteenth anniversary of Canada's history as a domain, were the chief points emphasized in the speech from the throne delivered at the opening of the Canadian House of Commons by th Duke of Devonshire to-day.

The demand for an extension will be the contentious point of the session it is expected. While the Liberal Opposition, under Sir Wilfrid Laurier, has not definitely announced its position on this matter, there is an element of the party which demands a fight in the form of a general election immediately. The speech concluded as follows: "In common with the rest of the Empire the people of this Dominion are firmly resolved that in this war which has entailed so much sacrifice for the highest ideals of humanity and civilization shall be continued and strengthened until they are crowned with an abiding peace.

Following was the statement in a speech from the throne regarding the extension of the life of parliament: "The life of the present parliament will expire in October next, and under existing legislation illresolution and election would be necessary in the early future. My advisors, however, are of the opinion that the wishes of the Canadian people and the urgent requirements of the war would be best met by avoiding the distraction and confusion consequent upon a general election at so critical a time. That purpose can only be effected through the medium of legislation by the parliament of the united kingdom. A resolution authorising and requesting the enactment of such legislation as will further extend the life of this parliament will be presented to you.

Although in some parts of the Dominion weather conditions affected adversely the excellent prospects of an unusually large harvest, yet, taking the country as a whole, the labours of our husbandmen have been abundantly reaped.

The commercial, industrial, and financial stability of the country has been well maintained during the past year. There is every reason to believe that the Dominion will be in a position to meet satisfactorily the readjustment of conditions which must ensue upon the termination of the war.

Important measures, designed to aid in meeting these new conditions, have been in preparation, and some of them will be submitted for your consideration.

Very Few Sarnians Refuses to Sign

SARNIA, Jan. 19.—The National Service cards here were received with considerable enthusiasm and little grumbling and already over 90 per cent. of them have been returned to the Post Office. Cases of absolute refusal to sign cards are very scarce it is believed. The Post Office will make returns to Ottawa in a few days.

An organization headed by 250 of Toronto's most influential business and professional men, and consisting of at least twenty thousand people has been perfected, and the aim will be to bring every human being in Toronto within the scheme of this great money-collecting machine.

A. E. Brittain, Lieut.
Adjutant 247th O. S. Bn., C.E.F.

It has been officially announced that James Staback, of Woodville, son of Postmaster Staback, has won a Distinguished Service Medal. He is a member of a machine gun section, and has been at the front since the early stages of the war. Pte. Staback is a nephew of Mrs. P. Glover, city.

Mrs. Henry Smith, whose husband Pte. Henry Smith, formerly of the 93rd Battalion, met death at the front, has received the following letter:

Jan. 1st, 1917.

Dear Mrs. Smith,—I have just received your letter to-day of the 5th of November, forwarded to me by Mr. Weir.

I cannot tell you how I sympathize with you and your family in your terrible loss, but I know it must be a great consolation to you to know that your husband died doing his duty in this great cause in which we are all engaged.

I was near your husband when he was hit. A shell dropped, and fragments of it hit him and rendered him unconscious. We got a stretcher and carried him out almost immediately after being hit, but he only lived for a few minutes, and died without gaining consciousness. This happened about 11 o'clock of the morning of the 16th of September, 1916. I was hit a few hours later, but I understand that he was buried in the cemetery near Pozieres, which is a few miles from Albert, France.

Mr. Weir has forwarded your husband's kit to you, but I expect it may be a little time before you receive it owing to it having to go through the regular course.

Your husband was an excellent soldier and also did his work with a great thoroughness. His cheerfulness at all times made him a great favourite with all whom he came into contact.

If I can be of any service to you I should only be too pleased.

Yours sincerely,
John Duncanson, Lieut.

The Secretary of the St. John's Women's Friendly Bible Class has received the following letter from Lance Corporal Edwin Norman, Ordnance, 3rd Canadian Division, "Somewhere in France"—

Dear Madam,—I had a very pleasant surprise the other day in the shape of a Christmas parcel. I now take this, my earliest opportunity of expressing my thanks and gratitude to all concerned in sending these parcels of good cheer. It helps to keep us in touch with our church, our old friends and dear old Peterborough. God speed the day when our work in this great war will be ended and a lasting peace assured satisfaction to us and to our gallant allies. It is kindness I shall never forget and I heartily wish you all a Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year. I remain.

Yours sincerely,
EDWIN NORMAN.

The Norwood Register says: During the last week the following men from Norwood enlisted in the 247th Battalion of Peterborough:

Milton Clysdale, Herman McMillan, Jas. Saltern, J. Wesley Rodgers.

One other man offered himself but was rejected by the Medical Board.

This is a good start for Norwood and the prospects ahead look very good. For the men who are unable to enlist themselves the officers have other important work. Join the "One Hundred" club formed at the big patriotic concert on Monday night and thereby pledge yourself to endeavour to secure one recruit for the 247th Battalion of Peterborough county. Lieut. Boadet or Sergeant Puffer will be pleased to help you "sign the pledge." It is the duty of every eligible man to enlist. It is the duty of all other persons to join the "One Hundred" club.

Ptes. Frank and Harold Leal of the 21st Battalion have written home to express their heartfelt thanks to two pupils of the South Central school, Violet Frickey and Virginia French, for the gift of a Christmas parcel of handkerchiefs and cards.

The ladies of the West End Knitting Club have received letters of acknowledgment from Sergt. W. Crowly, Ptes. H. O'Heron, W. Kearns, C. Hardwick, Fountaine, L. McIntosh and Pte. Tobin. These letters expressing keen appreciation, repay in full the efforts the ladies have made to add to the soldiers' comfort.

Major E. D. O'Flynn and Captain M. Hamilton of the 247th Battalion will speak at the big recruiting meeting in Havelock to-night, in aid of the Peterborough County Battalion. The Band of the 247th will be in attendance.

BAND TO-NIGHT

At East City Rink. Good ice Admission 10c. Refreshments will be served by the Ladies Aid.

LINDSAY DROPS OUT OF RACE

The 247th Battalion Intermediate Club received word this morning that the Lindsay Hockey Club has defaulted its remaining games, and the Soldiers are therefore group champions and ready for the second round. In the meantime a series of exhibition games will be arranged, and it is hoped that the fast T. R. and A. A. team, who are leading their senior group, will be here for a game on Tuesday night.

Writ Against A Newspaper

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Jan. 19.—A sequel to the recent legislative bye-election campaign in West Simcoe was the issuance this morning of a writ on behalf of Chas. M. Bowman, M.P.P. against the Collingwood Enterprise for the publication of a statement that Bowman was a grafter under the Ross administration.

GOVERNMENTS NEED A HOUSE-CLEANING

Mrs. Frick's Claim Of $1000 From City Being Heard To-day

Claiming $1,000 damages from the city for injuries received on June 24, 1916, in a fall on Ware Street, the evidence in the Frick vs. Peterborough case, was begun before Judge Huycke this morning. Mrs. Frick, a resident of Jackson Avenue, asserts that she was crossing the street when she stumbled over a piece of planking that had been thrown to one side by employees of the sidewalk department. Several ribs were broken and other injuries sustained. Mr. G. N. Gordon is appearing for the city and Mr. F. D. Kerr for the plaintiff. The case had scarcely got under way before one of the customary Kerr---Gordon arguments arose over the admission of certain photographs Mr. Kerr was submitting.

14 Year Old Boy Twice Escapes The Police Net

A boy of fourteen years, who is wanted on a number of charges, including the retention of $10 for the sale of the Toronto News, has successfully eluded recent attempts at his capture. The other day he was rounded up in Lakefield, and the village constable called up Chief Thompson to that effect, and the Chief in turn mentioned the arrest to the press. But in the meantime the "wee lad" had made good his escape. While the constable was 'phoning to Peterborough the youngster stole out of the Lakefield store and hid away until train time. Then he boarded the train and came to Peterborough. Arriving here he engaged with Mr. Hunter of North Monaghan who took him out to the country that evening. At this point Mr. C. A. G. Spence enters. He had evidently been previously advised that Mr. Hunter would take a boy from the Shelter and a day or so ago went out with a ward whom he intended to place on the farm. But Mr. Spence stumbled upon the youngster from Lakefield and arrangements were made to bring this boy into the city to-day. This morning the farmer drove in with the lad and all went well until the corner of Charlotte and Park streets was reached, when he slipped out of the sleigh and disappeared once more.

Social To-night At Brailey's School

A box and weight social is to take place to-night at Brailey's School House, and a number of folks from town are going out.

Two teams will leave the S. A. Temple at 7:15 to take all who want to go free of charge. A programme of music, etc., will be given at the social.

MR. GILLESPIE SELLS HIS FARM

Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., has sold his farm to the previous owner, Mr. Sanderson, from whom Mr. Gillespie purchased it. Mr. Gillespie intends to have a sale of his farm stock and implements shortly, which will be one of the largest farm sales in the district.

Annual Meeting of the Health Association

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Health Association, will be held TO-NIGHT at 8 o'clock in the City Council Chamber. It is desirable and important that every member be present.

The "Geisha's" Gift To The Progressive Club

Mr. Devey on Behalf of "Dramatic Society" Turns Over Whole Profits—$250

The executive and members of the Progressive Club desire to express to Mr. Devey, and those who took part in the "Geisha"—their grateful thanks for the handsome donation of $250.

Mr. Devey and his Dramatic Society spent much time and care upon the production of the "Geisha," and the entire profits were given to the Progressive Club. This is certainly a most patriotic act, and is greatly appreciated by the Club, as well as by all patriotic citizens.

Miss Laura Hughes Believes the Women of the Country Are Thoroughly Qualified to Do the House-cleaning Which She Claims is Badly Needed—Address at the Collegiate Institute.

VOTES FOR WOMEN

That the Governments of both the Dominion and the Province of Ontario are in need of a house cleaning, is the opinion of Miss Laura Hughes, who last evening gave an address in the Collegiate Institute on the subject of the enfranchisement of women. This striking statement coming from a niece of Major-General Sir Sam Hughes, former Minister of Militia in the present Government concluded an address that lasted for nearly two hours. Miss Hughes claims that there is no body of people more qualified to do the house-cleaning than the women of Canada. She assured the audience that the present Provincial Government of Ontario would be given an opportunity of granting votes to women. If the women are unsuccessful the Liberals will be appealed to as Mr. N. W. Rowell, leader of the Liberal party in Ontario has endorsed the movement and the Liberals in other provinces of Canada have introduced women's suffrage. Miss Hughes thought it would be a good thing if the house-cleaning of the Governments could be accomplished before the boys come home from the front. To Miss Hughes the present Government have ceased to remember they represent the people and are more prone to remember they represent the party.

ALD. STRATTON PRESIDED.

Ald. A. H. Stratton presided in the absence of His Worship Mayor Duffus who has not yet got the kinks out of his neck through looking up at the tall buildings in New York City. Ald. Stratton like the good chairman that he is, favoured the gathering with a speech at both the opening and the close of the meeting and incidentally relieved Mr. J. J. Hartley of the arduous task of moving a vote of thanks by the simple and abbreviated expedient of asking the audience to signify its appreciation of Miss Hughes address in the usual manner. This was followed by a hearty handclap and the rendition of the National Anthem. Lieut.-Col Ackerman who was invited to address the meeting referred to the magnificent work accomplished by the women of Canada. He concluded with an appeal to the women for their assistance in the work of recruiting. He characterized Miss Hughes as a suffragette.

"A SUFFRAGIST."

"I am not a suffragette" declared Miss Hughes upon rising to speak. "I am a suffragist," she corrected. Miss Hughes explained that a suffragette differs from a suffragist in that the former represents the militant type and lends her energies to breaking windows and giving incendiary speeches.

"I don't think we will have to resort to those methods in Canada, observed the speaker. The enfranchisement of women is not a new question. It has been talked and written about for over a hundred years. It was first spoken of about the time of the French Revolution when the Frenchmen were fighting for their freedom. They took a rather militant method in those early days.

WILL BE FASHIONABLE.

THE HEALTH ASSOCIATION.

Reminder is given of the annual meeting of the Peterborough Health Association in the City Council Chamber tonight. In regard to the health interests of the city, in view of the applied Christianity and humanity, in view of the Peterborough Health Association's splendid work in the relief of suffering, this annual meeting is of greater importance to Peterborough than the meeting of Parliament. It merits the support and auxiliary co-operation of every citizen.

THE DORCHESTER BY-ELECTION

There may be, though there should not be, surprise at the action of the Liberals of the riding of Dorchester, Quebec, in opposing the reelection of Hon. Mr. Sevigny, the latest Nationalist cabinet minister of the Borden government. In the first place, the action is an act of resentment of the insult of appointing a Nationalist, a light in the anti-British Nationalist faction, as a minister of the Crown, to a Cabinet whose duty is to work with might and main for British interests, unhampered by embodied principles of treason to British interests in its ranks. It is a protest against the Borden government placing party interests above national and imperial interests in the composition of the Cabinet.

The action of the Liberals voices the protest of honest and loyal Quebec Conservatives, who have been ignored in Cabinet appointments. It is an understood thing that the provinces be represented in the cabinet a fair and reasonable thing. But ever since the Borden government was formed, the only true "Bleu" admitted to its councils was the late Hon. T. Chase Casgrain. Honest and loyal Quebec Conservatives have not been represented in the Borden Cabinet by ministers of their party; they say the whole people of the province have been represented by the enemies of British interests and opponents to Canada taking her share in the war. If a straight Conservative minister had been appointed to the Cabinet, there would have been no election in Dorchester.

WHAT A FLAG IS.

There is something like a controversy in the New York Herald, over the question of the oldest national flag, and of course it is proven conclusively that the oldest national flag is that of the United States, though that country has been in existence only a hundred and forty years. The Herald points out that the "Stars and Stripes" was adopted in 1777; the standard of Great Britain was only adopted in 1801.

A national flag owes, if not its age, its significance not to being a mere bit of bunting, but to the spirit and fact it symbolizes.

A national flag cannot count its age from the last new suit or ipsus that has been given it. The British flag, with its tripled amalgamation of the Christian emblems of the three races that have made the greatest impress, had highest character of influence upon the world—the English, the Irish and the Scotch—may have been concretely adopted, as to form, only in 1801, but their real symbolism, the real significance of these separate flag emblems are lost in the mists of history through which their crimson radiance has been flashing for centuries. These now combined emblems have only been united a hundred years; but the Cross of St. George, the flag symbol of Merrie England, has for centuries inspired, watched over and guarded the various evolutionary steps of free institutions, representative institutions, that have made England the cradle of constitutional liberty and the parliamentary government, that are the essence of advanced civilization.

The British flag is centuries old in its embodiment of high spirit, high ideals and impulse to great achievement. A flag's age is counted by what it has stood for in its fundamentals of meaning, and its value by what it does—by its protection of those who owe it allegiance, and of the interests of them and humanity at large. The British flag is a principle as well as an entity. It protects its subjects, from the humblest to the highest. An insult to a British subject is an outrage upon the flag, and if necessary the whole strength of the Empire on sea and shore is exercised to vindicate the sacredness of the flag as the aegis of every soul and body under the shadow of its earth-wide protectorate.

The age of a flag is no matter of importance—but what it stands for and what it does. A flag that does not protect its people from outrage, and itself from insult, though it be as old as the hills, is only a bit of bunting—not even a sacred "rag," as is the standard that has been riddled, with shot and shell, blackened with the stains of conflict in a glorious cause. It is the voice of the British flag that has called Great Britain and her overseas Dominions—has commandeered all her and their mighty resources, all her strength on sea and land—to the greatest fight the world has ever seen—not for conquest, not for gain, but for principle—that mankind might be free, and justice and right might not perish from the earth.

KEEP IT GOING.

The lesson taught by the fable of the tortoise and the hare is that spurts and spasms of energy and action are little worth: it is the steady, persevering going that counts in the race of life, whether in individual, civil, national or belligerent enterprises. We had, not long ago, but long enough to let the spirit seemingly evaporate, a beautiful demonstration of inter-provincial rapprochement, labelled, "la bonne entente." We had beautiful academic exchanges of fraternal sentiments. But will these have been worth the breath spent upon them unless they are followed up—unless pleasant platitudes are worked into a policy to be worked up to and worked out by the peoples of Ontario and Quebec to the end of achieving a real "bonne entente?"

Unless we are willing and really strive to forget old prejudices and forgive—fancied wrongs of intent and action nothing will have been accomplished. It will take something more than fine speeches and after-dinner exchange of vows of eternal friendship to counteract the influences that tend to keep the peoples of the two provinces apart—in hostile camps. We have in the province of Ontario and the province of Quebec respectively, two incendiary, and organized influences or factors, hostile to mutual good understanding. Their activities are unfortunately not spasmodic, but malevolently continous. Each faction is always loaded with prejudices, the charges of recrimination rammed home to the muzzle and the slightest spark of suspicion or distrust served to produce an explosion. While these influences are at work and are tolerated by politicians to serve their ends, and unless the body of patriotic citizenship sees the danger and unites to meet it; and frowns down and neutralizes, outlaws and utterly reprobates the spirit at work in each of the provinces and in each in its own evil and perilous way, we shall never have interprovincial peace; "la bonne entente" will be a dream, and we shall never reach and realize the harmony of citizenship, the oneness of aspiration and aim, the indispensable condition of national progress. We have set the harmony ball rolling; let us keep it going, in thought and deed and word. If we let it stop rolling, many of the best men of Ontario and Quebec will have written themselves down as amiable pretenders and oratorial "false alarms."

In civic affairs we are also subject to spurts in the race of good and productive citizenship. Two or three years ago we had a big banquet, and over the wine and walnuts, our best citizens made valiant championship of a scheme to beautify the city. It was in every way admirable and perfectly feasible; but once the door closed on the last departing banqueter, the thing dropped and silence settled upon it as if each member of the sanhedrim had been bound by an iron-clad oath of secrecy; the only echo was in the newspaper report of the gathering the next day.

We do too much of that sort of thing, and it is not a good thing for a progressive city. We have, so we are told, told, the finest streets of business houses, the finest shop windows and interiors of any city of our size—prosperous and thriving. This argues good business ability and enterprise. We have an equally alert body of business men, conducting our important establishments, yet we can't or don't have, or keep going, that live wire of civic business energy, a live Board of Trade. Once in a while it comes to the surface to take breath and then disappears again — wasn't seen or heard of in 1916. We have in the present conjunction of circumstances, need of the good offices of a Board of Trade. There are some things a city council, if it does its appointed work, is too busy to properly attend to. There is an influential sound in the name, "Board of Trade," and we need its influence to influence public bodies that have the power to do things, to give concessions and impose injunctions necessary to secure, in the interests of the business and general life of the city, conditions that vitally affect our industrial interests and standing and general prosperity. We should get things going, and what is more important, keep them going — inaugurate and maintain a civic perpetual motion of activity and enterprize.

THE FINANCE MINISTER'S ADVICE IS COMMENDED TO HIMSELF

Practise National Economy By Suspending Parliament Buildings Reconstruction

"On Thursday evening Sir Thomas White, Minister of Finance, in the course of an excellent address before the Ottawa Board of Trade on the need for economy and thrift, said:

"The solution of the problems presented on demobilization of our soldiers, and arising from the need of increasing agricultural and other production, and of transportation by land and sea for our products, will, of course, require future financing on the part of the Dominion, but apart from these and the construction of the most necessary public undertakings the policy for the Dominion, provinces and municipalities should be that of rigid economy. It will be good for us financially and morally."

Sir Thomas has at several places delivered addresses along the same lines, all of which are deserving of commendation. There can be no question that the advice he gives respecting the need for economy is sound.

"What a pity it is that such excellent advice is weakened by the fact that at Ottawa, under the eyes of Sir Thomas and his colleagues, and with the concurrence of a Joint Committee of Parliament, the existence of which is calculated to stifle discussion, there is going on a work, the cost of which will run into millions, which cannot by any possibility be properly described as a "most necessary public undertaking." How can the Government expect lessons of economy from any Minister to be received with respect while there is going on the scandalous waste that is involved in the reconstruction of the Parliament Buildings at such a time as this? Of course Canada must have, at the proper time, Parliament Buildings which will be in keeping with the character of the Dominion. But there is hardly anything that Canada has less need of at this time than a new Parliament House. In the Victoria Memorial Museum at Ottawa, Parliament has found convenient and comfortable quarters. There are large rooms, which are well suited to the purposes of the Senate and House of Commons. Indeed, in some respects the accommodation now enjoyed by the members of the two bodies is better than it was in the stately structure on Parliament Hill that was recently destroyed by fire.

"There is quite a large amount of accommodation for committees and for the members. It is not all that could be desired, but it is ample for war time, when some inconvenience and perhaps discomfort have to be borne by everybody. If Parliament has to be housed in its present quarters for several years nobody will be the worse for it. Why then should the Government, at a time when the recruiting offices are almost empty, when the Ottawa battalions call in vain for their complement of men, set hundreds of able bodied men at work for the rebuilding of structures not needed? With what reason can the Government refuse the call for public buildings in other parts of Canada while this wasteful expenditure of millions goes on under their eyes at Ottawa? The actual work of erection is suspended on account of the weather, but the work of preparing the material is going on as usual. All such work done at the present time of high wages will be very costly. That alone would be a reason for delay until a more convenient season. The need of men for military service is another reason. The need there will be for after-the-war work, to furnish employment at a time when it will be much needed, is another reason and a very strong one.—Journal of Commerce.

HOW THE FRENCH CAME INTO THEIR OWN AT VERDUN

Special Accounts of Fierce Fighting That Shattered Five Divisions—Hundreds of Hidden Guns Blazed Forth—The Conclusion Drawn From Capture of Hundreds of German Officers.

A GRAPHIC ACCOUNT

Since the official communique from Paris brought the first news of the great French victory at Verdun, it has become known that five German divisions were beaten by four of France—a splendid achievement. Not only so, but the enemy were driven from some miles of fortified ground which they had won last spring at a heavy cost in dead and wounded.

In short, the triumph of the French not only reproduces the brilliant features of their victory in the same region on Oct. 24, but also restores by recapture the forts which were the outer defences of Verdun.

All through the country the impetuous French assault—the first event to signalize the appointment of General Nivelle as Commander-in-Chief—sent a thrill of ardent satisfaction. "Nine thousand prisoners and over eighty guns" (as the first reports said) was enough in itself to justify that elation.

But hour by hour the record has increased, until the total of prisoners has swollen to over 11,000—equal to a full German division on its reduced scale—and it has been made very unlikely that the enemy will ever again attempt an assault upon his lost strongholds.

Below is told the full story—the first answer given by the Allies to the Kaiser's "Peace" trick.

One of the first vivid descriptions that came to hand was that of Mr. Henry Wood, correspondent, whose message was issued by the Exchange Telegraph Company. He wrote:

From one of the highest of the Verdun forts, embracing a view of the entire six-mile battle front from Vacherauville to beyond Bezonvaux, I witnessed the French move to the assault with such clockwork precision that the entire advance of two miles was made at a uniform and pre-established pace.

The foot troops under the new French infantry reorganization, divided into groups armed with hand-grenades, portable machine-guns, rifle grenades, and bayonets, advanced under a perfect curtain of artillery fire.

EARTH ITSELF VIBRATED.

The hand and rifle grenadiers executed a grenade barrage wiping out any German position which had escaped the artillery preparations, thus permitting the infantry never to fall behind the pre-established rate of advance.

Yesterday's advance constituted the third step in the Verdun offensive, the previous two having retaken Douaumont and Vaux. It demonstrated the incontestable superiority of the French over the Germans, the French attacking with four divisions the German front, held by five divisions, and inflicting losses which, it is estimated, have wiped out two divisions.

The attack was launched at ten o'clock, and following a day's terrific artillery preparation, culminating before the infantry leaped out of the trenches into such a steady roar that the combined unbroken roar of scores of aeroplanes overhead made both the earth and the air vibrate together.

The French artillery preparation, which had extended over the entire Verdun front to St. Mihiel, evidently puzzled the Germans, who, expecting an attack elsewhere, were unable to begin a barrage fire till the French had swept up a goodly portion of the Poivre (Pepper) Hill.

As the troops neared the summit the fury of the battle increased, and innumerable rockets shot skyward as the different sections signalled their advance.

BARRAGE FIRES' TERRIFIC MEETING.

The German barrage, which began short on the opposite slope to Poivre, gradually lengthened and climbed up, whilst the French barrage ascended from the front side, till both met on the summit in frightful explosions that turned the entire hill into a seething, smoking volcano.

Yet a moment afterwards rockets shot up from the opposite side of the crest, signalling that the French were successfully passing the German barrage, and were descending the opposite slope.

Within an hour the entire Cote Poirre was captured.

Whilst the French troops swept over Poivre others attacked and captured Vacherauville, lying in the Meuse valley at the foot of Poivre.

The fighting was so intense that the volume of grenade smoke gave the impression of an entire village burning.

After the loss of Poivre the Germans devoted almost all their entire artillery to an effort to check the French advance further east, executing solid barrages over Louvemont and Chambrettes Farms, Hardaumont and Bezonvaux. But although the artillery struggle continued with incredible violence, the French advance along the entire front was unchecked.

During the entire battle aviators, flying low behind the German lines, machine-gunned the fleeing Germans, who sought to escape the French advance.

Yesterday's gains place the German line three miles from Souville, Verdun's last defence from which the Germans in July were separated by only 500 yards.

Since the loss of Douaumont on Oct. 24 the Germans had worked night and day entrenching, and fortifying new positions, seven weeks' work, which was wiped out on Friday.

General Nivelle, whose armies have been responsible for the entire defence of Verdun, together with the present offensive, personally congratulated General Mangin, who, under his approval, has planned and executed the Verdun offensive since October 25.

FROM AN EYE-WITNESS.

This brief narrative was followed a little later by a despatch from Mr. G. H. Perris, Lloyd's News and Daily Chronicle special correspondent with the French Army at Verdun. Writing on the night of the battle, he says:

I was an eye-witness to-day of the great battle of Verdun, where the French army struck another deadly blow at the forces still nominally commanded by the German Crown Prince, on the heights of the Meuse.

In a few hours the enemy was beaten back, an average of two miles on a six and a half-mile front, many thousands of prisoners being taken and a number of cannon captured or destroyed.

The most important points of the occupied ground, counting from the river valley eastward, are Vacherauville village, the Poivre crest, Louvemont Hill and village, Haudromont Redoubt and plateau, the woods north of Douaumont as far as Les Chambrettes Farm, and the whole of the Hardaumont plateau, overlooking the eastern plain called the Woevre, with the Hardaumont and Bezonvaux redoubts and the village of Bezonvaux, lying at the foot of the hills two miles north of the village of Vaux.

I was able to watch the whole operation, as far as actions of such extent can be watched, from ten o'clock this morning.

From the French positions of this morning, except Douaumont, the highest point of the plateau, the Meuse heights rise tier beyond tier. From a certain happily situated hill most of the battlefield was clearly visible, and every considerable movement could be closely followed.

Despite a strong and icy wind, the great biplanes and the little Nieuports came and went, while a dozen "sausages" held permanent guard at the end of their long cables.

There must have been some German planes near the front, but I did not see one on our side of the lines, and I only saw one German observation balloon, and that was falling like a huge torch beyond Douaumont.

WHEN THE SIGNAL WAS GIVEN.

Just before ten o'clock there was a hush in the cannonade, a momentary pause, in which we knew that hundreds of officers and thousands of men were standing ready for the signal with bayonets fixed.

Modern assaults go by clockwork, and when the given moment arrived it was rather like the spontaneous movement of a vast mechanism than the noisy and confused clash of old-time armies.

Suddenly the hills echoed with a multitudinous flapping and crashing of hundreds of hidden guns. The green and brown slopes and valleys of the amphitheatre were fuller of gun flashes than a frosty sky is with stars.

The other end of the trajectory of the French barrage fire was visible in long lines of smoke from the exploding shells, preceding with a marvellous closeness the lines of blue-coated infantry advancing behind a moving wall of flame.

Everywhere the sky was splashed with the rising and falling flames of signal rockets, and in every part of the front intrepid airmen were swimming in and out of the zone of death.

After the beginning of the attack the German artillery fire became erratic and ineffectual, probably from the fear that the near guns would be captured, as most of them were.

On the left, or west wing, in the Meuse Valley, the village of Vacherauville, lying between the long ridges of Talou and the Poive, had been fortified in the now familiar manner.

Grenade fighting continued for several hours in the village, and it was not till the commanding positions on the east had been lost that the last defenders gave in.

CAPTURE AFTER CAPTURE.

The capture of Pepper Hill was speedily accomplished. The Germans had a triple system of trenches along the slope up to the summit and on the south side of the road from Vacherauville to Louvemont. Bombing parties cleared their shattered lines with uncanny rapidity, under protection of the French curtain fire.

From below the Pepper Hill summit the front yesterday turned eastward across the valley road from Bras to Louvemont, and then across the wooded hill of Haudromont to Douaumont. Here also the advance was rapid, though the more broken nature of the ground left many obstacles in the way.

Winning Poivre and Haudromont heights made possible a concentric attack all along the Louvemont road from the village over Hill Metre 347 to Les Chambrettes Farm and Hill Metre 358, where the road turns due north. By the early afternoon all the ground was secured.

Two strong lines of trenches north of Douaumont, on the right of the attack, a deep wooded area behind them and east of Douaumont, and the wooded promontory of Hardaumont (north of Vaux), was the hardest part of the battle. By nightfall, nevertheless, the village of Bezonvaux, just two miles northeast of Douaumont, had been reached and cleared, with the remains of several old French redoubt and other intervening works.

This great victory was the work of four French divisions, including many of the Colonial troops who captured Douaumont last month, and started from the points reached in their earlier advance. It completely alters the balance of advantageous positions on the Meuse Heights.

In losing Douaumont and Souville the Germans lose all control over the central mass of this mountain block, and another push equal to that of to-day would put them back to the line they occupied before Feb. 21 last.

Except that the enemy indulged in a violent bombardment of his lost positions on Wednesday and Thursday, there has been no fresh development. Our Allies have consolidated the captured ground, and maintain their position.

By a French expert it has been estimated that the German losses from all causes were about 80,000 men.

PUT FEAR IN ENEMY.

In a later message, Mr. Perris wrote:—

Snow began to fall as I left the field and it is now falling more heavily.

Much of the conquered ground is a foul fog, in which, for the moment, trfenches cannot be dug, the general winter is a more redoubtable for holding such ground seems to me more conspicuous than that by which it was seized. Yet so far it is held, and the probability is that it will be held.

The enemy has received a very heavy blow. Among the 8,000 11,000 prisoners made in the last twenty-four hours there are between 200 and 300 officers. The time when German officers generally died fighting has passed. As to the men, there is a good deal of evidence that they now stand in open fear of our Allies and the decline of moral is very marked.

The organization is still formidable, but it develops no new resources or qualities to meet the increases of the Allies' material strength.

The enemy's principle losses are, of course, irrecoverable for it should always be remembered that the capture of positions is only a means to the supreme end of every operation of war—the destruction of the hostile forces.

In recent actions on the Meuse the Germans have tended to revert to the earlier practice of holding the foremost trenches in strength, but the only result so far has been to increase their losses of all kinds.

ONE MAN IN TEN A PRISONER

It is known that they had in action five divisions, (prisoners were taken belonging to every regiment of these divisions). They probably had, therefore a certain numerical superiority. Yet nearly one mane in ten of the whole army was made prisoner, and it is highly probable that a third of the force was put out of action.

As on the last occasion when Douaumont was recovered, the French casualties are relatively high.

The voice of Verdun is the invincible will of all France in its most deliberate expression.

It means that this people is resolved not to be conquered and not to be tricked. It is a clarion challenging a wearied enemy.

When General Neville took leave of his staff at Verdun he said:

"I leave you, gentlemen, at the close of a splendid day. The experiment is conclusive. Our method has justified itself once more. The Second Army has affirmed its moral and material ascendancy over the enemy.

"Victory is certain. I assure you that Germany will learn this to her cost."

Police Force At Kitchener To Be Greatly Reduced

MUNICIPAL COAL YARD WILL BE REPORTED ON BY COMMITTEE.

KITCHENER, Jan. 18.—Before the regular business was taken up by the city council at a meeting held here a formal welcome home was accorded to Ptes. Zaresoteroff, of the 2nd Battalion, and John Noble, of the 1st Battalion. Mayor Gross officiated, and presented each with an address of welcome and a $10 goldpiece.

N. R. Detweiler wrote the council, stating that he declined to accept the appointment as a member of the board of health. He was named at the inaugural meeting, but said he could not accept under existing circumstances, brought about by the late election. Mr. Detweiler was a defeated British League candidate, having secured the largest number of votes, but was three hundred behind the tailender of the previous council.

WANT A REPORT.

On motion of Ald. Reid and Sass the city clerk was directed to communicate with the chief of the Dominion police, requesting that official to furnish a full report of the investigation into the report made that rifles and ammunition had been stored in a near by village schoolhouse during the last municipal elections.

A committee was appointed to make investigations regarding the purchase of coal and the establishment of a municipal coalyard providing such action does not conflict with the Ontario municipal act.

As a matter of economy during these times of stress a resolution was passed on motion of Ald. Asmussen and Reid that a recommendation be made to the board of police commissioners to reduce by three the present force of eight men.

OTHERS TO BLAME

Speaking to the motion, Ald. Sass was of opinion that a great deal of the expense could have been saved if the police had done their duty on election night, as he did not believe that the soldiers of the 118th Battalion were alone to blame for the rowdyism.

Ald. Campbell was strongly of the opinion that the work of the chief was to lead his men, and not sit in the office, especially when there is a riot or trouble on. To-night it was a matter of economy, and he favored a reduction of the staff.

A motion was also passed appointing a committee to inquire into and report back not later than September with a view of submitting to the electors at the next municipal elections the question whether Kitchener should have a commission form of government. This surprised Ald. Bitser, who said that it was hardly necessary because a good council had been elected this year.

Aldermen Sass, Schwartz, Reid, Uttley and Bowman were appointed a committee to consider questions in connection with the assessment of the city with a view to reform.

"FAGGED OUT" WOMEN

Will Find a Helpful Suggestion in This Letter

Overworked, run down "fagged out" women who feel as though they could hardly drag about, should profit by Mrs. Carter's experience. She says:—"I am the mother of six children and I got so weak and run-down that I couldn't eat anything and it seemed almost impossible for me to get around and do my work. I tried different doctor's remedies without benefit. I saw Vinol advertised and decided to try it, and received so much benefit from the first bottle that I continued to take it, and it has built up my strength and made me strong and well. I consider Vinol the best medicine I have ever taken, and advise all weak, run-down women to try it." Mrs. Bessie Carter, State Road, N. C.

If all the tired, overworked, run-down women in Peterborough could only realize how our delicious Vinol, which contains beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptones and glycerophosphates, supplies the vital elements necessary to build up blood and strength, we wouldn't be able to supply and demand.

THE MILLBROOK WINTER HORSE SHOW WAS A SUCCESS

Some of the Best Performers in the Ring Were Shown at the Annua Show—Horses Were in Good Condition—The Prizewinners

MILLBROOK, Jan. 19.—The annual Short Course and Winter Horse Show, held under the auspices of the Department of Agriculture, Millbrook Agricultural Society and Durham Board of Agriculture, was again a success, despite the weather conditions of the last day, which necessitated postponement for one week.

The demonstration work was a phenomenal success, and the progressive live stock breeders of Durham turned out in large numbers to discuss issues relative to the profession with which their industry and observation have made them familiar.

In Good Condition.

The animals exhibited for demonstration purposes were in good breeding condition, especially the various classes of beef and dairy cattle, which were supplied by Messrs. Fred Fallis, Thomas Jones, Sutton, McNeil, Matchett, and McCamus. These cattle were a credit to the men who own them and an asset to the County of Durham.

The Horses.

The horses exhibited were of exceptional quality and type. In the draft class three animlas of different type were exhibited. There was no difficulty in placing the winner in Staples' big, blocky mare, with both substance and quality; but some little dispute arose as to which animal second place should go, as it either had to follow size in a gelding, or quality in a mare, and a number of people felt inclined to place the mare second. After some deliberation Mr. Gardhouse placed the gelding second and the mare third, which seemed a popular decision.

In the Agricultural Class four animals were shown, mostly all of a different size and quality. After some discussion as to what an Agricultural horse should be, the most ideal in the class was Mr. Lunn's mare, which had more size and possibly a little more Clydesdale type than the others. The second was a Chestnut mare with a tendency to general purpose. The third followed the former type, and the fourth was a good, handy little horse.

Road Class.

In the Road Class four warriors crept on the carpet. More interest was shown as some of these horses were contestants in former competitions, and they were of the proper type. After some discussion, first place went to Johnston's roan gelding. Second went to a little black mare, which was clipped and did not show as she has on former occasions. The third was a little different type and a good, useful kind, and the fourth was a bay gelding, which was not in condition and is only a colt.

Carriage Class.

In the Carriage Class four animals faced the colours, all of good, true carriage type, and all Hackney bred. First place went to Hood's little sorrel filly, which is the Utopia of horse flesh, and, barring accidents, will continue to head the lists in future. The second was her stable mate, with more size, but not so smooth as the winner; the third was a black filly mare, the type of the winner, but acted very coltish, and the fourth was a grey mare that moved nicely and was no doubt an excellent family horse.

All the committees feel grateful to the men who so cheerfully placed their animals in the judging pavilion for the benefit of the public to criticize upon as to their qualities, good or otherwise. It is hoped that all will unite in making the Millbrook Winter Horse Show bigger and better than ever in future.

A PETERBOROUGH BOY IN TEXAS

Mr. James H. Winch Makes His Mark as Successful Druggist

A copy of the Laredo, Texas Daily Times of a recent date has been received by Mr. P. Alexander, containing a reference to one of its most successful citizens, Mr. James H. Winch.

Local interest is given to the article in the Times by reason of the fact that Mr. Winch's wife, Annie Winch, is a sister of Mrs. P. Alexander and a cousin of Mr. H. E. Winch of this city. Following is the personal reference in the Times, accompanying which is a striking half-tone picture of Mr. Winch:—

"James H. Winch, manager of the City Drug Company, was born at Peterborough, province of Ontario, Canada, October 18, 1878. At the early age of 3 years, Mr. Winch came with his parents to New York, later removing to Florida where he received his education. In the year 1895 Mr. Winch removed to Laredo, took up the study of pharmacy and after a period of diligent study was successful in fulfilling all the requirements of the Board of Pharmacy's examination and was granted a certificate to practice his profession. In the year 1900 Mr. Winch removed to various cities in Mexico where he practiced his profession, returning to Laredo in 1902 to accept a position with the City Drug Company, the oldest established drug house in the city. After several years spent in this city, Mr. Winch accepted employment at his profession in El Paso and Los Angeles, Calif., in which places he remained for several years, returning to Laredo in 1910 to again identify himself with the City Drug Company as manager and part proprietor, having purchased an interest in the company.

"Mr. Winch is the possessor of a personality which makes an infinity of friends for himself and his company which, added to his "absolutely square treatment" of his patrons, places him in the vanguard of Laredo business men and among those who may be depended upon in any civic or business emergency."

INGERSOLL, Jan. 19.—While assisting at a wood-cutting bee on the premises of John Service, first concession of Dereham township, William Tackle received injuries which may result fatally. His clothing was caught in some manner and before assistance could be rendered he was frightfully mangled. His condition is so serious that the possibility of recovery is very slight.

Over 13,000 Names On Cambridge War List

LONDON, Jan. 19.—At the close of 1916 there were 13,128 names on the Cambridge University war list. Of these, 1,405 were killed, 1,945 were wounded, and 312 missing and prisoners, 916 were mentioned in despatches, five being awarded the Victoria Cross, and 900 other distinctions.

GOVERNMENT WHIP RESIGNS OFFICE

Mr. John Stanfield Will Be Succeeded by Mr. Middlebro.

OTTAWA, Jan. 19.—John Stanfield has resigned his position as chief Conservative whip. He will be succeeded by W. S. Middlebro, member for North Grey.

The retiring whip relinquishes an office which he has filled since the first session of the present Parliament. He retains his seat in the House, which he won in the famous bye-election of 1907, when the "solid eighteen" which Hon. W. S. Fielding brought from Nova Scotia was broken. Some weeks ago it was announced that Mr. Stanfield had stated his intention of resigning from Parliament, following a difference with the Minister of Railways over some matters connected with the administration of the Intercolonial. This, apparently, is not now his intention, although his resignation as whip has reached the Prime Minister.

Mr. Middlebro, who will be the new chief whip, has discharged with satisfaction the duties of assistant whip. He entered Parliament in 1908.

Address in Toronto By Capt. Burnham

Need New Methods to Raise Recruits—Let the People Decide

TORONTO, Jan. 19.—The adoption of conscription in Canada was warmly advocated at a meeting held at St. George's Hall last night, and resolutions were passed calling upon the Dominion Government to put the Militia Act into force and to immediately enrol men eligible under Class A of the Act in sufficient numbers to complete the 500,000 men which the Dominion is pledged to place in the field. Also that reinforcements be sent to the front as quickly as possible and continued as required to maintain the Canadian force on the battle line in full strength. The attendance, while not over-large, was representative of all classes of the community, and further was most enthusiastic.

Capt. J. H. Burnham, M.P. for West Peterborough, who recently returned from the front, said he had been privileged to convey from the men in the trenches to the young men of Canada the message and appeal. "Don't see us stuck." The meaning of that message was that the boys at the front saw that owing to the continuance of the war it was necessary that recruiting should not fall off in Canada. The boys at the front needed reinforcements. They who have won imperishable glory for Canada should not be deserted. He asked, What are the Canadian people going to do? The burden was on their shoulders. Would Canadians ignore the warning and request of their sons in France? He thought not. If there were any young men in Canada who did not want to do their duty they had better get out of the country. Such men were not worthy of the protection of the Union Jack. Capt. Burnham advocated the taking of a referendum on the question of conscription. If the people showed by their votes that they wanted it, the Government would act quickly. Politicians, after all, simply gave effect to the wishes of the people. If the people wanted conscription they could get it. The voluntary system had done well, but it was played out. A change must be made; it was impossible to let things drag along the way they were doing. Let the question be submitted to the people, and let everyone abide by the answer given. Capt. Burnham paid a glowing tribute to the gallant lads at the front and to the nursing sisters, and concluded with a fervent appeal for reinforcements to enable the Canadians at the front to win greater glory and to aid in the speedy defeat of the Germans.

German Official Story Categorically Denied

LONDON, Jan. 19.—A Foreign Office communication issued, referring to the statement in the German note of January 12th, to neutrals, in effect, "It is known that in 1687 the British Government was determined not to oppose on these conditions the claiming of the right-of-way through Belgium," says this statement is absolutely devoid of foundation and is categorically denied.

Noah Dunn Burned To Death in Shack

LIVED ALONE IN THE BUILDING SITUATED NEAR McKENZIE'S ISLAND.

Campbelford, Jan. 18.—The dead body of Noah Dunn was taken from the ruins of the shack in which he lived and which was destroyed by fire on Friday afternoon last. The building was located on the south side of the Trent River, near McKenzie's Island, and the blaze was first noticed by some of the children returning from school. Several of the neighbours who rushed to the scene were able to distinguish the body of the unfortunate inmate lying in bed with a rifle in his hands, but owing to the fierceness of the flames they were unable to enter the building.

When the flames had been quenched the charred remains of the body were taken out and were later viewed by the coroner.

Interment was made on Saturday in Centre Church cemetery.—Campbellford News.

How Thin People Can Put On Flesh

Thin men and women—that big, hearty, filling dinner you ate last night. What became of all the fat-producing nourishment it contained? You haven't gained in weight an ounce. That food passed from your body like unburned coal through an open grate. The material was there, but your food doesn't work and stick, and the plain truth is you hardly get enough nourishment from your meals to pay for the cost of cooking. This is true of thin folks the world over. Your nutritive organs, your functions of assimilation, are probably sadly out of gear and need reconstruction.

Cut out the foolish foods and fussy sweetest diets. Cut out everything but the meals you are eating and eat with every one of them a single Sargol tablet. In two weeks note the difference. Let the scales be the judge. Five to eight good solid pounds of healthy, "stay-there" fat may be the net result. Sargol aims to charge, weak, stagnant blood with millions of fresh new red blood corpuscles—to give the blood the carrying power to deliver every ounce of fat-making material in your food to every part of your body. Sargol, too, mixes with your food, to prepare it for the blood in an easily assimilated form. Thin people tell how they have gained all the way from 10 to 25 pounds a month while taking Sargol and say that the new flesh stays put. Sargol tablets are a careful combination of six of the best assimilative elements known to chemistry. They come 60 tablets to a package, are pleasant, harmless and inexpensive, and all good druggists in this vicinity sell them subject to an absolute guarantee of weight increase or money back as found in every large package.

If you find a druggist who is unable to supply you with Sargol send $1.00 money order or registered letter to the National Laboratories, 74 Antoine St., Montreal and a complete ten days' treatment will be sent you postpaid in plain wrapper.

To clean plaster-of-paris figures, sprinkle them with a thick coating of starch and water. When this is dry the dirt will brush off with the dry powder.

GOVERNMENTS NEED A HOUSE-CLEANING

Why shouldn't we have something to say about the laws we are compelled to obey? asked the speaker. There have been women voting in the world for over fifty years, and yet there are to-day people who express alarm when it is suggested that women be given a chance to vote. Some day it is going to be the fashion to be up-to-date in brains as well as in clothes and we are going to adopt new ideas as they come along. In 1818 a man in Baltimore was nearly mobbed for raising an umbrella during a rainstorm because the people of that city had never seen an umbrella. A hundred years from now people will look back at the anti-suffragist of to-day and be as much surprised as the people of Baltimore were when the man appeared in their midst with an umbrella.

NOT A NEW IDEA.

Women suffrage is based on sound principles. It is not a new idea and is democratic. Crime is practically unknown in the state of Wyoming, the pioneer state of women's suffrage. Anti-suffragists do not exist once women's suffrage is introduced. Norway, New Zealand and Australia have all adopted women's suffrage resulting in advanced legislation for all the countries named. The President of the anti-suffraght league in California was one of the first women to register her name as a voter of that state when womens suffrage was introduced.

"If the men were disenfranchised for about five years they would know what it means to be classed with criminals, edicts and children, said Miss Hughes.

TWO PARLIAMENTS.

Since coming to Peterborough the speaker had discovered a man who has been in parliament and who believes that there should be two parliaments in the Province. Miss Hughes did not devulge the name but expressed disapproval of such a solution. She failed to see why the women should not sit in the same parliament with the men. "Too many people, said Miss Hughes make women's suffrage a question of sex antagonism, whereas it should be a uestion of co-operation."

Miss Hughes admitted that had the women been governing the country for the past one hundred years as the men have done they would not have done any better.

Two Functions.

"There are two functions in the world: the man function and the woman function. Neither one is better than the other. Man's mind is trained to a certain line of thought, the same with a woman's mind. Man is destined to always be the provider. He has worked out the industrial and commercial systems of the age. Women have not made the same progress as men because they have not had the same chance. Men look at things from the commercial attitude; woman from the humane side of the question. A few years ago the canners waited upon the Government with the request that the child labour law be modified so that they could utilize child labour. The Secretary of State, in giving his assent to the bill, said: 'If we do not grant this legislation the fruit will spoil.' He failed to realize the effect that such legislation would have on the childhood of the country by permitting them to labour at an immature age. The Secretary of State lived up to the commercial instinct that is in man. If women had been privileged to vote that would never have happened.

A New Brunswick M. P.

"It is not the men's fault," observed the speaker. 'They have done wonders considering they have not had the help of the women. Civilization means the joining together of men and women, and that is one of the reasons why women must have a vote. There is not a single argument against it."

Miss Hughes told a story concerning a member of parliament from New Brunswick, with whom she attempted to discuss some of the larger questions of the day. Failing to get more than a 'yes, yes' in reply, Miss Hughes restricted her conversation to some of the smaller issues with about the same results. Finally Miss Hughes turned her attention to the Province of New Brunswick, in the hope of obtaining something of an informative value from the parliamentary member.

"You grow potatoes in New Brunswick?" enquired Miss Hughes.

"Yes," replied the man addressed.

"What size of a town do you live in?"

"About two hundred of a population," was the reply.

"Don't you find it hard to live in such a small place?"

"Well, a man can live any place if he has his woman with him," replied the man.

"And then they say women are not as intelligent as men," commented the speaker.

Reconstruction.

In conclusion, the speaker foreshadowed a huge reconstruction period following the war. For this reason Miss Hughes urged the adoption of women's suffrage as early as possible, in order that women may have an opportunity of participating in the solution of some of the after the war problems." Some people have said that the Government should not be embarrassed at the present time. "It does not concern the Government at Ottawa," assured Miss Hughes. "It is a question for the Provincial Government to deal with. The movement, instead of hindering the progress of the war, will help the war, and place women in a position where they will be of some service to the country when the war is over."

Ald. A. H. Stratton was of the opinion that a better municipal council would be possible if the women were given a chance to vote. He fully endorsed the movement and predicted great possibilities for women's suffrage.

Careless Shampooing Spoils The Hair

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

Rev. T. H. Mitchell To Remain At St. Andrew's For Duration Of The War, He Announced

At the Annual Congregational Meeting Last Night—Organ Committee Has Completed Its Work—Debt Wiped Out —Membership Shows Increase For Year.

GOOD FINANCIAL SHOWING

As a fillip to the enthusiasm aroused by the very gratifying reports presented at the annual congregational meeting of St. Andrew's Church, last night, the Pastor, Rev. T. H. Mitchell announced that he had decided to remain at his post for the duration of the war. This term of a more or less military acceptation is used for its appositeness to the expression with which Rev. Mr. Mitchell conveyed his decision. Owing to ill health during the Fall months he had informed the Board of Management that he would be forced to resign on the first of April. In the meantime, however, he had recuperated to such an extent that in view of the sacrifices the Empire and the people were being called upon to make he desired to withdraw the notice previously given, and was glad to be able to remain with St. Andrew's for the duration of the war. The warmth with which this statement was received by the large representation of the membership of the church must have afforded Rev. Mr. Mitchell the satisfaction of knowing that his own sacrifice was fully appreciated, as it was also a spontaneous expression of the confidence and esteem in which he is held by his congregation, and of the cordial and firm relationship that has already developed during the few months of his incumbency. He had intended retiring to the country in the Spring, but that necessity had passed, and the congregation last night left no doubt of the pleasure and inspiration the intelligence had brought them.

A Successful Year.

Rev. Mr. Mitchell presided at the business meeting, which was preceded by supper the ladies had served to more than one hundred members. All the reports from the various departments of the Church disclosed an active and successful year.

Mr. McFarlane commented that the efforts of the ladies were not acknowledged with due appreciation. Mr. Richard Lees remarked that he was unable to adequately express the recognition they deserved, and Mr. G. Walter Green added his congratulations.

Mrs. Lees read the secretarial report of the W. M. S., and Mrs. W. I. Christholm, Treasurer, stated that the receipts had been $350.32, with a balance of $1.57.

Line-ups For The Big Game To-night

Largest Crowd of the Season Will Be Out To-night to See Oshawa and Peterboro' Juniors Clash in Decisive Game For the District Leadership—ice is Lightning Fast.

Referee—Lawson Whitehead, Toronto.
Time of game—8:15 o'clock.

The fastest sheet of ice of the season is ready at Brock St. Rink to-night for the battle between Oshawa and Peterborough Juniors which will have a very important effect on the group standing. It is the first opportunity that Peterborough fans have had this year to see a game on fast ice, and with the two teams as evenly matched as the 11-10 game at Oshawa showed them to be, to-night's clash should be the feature event of the hockey season. That the fans are recognizing it as such is shown by the interest displayed throughout the city in the game which is creating more talk than any other contest of the year. All the surrounding towns are sending delegations for the game, and it looks as if Brock St. Rink will be crowded with one of the noisy old-time crowds. The Petes will be out for the season if they lose this battle, so that Captain Graham and his teammates may be counted upon to let out to the last link to beat Manager Bradley's clever youngsters.

With a lightning fast sheet of ice, two well balanced teams fighting it out to the last ounce and the district championship hinging on the result, there is every reason to expect the most interesting contest of the season.

Referee Whitehead will arrive in town on the 5:30 train, and as the Oshawa team will also be in early, the game will start sharp at 8:15 o'clock, the advertised hour.

LINDSAY COMMENT ON WEDNESDAY'S HOCKEY GAME

Following is some of the Lindsay comment on Wednesday night's game:

The Lindsay Post says: Lindsay received the worst beating of her hockey career last night when the 247th Batt. team of Peterborough ran up a total of 21 goals to the locals 8.

The big, fast Peterborough team simply swarmed all over the Midgets, outskating, outchecking and outshooting them at every stage of the game, but in spite of all that it was a tiresome game to watch, for the locals at time showed flashes of good individual hockey. The Soldiers might have run up even a larger score had it not been for the fact that Armstrong, their star centre man, had to be led off the ice minus three good teeth, which put him out of the party for good, early in the first period. Quinn, too, had to be carried off the ice after receiving a nasty smash during a mix-up in a corner, which turned the game into a five man a side affair. The Petes lived up to advance notices, and the team they presented was one of the best seen here in many moons. They should go a long way toward winning the cup. Adams and Halpin starred last night for Peterborough, while Evans was always on the job, particularly around the nets.

Adams, the Petes' right wing, looks good enough to catch a place on any team. He is a husky gent with plenty of speed and packs a healthy shot.

If Grover Halpin is the smallest man on the team he certainly is one of the most effective. His rushing last night was exceedingly spectacular.

Quinn had a lot of hard luck last night. First he lost a tooth which must have caused him considerable annoyance and then got a smash that put him out of business altogether.

The game Quinn was a returned soldier, having been on the firing line for over a year, and in all that time he wasn't used up as badly as he was last night.

The Warder says:

Peterborough	21
Lindsay	8

What a game! What a score! It was the return game and the score had reached the twenties when Referee Dr. Jerry Laflamme, of the famous St. Michael's seven, skated over to the penalty box and remarked: "How much longer is this going to last?"

How much longer? That was the question many fans were asking.

The attendance was a little larger than in the former game and for the initial two periods the crowd rather enjoyed the game. However, the longer it developed, the greater the agony.

In Fast Company.

The Midgets were soundly trounced and with ease, by one of the best teams local railbirds have ever witnessed travel at the Lindsay street rink. Compared to the visiting soldiers, the locals were as town leaguers. They were in fast company, so fast that the Midgets appeared to be desperately slow. Time and time again the visitors swept down the ice with Hawaiian grace and ease, the locals appearing to be in a daze. Peterborough had what the Midgets lacked—condition, experience, weight and speed. By the end of the first period the Midgets were just about fagged, and were outclassed holus-bolus.

The porridge eaters were strong in every department and should go up a long way in the intermediate race. Armstrong the star centre man, retired early in the game with a damaged jaw, and Flanagan went from rover to centre. "Redtop" Halpin, a Peterborough youth, who last year played with Sarnia, was the best man on the ice. Every time he broke away from left defence the fans automatically remarked, "there he goes again—another goal for Peterborough." He was a bird, fast and effective. Adams, another red-top, is a chunky player, fast and dangerous, with a lightning get-away style. Evans was also good. Flanagan is not classy, although a dangerous man. Quinn, a returned soldier, remained on the defensive all evening. Legros in goal was as cool as an icicle, and all to the good. It was like shooting up a blind alley to get one past him, and the Midgets gave him a chance to distinguish himself.

TWO CLOSE BATTLES IN CHURCH LEAGUE

The Church Hockey League was opened last night with two hard fought battles which were exciting from start to finish. George Street beat the Knox team in the first game by 6 goals to 4 and the Trinity—St. Andrew's team winning from Mark Street by 5 to 4. In both cases the winners had to come from behind to win out.

The George Street—Knox class was a battle from the start with both teams inclined to rough it and Referee, Walter Jackson had his hands full. The score was 2-2 at the end of the first period and in the second session Knox drew ahead by scoring two goals while the Methodists only succeeded in finding the nets once. The Knox team held their slender lead until the last few minutes when the Methodists came through with three goals in a row and won handily. They earned the decision by their work throughout, neither team had any combination.

The second clash was equally as close and was in doubt until the finish. The Trinity—St. Andrew's team were behind at the beginning of the third period but finished strong and won out 5 to 4. It was anybody's game. Mark Street showed the best combination of the night and should have won, throwing away their chances by loose work around the nets.

Market Opinions of New York Houses.

Jenks, Gwynne & Co.—Believe the tendency to stock values is upward. Look to prices to fluctuate within moderate trading limits on the way up, however, and consequently favour purchases on the dips for quick turns for the present.

Post & Flagg.— After their severe setback in December, the public are apt to be weary, and it can hardly be expected that they will follow up these advances with the old-time enthusiasm. Nevertheless, for the moment the market points upward.

E. & C. Randolph.—The market acts better than it has for three months. There is quiet, sustained strength in every department. It is beginning to reflect the expectation of continued large industrial earnings due to a continuation of the war. I expect the advance to continue.—Evans.

A WONDERFUL YEAR!

To the Policy-holding Owners of The Prudential Insurance Company of America:

During 1916 your Company issued OVER FIVE HUNDRED AND NINETY-ONE AND ONE-HALF MILLION DOLLARS of paid-for life insurance at the lowest expense-rate in your Company's history. This is the largest year's business ever paid for by the Prudential. The gain in insurance in force was $283,000,000.

Although your Company is but forty-one years old, you are now the holders of 15,000,000 policies, representing a total insurance in force of OVER THREE BILLION DOLLARS.

Since your Company was organized it has paid to its policyholders the great sum of $428,000,000, including more than $28,750,000 not called for in any way by the policy contracts. The 1916 payments to policyholders were over $47,278,000.

This wonderful growth and these remarkable figures reflect anew the confidence the insuring public has in The Prudential, and are a reindorsement of its aims, its achievements and its service.

VARIOUS RAIDERS LIKELY OPERATING

Original Raider Fitted Out Captives as Additional Raiders —"Movies" Taken as Foe Raider Sank the Ships—Log of Radnorshire Tells of Operations in South Atlantic —Pigmy Submarines Carried by the German Raider.

HOW THE RAIDER OPERATED

(By Chas. B. Stewart, Copyright, 1917, By United Press.)

BUENOS AIRES, January 20.—Pigmy submarines, 78 feet in length, are carried by the German raider which has wrought such damage to Allied shipping in Atlantic waters.

The captain of the captured British steamer Netherby Hall, among those landed at Pernambuco from the German prize ship Hudson Maru, was authority for this statement to-day: "There are three submarines carried by the raider," he said in an interview at Pernambuco. "They are capable of operation over a small radius and are equipped with torpedoes, dynamite and munitions. Such additional details as this indicating the type of German thoroughness with which the raider was prepared and equipped, led shipping circles to predict a long chase by the Allied warships before the sea scourge is cornered. Certainly she had not been definitely located to-day, according to despatches at South American ports. Wireless despatches received to-day said that the auxiliary British cruisers Macedonia and Orama had arrived off Pernambuco.

RAIDERS TEAMED TOGETHER.

BUENOS AIRES, January 20.—Not only the raider now believed to be the Moewe, but two or more German commerce destroyers are still ploughing the sea somewhere around South America, and by this time have probably taken further toll of allied shipping. A despatch from Rio de Janeiro stated that survivors from the Japanese steamer Hudson Maru had declared the British merchantman St. Theodore, first of the captures made by the German raider, had been armed and outfitted. The St. Theodore was used as a consort. That she and the German raider teamed together in marauding operations, was also confirmed in the log of the captain of the British steamer Radnorshire, which mentioned being pursued and then captured by "two strangers." The same log mentioned the German commander of the raider as explaining his instructions were to spare vessels carrying large cargoes. This was taken here to mean he was instructed to take his pick of big vessels and use them as auxiliary raiders, if necessary.

The British steamer Ortega of 8,000 tons, and known as a very speedy vessel, has not yet been accounted for in any of the stories told by survivors. It may be that she has also been pressed into service as a raider on account of her special fitness for such work in speed, size, and seaworthiness. It is known she was among the number overhauled and captured by the raider.

A number of South American sailings were indefinitely postponed. The French steamer Sequana, which sailed yesterday from Rio de Janeiro to Bordeaux, dropped her anchor at Cobras Isle, and stopped, awaiting further orders. Despatches from Santiago, Chili, on the Pacific Ocean side of South America, said a number of sailings of allied merchantmen there had been cancelled or delayed.

The Brazilian press united in denunciation of the German raiding operations in waters adjacent to South America. They pointed out that such depredations were seriously interfering with South American Trade, and demanded immediate internment of the Japanese steamer Hudson Maru, which arrived at Pernambuco under the German flag and a German crew, as one of the raider's prizes.

SIX MORE VICTIMS.

A Rio report says the number of the raider's victims has been increased by six.

This unconfirmed report did not list the ships over whose fate there was anxiety, and it may be that this list is merely a recapitulation of the number of allied vessels which recently left South American ports or were due to arrive and about which there has been na information for some time.

HOW RAIDER OPERATED.

The most graphic story of the raider's method of destruction was told in the log of the captain of the British steamer Radnorshire, brought ashore with the survivors aboard the Hudson Maru at Pernambuco.

"At 10:30 on the night of January 7, following our departure from Pernambuco, we sighted a vessel ahead," the log related. "At that time we were travelling without lights, having received warning to watch out for possible raiders, and as soon as we sighted the stranger we changed our course. Then we saw two strangers, and a second time shifted our course, hoping to slip away unseen in the darkness. But the two vessels had apparently sighted us, despite our lack of lights, and they gave proof of this by immediately putting on full speed and bearing down in our direction.

"I crammed my boilers and did my best to hurry away, but with our ten knots maximum speed it was apparent from the way the two strangers overhauled us that it was useless to try to elude them. Both apparently were capable of at least 16 knots. Pretty soon they were close by. When they were almost alongside I gave the alarm and everybody aboard donned lifebelts. We were fairly certain then that the raider (or raiders) we had been warned about was after us.

MOVIE MAN TOOK PICTURES.

"After lying to there came aboard us very shortly six German officers and twenty men. They took charge of my vessel, seized the cargo of coffee which we carried and took off a considerable amount of food. Then they gave us time in which to gather together a few personal effects before putting us into boats. In the meantime the Germans had planted two explosive bombs on each side of my ship. When we were well off, including the Germans, these were exploded. The vessel sank at 2:45 a.m. on January 9.

"A prisoner aboard one of our captors, I saw two other vessels sunk on January 9 and one on January 19, all three being destroyed in exactly the same fashion. Wherever the sinking took place during daylight hour, a German cinema man aboard the raider calmly and methodically cranked away, taking pictures of the sinking boat.

"I was told by the captain of the two vessels that he had orders to spare all passengers and all vessels carrying in big cargoes.

"We were kept in the port bow compartment of the vessel to which we were transferred. The quarters were most without air, and for five days we were compelled to live and sleep in this cramped, stuffy fashion, sleeping with Hindoos and roughnecks. Then we met the Japanese steamer Hudson Maru and all on our ship were transferred to that vessel except coolies.

The Hudson Maru was despatched to Pernambuco with barely enough water and sea biscuits to complete the voyage."

The preceding sections of the log had detailed how the Radnorshire left Bahia on January 5, and said the spot at which she sighted the raiders was one hundred miles east of Pernambuco.

The captain of the Radnorshire to-day amplified his log with these details:

"We sighted the raiders when 100 miles east of Pernambuco, and having in mind the warnings to watch out for commerce destroyers, immediately sent out a wireless call for help, stating our position and the fact that we were pursued. When one of the raiders had overhauled us and was a mile distant, she fired a shot across our bows. We lay to at once. The vessel came closer to us and finally sent over two boatloads of German officers and sailors. They ordered us to leave without our baggage. Eight minutes later the Radnorshire was blown up.

"The German commander particularly questioned me as to the whereabouts of the British steamer Araguaya." CHARLES P. STEWART.

$25.00 FOR A LETTER

CAN YOU WRITE ONE?

Thirteen Prizes to Be Awarded in a Letter Writing Competition

Some years ago the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., of Brockville, Ont., offered a series of prizes to residents of Ontario for the best letters describing cures wrought by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Hundreds of letters were submitted in this competition, and yet there must have been thousands of other users of the pills who did not avail themselves of the opportunity to win a prize. To all these another letter writing competition is offered. Thousands of cures through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have never been reported. These will furnish the material for the letter to be written in this contest. There is no demand upon the imagination; every letter must deal with facts and facts only.

THE PRIZES

The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., of Brockville, Ont., will award a prize of $25.00 for the best letter received on or before the 17th day of February, 1917, from residents of Ontario, on the subject: "Why I Recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills." A prize of $10.00 will be awarded for the second best letter received; a prize of $5.00 for the third best letter, and ten prizes of $2.00 each for the next best ten letters.

THE CONDITIONS:

The cure or benefit from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills described in the letter may be in the writer's own case or one that has come under his or her personal observation.

More than one cure may be described in the letter, but every statement must be literally and absolutely true.

The letter should be not longer than is necessary to relate the benefit obtained from the remedy in the case described.

Every letter must be signed by the full name and correct address of the person sending it. If it describes the cure of some person other than the writer of the letter, it must also be signed by the person whose cure is described as a guarantee of the truth of the statement made.

The writer of each letter must state the name and the date of the paper in which he or she saw this announcement:

Fine writing will not win the prize unless you have a good case to describe. The strength of the recommendation and not the style of the letter will be the basis of the award.

It is understood that the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. shall have the right to publish any letters entered in this contest if they desire to do so whether it wins a prize or not.

The contest will close on February 17th, 1917, and the prizes will be awarded as soon as possible thereafter. Do not delay. If you know of a cure write your letter Now. Observe the above conditions carefully or your letter may be thrown out.

Address all letters as follows:

FORMIDABLE EFFORTS TO CAPTURE WORLD TRADE

Preparations Being Made For the Coming Business Conflict —Government Has Advanced Most of the Capital to Fight German Manufacturers—$10,000,000 Dye Plant

CITY AND STATE AID

CHICAGO, January 20.—James Keeley, editor of The Herald, writing of the business conditions in Europe, says:—

"Before I left Europe I commissioned a trade expert to furnish me with data regarding English, French, and German activities in preparation for the coming business conflict. To-day I present some facts of recent development in Great Britain, and in the next few weeks I expect to tell more of the plans of Governments, municipalities, financiers, manufacturers, and business men to capture the world's trade.

"The most significant recent development is that of city co-operation in making and marketing products for which their towns are famous. All the great English centres of industry are working on what they call 'municipal encouragement of industry.' This civic aid, the exact form of which is not yet determined, is to be entirely apart from any rendered by the national Government. Sheffield, the home of cutlery, certain steel products and machinery, is planning to deal with aid to local industries. Manchester and Birmingham are following in Sheffield's footsteps, and the scheme is spreading all over the United Kingdom.

"This municipal assistance, in conjunction with Governmental aid, will make the British manufacturer a much more formidable opponent than of old, especially when it is understood that the movement to regain British supremacy in trade is not a one-class movement. Labour and capital are organizing for work together, and that means efficiency methods will be introduced with the consent of the workers. And that means increased product.

"In the Reconstruction Commission there is a Sub-Committee on the Redemption of Pledges Made to Labour in connection with the suspension of all union rules for the war industries. The existence of another sub-committee on the relation between capital and labour has not been announced, but may be taken for granted.

"The Minister of Labour, John Hodge, M.P., is pledged to the idea of a commercial war on Germany after the war. In an article prepared before he was appointed, when he was sitting in the House of Commons for a labour constituency, he writes:

> The problem of how best to combat Germany industrially after the war is of supreme importance, and it would be well that trade union leaders should give the matter the most earnest and careful attention. A policy of "wait and see what is going to turn up" savors of madness. Old customs and prejudices must be dropped by both sides if victory in the industrial field is to be attained.

"For the first time in the history of England a meeting was held between representatives of capital and labour at the instance of both, and without the invitation or interference of politicians or Government. This took place early in December between employers and trade union men of virtually all the important industries of Great Britain.

"A committee of the leaders of the iron, steel, shipbuilding, and engineering and allied trades, with a nucleus of 200 firms, has been appointed to

OUR SERIAL STORY

"DESTINY"

By CHARLES NEVILLE BUCK

"You needn't be. You are young. You have genius. We can win out yet—and win out big—and win out together."

His lips twisted in a pallid smile of self-derision.

"At all events for once I know myself. If I ever become a man, God knows I'll come to you. But I have not done it yet. I mustn't know where you are. I'm strong enough—just now, but in some dark, weak moment I'll come hurrying to you, if I can find you—before I've proved myself."

"I'm going out—on the road—this afternoon," she spoke slowly. "I'm going to wait, and for the first time, I'm really hoping."

In the weeks that followed Paul made a resolute attempt to keep his promise. For a while he played the piano in a restaurant, but his frail constitution had been shattered by these late months and sickness intervened. Mary, too, with her thoughts painfully bent upon the rapid shrinkage of the little bank account, endlessly sought employment. Because she was beautiful, and because even through these dark and hopeless days she had brought with her a regal poise of her lovely head, everyone to whom she applied gave audience—and little else.

In appraising her business assets, she itemized her knowledge of several languages, her excellent education and her willingness to work. She was countered by the reminders that she did not know stenography, could not use a typewriter and had no prior experience. Many business men listened and took her address, but as the days wore on she discovered that the only ones who ever referred again to these memoranda were such as remembered her beauty and insisted on discussing the possibilities in cafes over a supper party for two.

One item of regularity Mary found time for, between her exhausting journeys of tracking down advertisements—she went often to the cemetery where Jefferson Edwardes slept, and her single extravagance was the purchase of a few inexpensive flowers to carry with her.

On one of these occasions she happened upon a burial in a lot near the one she had visited. The deceased had been a person of sufficient importance to warrant newspaper attention, and Mary in passing the spot from which the carriages were passing away, halted reverently. As she went on again someone overtook her and touched her arm. Turning her head she recognized Smitherton. He had been the most courteous and the most considerate of the newspaper men with whom her family's affairs had compelled her to have repeated meetings.

The reporter looked her straightforwardly in the eyes and inquired bluntly, "You were in the office yesterday, looking for employment, were you not?"

"Yes;" she said. "They offered me a position—if I would write a 'heart-interest' story of my life—signing it, and concealing nothing."

The young man nodded. "I know, and I saw your eyes as you refused. I am not talking as a reporter now, but as a human being. You won't make any mistake by trusting me, Miss Burton. Is it so bad as all that with you? Hunting a job?"

The girl had by this time attained a certain reliance in her own abilities of human appraisement. She believed what young Smitherton said and she answered with equal frankness.

"It is so bad that we face sheer starvation, that's all."

After a keen glance at her he observed quietly: "At this moment you are not overfed."

"N—no." A faint amusement lighted her pupils as she answered, "I'm not—well, exactly gorged."

"Now, I want to talk to you, and you needn't hesitate about telling me things." There was a frank boyishness about this young man, and his manner reminded her of Edwardes. She thought that his eyes had something of that same straight fearlessness and honesty. "You are going with me from here to a little restaurant I know, near by, and you are going to hear me out. I know that you are going through sheer hell, and I know a game scrapper when I meet one, whether it be a man or woman. This business teaches a fellow several things."

In the end she went.

CHAPTER XXXI.

An hour later she felt as if she had known Smitherton for a long while, and could rely upon him. Then he lighted a cigar, and said slowly: "I have taken all this time and said nothing useful. I did it deliberately—because what comes next will sound so cruel that I wouldn't say it if the reason wasn't sufficient. I'm going to hurt you, but only as the dentist or surgeon might hurt you. Shall I go on?"

She looked at him across the table, and since cowardice had no place in her composition braced herself and nodded her acquiescence.

"You don't get much help from your brother. It's not his fault, perhaps, but it's true. You get none at all from your father. Your mother is in a condition of mental derangement. It up to you. You've walked your feet sore seeking honest employment—and you have met with failure and affront. Now, I am coming to it, and I'm going to put it plain. In this town of New York there is just one opening for you. One thing will bring you handsome returns: nurses for your mother—comfort for your father—but it will be an ordeal. You must capitalize your beauty and the publicity that attaches to your name."

Mary Burton's lovely face grew paler, and fearing interruption, the man rushed on. "I don't mean in the way the Sunday editor suggested. I mean the stage. I take out my revenue in Park row with some press-agent work, and I happen to know what I am talking about. Mary Burton is one of the most advertised names in the city. To a manager it would be worth whatever it cost."

"But"—her voice faltered—"but, I can't act. I've been in amateur things, of course, but—"

"You don't have to know how to act." His voice rose ironically. "Few stars do—besides, I'm talking about vaudeville. The highest priced vaudeville head liner in America boasts that she can neither act, sing nor dance."

He paused for a moment, then as she said nothing, proceeded gravely. "Think that over, Miss Burton. New York pays for names and what New York pays for the rest of the country accepts—at more than face value. I can see to it that your contract is carefully drawn—and you needn't fear the usual unpleasant features of visiting managers. They will come to you. It's not what you prefer—but if other things fail telephone me."

It was a small restaurant, very plain but neat and at this hour of the late afternoon the man from Park row and the woman who had once been the toast of capitals from the Irish Sea to Suez sat across one of its small tables undisturbed by other patrons. Only a waiter stood across the room and a cat rubbed against his ankles.

In her mourning she made a wonderfully appealing picture, as she gazed down at her plate, even though her lowered lashes half-masked the mismated beauty of her eyes. Suffering had laid a veil of transparent pallor over the brilliant vividness of her coloring—a coloring that her lover had once likened to the gorgeousness of the Mosque of Omar. Yet, by this her beauty was rather enhanced than lessened as though Nature, the master-painter, had retouched a picture already wondrous, softening its color with a tone more spiritual. But face and figure had lost something of roundness and the hand that lay on the table was slenderer of finger and wrist, but Mary Burton had not been robbed of her beauty, and when she spoke, very low and hesitantly, one realised that out of her voice no single golden note was missing. She might still be truthfully advertised as one of the world's rare beauties.

"I know," she said softly, "that you make that suggestion in true kindness—and I know how great my need is. If I am to save my mother and father from starvation, I must do something, and yet—" She paused, and shuddered. "Maybe it is all foolish and over-fastidious, but your suggestion sets every nerve in me on edge. It's not very different after all from your Sunday editor's suggestion—except in the spirit of its making."

"Still, there is a difference?" he assured her. "The footlights are, between and they give a sense of separation and protection. Was Herron—the Sunday man—particularly obnoxious? He's not human, you know—he's just an efficient machine."

The fingers of the hand that lay on the table trembled a little and Mary's eyes as they met his were clouded with distress.

"I hadn't supposed such things could be," she said. "He was very impersonal about it all—and he grew enthusiastic as he outlined what he wanted." Her words came slowly in a detached voice, though as she spoke her delicate features responded to the shiver of disgust that ran through her shoulders and at times her lips quivered. "He wanted me to write it all—telling about every man abroad, especially with a title, who had ever been nice to me. He wanted pictures of me; all sorts of pictures, in evening gowns, in polo togs—in bathing-suits. He wanted a chapter on how much my clothes used to cost—all my clothes. He said the woman would 'eat that up.'" She stopepd, and a wan smile crept into her eyes as she added, "I am using his words, Mr. Smitherton. But I could stand that. I sat through it. I couldn't afford to lose any chance if it was a chance I might decently take. But it was when he wanted his picture, too, Jefferson's—"

She had to stop there for a moment and a mist came to her eyes which she resolutely kept from overflowing in actual tears as she went on. "It was when he wanted me to write down all his words and publish his letters that I realized I couldn't fight even starvation that way."

"The brute!" muttered Smitherton—"The unspeakable beast!"

"To do him justice," admitted the girl generously, "I think he forgot, in visualising those pages which the women would 'eat up,' that it was actually me he was talking to—it was just outlining work to a reporter. He said something about 'sob-stuff,' too. To me, Mr. Smitherton, he spoke of all these terrible, hideous things, that I lie awake remembering, as 'sob-stuff'—and I knew that the worst of them were times that made sobs impossible—when even tears would not come."

"I had no idea it had been that bad." Smitherton's sympathy was genuine and spontaneous.

"It was worse even," she went on—"He spoke of that—that afternoon when I read the ticker tape—and knew what had happened. He said that, properly colored, that would make a—great scene. He said it had drama." Her voice choked, then she added: "So you see your suggestion will be a hard one for me to take. I should feel like—like Godiva riding through the streets. And yet for her own people Judith went to the tent of Holofernes. That wasn't easy, either."

They rose from the table and went out, and the girl held out her hand. "Please don't think that I'm unappreciative," she pleaded. "I know how kind you have been—and I don't know how much longer I can hold out. You said I could trust you, and now I know it, too. If—" her voice broke but her chin came up—"if I am driven to it, I'll let you know—and be very grateful."

"Don't let any one else talk to you" he cautioned. "Remember that this is the capital of sharks. Now I'm going to call a taxi, and take you home."

But she shook her head. "It's good of you," she said and her cheeks flushed. "But I'd rather you didn't. I'm going by the people's chariot—the subway." She was not yet quite able to conquer the old pride that remained from the old life. She shrank from showing him the meanness of her quarters; she who had reigned, and been toasted and lived in the exclusive of the favoured few, and who now faced starvation. So he parted from her at the nearest kiosk of the underground.

(To be continued.)

By DR. DAVID H. REEDER

Facts Concerning Epilepsy: (By Dr. Wm. Held, 3rd installment.)

We are told that epilepsy was due to injury of the head, causing pressure upon the brain and releasing the convulsions. This form of epilepsy is known as Jacksonian epilepsy. The adherents to this theory operated on such epileptics in whose history previous to the first attack, injury to the head appeared. The operation consists in the cutting out of a round section of bone of the skull, overlying the area over which the pressure is supposed to be.

Lifting of this section of bone is intended to relieve the pressure, thus obviating the reputed cause. But, alas, it was found that the attacks continued shortly after the operation with either the same or increased severity and the unfortunate patient was then advised to accept treatment for the epileptic habit. It was thus admitted, that there is still something else, some other factor in the patient's system independent of the localised pressure, capable to cause epileptic seizures. The sad fact, is that trephining, as this operation is called for epilepsy, has proven a complete failure, not to be mitigated by any ever so learned discussion. Let us turn the searchlight of logic upon the features of Jacksonian epilepsy. While the mentioned pressure is pointed out as the cause and persists all the time yet the attacks do not persist, that is they occur in the Jacksonian epileptic with as much irregularity as is the case in other types of epilepsy, sometimes daily, then again not for weeks or a month. And again, after removal of the so-called cause (the pressure), the attacks do not abate. If the pressure was the cause, then the results, the attacks would be a constant symptom as long as the cause persists, just as paralysis persists a long a the corresponding injury of the brain is maintained. This is, however, as we have seen, not the case with the epileptic. Others have noticed the frequency of intestinal disturbances and constipation in many epileptics. With unexplainable naivety they advocated and performed abdominal operations in epileptics for the relief of constipation by "straightening" out of intestinal kinks, which were said to impede the elimination of bowel contents. It is deplorable that the supporters of this form of treatment have not ceased to perform the abdominable operation; deploratble because in spite of the abundant number of epileptics who have been induced to subject themselves to this dangerous operation, there has not been a single case of epilepsy cured. The promise which lured these patients to the operating table have proven false in every case. In the light of latest knowledge concerning the causes of epilepsy, such operations have interferred with the recovery of the patient; because the inflicted surgery has added shock to the already disturbed system, shock which is a very potent cause in the production and maintainance of the epileptic metabolism, as we shall see later. Not one of the advocates of the abdominal operation for epilepsy will consent to submit case records for investigation of all the useless, want on butchery which was ever imposed upon epileptics, the abdominal operation is the most flagrant violation of reason, science and right. Should any of the surgeons who in the past have practised this procedure, desire to take me to task for my statement, I will welcome the opportunity to answer any challenge by pointing to the large number of sadly disappointed epileptics who have either remained as bad as they were before the operation or have become worse and to the many who by virtue of the operation have been permanently deprived of a chance to recover.

It would require a good deal of space to enumerate all the various conditions which were said to be the cause of epilepsy, the various views and theories expressed at one time or another. Briefly stated the most frequently ascribed causes (all of which are erroneous) are alcoholism, syphilis, heredity, presence of reflex irritation, scars, intestinal and gastric disorders, injuries, eyestrain and even a germ. One or more so-called causes may be elements or coincidents in a given case, but the actual specific cause of epilepsy, can surely be only that particular element which always and under exclusion of all other reputed causative conditions produces the disease tuberculosis. In this disease, the reduction of the patients resistance, the exposure to inclement weather, the living in unhygienic quarters and many other features are important and constitute elements capable of arousing a latent tuberculosis, but none of these elements which are contributory to the undermining of the patient's health, is the cause of the disease, the cause always being the germ of tuberculosis. The mentioned predisposing causes would not, however, produce the specific disease known as tuberculosis were it not for the presence of the germ of tuberculosis, which thrives and multiplies so rapidly under such conditions that they literally consume the patient, hence the term consumption.

In the same manner an epileptic may be shown to have emerged from a very tainted generation; he may have been enveloped in the grasp of alcoholism or nerve disorder or may have suffered head or other injuries but all such and other conditions fail to comply with the law of specificity. What then is the specific cause of epilepsy and how can it be proven to be the specific cause.

The next installment of Dr. Held's article will appear next week. In order to prove the correctness of his work he offers to try free of expense 100 people for the Home Health Club.

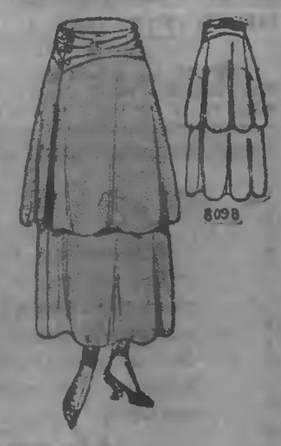
EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S TUNIC SKIRT.

By Anabel Worthington.



8098

Separate skirts for the winter season show a semi-fulness with individuality in the belt and the adjustment of a tunic or arrangement of pleats as fancy may direct. In the model illustrated, in addition to the deep tunic, there is an applied girdle of yoke depth and button trimmed, to make the wearer look and feel modishly dressed.

The skirt is cut in two gores, mounted on a raised waistline and has ample fulness without noticeable flare. This is an extremely graceful design for developing in serge, broadcloth, satin, duvetyn or similar weave. It is a desirable style for uniting two materials also and an economical pattern for remodelling last year's garment, using the best part for the foundation and some new material for the tunic, or one may do just the opposite.

If you have only just so much for a skirt, this is your opportunity to join smart fashion and limited income. An amateur will find the making of the garment "plain sailing" with the illustrated pattern before her.

The skirt pattern, No. 8098, cuts in sizes 24 to 30 waist. To make in size 24 requires 4¾ yards of 36 inch material, with girdle of self or other material.

To obtain the pattern, send 10 cents to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

INFLUENCE OF FAR COUNTRIES IN OUR MODERN DRESS

China, Japan, Spain and Russia Each Furnish Inspiration

Accessories Seen in the Stores

New York, January 15.

Cosmopolitan New York grows more cosmopolitan daily. Even as her doors are open to those from the most distant parts of the world, so are the minds of her fashion designers open to receive ideas from the four corners of the earth. Whatever may be turned to good account is quickly utilised and brought before the public for the world of fashionable women to pass on.

The very latest influence in dress has come from the Far East. Japanese and Chinese embroideries and like effects have come in for recognition and have taken quite an important position in the world of fashion.

Showing the Oriental Influence.

Many of the windows of the best shops are now displaying the real Japanese and Chinese garments with their rich silks and gorgeous colorings. Most of us, however, are content to admire these beautiful costumes in the windows. No one has yet appeared on Fifth Avenue arrayed in the true costume from the land of the cherry-blossom. But many have been seen in costumes showing the Oriental influence, such as the sketch above illustrates.

Another country from which has come inspiration for some of the present styles is Spain. The red and black combinations worn by the dark-eyed senoritas of that country is frequently used with charming effect, especially in semi-evening gowns. From Spain also have come the beautiful fine lace scarfs or mantillas which are now fashionable, and the large combs for the hair which are used with the coiffure that is distinctly Spanish.

It is well known that from Russia also we have received a great many contributions to the styles, not only in the line of blouses and dresses but in the Russian turbans raised high in front. Some of the turbans are worn with chin-straps or "brides," to which a veil is often attached.

ACCESSORIES OF DRESS.

All the dainty feminine accessories in every form are displayed to the greatest advantage in the stores. Bags of all descriptions there are, for these are considered a very necessary addition to the wardrobe in these days. Bags of velvet suede ribbon and beads are seen in such a variety of colors and shapes that no one can possibly have any difficulty in selecting those that will harmonize with her costumes. Of black velvet with a band of Paisley placed at the bottom or in the centre, are some very attractive round bags finished with long silk tassels. Others show Chinese embroideries in gold and colors. The bead embroidered bags of silk and velvet are still popular. Silver mesh bags are still worn.

Beaded girdles, ostrich fans which are used for winter balls and operas and which come in all colors to match the gowns with which they are used, and dainty neckwear are only a few of the tempting accessories on display.

Economy

Many women think they are saving money by buying cheap tea, forgetting that it is not the cost per pound but the cost per cup that determines a tea's economy.

You may pay 5 or 10 cents more per pound for Red Rose Tea than for common tea. But because Red Rose Tea is a blend of Indian-Assam teas with Ceylons, consisting of the choice tender shoots and buds—the parts of the tea plant that yield the largest amount of liquor and the finest flavor—one-third less is required in the pot to make the same number of cups.

The cost per cup between Red Rose Tea and common tea is then practically the same. But the flavor—what a difference!

And this distinctive and delightful flavor and rich strength is protected by the Red Rose sealed package. No air, odors or dust can get in to injure Red Rose Tea's splendid quality and economy.

WOUNLD NOT INTERFERE.

"Aren't the king and the Kaiser cousins?" asked Pat. "Yes," said the recruiting sergeant. "Well," said Pat, "Begorra, I once interfered in a family squabble, and I'm not going to do so again."

GUARD AGAINST PNEUMONIA.

To guard against pneumonia, which is prevalent at this season of the year, keep yourself in the best physical condition, get all the fresh air that you can, and keep your homes well ventilated. If you become over heated at your work, take ample time to cool off gradually before going out in severe weather. Be very careful of contracting any chills at this time of the year.

THE MIRACLE MAN

Who Achieved His Greatest Marvel in the Perfect Re-Creation of Music

THE NEW EDISON is not a "talking machine." It does what no talking machine can do; what no talking machine manufacturer would dare attempt to do.

The New Edison has been compared in public, before 300,000 music lovers, with such great artists as Marie Rappold, Anna Case, Julia Heinrich, Alice Verlet, Charlotte Maconda, Arthur Middleton and Thomas Chalmers, (as well as a dozen others). Thus it was proven, beyond all question, that the living voices of these great artists cannot be detected from the New Edison's Re-Creation of them. Remember that the artists stood beside the New Edison and sang in direct comparison with it, and that the audiences could not distinguish the artists' voices from the New Edison's Re-Creation of those same voices.

The NEW EDISON

accomplishes Mr. Edison's ambition to re-create all forms of music with such literal perfection that the original cannot be told from the Re-Creation.

COME TO OUR STORE THIS WEEK

We want you to hear the re-created voices of Zenatello and Rappold, and the skillful bowing of Spalding and Flesch.

FORMIDABLE EFFORTS TO CAPTURE WORLD TRADE

consider after-war conditions. The first report of this committee declares that increased production is the key to prosperity after the war, and this can be achieved only if the workers are guaranteed against any loss through greater output.

"The British Government, looking to the commercial problems of peace time, has established a department of scientific and industrial research under the joint control of the Lord President of the Council (Lord Curzon) and of the Board of Trade. A large sum of money has been placed at the disposal of this department 'to be used as a fund for the conduct of research for the benefit of the national industries on a co-operative basis.' The universities are aiding in this direction and are doing research work for industry on their own behalf.

FOSTERING THE DYE INDUSTRY.

"The Government has fostered the development of certain industries chiefly for war, but also, as in the case of dyes, for general needs. A new department of coaltar industry and dyestuff research has been opened at Manchester. The Government took up the question of dyes in August, 1914. At that time there was one Germany company in England making over half of the total used i Great Britain. This company was placed under a controller, who eventually closed down the works.

"After many schemes failed a national company was formed, and the Government agreed to take on a liability of $5 for every share sold up to $5,000,000 and $5 for every four shares sold beyond that, to a total liability of $7,500,000. The stock sold very slowly and at various times the whole project was almost abandoned because the Government would not guarantee protection for the industry after the war. Finally the plan was modified, protection was promised, and British Dyes, Ltd., was established. By the end of the first year the Government had been called on to meet the greater part of its liability.

"At the same time the Government appropriated $500,000 for research work in the new company and made a loan of $1,000,000 to the largest dye works established (Read, Holliday & Sons) on condition that British Dyes, Ltd., take it over. This was done. The maximum investment of the Government is, therefore, about $10,000,000. The amount of dyes used in Great Britain yearly is in excess of $10,000,000.

"The Government has taken up the question of education and postgraduate schools, industrial schools, and schools for research in direct connection with industries that are certain to be established and supported by the Government in the interests of trade and commerce.

"The British Government is proceeding methodically to examine the conditions surrounding various industries in which foreign competition has injured English trade. A sub-committee of the Board of Trade has investigated twelve industries, including paper, printing, jewellery, cutlery, leather, glass, china, and earthenware and electrical apparatus, with respect to measures for securing the position after the war' of these branches.

INDUSTRIAL REFORMS SUGGESTED.

"It recommends, among other things:—

"1—That the Government should institute industrial research and training on a large scale.

"2—That German and Austrian goods should be distinctly marked with the name of the country of origin, and that all other goods made out of the Empire should be labeled 'foreign made' or 'not British.'

"3—Increased assistance to industry by joint stock banks to be urged by the Government, throwing over the old cautionary spirit of business loans.

"4—Establishment of a Ministry of Commerce.

"5—Reform of the consular system; it is to be 'all British.'

"6—Protection of infant industries when they are of 'vital importance to the national safety or are essential to other industries,' (i. e., key industries,) also general protection for increased revenue to reduce direct taxation.

"General organizations of industries are demanding protection. One group, representing 700 manufacturers with 2,000,000 employees has three principles:

"Protection for all manufactures, preferential tariffs for the British Empire, anti-dumping legislation."

Cattle Market.

The market opened this week with a good supply of cattle offering. The demand was good, and prices for anything with quality were slightly higher than the week before, the advance being steadily maintained throughout the week. For the latter markets a few extra quality loads were offering, but the bulk of the receipts were of a decidedly low average in quality, by far too many half-fat cattle coming to market, which would have brought good returns to feeders had the cattle been kept in the stables a few weeks longer for better finishing. As it was prices began to ease off on the medium and common butcher cattle until on the week end market there was a clear decline of 40c. to 50c. from the week's opening prices.

There was a good steady demand for butcher cows and bulls, and prices held fairly steady, but weakening slightly on the closing market. Canners and cutters showed little change with a good demand all through the week.

There was a fair enquiry for good, breedy stockers and feeders.

Good milch cows and forward springers were in fair demand.

Choice veal calves were in active demand at steadily advancing prices.

Lambs reached new high records, several lots of choice black-faced selling up to $15. Sheep were firm.

Hogs again passed all former records, selling up to $14 fed and watered, and $14.25 weighed off cars.

Cattle Receipts.

Union Stock Yards —Total receipts for the week, 519 cars, with 7,213 cattle, 721 calves, 10,067 hogs, 1,812 sheep and lambs, and 633 horses.

City Cattle Market —91 cars, with 1,331 cattle, 409 sheep and lambs, 873 hogs and 137 calves.

Doctor Tells How To Strengthen Eyesight 50 Per Cent. In One Week's Time In Many Instances

A FREE PRESCRIPTION YOU CAN HAVE FILLED AND USED AT HOME.

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eyestrain or other eye weaknesses? If so you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through a principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind and could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seemed clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and the expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes from two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and the inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time Note:Another prominent physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists, and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen the eyesight 50 per cent. in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." It is sold in Peterboro by Wasse Drug Co.

Laymen and Church Union

The following are a few of the thousands of Presbyterian laymen who heartily approve of the Church Union movement, and permit their names to be attached to the following appeal to the people of Canada:

"We recognize that the basis of union permits and expects existing congregations to continue in every particular exactly as before.

"We regret any insinuation that the big city church (whose congregational life will be absolutely unaffected) is selfishly indifferent to a movement which we believe could meet the religious needs of the country and place the united church in a position to assume a national responsibility for the Canada that is to be.

"We believe conditions generally, but especially in the more sparsely settled districts, demand Union for the sake of efficiency and effective leadership, and to avoid unseemly rivalry, overlapping and waste."

German Munitions

Trade Journals Reveal a Startling Decrease in Production.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—Francis Gribble in an article on Germany's munitions published in the Chronicle says:

"Although the censorship is strict in Germany, awkward truths have a way of leaking out through the columns of trade organs and technical papers, and it may now be gathered that the munition supply is a cause of increasing anxiety. The not enough cars to convey coke to the blast furnaces with the result that the production of steel is menaced. Difficulty exists even in Westphalia and the Rhine provinces, where the Essen syndicate had to diminish its deliveries of coke by one-half. It is even more acute in Silesia, where the number of trucks available is only about 20 per cent. of the number required, and the water transport hardly relieved the situation at all, owing to the scarcity of carts for conveying combustibles to the barges. That is one reason why a metallurgical crisis is imminent. Another may be found in the increasing lack of labor, which is diminishing the output alike in the coal mines and iron mines."

The number of workmen employed in German coal mines in 1913 was 405,182. They were reduced to 294,852 in the last three months of 1916. The output of iron ore of three leading companies for 1915-16 decreased by 3,713,886 tons.

Gribble concludes. "Underfeeding of workers is a factor of scarcely less potency. The official report of a Government functionary attributes to this cause alone a decline of no less than 30 per cent. in the average output of German munition workers. Germany, in short, is well within sight of a munition crisis, which probably will come to a head compels her to lavish her munitions on all her fronts at once."

In 20 generations every person has that 131,076 direct ancestors.

Buttons are now being made from the spent yeast discarded from the breweries.

Believes She Was Saved From Stroke of Paralysis

All One Side Was Cold and Powerless, when She Began Using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

A dead nerve cell can never be replaced. In this way it is different to other cells of the human body. But feeble, wasted nerve cells may be restored, and herein lies hope.

In this fact is also a warning to take note of such symptoms as sleeplessness and loss of energy and ambition, and restore the vitality to the nervous system before some form of helplessness results.

Nervous prostration, locomotor ataxia and paralysis are the natural results of neglecting to keep the nerves in healthful condition. The use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food when you suspect there is something wrong, will soon restore vitality to the nervous system, and thereby prevent serious developments.

Mrs. Merritt Nichols, R. R. No. 3, Dundalk, Ont., writes: "I take pleasure in writing to tell you the great benefit I have derived from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I was so nervous I could not sleep, and found it hard to get my work done at all, but, having no help at the time, had to do the best I could. Finally my left arm became powerless and cold, and this continued to get worse until my whole side was affected, head and all. I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and the first box helped me so much that I used several, and believe that this treatment saved me from having a paralytic stroke. It has built me up wonderfully, and I can recommend it most heartily, believing that if more Nerve Food were used there would be much less sickness."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cures in nature's way by nourishing the feeble, wasted nerves back to health and vigour. Fifty cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

PLAN TO DIVIDE BELGIUM

Germany Said to Hope to Play Flemings Against Walloons After the War.

The Hague.—One of the "real guarantees" which Germany may seek in its peace terms is a scheme of dual Government for Belgium, according to Dr. Franz van Cauwelaert member of the Belgian Chamber and one of the foremost leaders of the Flemish leaders of the Flemish people of Belgium. He has just returned from a visit to the seat of the Belgian Government at Havre, and has told The Associated Press correspondent of an hour's interview he had with King Albert.

"King Albert," he said, "follows the Flemish question with the keenest interest. He feels sincere sympathy with Flemish rights, and has an interest desire that there shall be no language abuses, and he has no prejudice against our solution of the problem. Further, no Fleming has ever expressed or entertains the slightest distrust of his sovereign, who is held by us in the highest esteem and is, indeed, very popular with the entire nation."

Discussing the German attitude toward the Flemish movement he said: "Administrative separation is one of the pet schemes of the German occupiers of Belgium at the moment. It is, indeed, one of the 'real guarantees' which, according to the Imperial Chancellor, Germany will demand respecting Belgium in its peace terms. I am sure that the Germans at first fully intended to stick to Belgium; they would never have thought of restoring her to independence but for hard necessity. Regarding that as now out of the question, however, they would like to make Belgium weak by this scheme of dual government, by creating an internal antithesis, two separate and conflicting parts neutralizing one another's strength. They think, for instance, that if the French-speaking half were inclined to lean towards France, that very fact would tend to make the Flemish half lean towards Germany.

The Germans in Belgium are endeavouring to introduce such administrative separation as far as lies in their power. The education department has been split into two sections to deal respectively with Walloon and Flemish Belgium, with a separate set of officials. Such measure was by no means a necessary accompaniment to the extension of the use of Flemish in the schools, but it fits in with the German plan. The Ministry for the Interior has not yet undergone a similar process, but orders have been issued that Flemish shall be the administrative language in the regions concerned, and all official correspondence there conducted in Flemish.

"A small Flemish group ironically dubbed the 'Flamallemands,' is cooperating with the Germans in these schemes, but the slight success of the Flemish university recently established by Governor-General Von Bissing at Ghent, shows how feeble it is. Every art of cajolery, enticement and compulsion were for months brought to bear in Belgium, Holland and Germany to get together the required staff of professors. The net result is a body of forty-six professors, more than half of whom have no qualifications entitling them seriously to claim such a title, and the rest are very mediocre men. The faculty of law, for instance, is pitiful. The institution does not permit the name of university. Whereas it should normally have had 800 to 900 students, I learn from a good source that far less than a hundred are studying there, and every such student has received a bursary enabling and enticing him to do so. The Germans have placed the 120 bursaries of all the Belgian universities at the disposal of Ghent, so that scholarships are still to be had for the asking. And whereas before the war over 3,000 university men signed our petition in favour of a Flemish university at Ghent, only 150 signed the recent manifesto issued in Belgium bolstering up the German schemes."

WHEN BLOOD IS POISON.

The blood must be filtered, otherwise the liver is overworked, and becomes torpid and poisoned. If the kidneys fail to filter the blood, the whole system becomes poisoned. By using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you get both these filtering organs working right, and also secure healthful action of the bowels. For this reason these pills are an ideal family medicine. They cure biliousness, constipation, chronic indigestion and kidney disease.

Naturally Grave.

"I have here," said the party with the unbartered hair who had injected his person into the editorial sanctum when the office boy wasn't looking, "a little poem entitled 'A Pauper's Grave.'"

"Huh!" growled the editor. "Nothing remarkable about that. Who has a better right to be grave than a pauper? You certainly wouldn't expect his mirth to slop over, would you?"—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

He Stopped.

"Didn't you hear the whistle?" said the scared engineer as he stopped to pick up the man his engine had knocked off the track.

"Sure, I did—and I saw the sign too. It said, 'Stop, Look and Listen,' and that's just what I did."—New York World.

On the Square.

"Do you consider it wrong to bet on a presidential election?"

"I'm not sure about it. But it's a great temptation. It is one form of contest in which no contender is ever suspected of throwing the game."—Washington Star.

Effect of Heredity.

"What a crusty fellow Jinks is!"

"No wonder; his father is a baker."—Baltimore American.

SEASON FOR CHECKERS.

A Decent Game, "Soothing, Quieting, and Calming."

At one or two places in town the old-fashioned, home-like, mildly-exciting games of checkers is in vogue. Along about this time each year someone drags out the well-worn board, with its well-thumbed men, kicks the coal bucket to within an easy sitting distance of a couple of nail kegs, old chairs or store boxes, gives a knowing wink to all present and issues a wild challenge to the world at large for a game of checkers.

Every community has its star checker player. He may rouse the ire of his nearest neighbours and best friends by taking them down the line for three games in succession, but when the stranger with championship aspirations drops in, the whole caboodle unites against the common enemy and urges the home player on to victory.

Checkers is a decent game, soothing, quieting and calming. Like pitching horseshoes and quoits, it flourishes in the country—out where the nerve is steady, the eye is clear and the brow cool. From now on until spring many a country store will nightly entertain the "checker club," and between moves the problems of the world will be discussed and solved. — Beverly (Ohio) Dispatch.

REPORT OF THE AUDITORS TO THE SHAREHOLDERS OF THE UNION BANK OF CANADA.

In accordance with the provisions of sub-sections 19 and 20 of Section 56 of the Bank Act, we report to the Shareholders as follows:—

We have audited the above Balance Sheet with the books and vouchers at Head Office and with the certified returns from the branches.

We have obtained all the information and explanations that we have required, and are of the opinion that the transactions of the Bank which have come under our notice have been within the powers of the Bank.

In addition to our verification at the 30th November, we have, during the year, checked the cash and verified the securities representing the investments of the Bank at its chief office and principal branches and found them to be in agreement with the entries in the books of the Bank relating thereto.

In our opinion the Balance Sheet is properly drawn up so as to exhibit a true and correct view of the state of the affairs of the Bank, according to the best of our information and the explanations given to us, and as shown by the books of the Bank.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

We have not yet reached a point when it would be wise to try to envisage what will happen in the near future, but that need not stop us from taking stock of where we stand—what have been the effects of the past two and a half years of warfare—on Canadian banks in general, and on the Union Bank in particular. The outstanding fact, of course, is the unshaken solvency of our institutions—then comes the remarkable increase in deposits—a pleasing feature of which is the growth of savings accounts, showing that the rank and file of our people are alive to the importance of spending less than they are earning.

Our banks have followed the wise course of carrying ample cash reserves, and of keeping themselves in a liquid position to enable them to meet any possible contingency, and also to do their part in financing the war expenditure of the Government. So far they have taken many millions of British and Canadian loans, and are prepared, and able to take further large amounts as required. It is splendid evidence of the soundness of our banking system and no less of the ability with which our banks have been handled during these times so full of uncertainty, anxiety and peril.

And now to come to our own case. The General Manager will give you his analysis of our statement, and will refer more particularly to the financial aspects. The Union Bank is now in its 52nd year. Starting in Quebec with a small capital, it had a hard road to travel until its management awoke to the value of the great field for development which was opening up in the Northwest prairies. Seizing upon this opportunity which offered itself in the early eighties the Union Bank proceeded to establish itself throughout the West, and by following a wise and liberal policy to-wards its clients has reached a position of strength and influence that was beyond the dreams of any of us a few years ago.

The Shareholders should not be disappointed that our earnings have not exceeded those of last year, but this is entirely due to our sound policy of maintaining a strong and liquid position. This, we know, will meet with your entire approval. Your Directors have resolutely refused to countenance speculation, but they have continued the policy of assisting the Bank's clients in the legitimate expansion of their business, and have always had before them the importance of encouraging production.

London, England.

Our London Office continues to show satisfactory progress. We have been established there for five years and the gratifying increase in our business is due entirely to the wise and able advice and attention of our Advisory Committee, Major J. Leigh Wood, C.M.G., Lieut.-Col. the Hon. Sidney Peel, and Mr. F. W. Ashe.

With the rapid growth of our resources has come the need of improving our facilities for handling the produce of the country, and, to this end, it is gratifying to your Board of Directors to be able to announce today that we shall in the near future, open an agency in the City of New York. Our Foreign Exchange Department has increased its business in a satisfactory manner during the past year, and the contemplated arrangement will better enable us to handle the rapidly increasing business between London, the United States, and Canada.

United States.

Following our London plan, we shall have an Advisory Committee for this bank at New York, and I am happy to inform you that Mr. Stuyvesant Fish, Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt and Mr. Gilbert G. Thorne have consented to act upon that Committee. It is unnecessary for me to add anything further, as the names of these gentlemen are well known in Canada, the United States, and abroad, and we are indeed fortunate to have worked out a programme for the future which carries with it so much promise.

We are greatly pleased to report the completion of arrangements whereby the Bank is assured of the able services of the well known firm of Carter, Ledyard & Milburn, counsellors-at-law of the City of New York.

We intend to feature a statistical department in New York, through which all information concerning Canada can be readily obtained by our friends in the United States, and through which we expect to be able to quickly furnish such information as may be desired by our home friends in regard to United States affairs.

Agriculture.

Conditions generally throughout the country are far more satisfactory than could have been foreseen. The remarkable harvest of 1915 gave freights to our railroads, a market to our manufacturers and merchants, employment to our people, and showed the Empire what Canada is capable of doing towards supplying food for the world.

Last year, the harvest was not so abundant but the prices realized were so high that never in the history of Canada were our farmers, speaking generally, in such good shape financially. Every farmer has it now within his power to do a real service to the cause by bending his energies towards increasing his production of foodstuffs, which are so urgently needed by the world.

I shall not go into details of conditions in the various provinces as the reports of our superintendents will appear in our annual book form. These reports have been most ably prepared and are well worth reading.

I must not conclude these brief remarks without an urgent appeal to every one who may hear or read them. We must win the war. We cannot all fight but we can all serve the cause in one way or another. We can produce and we can economize. Remember that everything we import has to be paid for—many luxuries are still brought in which we could perfectly well do without, and each one of them makes the balance of trade against Canada so much the greater. Production, whether of foodstuffs or of munitions, intelligent economy, efficient management—these need not be empty phrases—they can and should be put into effect at once, not a moment should be lost. There are two questions which every man in Canada should ask himself—what can I do? and what have I done for my country to-day?

I have an announcement to make that, I am sure, you will be sorry to hear. Mr. Balfour has decided to retire from the position of General Manager after forty-seven years of service—no one should find fault with his decision to take a well-earned rest. He has filled, in succession, every post in the Bank, from that of junior clerk to general manager, and has filled that position during the past thirteen years, which have, without question, been the most prosperous in the history of the Bank. We all feel that the remarkable progress of the institution is, in no small measure, due to the ability and well balanced administration of Mr. Balfour. To his personality is also due the fine esprit de corps which pervades this institution at the present time. The story of his career should be a stimulating one to every officer in the service as it shows what possibilities are before every able, energetic young man if he does his work faithfully and with a single eye to the welfare of the institution. During the many years I have known Mr. Balfour he has been, uniformly, the same courteous and high-minded gentleman. We all have a sincere affection for him and it would be a real misfortune were we to lose him but I am glad to say that he has agreed to retain the benefit of his wisdom and experience. You will be asked today to approve of a resolution increasing the Board of Directors of this Bank from 15 to 16 in order that Mr. Balfour may immediately take his seat on the Board.

Your Directors have decided to appoint Mr. Harold B. Shaw, General Manager. He has been in the Bank's service for twenty-six years, has been Assistant General Manager for the past eight years, and previous to that, filled the position of Superintendent of our western business for eight years. Mr. Shaw is a well trained, conservative and able banker, full of energy, and devoted to the best interests of the Bank. Your Directors have watched his career closely and are satisfied that he will fill his new position with success. The friends of the Bank may rest easy in their minds knowing that the policy of the Bank will be unchanged, and that Mr. Shaw will carry on the traditions of the Bank, which may be summed up as "service and security."

GENERAL MANAGER'S ADDRESS.

In presenting the 52nd Annual Statement of the Bank to the Shareholders, there are but few changes in the balance sheet, as your hands, which require explanations or comment. Owing to the exceptionally profitable harvest of 1915, the balance of trade with Great Britain being greatly in favor of Canada, the tremendous expenditures of money in this country, for war purposes; and the abnormally high prices obtained for an average crop in 1916, assisted by economy—money has been abundant and general trade conditions satisfactory.

Prosperity in Canada has been clearly demonstrated by the ease with which money has been obtained by the Federal Government, for war purchases, and the steadily increasing bank deposits.

Notwithstanding the fact that less anxiety prevailed than in 1915, the same conservative policy has been followed during 1916, owing to their being, as yet, no indications as to when the war may end. What effect the cessation of hostilities may have on business generally, owing to war contracts being summarily discontinued, is a question difficult to answer, but husbanding resources would seem to be the only wise policy to adopt, and so long as the war continues there is no other prudent course to follow.

Profits.

The net profits for the year amounted to $651,183.67, as against $659,688.01 in 1915, or $8,504.34 less, being 13.02 per cent. on paid-up capital; a result with which we were well satisfied, having in mind the fact that exceptionally ample provision for all bad and doubtful paper had been made before closing our books, and to the Bank maintaining very strong cash reserves throughout the year. These profits have been disposed of as follows: dividend of 8% and bonus of 1% paid to shareholders, $450,000; War Tax on note circulation, $50,000; British Sailors Relief Fund, $5,000; Contingent Account, $150,000, and the usual contribution to the Officers Pension Fund of $16,000, leaving $93,160.42 to be carried on to the new Profit and Loss Account as against $106,976.75 brought forward from last year.

With regard to setting aside $150,000 to a Contingent Account, this is purely a precautionary measure which we deem wise owing to fluctuations taking place from time to time in the valuation of securities held by the Bank.

Deposits.

The deposits amount to $89,267,000 against $73,696,000 in 1915; an appreciable increase of $16,582,000, of which $7,000,000 is in non-interest bearing and $9,509,000 in interest-bearing deposits.

Reserves.

The percentage of quick assets to liabilities to the public has increased to 56.65% from 47.32% last year and 36.27% in 1914. The wisdom of maintaining strong liquid reserves, will, I am sure, be commended.

Circulation.

Although the crop was not moved out nearly as freely the past season as it was in 1915, notes of the Bank in circulation were in excess about $1,360,000, bearing evidence of greater business activity throughout the country.

The Dominion Government war tax on our circulation was $50,000.

Total Assets.

The assets of the Bank have passed the century mark, being $100,040,228, an increase of $12,577,165, over 1915 when they amounted to $90,663,063.

Dominion and Provincial Government Securities.

Our holdings in these securities have increased $1,415,000, made up entirely of Canadian War Loan issues.

Canadian Municipal Securities, and British, Foreign and Colonial Public Securities Other Than Canadian.

Since the last statement under review we have purchased $14,000,000 of British Treasury Bills, which accounts for the large increase in securities under the above heading.

Call and Short Loans, Elsewhere Than in Canada.

These loans are higher by $4,000,000 than in 1915, and are secured by British Treasury Bills, in London.

Branches.

Seven branches have been opened during the year, viz: Province of Alberta—Clairmont, Erskom, Cluny. Province of Saskatchewan—Bulyea, Hasenmore, Prussia, Halton; and fifteen branches have been closed, as they were not being operated at a profit, viz: Province of Ontario—Geneva and Welland streets, St. Catharines; Rockland, Cayuga. In Province of Quebec—St. Catherine and St. Christophe streets, Montreal; Jonquieres. In Province of Alberta—Seven Persons. In Province of British Columbia—Vancouver Heights, Granville and Robson streets, Vancouver; City Heights, Vancouver; Enderby, Prince George, Squamish. In Province of Manitoba—Clearwater (Sub. to Crystal City), Sargent and Arlington streets, Winnipeg. In Province of Saskatchewan—Vertigin.

Staff.

We have a male staff of 1216 and female, 268, or a total of 1,532, whose duties are greatly increased, and are being cheerfully performed, owing to so many others having volunteered for overseas duties. The steadily increasing cost of living is a very important factor with all persons on salaries and the Bank has endeavored to lessen the burden as much as possible in its periodical adjustment of salaries.

633 members of the staff have enlisted for overseas active service. Of these we regret to announce 43 have been killed, 28 wounded and 3 are missing, leaving 534 still in the field. To the sorrowing relatives our heartfelt sympathy is extended.

This is the last occasion on which I shall have the pleasure of addressing you as General Manager of the Bank, as I am relinquishing executive duties on the 31st instant after nearly forty-seven years of active service, the last thirteen and a half of which I have been General Manager.

The Bank has shared to a very appreciable extent in the prosperity of the country during this latter period, and I am sure the following figures in this connection will be read with much interest.

	1903	1916
Capital Stock	$ 2,400,000	$ 5,000,000

It is needless to point out that such marked success could not have been achieved without the active co-operation and loyal support of a capable staff of officers, who have, at all times, devoted their best energies to furthering the interests of the Institution they served. I desire to take this opportunity of expressing to them, one and all, my very great appreciation of their valuable assistance.

After seeing the progress of the Bank from 1870, when its operations were very restricted, and it had only three branches, to its present position of one of the important financial institutions of the country, I am retiring with mixed feelings of pride and regret, pride at the enviable position occupied by the Bank, and regret at the severance of such long-standing relations always made pleasant and congenial by the ready assistance of Directors, Executive and Staff.

I esteem it a great honor to be invited to join the Board of Directors of the Bank, and it will be a pleasure and satisfaction to me, if elected by the Shareholders, to retain my connection with the Bank in that capacity. I trust, too, that my intimate knowledge of affairs of the institution may prove of some assistance in an advisory capacity as a Director.

The President has been good enough to refer to my services and retirement in very kind and appreciative words. My relations with the Presidents, Vice-Presidents and Directors with whom I have been associated have, at all times, been very pleasant, and their advice most helpful. I desire to express my very great appreciation of and thanks for the kindly manner in which Mr. Galt has alluded to my resignation.

ASSISTANT GENERAL MANAGER'S REMARKS.

I desire to thank you for the kind words with which you and the Directors have introduced me to the public.

I wish to assure you, Sir, also the Directors and Shareholders of the Bank, that I shall assume my new position with a deep sense of its responsibilities.

I should like to add my testimony to the splendid example which has been set by Mr. Balfour to every member of the Staff, and to express our regret at losing him in an official capacity at the end of this month. It is with the greatest of satisfaction that we have heard that he is to join the Board—for we know that we shall still keep him as a friend and advisor.

I shall do my utmost to live up to the best traditions of the Bank, and to carry on the wise policy of my predecessors.

REMARKS OF MR. F. E. KENASTON OF MINNEAPOLIS.

The important change taking place to-day in the general management of the Bank whereby Mr. G. H. Balfour is resigning as General Manager after forty-seven years of service, and the appointment of Mr. H. B. Shaw, who has so well served the Bank for a number of years as Assistant General Manager, to fill Managership, has impressed me very strongly. When you take into account, Gentlemen, forty-seven of the best years of a man's life, devoted in the most loyal and faithful manner to the upbuilding of a business institution, and when advancing years bring him to reason with himself that it is better to shift the burden of responsibility on to younger shoulders and enjoy a well-earned rest after so many years of arduous work, we must conclude that the severing of the ties which bind men together in business life is a serious thing. I wish to endorse fully all of the words of eulogy which the preceding speakers have used in connection with Mr. Balfour's long years of service, and his decision to now resign the burden of General Managership of the Bank, and to congratulate the Bank, at the same time, that he is to be made a Member of its Board of Directors, so that the vast fund of information and detail knowledge possessed by him of the Bank's business will not be lost to the Institution.

Mr. H. B. Shaw, who is now to be the General Manager of the Bank, is too well known to you all to need any words of introduction from me. He has been connected with the Bank, in one position or another, during all of his working life, and, for many years, has been Assistant General Manager. His well known efficiency and great ability as a banker is sufficient warrant to us all that the affairs of the Institution will be in good hands.

The present business conditions brought on by the great war, have made New York City a great financial centre and in order to avail itself of its proper share of the Empire's financing at the present time, and to assume its share of solving the financial problems which are bound to ensue at the close of the war, the Union Bank has deemed it wise to establish an agency in New York City.

The Officers of the Bank, in their negotiations for suitable connections there, have been most extraordinarily fortunate in securing the services of Messrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Cornelius Vanderbilt, and Gilbert G. Thorne, as Members of an Advisory Committee. These gentlemen are so well known everywhere on this continent that it seems superfluous to say a word in their praise, but I cannot pass by the opportunity of saying that the names of these gentlemen, connected with any business institution or enterprise, is an absolute guarantee of conservatism, integrity and efficient management, and is an endorsement of the Union Bank itself, not only in New York City, but in the Dominion of Canada as well—a fact in which we, as Stockholders, should take great pride. In summing up the situation, gentlemen, I am free to say that the Union Bank is going into New York City with its agency under the most favorable auspices possible.

On the 25th of August last, the Directors of the Union Bank, accompanied by a few invited guests, began a trip of 15 days of inspection of Western Canada with reference to business conditions and prospects generally, and specifically, with reference to its own branches extending throughout the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

During this trip we met 192 Branch Managers, with whom the Directors discussed very freely their respective local conditions and prospects. The meeting of these Branch Managers (most of them young, vigorous, intelligent men) to some of us was a revelation. We found them, uniformly loyal and enthusiastic workers for the good of the Union Bank, well advised as to their own local conditions, and what was required for the betterment of these conditions as respects mixed farming. The paying of greater attention to stock raising thereby minimizing the risk with which a business or a community constantly stands in peril, by reason of depending upon one crop only.

We saw some very wonderful agricultural development at different points, and a very noticeable appearance of thrift and prosperity in the purely agricultural districts among the farmers. We also found a very satisfactory condition prevailing in the larger towns and cities of the West with regard to commercial affairs, which seem to have been reduced to dealing in staple articles and necessities only, rather than the luxuries. In these lines there was reported a very satisfactory volume of business. We also found an enormous amount of liquidation of indebtedness, particularly among the farmers, by reason of the exceptionally large crops of grain, with good prices, during the years 1915 and 1916.

The trip was very interesting to many of the Directors by reason of the passing through of so much new and hitherto, to them, unknown territory, and particularly the Peace River country, which seemed to open up an enormous field for settlement at a later date. The Peace River country is now being invaded by the iron trail under the vigorous auspices of Mr. J. D. McArthur, who has extended the rails of the Edmonton Dunvegan and British Columbia Railway to Peace River Crossing, and it is to be hoped that he will receive a full measure of reward for the courage he has displayed in this undertaking, and in this connection, it is only proper to state our hearty appreciation to Mr. McArthur for the many courtesies received at his hands during the progress of this trip.

Messrs. T. Harry Webb, C.A., B. S. Read, C.A., and C. R. Hegan, C.A. of the firm of Webb, Read, Hegan, Callingham & Co., were re-appointed as auditors of the Bank.

The following were elected Directors: Sir William Price, Honorary President; Mr. John Galt, president; Mr. R. T. Riley and Mr. Geo. Thomson, vice-presidents; Messrs. W. R. Allan, G. H. Balfour, Hume Blake, K.C., M. Bull, Major-General John Carson, C.B., B. E. Cronyn, Edward L. Drewry, S. Hume, J. S. Hough, K.C., R. O. McCulloch, F. E. Kenaston and Wm. Shaw.

Belgian Children Crying For Bread, Observer Asserts

New York.—Belgium under Prussian rule, with its deportations and slayings, was observed by Jean van der Boon, wealthy rubber expert and a native of Holland, who arrived in New York on January 2nd, after spending two years and three months in Brussels.

As a neutral observer in Brussels, Mr. van der Boon was privileged with certain restrictions, to come and go as he pleased. He gathered many interesting facts regarding the methods of Prussian military rule, the deportation of aged and infirm men, the food situation and Belgium's bitter and increasing hatred of the Central Powers.

To a reporter Mr. van der Boon related his impressions. He declared that the greatest distress prevails among the residents of Brussels and other cities of Belgium. The food supply, cut down in order that grain and other necessities may be conserved for the use of the Prussian army, has become inadequate. On every side, he said, children may be heard crying for the food which their parents are unable to obtain at any price.

"Military rule has embittered the Belgian people to an unbelievable extent," Mr. van der Boon said. "Under the lash of the Prussians, a feeling of hatred which will survive for centuries, has been developed.

WELL TO DO ARE STARVING.

"Many of the formerly well to do residents of cities, such as Brussels, are starving slowly. The aid extended to them by the American Relief Committee has been of great value and Belgium is thankful for it. Of course the people realize that their only relief will be found in a victory for the allies. They daily pray for such an outcome of the war."

Mr. van der Boon described the domineering attitude of the officers who direct the government of Belgium. Prussian soldiers, he said, picket the streets continually, and at 7 o'clock each night residents of cities and villages must extinguish all lights. The Belgians must lock up their houses at six o'clock in the evening, and are not permitted abroad in the streets after that hour. Neutral residents of the cities are permitted more freedom, but their movements are carefully watched by secret agents and soldiers of the Prussian army.

The high schools have been closed, so that the few boys who have attended the classes since the outbreak of the war might be put to work. The lower grade schools have been reopened, and under the direction of the military authorities, some few subjects are being taught.

Mr. van der Boon told of the deportation of old men to Germany to till the soil and take the places of men who entered the army. He said that hundreds of citizens of several cities were ordered to take the "deportation trains."

DEATH FOR DISOBEDIENCE.

Slight infractions of the military rules were punished by the death sentence, according to Mr. van der Boon. The culprit was dragged through the streets, presented before a court martial and pronounced guilty before having an opportunity to defend himself. With the other offenders he was placed in jail and killed by a firing squad the following day.

On the outskirts of Brussels Mr. van der Boon said, the Prussians have converted an illuminating gas plant into a laboratory for the manufacture of the poisonous gas used by them in trench warfare. While he was in Brussels both French and English aviators made daily flights over the city in an effort to "bomb" the plant, but they failed to destroy it.

One of the amusing features of the Prussian occupation of Belgium, according to Mr. van der Boon, is the anxiety of the military authorities to locate the editorial rooms of Libre Belgique, a small publication which has succeeded in arousing the indignation and the disapproval of the invaders. An issue of Libre Belgique is hastily scanned by Prussian officers or articles ridiculing them. Then follow hasty orders for the suppression of the paper. Detachments of Prussian soldiers have searched practically every city in Belgium for the offices of the paper. The reward for their efforts has always been another issue of the paper.

"On June 22 residents of Brussels had an excellent opportunity to witness the destruction of a huge Zeppelin," Mr. van der Boon said. "Aviators from the Allies headquarters fairly swarmed about the big craft. The gas bag was punctured again and again by shells from the guns of the French and English aeroplanes, and finally the Zeppelin exploded with a frightful crash and hurtled to the ground."

VEGETARIANS.

A country vicar advertised for an "ineligible" to make himself useful, etc., in his grounds and garden. A likely candidate turned up and, after being questioned upon several points the Vicar said to him:

"You know we are all vegetarians here and if I engage you I should like you to conform to our rules. Could you?"

The applicant entered into a brown study, and then at last he replied:

"I think so, sir. But I should like to ask an important question first. Do you reckon beer a vegetable?"

Interned Germans Prepare For Peace

Prisoners on Isle of Man Studying Languages and Learning Trades and Professions

Douglas, Isle of Man. — They are busily engaged in preparing for peace in the prison camps on the Isle of Man.

Here are nearly 25,000 German and Austrian civilian prisoners. Many of them have been residents of the British Isles for ten and fifteen years, and expect to go back to their civilian employment as soon as peace comes. Others have been in England for much shorter periods, and plan to seek fresh fields. Hundreds would like to go to the United States.

Two years of imprisonment has a sobering effect on the most frivolous, and the frame of mind of the internment camp prisoner is almost uniformly serious. Some are learning new trades, others mastering new languages, others studying the course of the war in map and law books with a view to being on the spot for post war developments of business and commerce.

Most of this preparation for peace is being done by the prisoners themselves. Their teachers are all from their own numbers, and much of the equipment for the schools and workshops has been purchased through the British authorities by money supplied by well-to-do prisoners.

At the Knockaloe camp there are about 23,000 prisoners. Four thousand of them are studying languages, engineering, navigation, geography, trade. Others are at work as gardeners, farmers, road-makers, or chefs.

The work which a prisoner takes up in the prison schools is frequently an index to some new field of activity in which he is planning to enter after the war. Those studying Polish are casting their eyes on the prospects in the new kingdom of Poland, while those who are devoting their energies to Spanish are generally looking toward opportunity in South America.

All this work is under leaders chosen by the men themselves, with the approval of their British guardians.

The head of the work at Knockaloe—the "University of Knockaloe" as the interned Germans call it—is Prof. ——, who was a prominent automobile engineer in London, before the war.

"We try to think as little as possible about the war," remarked Prof. ——, "and as much as possible about peace. Our aim now is to provide every man in the camp with something to do which will give him a better equipment for earning a living. We have had some wonderful results in the course of our work. Men who had never aspired to be anything more than fairly good waiters or valets have disclosed an aptitude for chemistry or wood carving or architecture.

"One prisoner, who had been a rather unsuccessful delicatessen merchant in London for twenty years, has found that he possesses a real genius for designing toys. Three young men who were restaurant waiters, expect to go back to the world as teachers of languages, having engaged here in a close study of pedagogy under an excellent German professor. We have developed some surprisingly good talent in music and sculpture. We have a few good orchestra leaders and instrumental teachers in our midst. We now have twenty orchestras in this camp alone, together with several glee clubs and comic opera companies."

Among the rank and file of the prisoners there is no serious complains about their lot or their treatment at the hands of the British authorities.

LOCOMOTOR ATAXIA.

"My nerves were very bad, and I could not sleep at night, nor could I control my arms or legs," writes Mrs. Robert Bustard, Maxwell, B.C. "Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cured me of what I believe was the early stage of locomotor ataxia or paralysis. I cannot describe what I suffered, but now I am entirely cured."

A lady called on a fire insurance agent, and inquired how much it would cost to insure her house for $5,000.

"Twenty-five dollars for a three-years' policy, Madam," said the agent.

"And if the house burns, do I get $5,000?"

"Certainly, Madam."

"And do you make any inquiries as to the cause of the fire?"

"Why yes; we make a full investigation in every case."

"Ah!" said the lady, with a toss of her head, "I thought there was some catch about it!"

Clergyman Hun Prisoner.

In the internment camp at Tabora, in German East Africa, the British forces found a large number of British prisoners of war, most of whom had been interned for the two years of the war, says The Glasgow Herald. Among them was Archdeacon Woodward, who has been associated with the East Africa missionary movement since 1875. The archdeacon, who was seriously ill, was on the point of sailing for England when he was taken prisoner. Altogether there were over one hundred British subjects, including several women among the prisoners. The conditions of the camp were appalling. European men and women were herded together with natives, the sanitary arrangements were unspeakable, and several prisoners died. The British troops supplied the released prisoners with food, and arranged for their repatriation. Until he was discovered at Tabora nothing had been heard of archdeacon Woodward for two years.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

FOOLING A GUARDIAN

By ETHEL HOLMES

Kate Phillips was an orphan, and her Aunt Rachel Harding was her guardian. Kate surely needed a manager for her estate, for she was a spendthrift. She was also full of high spirits and bent on having a good time.

Kate went to college, not because she wished to learn all about the Greeks and Romans, conic sections and philosophy, but because she had heard that college girls have lots of fun, and she wished to see something of college life. Her guardian was willing that she should spend an ordinary sum while a student, but did not approve of extravagance. The old lady was very fond of her niece—her sister's child—and felt responsible for her bringing up. She therefore limited her ward to a list of reasonable expenditures.

But there was a weak spot in Miss Harding's efforts. Kate was twenty years old and would come into her estate when she was twenty-one. This fact enabled her to borrow at an exorbitant rate of interest or to buy things for much more than they were worth.

Among these was the purchase of a $5,000 automobile, all on credit as it could have been purchased for $500 cash, but Kate was charged [illegible] and the seller kindly agreed to wait a year for his pay, charging 6 per cent interest and a bonus of $200 for the accommodation.

The possession of an auto is not easily kept secret. One can more readily own a gold mine without its being known, for a car is of no use except for riding purposes, and that is exactly what Miss Phillips wanted it for. She was an expert driver and found in taking her fellow students for a spin. The consequence was that everybody knew she owned the handsomest car in college, and the fact was reported to her aunt.

Kate's alma mater was but a dozen miles from her aunt's residence, and the old lady resolved to go over and learn if the report were true and if it was how her ward had obtained the purchase money. Miss Harding possessed a mare and a vehicle called a rockaway, and in this she set forth in quest of the truth about her niece's extravagance. She chose a Saturday afternoon, since Kate would not be engaged in her studies at that time and there would be no interruption to the investigation.

That Kate did not study on Saturday afternoon was as true as that she studied only enough to keep up with her classes. And that was very little, for she learned easily. On this especial Saturday afternoon she invited as many of her classmates as her car would hold to go for a spin, and about the time the old lady set out for the college Kate touched the starting button in her auto.

Kate, in order to reach the road she wanted, took one that led to a point a few miles from her home where the two roads crossed. Shortly before reaching the crossing she caught sight of the familiar rockaway, every part of which was as familiar to her as the jog trot of Nancy, the mare.

"Oh, heavens!" she exclaimed. "There comes my aunt!"

At the same time she pulled on various levers with her hands and shoved certain brakes with her feet, and the car came to a standstill, while every eye in it was fixed on the distant face in the rockaway, lighted by the sun striking the glasses of a pair of spectacles.

"What shall I do?"

"Here," cried a girl in the seat behind, "take my veil! The sun is shining directly in the old lady's eyes, and she couldn't see you even without a veil."

Kate took the veil, or, rather, it was put on by the lender; then she started her car and whirled by her guardian so fast and so near the rockaway that Miss Harding was altogether too frightened to take a good look at the driver. Nevertheless there was suspicion in the glance she did take, and it made Kate uneasy.

"We must get back to college before she arrives," she said, "and prepare for her coming."

On reaching the crossroad she turned, but instead of taking a fifty mile drive, as had been intended, she went back by the first road she came to leading collegeward, and while the aunt was jogging along at seven miles an hour her niece was doing the distance before her in ten minutes. The car was put in the garage under lock and key, and Kate and her friends, having changed their costumes to innocent white, went out on to the campus, and when the old lady drove up to the dormitory where Kate roomed Kate ran to meet her and, leading her to her friends, gave her a formal introduction.

During the ride back to college it had been arranged that every girl was to show the old lady some attention, thus taking up her time so that she would have none for inquiries.

"I met an auto on the road," said Miss Harding to Kate, "and the driver's figure was just like yours. I couldn't see her face for a veil she wore. I didn't know women drivers of cars wore veils."

"That's to keep the dust out of the eyes," suggested one of the party.

Miss Harding spent twenty-four hours with her ward and saw no signs and heard nothing of the motorcar. But every one she came in contact with was coached.

Filling a Sack.

The clumsy performance of holding a sack and filling it at the same time can be simplified if the sack is hung in a barrel. Four curved nails are placed at equal distances in the rim, and the sack is suspended from these. When it is filled the sack can be easily removed.

The Value of Life Insurance

lies primarily in its practicality, and secondly in its adaptability to conditions as they exist. It has proven a bulwark for many a home, has lightened the load of widows, educated children and made pleasant the declining years of many men who were unable to provide for their needs at this time of life in any other way, or who through the fickleness of fortune, lost all the other possessions they had.

Life Insurance relieves worry, promotes thrift, so essential in these strenuous times, and makes provision for the inevitable rainy day. Isn't it better to look ahead and provide than, at a needy old age, look back and regret?

If you are interested in your home, your wife, your family, and last but not least, your future, write us to-day, giving your age, name, address, married or single, and full particulars will be sent you of a policy best suited to your needs.

LAKES WITH NO OUTLETS.

And Fantastic Mirages That Greet the Desert Traveler.

A playa is a shallow, flat floored depression, characteristic of valleys having no regular drainage to the sea, in which storm waters collect and evaporate. It may be a shallow lake or a salt incrusted mud flat.

In his description of the ancient Lake Lahontan, in Nevada, I. C. Russell writes:

"The scenery on the larger playas is peculiar and is usually desolate in the extreme, but is not without its charm. In crossing these wastes the traveler may ride for miles over a perfectly level floor, with an unbroken sky line before him and not an object in sight to cast a shadow on the ocean-like expanse.

"Mirages, which may be seen almost every day on these heated deserts, give strange fanciful forms to the mountains and sometimes transfigure them beyond recognition. A pack train crossing the desert a few miles distant may appear like some strange caravan of grotesque beasts fording a shallow lake, the shores of which advance as one rides away. The monotony of midday on the desert is thus broken by elusive forms that are ever changing and suggest a thousand fancies, which divert the attention from the fatigues of the journey.

"The cool evenings and mornings in these arid regions, when the purple shadows of distant mountains are thrown across the plain, have a charm that is unknown beneath more humid skies, and the profound stillness of the night in these solitudes is always impressive."—United States Geological Survey.

A DAY'S WORK.

"What constitutes a day's work?" asks an exchange. We figure it out that it depends altogether on your occupation. If you lay bricks, eight hours; if you keep house, sixteen hours; if you preach the Gospel, two hours; if you are a porter on a sleeping car, twenty hours; if you serve the government, one hour; and if you are a newspaperman, twenty-four hours.

Should Not The Advantage of Supervised Playgrounds Be Provided This Year for All the Children of the City

The Playgrounds Association has Demonstrated the success of the Work they have Established during the Past Two Years but they have been Hampered by the Lack of Funds. War emphasizes need of Physical Fitness which should be equally desirable in times of Peace. A Suggestion for the Association

MIDWINTER provides a chilling and distracting atmosphere for the discussion of the activities of midsummer. Yet, unseasonable as it is for a consideration of the prospects of the Playgrounds Association, it may not be inopportune to anticipate some of the problems that are likely to arise this year.

Even at this dismal distance from the holiday months of July and August, two important questions stand out conspicuously against the hazy background. What shall be the extent of the Association's work this summer, and how shall it be financed?

The Association Has Proved The Value of its Work

The continued existence of the Playgrounds Association is accepted as fact. It is no longer an experiment, if it ever was such, but a "successful going concern," thanks to the little group of practical idealists who pioneered the movement in Peterborough. Their achievement during the past two years probably exceeded their expectations, but their hopes, brightened by an earnest fulfilment, remain unrealized. However, the results already accomplished have not only been a delight and a benefit to many children and a welcome relief to their parents, but their unqualified success in the north and centre of the city invites an extension of the idea that its advantages may be provided in at least every ward.

Now the Association approaches its third summer. It is unfortunate that the present national extremity, demanding so much of the attention and resources of the public, discourages other thoughts and efforts, and to that extent accentuates the ordinary difficulties of continuance and development of the playgrounds system. But, notwithstanding these very serious obstacles, the sentiment of the citizens will be found supporting the idea of playgrounds for the use and enjoyment of all the children of the city.

It is unnecessary to refer to the success last summer of the public playgrounds at the Central and King Edward Schools. Their facilities were frequently inadequate to accommodate the large number of young folks who thronged them, but that deficiency of equipment was overcome by the ingenuity and improvisations of the respective supervisers. The children, however, were not only attracted to the playgrounds; they benefitted by them in a measure that is beyond estimation. To the physical improvement of the young people was added a social influence, subtly exercised by the supervisers, and an important factor in the development of "four square" young men and women.

The State Needs Physical Fit Men and Women

Probably the strongest argument in favour of public playgrounds is found in the present demand for physically fit men. Essential as they are to the State in a period of national extremity, their value in times of peace has not been sufficiently appreciated. The point need not be laboured, for the public mind must have awakened by this time to its previous narrow vision in this respect. In other words, the old admonition, "in times of peace prepare for war," has revealed the truth of its direct and also its inverted application.

Accepting this cursory review of the case for public playgrounds, it becomes more imperative that the work of the past two years should be enlarged at once. And since the responsibility of the State or community for the welfare of its youth is so apparent, should not the provision of the means to that end be provided from the community's general funds? Last spring the Playgrounds Association was forced to appeal to the Board of Education for financial assistance to equip the King Edward School-grounds, and the plans for the year were necessarily restricted on account of the lack of capital. Only two grounds were thrown open, when at least four are required. If playgrounds are beneficial to the children in the central and southern districts, surely the same results can be obtained for all the children of the city. Peterborough has not the excuse that it has been attentive to this duty of caring for its youth. It has been most culpably negligent, and would probably have pursued that blind and thoughtless attitude had not the Playgrounds Association taken the initiative. If the idea were a fad would that the City Councils of former days had amused themselves by preserving as playgrounds some of the ideally located fields that were then open and unpromising acres.

Should Not City Provide Funds For The Association?

To summarize; it is surely evident that the number of playgrounds should be increased to at least four this year; to facilitate their preparation and operation and to relieve the Association of the handicap arising out of the lack of capital, is it not feasible and practical to expect the City Council to assume the entire cost? Finally, if this suggestion meets with the approval of the Association, should it not formulate its plans early in the present year that if it so decides it may appeal to the Council for support before the 1917 appropriations are compiled? Is there any better investment the city can make than in its men and women of tomorrow? Public playgrounds will be open when the schools are closed.

"Victory is certain. I give you my word on that." So said General Nivelle, of Verdun, France's new Generalissimo. (Above.)

The illustration to the left shows men of a British battalion occupying a German dug-out. They are seen just inside the entrance. Over the doorway the German notice-board still remains in position, with its lettering to warn off intruders on the privacy of the original inmates.

A British naval armoured-car detachment serving with the Russian army. Here are shown some of their doings in the Caucasus. They also saw service in Persia, and then made another remarkable journey back to Odessa, and thence to the Dobrudja. "Probably no unit of the British forces," said a recent Reuter account, "has had more varied experiences than those that fell to these devoted men."

Two new bath-caravans, recently inspected by the King and Queen, have been presented to the Belgian army, for use at the front, by the Wounded Allies Relief Committee. It is estimated that the bath-caravans will supply hot baths continuously for 14 hours, and that in that time they may be able to deal with about 1,600 men.

An English Munition Plant Is Destroyed By Great Explosion

Between Thirty and Forty Bodies Have Already Been Recovered From the Wreck---Fires Were Caused in Neighbouring Houses and Three Rows of Houses Were Destroyed---Loss of Life Not as Great as Was Expected.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, January 20.—Thirty or forty bodies have already been recovered from the wreck caused by last night's explosion in a munition plant near London, the Home Office officially announced to-day.

Probably a hundred were seriously injured in the explosion. The Home Office, however, estimated the casualties were less than had been feared.

The statement said that practically all explosives in the factory let go and that the factory was completely destroyed.

The explosion caused fires in the neighbouring factories, and three rows of houses were practically demolished. There was considerable damage to other property. The accident will make practically no difference in the output of munitions.

Expressions of sympathy for the victims and their families were formally issued on behalf of the King and Government.

A fire engine which was playing a stream of water on the fire when the explosion occurred was blown up and destroyed. Two firemen were killed.

The official statement says that the factory was in the east of London, near the river, and was engaged in refining explosives.

British Steamer's Fight With a German Sub.

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

NEW YORK, January 20.—The British cargo steamship Lindenhall, arriving here to-day from Naples, brought a tale of a battle off Sicily on the last trip across during which a submarine was fought off with a little twelve-pound gun mounted at the ship's stern. Thirty shells out of about 200 fired by the submarine it was stated, hit the steamer, but none in a vital place.

Artillery Fighting On Western Front

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS (French Official Communique), January 20.—Violent artillery action in the region of Plesses De Roye was the only activity reported from the western front to-day in the official statement. Elsewhere on the front it was quiet.

German Leader Admits Starvation is Near

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, January 19. — Reuter's Amsterdam correspondent gives the following excerpts from the speech of Dr. Von Heydebrand, the Conservative leader, who favours a more unrestricted use of submarines, before the Prussian Diet:

"Our economic situation is rich in deprivations and sacrifices. We may calmly state this because it is known abroad what we are now compelled to demand from our population."

Then, says the correspondent, declaring that the rural populations must make greater sacrifices than previously. Dr. Heydebrand added:

"The rural population is not yet imbued with the consciousness of the needs of this great time. The reply of the Entente Powers to President Wilson ought to be placarded in all communes, so that the people may recognize what will confront them if the war is lost.

"The town populations are suffering grievously. It is sad to see how long women have to wait for a couple of potatoes, and how, for the simplest necessaries, town dwellers must pay absolutely exorbitant prices. These prices must also continue for a long time after the war."

Large Market This Morning

Prices Eased Off Towards the Close of the Market

There was a large market this morning, most of the farmers coming in by train, the roads being in very bad condition on account of the drifts. The prices, high at first, were lowered considerably during the morning.

Butter—43c to 44c per lb.
Eggs—50c to 55c doz.
Chickens—20c lb.; $1.40 pair.
Ducks—90c to $1.00 each.
One single turkey was seen, $3.00 being asked for it.

Prepare Plans For Good Roads To Be Built After War

President Holland of the Ontario Motor League met a number of business men including Mayor Duffus at the Empress Hotel last night. Regarding the problem of good roads he suggested that local organizations should not delay until the end of the war to formulate plans for the adoption of a good roads system in Peterborough, but should have all the details mapped out and ready for execution of a good roads system in Peterborough. Peterborough need of a good road to connect the Kingston highway with Peterborough and the Kawartha Lakes was emphasized by Mr. Holland who suggested that the County and Township Councils should be urged to co-operate. Mr. R. Kingan was appointed to solicit the support of the local merchants, Mr. C. H. Pennefather the Board of Trade, and Dr. C. H. Amys the Stoney Lake Cottagers Association. A deputation will wait upon the County Council next week.

A BIG YIELD OF MANGELS

Master Norman Crowe, son of Mr. J. A. Crowe, Lakefield, R.R. No. 4, is receiving a free course at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, for taking the county prize for growing one acre of mangels. His acre yielded 800 bushels. The variety grown was the Danish Sludstrip.

The year previous, three-quarters of an acre in Peterborough County yielded 1,100 bushels of the same variety, with a three-pound sowing. Five hundred bushels was an exceptionally good yield for last year.

Y. M. C. A. NEWS

City Clerk Armstrong will address the Y.M.C.A. Men's Meeting to-morrow afternoon at 4.15 o'clock. A cordial invitation is given to all men and older boys to attend this service.

The various meetings of the past week have been of unusual interest and well attended. Mr. Ross Dingman, of Toronto, gave a very interesting address last Sunday on the "Morning Watch." Mr. E. Elcombe spoke to over forty boys on Wednesday evening on "Birds." Mr. Roper conducted a discussion at the Life Problem Club on Thursday evening on the subject of "Education." Mr. A. D. Hone, of the Collegiate, conducted a very helpful discussion for the Senior Collegiate Boys on Friday afternoon on the subject of "Gambling and Betting." The Junior and Senior School-Boys' Classes on Saturday morning, led by Mr. Galley, were very well attended. These boys have shown a great interest in the courses of study this year, and a large number of them are preparing to take the National Council Bible Study examinations at the close of the season.

It might be well for visitors to remember that a warm welcome soon burns out.

PEACE SCARCELY MENTIONED BY THE BRITISH NEWSPAPERS

Every Article and Every Address is Devoted to Discuss Ways and Means of Carrying on the War to a Successful Conclusion.

THE GREATER SPIRIT

(Copyright, 1917, Central News, by T. P. O'Connor.)

LONDON, Jan. 20. — It is very characteristic of the drift of temper of the belligerent nations that while Germany still pours forth numerous appeals, explanations, and imprecations, regarding the peace proposals she so dramatically announced to the World late in December, the word peace scarcely finds even a paragraph ot brief mention in any of the British Journals, or in any of the speeches addressed to the general public. On the contrary, every article and the text of every public address is devoted to discussing ways and means of organizing everything in the country for the one purpose of carrying on the war to a successful and victorious end.

While it is definitely known that the power of the enemy is shaken and his hour of retribution is approaching slowly and surely, greater efforts than any put forth will be necessary to break utterly the resistance of Germany and her allies. The resources of Great Britain are virtually inexhaustible, but the harmonious and close co-operation of the entire people for the use of these resources, is necessary to bring about the desired end. It is with this idea in view that the people of England once more are planning to consecrate themselves anew to the task of mobilizing to the last man—to the last industry—in one united effort to destroy once and for all time the Prussian yoke and the Prussian menace.

THE GREATER SPIRIT.

This is only one of the many signs of the greater spirit as well as the confidence and energy which the Lloyd George Ministry, has created. With everything in the shape of shioping, agriculture and even the daily meals being scrutinized and brought more and more under government control, it looks as if even in this individualistic and one time peaceful country, everybody is shouting out to have everythng under the absolute control of those who are responsible for the conduct of the war.

The chief solicitude of the public and government as well, at the present time, is the possible bringing about of a food shortage by the activities of German submarines in cutting down the available shipping for the carrying of foodstuffs. This concentration of the public attention on the matter of food production has resulted, among other things, in the almost daily announcement that some beautiful park, either public or private, is for the first time in its history broken up for the purpose of growing wheat or potatoes. In Ireland, in particular, this necessity of the war promises to settle one of the still outstanding controversies between the owners of immense grass lands popularly miscalled ranches, and the demands of the small farmers for more land to till.

NEW WAR LOAN.

Next, in the preoccupation of the public mind here, is the gigantic "Win the War Loan" which has every promise of being an extraordinary success. This is partly due to the immense resources of the country and partly to the more fiercely aroused hatred of Germany. These things for the moment, have absolutely shunted peace off the map.

In fact, the huge size of the present war loan, has done more to eliminate from the public mind any idea of a possibility of an early peace, than possibly any other incident of the past few weeks. The popular conception of the loan apparently being that the government is grimly planning for at least two years or more of war.

ARMING THE SHIPS.

The activities of the German Raider in South American waters resulting in the destruction and seizure of a considerable amount of allied tonnage, has renewed the popular demand for the arming of all merchant shipping with guns of large calibre, both fore, aft, and amid ships. In this connection it has been pointed out that at least ten unarmed vessels have been sunk by German submarines for every armed one. While a resolution demanding of the government that measures be adopted instantly by the Admiralty in the matter of arming merchant ships, was recently passed unanimously by a meeting of London business men, no official order to this effect has been issued. However many lined have armed their ships of their own accord as a matter of protection.

RECRUITING MEETINGS FOR THE ARMY AND ALSO FOR THE NAVY

Miss Eva L. Ward Will Be the Speaker at Sunday Night Meeting in the Armouries While Mr. Aemelius Jarvis Will Address a Meeting in Collegiate Hall on Tuesday Night in Aid of the Navy--To-day's Military News.

There will be a recruiting rally in the Armouries to-morrow night, when Miss Eva L. Ward, who was in France for two years as a member of Lena Ashwell's troupe of entertainers who went to the front to put on entertainments for the soldiers, will give an address. Miss Ward is a very entertaining speaker, and the meeting promises to be a great success. The Band of the 247th Battalion will provide music and a silver collection to defray expenses will be taken.

On Tuesday evening, Mr. Aemelius Jarvis, the naval recruiting officer for Ontario, will address a meeting in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute in the interests of recruiting for the navy. The address will be illustrated by moving pictures of the British navy. Mrs. Renwick and Mr. Douglas Carlisle will sing. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Mr. Jarvis also desires to meet a representative gathering of business men from the city and county in the City Council Chambers at 4 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon.

Sergt. Wm. Lane of the 247th Battalion is arranging a big smoker for Thursday night of next week in the Armouries. There will be boxing and wrestling bouts, music and an exhibition of weight-lifting by Sergt. Lane. The public is cordially invited to attend and there will be no admission charge. The popular trainer of the 247th team has arranged a fine programme for the occasion.

In the list of returned soldiers at the banquet the other night the name of Pte. Woodcock of the Mounted Rifles was published as I. Wedlock, through a typographical error.

Mrs. Downey of the Soldiers' Wives' and Mothers' Club, has received the following letters:

Sunday, Dec. 17th.

Dear Mrs. Downey,—On behalf of the "boys" from the old town please accept our thanks for the fine parcel of socks, etc. Believe me, they were very useful. One thing we do like is dry feet. We are all doing very well. Nothing to kick about now, and we are in a fine position. The boys send the ladies of the Club the best Christmas and New Year's regards. Again thanking you,

Yours sincerely,
BERT WILSON,
28th Battery.

Dundas, Ont., Jan. 7, 1917.

Dear Mrs. Downey,—I received a letter from my boy, Harold, who is a prisoner in Dulmen, Germany, asking me to thank you for the nice box you sent to him. He enjoyed the contents so much and appreciated your kindness in sending it to him. There seems to be some delay in the parcels reaching Germany, as he said he had not received a parcel from me for a month, so you can understand how very acceptable your box was as they are depending entirely upon the boxes the Red Cross and their friends send to them. Poor boys, their lot is a hard one. He says he has running sores on his feet, and they have to work very hard. God hasten the time when this cruel war will soon be over and our loved ones restored to us again. Mrs. Devins and I join in wishing you and yours a very Happy New Year, and again thanking you for your kindness to my darling boy, I remain,

Yours sincerely,
FLORA DEVINS,
Dundas, Ont.

Mrs. T. Laplante, 230 Rubidge Street, has received a letter from her son, Driver Roland Laplante, of the 92nd Battery, in which he desires to thank all those who sent him parcels or cards at Christmas, as well as to the St. Peter's Patriotic Club and the West-End Club.

Sir Wilfrid Investigating Cannon's Talk

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

OTTAWA, Jan. 20.—Enquiries have been made by Sir Wilfrid Laurier into the alleged statement of Lucien Cannon, the Liberal candidate in Dorchester, made at St. Prosper on Thursday night. The impression here has been that Mr. Cannon's utterances at St. Prosper have been misconstructed or distorted in reports. Mr. Cannon undoubtedly attacked the Government's methods, but not the general principle of Canada's participation in the war.

Judging by to-day's report of Mr. Cannon's speeches yesterday, he has been strongly advised that no such sentiments as those attributed to him at St. Prosper will meet with the approval of the Liberal leader and his lieutenants. Should the statements alleged to have been made by him prove to have been actually made, then it is believed that Sir Wilfrid will declare himself unequovocally on the subject.

Chief Howard Shows Danger of White Sulphurous Match

Reporting the menace of the white sulphurous match, Provincial Fire Marshal Heaton, in an interview with the Toronto Star, quotes the following letter he received from Fire Chief Howard referring to a peculiar circumstance that occurred here recently:

"The box of matches sent you were laid on a table in a living-room by the lady of the house. There were several persons seated in the same room for some 30 minutes. After the matches were placed on the table they were not touched by any person. The nearest person to them was about 10 feet away. The house was filled with smoke and the people thought it was from the stove, but they found out it was the maches had ignited."

Mr. Heaton states that there is no Provincial legislation intended to check this danger, but hinted that in the development of fire prevention work of the Fire Marshal's Office legislation along these lines might yet be enacted.

"The question of the manufacture, sale and use of matches is at present entirely under the jurisdiction of the Federal authorities," continued Mr. Heaton.

Will Hold Local And Open 'Spiel

The Curlers decided in favour of an open and local bonspiel at a meeting last night and appointed the following committee to manage the former.

Robert Hicks (chairman), W. G. Morrow, H. F. Poote, D. Davidson, Robert Harstone, G. H. Logie, C. H. Pennefather.

BOY FINALLY TAKEN AT BOARDING HOUSE

The fourteen-year-old boy who has been wanted by the police for a week past was rounded up last night shortly after he had eluded the farmer who was bringing him into the city. After jumping from the sleigh at the corner of Charlotte and Park street he turned south and applied at several places for board. He said his name was Rye and was taken in. A little later Adjutant McElhiney called and took the boy home with him to supper and afterwards informed Chief Thompson. The boy was remanded for a week this morning and is now at the Shelter.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE CONSIDERS PLANS FOR BATHING FACILITIES

Will Recommend Bathing Centres at Inverlea Park and Little Lake With Suitable Dressing Rooms to Accommodate 500 Bathers at Each

PETITIONS TO THE COUNCIL

A meeting of the special committee of the Playgrounds Association to consider better public bathing facilities in Peterborough, met in the Y. M. C. A. rooms Friday evening, every member being present.

This committee is taking the leadership in securing data and information to present to the City Council at its meetings the first Monday in February. Petitions listed that will be presented to the Council are made on behalf of ten organizations, also a large number of individual letters, and a general citizens' petition prepared by Mr. Ketcheson. There seems to be no doubt but that the City Council will take favourable action regarding providing suitable public bathing centres and houses as there has not been any public movement in the past better supported than the appeal to the Council to solve the bathing problem.

The Playgrounds committee yesterday went thoroughly into the problem and were of the opinion that if two bathing centres were arranged, one at Inwerlea Park and the other at a convenient point at Little Lake, these centres properly supervised, the bathing problem would be largely solved. Members of the committee who investigated the needs last summer reported that during the heated period, more than fifteen hundred boys and girls and adults were found bathing in the Otonabee daily at ten different points. Should the City Council arrange and approve two bathing centres, shutting off promiscuous bathing at other points provision would have to be made to accommodate five hundred bathers daily at each of these points.

A plan of a building was considered that seemed to be adapted to accommodate the crowd likely to result on appointment of two bathing centres and the consequent concentration of bathing. The building considered adequate is 20 x 80 feet in size and would contain a public dressing room for boys and men, 14 x 40 feet in size, also a public dressing room for girls and women 14 x 30 feet in size, a caretaker's room 8 x 20 and eighteen private dressing rooms 4 x 6 feet in size. The private dressing rooms would be provided with locks and seats and the public dressing rooms, with benches and all necessary equipment, the building itself, to be nicely painted on the outside and the floor inside, painted three coats and to be laid to allow drainage from wet bathing suits.

A building like the one described would accommodate at least 125 people comfortably at one time. That this building is none too large may be seen by the statement that more than 125 persons are often seen in the water at one time at Inverlea park alone. Last summer 137 were counted in the water at Vermont Marble Works at one time, 80 people were found swimming at "The Jacks" at the foot of Dublin street at one time, and at each of a number of other points there were from fifty to one hundred boys and girls observed in the water at one time. Any person who is at all observant surely has been convinced before this that it is unfair to the young people of the community and the state that there are no public dressing places, supervision or plan for safeguarding the swimming provided for the large number of bathers along the Otonabee.

To solve the bathing problem and to arrange two bathing centres cannot be accomplished without some expense. Two buildings like the above located at each end of the city, to-

A WORTHY OBJECT

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Health Association was held last evening in the City Council chamber. While the work of this institution has been somewhat hampered by the war, and a consequent diversion of money for war purposes, the annual reports of the district nurses, which are appended below, will show that much good has been accomplished during the past year. It would be difficult to estimate just how many lives have been saved, or how many sufferers have been aided since the Association had its inception, some years ago. The work goes on by day and through the silent watches of the night, and many a man, woman and child in this city can testify to the efficient and effective treatment they have received at the hands of the district nurses, whose reports are given below. It is in a class with the work that is being carried on by the Red Cross organizations on the battlefields and its object is to save life, as well as to prevent the spread of disease.

Rev. Father Phelan, president of the Association, presided. Father Phelan, during the course of a few brief remarks, expressed the hope that once the work was under way for the ensuing year, the citizens would respond, and that the City Council would not be lacking in liberality towards the Association.

Secretary's Report.

Dr. G. S. Cameron, secretary of the Association, presented his report, which contained the following:

The year 1916 has seen the completion of another twelve months' work of the Peterborough Health Association, and when we take into consideration the disturbed conditions under which we are living in consequence of the war, I think we are justified in saying that the year, on the whole, has been a successful one. To have carried the work of such an Association through at all should be a matter of congratulation to those who are interested in its operations. Fortunately, at our last annual meeting we had elected a number of ladies and gentlemen as members of our Executive who have shown a sincere desire to promote the welfare of the Society. With the able assistance of the President, Rev. Father Phelan, we have had regular and well-attended executive meetings. Early in the year the Executive waited upon the City Council and made a request for assistance to the extent of $100 per month, but unfortunately for our Society, the City Fathers were unable to do better than continue the fifty dollar grant which they had been giving monthly during the previous year. Appeals have been made to the public in various ways, from which sums of money have been received, and this amount, together with that received from the ladies of the Nurses' Supervision Committee, has enabled us to carry our work through to the end of 1916; and here we wish to draw to your attention the splendid work of the ladies, who carried through the successful reception recently held at the Empress Hotel, and their splendid work, as I above intimated, on this occasion enabled us to close the year free from any encumberances.

The Nurses' Supervision Committee have met regularly, and from their report you will see that their work has been very thoroughly carried on. I think I can say that no request coming to their notice has gone unanswered.

UNION BANK OF CANADA.

The solidity and business healthiness of the Union Bank of Canada are a compliment in fact to the proverbial character of the name—union is strength. Its annual statement to be found in another column, reveals remarkable features—a twenty per cent. increase in assets and an addition of eighteen and a half million dollars to the bank's business in a single year. In 1914 the assets of the bank totalled $81,561,850, in 1915 they grew to $90,699,000 and in 1916 they reached the phenomenal figures of $109,000,000, an increase in one year of, in round numbers, nine millions, or 20 per cent., and of over eighteen millions or 38 per cent. in the two years. For 1916 the non-interest bearing deposits showed an increase of more than eight millions and the interest-bearing an increase of nine and a half millions. The bank's strength in liquid assets, amounting to about 56¾ millions enables it to take a prominent part in rendering important services to the Canadian and Imperial governments in the matter of financing the munitions production business, as shown by its enormously increased holdings of Canadian municipal securities in British, foreign and colonial public securities, the total now amounting to fourteen and a half millions, as against only $895,850 a year ago. Though the bank's big volume of assets are at the present time not unusually productive, yet the year's profits, after the usual deduction and payments to pension funds, war taxes and patriotic grants permitted the payment of the regular dividend and bonus totalling 9 per cent. The Union Bank of Canada may be regarded as prosperous as it is solid. It has maintained its dividend and bonus through the war, kept up its Pension Fund appropriations, made full provision for taxes, donations and depreciation and contingent account, all out of current profits and still has a profits balance larger than at the end of 1915.

HISTORY REPEATED.

The death of George Dewey, Admiral of the United States Navy, not only marks the passing of a great naval commander, but suggests retrospect and comparison, altogether apart from his high character as a sea soldier. He is called "the hero of Manilla Bay" from his eminent share in the naval battle of that name in the Spanish-American war. And, though a great New York journal (The Herald) describes it as "one of the most brilliant successes of modern warfare," this broad characterization, especially in view of the tremendous slaughter of the present war, is considerably modified by the fact that the same journal, in its revival of the battle story, concludes it by the naive statement that "the Americans escaped without the loss of a single life, and only eight of them were wounded," a casuality list that recalls that of the opening battle of the great Civil War.

Apart, however, from its decisive share in promoting the victory of the United States in the Spanish-American war, the significance of the battle of Manilla Bay did not, and does not, consist in the brilliancy or the bloodlessness of naval achievement, but in the fact of the relative international spirit and attitude it revealed at the time, strikingly analagous to, and faithfully characteristic of, what they are in their essence in the repeated history of to-day.

In the spring of 1898 Germany showed the same insane international suspicion and jealousy; the same hatred of democracy, as represented by the greatest democracy of the world, as she is showing in both respects to-day. And Great Britain showed the same high regard for the principle; the same friendship for the United States that are the echoes of her national spirit and policy now. At Manilla Bay, on May-day, 1898, Germany showed herself the enemy of the United States; and Great Britain proved herself the friend of the United States—and a friend in need; for, if it had not been for the presence of the British fleet and for the British Admiral Chichester's threat to "clear his decks for action," there is no earthly doubt that the Commander of the German naval forces that had been rushed from further eastern waters would have attacked the United States fleet. Admiral Dewey would have had the Teutons on his back, and the destruction of the invalid Spanish fleet would not have been the walk-over it was.

Time—eighteen years—has not changed the relative spirit, temper, and attitude of Germany and Great Britain towards human liberty and its represented interests. In both cases history repeats itself.

ROWELL'S REVELATION OF BRITAIN'S WONDROUS WAR WORK

The following tribute to Britain's wondrous work in forces and finance was spoken to his hosts of the Empire Club, Toronto, yesterday, by Mr. N. W. Rowell, Liberal Leader:—

"There appears to have been some understanding between the powers of the Entente that if Germany forced a war on France and Great Britain decided to take part in it, her contribution would be the navy, and a small but highly trained expeditionary force of about 150,000 men to be sent to the continent to assist in war on the continent. There is no doubt that France, Russia and Great Britain felt reasonably confident that with this assistance from Great Britain, France and Russia would be able to meet the situation on the continent and defeat Germany and her allies. It may have taken Great Britain some time to realize Germany's strength, but before many months had passed Government and people alike came to the conclusion that a war with the Central powers could not be successfully prosecuted on the limited liability principle, and that it would be necessary for all the allied nations to put forth their utmost strength to bring the war to a successful conclusion. Great Britain, therefore, in the midst of the war, had to face the situation of changing her whole social and industrial organization from a peace footing to a war footing. That would be a most difficult task under any circumstances. It was a particularly difficult task, when, at the same time, she was withdrawing millions of men to form her new armies.

TASK OF THE NAVY.

"How far has she accomplished it? Look at the task of the British navy. The British navy has accomplished these great tasks so quietly and so effectively that the world has failed to appreciate to this day the magnitude of the service of the British navy to the cause of liberty and humanity. After you have provided for every ship that has gone down, the British navy is to-day fifty per cent. stronger in ships than when the war broke out. After you have provided for every gallant sailor who has lost his life, there are two sailors in the British navy to-day for every sailor when the war broke out. (Applause.) The navy has made victory possible in this war, and the continued command of the sea is the surest guarantee of ultimate victory for the allies.

GREATEST VOLUNTARY ARMY.

"Great Britain has raised by voluntary enlistment approximately four and a half millions of men for her army and navy; almost ten per cent. of the entire population. It is the greatest voluntary army ever raised, and the fact that such an army was raised by voluntary effort when no hostile foot had been placed upon Britain's shore is one of the finest possible tributes to the strength of dmocracy, and to the courage and virility of the British people. Since compulsory service has been adopted several hundred thousand have been added to the strength of the army, so that I think we are fair in assuming that up to this time not less than five million men have been called to the colours in both army and navy.

It became necessary to provide guns and munitions for an army of 5,000,000 men; it necessitated a change in the whole industrial and social organization of the country.

"In three weeks while I was in England, they were producing as much 18-pounder ammunition as they had produced in the whole year ending July, 1915. They were producing as much field howitzer ammunition in two years as they had produced in the whole of the previous year. (Applause.) They were producing as much medium-sized shell ammunition in eleven days as they had produced in the whole of the previous year. They were producing as many heavy shells in every four days of every week as they did in the whole year preceding the 1st of July, 1915. But Great Britain has not nearly reached her maximum of production.

HELPING HER ALLIES.

"To-day Great Britain, in addition to making provision for herself, is turning over to France one-third of all the all-shell steel sheet she produces. She is turning over twenty per cent. of her machine tool production for the benefit of the allies, and the production of machine tools is one of the most difficult problems to solve. She is largely supplying one of the most difficult problems to solve. She is largely supplying France and Italy with coal. Ship after ship of His Majesty's transport service is required for providing coal for her allies. Great Britain is also producing guns and munitions for Russia. She is largely producing for Belgium. There is a factory in Great Britain manned by Belgians, the whole output of which goes to the Belgium army to maintain it in the field.

A GREAT ACHIEVEMENT.

"She made a most important contribution to refitting and rearming the Serbian forces, and we will not know until the war is over the exact amount of the assistance she has rendered to Italy. To accomplish all this in a little over two years, and to have raised for her army and navy approximately 5,000,000 of men, is, I venture to think, an achievement unparalleled in human history, and is convincing proof of the virility and courage of the British people. (Loud applause.)

"More ammunition was transported to France last summer than had been handled in twenty-eight years before the war broke out, including the South African War. They handled more ordnance stores in the first year of the war than in the twenty-eight previous years.

"It is difficult for us to appreciate the magnitude of the undertaking involved in enlarging the Army Medical Service to meet the present conditions.

FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE.

"The original financial war measures were really a stroke of genius. It was a miracle how Great Britain was able to save the financial credit of the world in those early days. It is no less a miracle how Britain has carried the financial burden of the war.

"How has Great Britain been able to make this gigantic expenditure? She is raising far more money by taxation than any other nation at war. She is doing more to pay her own way than any other nation at war. She is the one nation which, by taxation, is really conscripting wealth, and is requiring the wealth of the country to bear a very large share of the burden of the war. Her income the year before the war was £900,000,000. In 1915-16 by reason of increased taxation she raised £907,000,000, and her estimated income for 1916-17 is £502,000,000.

TAXING THE RICH.

"One most important source of income is a profits tax. Many of the rich people who have large incomes are paying no less than 6s 6d on the pound (one-third) by way of taxes, and the general opinion is that, while the super-tax which has been imposed purely for war purposes may be removed when the war is over, practically the whole of this taxation will remain.

"Great Britain must not only carry her own financial burdens and provide her own munitions to carry on this war, but it is certainly believed that she is guaranteeing the purchases of her allies in neutral countries, and that she is practically financing Serbia and Belgium. She is bearing a financial burden unparalleled in history, and is doing it without murmur or complaint. But for the financial obligations which she has assumed and the financial assistance which she has given her allies this war would long since have ended in disaster.

WAR NOT ENDED.

"Those who talk about the old land being effete and of her people having lost their vitality should see what is going on in her factories and shipyards, her armies at the front, and her navy upon the high seas; in her banking houses and in her merchant marine. But the war is not yet ended. Everything must bend to the one supreme object—a just peace—which shall include restoration, reparation, and satisfactory guarantees for the future, and in that Canada has a noble part to play." (Loud applause.)

CONSCRIPTION.

Conscription's coming sure as pop!
Are you the one they'll have to stop
In the middle of the street? and say,
Hold on! Your feet won't take you far away
We've got conscription here to-day.

Aha! my lad, you're nicely caught
Whether you tried to shirk or not,
You've got to go or else be shot;
Is this performance going to pay?
Not much! You'd best enlist to-day.

(You) say, aw go on that don't mean me;
Well; you just wait and see,
It won't be you that's referee.
Oh; no, you'll have to go and fight;
Conscription's just what makes things right.

"I FEEL LIKE A NEW BEING"

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Brought The Joy Of Health After Two Years' Suffering

MADAM LAPLANTE

35 St. Rose St., Montreal. April 4th.

"For over two years I was sick and miserable. I suffered from constant Headaches, and had Palpitation of the Heart so badly that I feared I would die. There seemed to be a lump in my stomach and the Constipation was dreadful. I suffered from Pain in the Back and Kidney Disease.

I was treated by a physician for a year and a half and he did me no good at all. I tried "Fruit-a-tives" as a last resort. After using three boxes, I was greatly improved and twelve boxes made me well. Now I can work all day and there are no Headaches, no Palpitation, no Heart Trouble, no Constipation, no Pain or Kidney Trouble and I feel like a new being—and it was "Fruit-a-tives" that gave me back my health".

DOCTORS ADVISE IRON FOR THE BLOOD

Anaemia, pale faces, nervousness, stomach troubles, watery blood, etc., are sure signs of thin blood. Dr. Malcolm says he can take any of these cases and cure any one of them in ten days by giving them for the blood, and Phosphorus for the nerves, "called Bonised Phosphorus with Iron." I have found that 99 per cent. of all stomach, liver, kidney, bowel, nerve, etc., troubles are traced right back to the blood. Just as soon as Bonised Phosphorus with Iron is given it is almost immediately absorbed by the system the blood taking the iron while the nerves are assisted by the phosphorus, making you eat better, feel better, look better, digest better, and finally you will be made 100 per cent. stronger. Do not be taking all sorts of patent medicines and laxatives which only ruin your system; go to the root of the trouble and start taking Iron and strengthen your blood, restore your nerves, and your digestion and will recharge your whole system with new life. Bonised Phosphorus with Iron is dispensed by any druggist in each city. F. C. Huber dispenses it for Peterboro.

ROUMANIAN PICTURES

The Boy Scout of Bucharest

(By a Correspondent)

I have never seen boy scouts so numerous or so busy. The whole boy population of the town seems to have been enrolled. Their ages run up to fifteen; some look older than that.

They have added a national and at the same time a theatrical touch to the scout uniform by wearing a broad red sash around the waist. This gives them an air Buffalo Billish or piratical. They mostly wear caps, too, instead of the wide-brimmed, upturned scout hat.

But although they have not the trim, sober appearance of our boy scouts in England, they would gladden Sir Baden Powell's heart by their activity in all kinds of employments which have been found for them by the authorities since Roumania came into the war.

I first made the acquaintance of a Roumanian boy scout at a railway station between the frontier and the capital. In despair of getting any food in the buffet, filled by a raging throng, I was trying to extract nourishment from an "automatic." Up came an urchin in khaki, and with the polite magnificence of a floor-walker in a fashionable department store, told me the machine which I was angrily shaking had been closed as a German enterprise, and led me off to another, still yielding up tablets of gritty chocolate and sweet biscuits that turned to dust in the mouth. He and his comrades appeared to be in charge of the railway station, and very capably they managed the job.

Here in Bucharest one sees them all day long, tearing up and down the narrow streets on bicycles with messages; riding in cabs beside mountains of all sorts of hospital necessaries which they have been commissioned to buy; mounted on motor lorries with soldiers, to whom they are acting as guides. Numbers of them are employed by the Red Cross. Others act as orderlies for the war department and other government offices, taking the place of mobilized men. At their headquarters, which are in a prominent position close to the British Legation and the motor transport branch, there is a continual coming and going, an atmosphere of strenuous and fiery movement. A bomb fell close by, broke all the windows, smashed all the window panes. This only made the boy scouts more energetic. One of their number was blown to pieces in another part of the town. Not a whit was their energy slackened. They went about their business furiously an angry light in their eyes.

An important duty laid upon them is that of helping to warn the population when to expect death from the air. As soon as word is received that airships or aeroplanes have crossed the frontier the deep-toned bell of the cathedral is tolled; other church bells in different quarters of the town sound a quicker more alarming note, all the policemen on point duty blow their whistles, and the boy scouts are dispatched in all directions on bicycles, whistling and shouting to everyone to take cover. In the day time these precautions are of value— are necessary. At night they seem to increase the apprehension of the timid and try the nerves of the more phlegmatic.

Last night, after 60 hours of intermittent bombarding, we had an alarm about nine o'clock. This is the hour at which most people go to bed in these times of dark and empty streets. Accustomed to a night life which gave their capital the title of the Gayest City in the World, they now complain that there is nothing else to do. Hearing the clang of what Othello called the "frightful"—or was it "fearful"?—bells, and the lugubrious high wail of the whistles, quite distinct from the sharp, arresting sound of our police calls, they could not decide what to do, whether to undress as usual or wait until the attack was over. If your house is hit you cut a poor figure escaping in your night clothes. On the other hand, waiting up for the noise of the guns, and the inhuman, threatening beat, beat, beat of the airship motor, an dthe savage "whish" of the falling bomb, and the earth and the air shaking explosion which follows—this is not so comforting as lying in bed with the clothes pulled over your head and the possibility of falling asleep and forgetting all about it.

The Roumanians, for an excitable, volatile people, always at one extreme or another, are standing the ordeal by bombardment wonderfully calmly. Many of the shops have kept open all the time. In the intervals the streets have been almost as crowded as usual. It is amusing to see how quickly they are emptied when the alarm is given. One goes into any door that stands open. In the hotels people assemble in the hall. At night the scene is comical. Men in pajamas or dressing gowns sit and chat, or walk up and down with ladies in night attire. There is only a glimmer of light. It is impossible to get anything to eat or drink. Yet one finds that the "two o'clock in the morning courage," of which Napoleon deplored the rarity in a conversation with Las Casas, is not so rare after all. The hum of talk is subdued, certainly. It stops abruptly when a bomb is heard to explode, but it goes on again at once after the "Mon Dieus" and the "Oh, La, La's" have subsided, with ripples of stifled laughter from dark corners, and a resolve on almost everyone's part to be as cheerful as may be under difficult conditions.

It is nothing new, of course. Other cities have suffered in the same way. We have just had telegrams relating to a raid over London by three Zeppelins. We only suffer from one and yet there is a difference. Three into six millions of Londoners; result, one airship to each two million people. Here we have one to three hundred thousand people. This is a very little city you must recollect. And then we have aeroplanes in the day time, as well as the airship at night. Aeroplane bombs are not so powerful as those which are dropped from Zeppelins but they are powerful enough to have killed and wounded several hundreds of men, women and children going about their business in the sunny streets.

The first day the aeroplanes came they were gazed upon with curiosity. It was three o'clock in the afternoon. The streets were full, discussions went on. Were they our machines or German? The reply came quickly. Sixty persons blown to bits, twice as many injured—all in a few minutes.

What angers one most is the imbecile futility of it all. "On such a lovely day, too," said an English woman, looking sadly up at the sky, with not a cloud in it, after reflecting upon the massacre just recounted to her. That is how I feel. What sacrilege, what bestial waste of God's good gift of life, to stain the beauty of these glorious days, the peaceful splendour of these nights, with blood spilt so vainly, bodies maimed and torn, to no purpose whatever. Never let us or our descendants forget that it was the German, or to shake one by the hand. Let us think of it whenever we are tempted to do business with a German, ir to shake one by the hand, and let us turn from him in loathing and contempt.

I think the boy scouts of Bucharest may be trusted to remember. I have heard many say here: "The Germans who had the greater part of the trade of Roumania in their hands are sure to come back. We Roumanians are too disdainful of trade to do our own business. We cannot keep them out." That is what tired, middle-aged men say, shrugging their shoulders. But young Roumania will have a word to say, I think and hope. It is not possible that the zeal and energy of these boy scouts can fade entirely away when they come to man's estate. They will remember, for they have seen, the horrors of the bombardment. Their word to the German will be "Never Again."

J. E. H.,

LITERARY RAMBLES

(By F. M. DELA FOSSE)

A short time ago I was talking to a gentleman from a small town many miles distant from Peterborough. He was a farmer, a man who had all his lifetime been engaged in agricultural pursuits. To all outward appearance he was as far removed from being a scholar as could possibly be imagined. Yet, that man had read as much as many who have had far greater advantages and his conversation showed that he had used discretion in his choice of literature.

He accounted for his liking for books by the fact that his mother had inculcated the taste in him at an early age and he had always resolved, no matter where his lot was cast, to keep up in the best way he could with the current thought of the day. In the course of conversation he enquired concerning the circulation in the Peterborough Library, also as to the quality of literature that found most favour with our readers and as to the class of people who indulged to the greatest extent in reading. I told him that fiction was certainly the most favoured branch of literature in ours as in all other libraries, that the mechanics were our best patrons and that they also undoubtedly chose the best books. "That is alright as far as it goes" he said "but do these men diversify their reading? Do they merely ask for books dealing with their particular trade or do they relax sometimes and go in for an occasional taste of fiction, or travel or history?" I was obliged to confess that so far as my observation went, the labouring man seemed almost entirely to devote himself to such books as dealt with the particular business in which he might be employed. "That is a great mistake," he said, "nobody can expect to get the same freshness and crispness out of life who keeps in the same old rut and does not wander afield to see what there is over the next hedge row. If I had taken that view of life, and, simply because I was a farmer indulged in nothing but treatises on agriculture and pored over the blue books that our provincial and Dominion governments so lavishly expend money on I would by this time have been no better than a clod and my vote would have been as valueless to my country as that of some benighted foreigner. The newspapers are really the greatest enlighteners of the age. It is from them that the ordinary individual who has no time to spare on an extended course of reading gets what smattering of knowledge he can, but nevertheless there are times when even the newspaper cannot supply one's requirements and it behoves one to turn to other fountains of knowledge for refreshment. But it is useless for one to say that he has no time for reading anything but the newspaper. Everyone has time. Sir Alexander Ball used always to have a book open before him on the dressing table,—Hogg, the Ettrick shepherd utilized the time spent on the moors in delving into all sorts of literature. "I have often thought," my friend went on, "that very few people realise the true value of reading. The great majority take to fiction for the sake of "killing time." I do not know of any expression in our language that I hate more than that. The idea embodied in it strikes me as absolutely devoid of common sense. Long years ago I read a saying of that wise old man, Benjamin Franklin, that has always remained in my memory. It was this: "If time be of all things the most precious, wasting time must be the greatest prodigality, since lost time is never found again." And I often think when I hear someone saying that he is doing so and so in order to kill time that he has not even begun to realise the value of life. If you can get your reading public to see that there are other branches of literature quite as interesting as fiction and far more profitable you will render a service to your whole community. Take, for instance, the vast amount of literature on Travel. Take again, Biography, History, Fine Arts. There is something in all of these subjects that one can never find in even the greatest novel. You know what Bulwer Lytton said about fiction? He said that there was a world of science necessary in choosing books. "I have known some people," he said "in great sorrow fly to a novel or the last light book in fashion." One might as well take a rose draught for the plague. Light reading does not do when the heart is really heavy. That was what Bulwer Lytton, himself one of the outstanding figures in fiction-writing of the last century had to say as to its value compared with the arts or the sciences. Personally, my friend went on, "my preference is for Biography. I never tire of reading all that there is to read concerning that great period of English literature, the 18th century. What wonderful names appear in that grand epoch. Swift, Pope, Bolingbroke Johnson, Congreve, Berkeley, Cobber, Savage, and the hundreds upon hundreds of others whose names cannot be placed on paper. Those were the days when literature was beginning to come into its own, although the man who produced it was often looked at askance. What great men there were. Boswell's immortal work tells us much of many of them but in order to get a satisfactory glimpse of those days we have to gather our knowledge from many sources. Isaac Disraeli's Calamities of Authors tells us much and his curiosities of Literature tells us much also. These are book that are rarely taken up in these day but it is well worth the time expended to read them and also to read the lives of other authors not named therein and see what manner of men they were who have helped to raise our literature to so sublime a height." This and much, my friend, imparted to me. I left him with many regrets. The hour that I had spent in his company had been a profitable and a pleasant one. F.M.D.

EDNA WALTON—Who plays "Judy" in "Daddy Long Legs."

Henry Miller has arranged to send his successful production of "Daddy Long-Legs" to the Grand Opera House on Saturday next, January 27. The play comes to this city stamped with the approval of success in New York, Chicago, San Francisco and other big cities of the United States. It holds a record of a year's run in New York, a twenty-five weeks' season in Chicago and a five-weeks' engagement in San Francisco, where no other play had prior to that been offered at the two-dollar scale of prices for an engagement longer than three weeks. At the same time it is a fact worthy of note that this city is to see Mr. Miller's most famous production while it is still in the first flush of its success. The stage story is a dramatization of the famous "Daddy Long-Legs" letters, which were written by Jean Webster, a niece of the late Mark Twain, and which were published serially by one of the big monthly magazines nearly four years ago. The success of the play is known to every theatre-goer in the United States, and it is only necessary to add that Henry Miller's production is worthy of the charming love story. The engagement here will be limited to one night and one Matinee performance. Mr. Miller is sending an excellent cast here, which will be headed by Edna Walton, and includes Albert Roscoe, Inita Varney, Marie Taylor, Viola Cain, Sue Van Duser, Perdita Hudspeth, Alfred Helton, Frank J. Kirk.

Market Report For the Week

Prices Have Held Steady Throughout the Week—Butter is Easier in Tone

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs appeared in Canadian Grocer this week:

Business in grocery lines has continued good during the week. Prices for the most part have held steady, with advances recorded in a number of lines. Flour is in firm market in the face of a steadiness in wheat and a disposition for the prices of the latter to hold within narrow margin. Demand for mill feeds of all kinds is keeping up well. Demand for flour from the mills is comparatively light at present. Some fairly heavy stocks were laid in by some some time ago, when the market was strong and advancing, and until these are worked off there is not expected to be a heavy demand. Reports from the Argentine about the damage to the grain crop there are confirmed, It is estimated the amount of wheat available from that source will be only in the neighbourhood of 1,000,000 tons as compared with 2,500,000 tons in a normal year.

Sugar Steady.

Sugar holds steady in a quiet market. Reports from Cuba continue to be favourable to a large production during the present campaign. Production is now well under way there, and the balance of the present month it is expected the price of sugar will hold firm, but slightly cheaper sugars are looked for during February, when all of the sugar centrals will be grinding on the Island. Butter is easier in tone, but eggs have again become firmer in price in the face of a heavier demand. Live hogs are higher in price with deliveries light. The higher costs of containers are operating to advance prices on many lines. Reports from molasses producing centres in the South indicate there will be a big crop of West Indian. Teas continue in a firm market with advances recorded in the primary market. Coffee is also in firm market with advances recorded in certain instances. One line of package cereals was reduced during the week.

One of the most notable advances in hardware lines during the week has been in cordage products, where an advance of one-half cent. to four cents a pound has been recorded. This advance was forecast in Hardware and Metal in the leading article of December 30 issue. Waste has also made a big advance. This was also mentioned previously in these columns as being highly probable. Other advances have been recorded in iron rivets and burrs, curry combs, scales, garden hose, trace chains, bifurcated and tubular rivets, oil stoves, lamp chimneys, machinery, steel, sleigh shoe steel, toe calk steel, horseshoe iron, crowbars, vises, clay and rock picks, pliers, pipe plate, dies and bushings, padlocks, cabinet locks. New prices have also been announced on electric weld chain. Gasoline and benzine have registered an advance of one cent per gallon. Linseed oil is in firm market and advances have been recorded in certain quarters. There is great difficulty being experienced by crushers in getting supplies of flaxseed forwarded. Some crushers are not looking for new trade under the conditions, but are only endeavouring to take care of their customers' needs.

CLEANSE THE LARGE INTESTINE

Present War Cry of Advanced Physicians

Some of the leading surgeons of the world have gone so far recently as to remove part of the Large Intestine in cases so serious as that of Tuberculosis and restored the patient to perfect health by so doing.

The New York Americas has recently said:

"During Constipation the poisons in the Large Intestine often become so great as to form a serious menace to health, and even to life. Through the walls of the Intestine they enter the blood and consume the healthy blood cells, impoverishing the blood, and if this process is continued long enough an acute poisoning is produced."

It is impossible under our present day mode of living for the Intestine to rid itself of all waste and it is easily proven that there is an accumulation, no matter how regular we are.

Drunk, if taken regularly, form a habit, but Internal Bathing by means of the "J.B.L. Cascade" cleanses the Lower Intestine its entire length with pure warm water and makes it clean, sweet and healthy.

At the same time it regulates the system and makes one feel that every function is working smoothly and naturally—and indeed this is so.

This letter will convey a message of good cheer to many:

Welland, Ontario.

Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell,
163 College Street, Toronto, Ont.:

Dear Sir,—We heartily endorse the "J.B.L. Cascade, as we find in our work that a loaded colon means a poisoned system, which, in turn, means filamentous construction of the animal muscles, against which our work is directed.

Anything helping us in gaining relaxation we consider a boon, both to ourselves and our patients.

Most sincerely,
Drs. Hosmer and Garland.

Over three hundred thousand are now enthusiastic users of the "J.B.L. Cascade," which is now being shown and explained at the Warne Drug Company's store. Ask or write now, while you think of it, to Chas. A. Tyrrell, M.D., 163 College street, Toronto, for free and interesting booklet, "Why Man of To-day is only 40 Per Cent. Efficient."

The Value of Brains

Business success is the result of a careful and proper combination of CAPITAL and BRAINS and the lives of such men are a valuable asset to every Company, and as such should be adequately insured.

In proof of above Elbert Hubbard consulted a New York Financier who agreed to take a Bond issue for $100,000 at par, provided he held a Life Insurance Policy on Mr. Hubbard's life for a like amount. Why? Because Mr. Hubbard's brains were the CHIEF ASSET of the "Raycrofters." His mind was the THINK FACTORY, and the product of the business was the direct result of Mr. Hubbard's ideas. With Hubbard alive success was reasonably assured, but with Hubbard gone his loan would not be considered for a moment.

John Wannamaker and his son Rodman carry large amounts of Business Insurance, because it strengthens their credit and banks are beginning to require it.

Have you ever SERIOUSLY CONSIDERED what YOUR POSITION would be should your FIRM or Partnership lose through DEATH the BRAINS that have been the means of bringing success to your Institution. For a small sum you can guarantee again such misfortunes.

THE SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA have already saved hundreds from misfortune and Calamity, and will also protect you.

Show Your Practical Sympathy with Slave-Raided Belgium

If ever Belgium needed sympathy—OUR sympathy—she needs it now! To the ravages of fire, sword and a savage, brutish soldiery, Germany has added deliberate, cold-blooded slave-raiding.

Over 100,000 Belgian workmen have already been snatched from their homes and taken into slavery in unknown places. The mothers, wives and children who beg for their release are driven back by the Huns in utter despair. Neutral protests have failed to change Germany's inhuman purpose, nor can the Allies free Belgian manhood until the Teutons are crushed.

But we can save the women and children through the neutral Belgian Relief Commission, which is feeding three million of them. We can express our indignation, and our sympathy with our Ally's wrongs, in a practical way, by giving more liberally than ever to the Belgian Relief Fund.

Make this a personal matter! Decide what you can afford to give, and send your subscriptions weekly, monthly or in one lump sum to Local or Provincial Committees, or

THE PETERBOROUGH RED CROSS SOCIETY COLUMN

In view of the general discussion as to the meaning of the new regulations for prisoners of war parcels and the constant questioning as to whether relatives or friends still have the privilege of sending parcels of food to the prisoners, the local Society thought it wise to write direct to Mrs. Rivers Bulkeley for definite information. In a letter just received by the Treasurer of the Society Mrs. Bulkeley says:

"It is still permissible for relatives residing in Canada to send parcels to Prisoners of War in Germany. These parcels, however, have all to come through this Department and be sorted and repacked by us. We therefore, hope sincerely that every little advantage will be taken of this new regulation and that most people will be content to send us the money and allow us to purchase parcels. I honestly think that this is the most satisfactory in every way."

In conclusion Mrs. Bulkeley states that the Society sends to all men a $1.75 and a $3.00 parcel on alternate weeks, so that we in Canada may indeed feel that our men are being well nourished and looked after, and may with an easier mind, fall in with the reasonable suggestion of those in charge of this work even though it does require a spirit of no small personal sacrifice on our part.

Recently cards of acknowledgment were received by the Treasurer of the Local Society from the following Prisoners of War: Ptes. Geo. Hutchinson, F. H. Evans, C. F. Davison, E. Crofts, B. Davison, Geo. Butcher, Lt. H. Rogers, Ptes. H. Godfrey, R. E. Dent, F. Le Barre, A. Pritchard, J. L. Davis, W. Larkman, Roland Miller, A Bensie, C. Oxford and A. Bartley. With the acknowledgment, Pte. C. M. Drummond has sent a snap-shot of 169 Squad, Depot 2 Statt gart.

All these cards are on exhibition at Payne's Drug Store so that any who are personally interested may see them there.

In the December Canadian Red Cross Bulletin in a report of Supplies and Stores, appears an item of peculiar interest to us in Peterborough. It is as follows:—"A recent letter from one of our Assistant Commissioner's overseas, states that the best packed consignment of fruit which he had seen came from Peterborough Ontario."

The following is the report of the Packing Committee of the Local Red Cross Society for December 1916.

January 1st.

Your Packing Committee report (23) twenty-three cases shipped to St. John, N.B., for December, containing the following:

280 pairs socks; 72 day shirts; 41 night shirts; 93 pairs pajamas; 36 dressing gowns; 364 sheets; 2572 towels.

FLORA H. DAVIDSON,
Convenor.

The six weeks' sewing campaign inaugurated by the local Red Rross Society, January third, has met with a general hearty response from the women of Peterborough. The sincere earnestness, with which the work has been entered into, is perceptible in the very atmosphere of the workroom, which is in every truth "a hive of industry." A more tangible proof, however, of the success of the effort is seen in the steady disappearance of the piles of material from the supply-table and in consequent growth of the piles of beautifully-made garments, which are ready for packing. On looking at these, one's mind unconsciously reverts to our wounded men in hospitals and dressing stations overseas, and one can readily imagine how welcome these garments must be to our wounded and convalescent soldiers and how materially they must add to their comfort.

Special Committee Considers Plans

gether with their equipment would likely cost $1400 and an additional one hundred dollars would be expended in cleaning the beaches and providing a little life saving apparatus. The caretakers could probably be secured at $35 a month and the expense of two caretakers for the season would likely be $250. The Playgrounds Association will have in the city this year four expert male and female supervisors who could be utilised for part of the time in teaching swimming. Sgt. Kidd of the City Police Force and a man from the Fire Dept. could likely be used for this same purpose. The salaries of the playgrounds supervisors should be met in part by receipts from bathing houses if their services are to be used as swimming instructors.

It is thought, however, that to give the movement a good start, the Council should give an appropriation of at least $2,000 to cover the expense of the buildings, equipment and making some provision for the supervision. If the buildings mentioned are obtained, the plan would be to follow the same methods employed in other cities by collecting a small rental for the use of the private dressing rooms, bathing suits and towels. It is thought that several hundred dollars per season would be obtained from these sources which would go a long way towards paying the expense of the supervisers.

It is the opinion of the leading citizens who are interested in the project that when the Council take up the matter of public bathing seriously, that proper provisions must be made; no half way steps would be advisable. The buildings must be attractive in appearance and in every day adapted to the purpose for which they are intended. It would be the greatest folly to put up any kind of structures unless they could be properly supervised for the effort is to guard the morals and safety of the young people in every possible way.

C. N. Meserve, Chairman,
Mrs. W. R. Morris, Secretary,
Playgrounds Committee on Public Bathing.

NERVOUS DISORDERS

Are Promptly Cured by the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

If your hand trembles or is unsteady it is a sure and early sign that your nervous system is at fault. The trouble if not taken in time will develope slowly to a worse stage, and there is no person more to be pitied than one suffering from nervous trouble. You feel unaccountably weak after exertion, lose flesh, turn against food, and suffer palpitations and indigestion after eating. Sometimes sharp pains shoot down your spine and legs, and often neuralgia robs you of your sleep at night. These are some of the troubles that indicate the presence of nervous disorders. If they are neglected they result in a complete nervous collapse, sometimes in paralysis. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have won a great reputation in curing all forms of nervous diseases. The nervous system depends entirely upon the blood supply for nourishment. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually increase the supply of rich, red blood; feed, strengthen and tone the nerves, enabling them to perform their functions and dispel all signs of a breakdown. Mrs. B. Wainlott, Beaver Bank, Nova Scotia, says: "I was sick, run down and awfully nervous. The slightest noise would startle and annoy me. I suffered pains around the heart and every particle of color left my face and hands. I always felt tired and slept poorly at night. I was so poorly that my friends thought I would not recover. I tried many medicines but they did not help me. Then I read of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and decided to drop all other medicines and try them. It was fortunate that I did for in the course of a few weeks I found them helping me. I continued taking the pills for some weeks longer and they completely cured me. I earnestly advise every weak woman and girl to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial and I am sure that they will not be disappointed."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., of Brockville, Ont.

PRUDENTIAL HISTORY RECORDS BIG GAIN

Newark, N.J., Jan. 19.—More than $391,000,000 of paid-for life insurance was issued by The Prudential Insurance Company of America in 1916, and at the lowest expense-rate in Prudential history, according to the forty-first annual figures of the Company, read yesterday by President Forrest F. Dryden at the opening session of an international business conference of Prudential field representatives, held here. This issue, Mr. Dryden explained, represents a gain in insurance in force of over $283,000,000.

President Dryden also stated that The Prudential now has 15,000,000 policies, representing a total of over $3,000,000,000 insurance in force, continuing The Prudential, although one of the youngest, as the second company in the world in this respect. Since its organization in 1876 Mr. Dryden stated The Prudential, recently mutualized, has paid a total of over $408,000,000 to its policyholders, including more than $28,750,000 not called for by the policy contracts. These payments in 1916 alone totaled $47,278,000, covering an average of 550 claims every working-day of the year.

Although The Prudential writes insurance only in the United States and Canada, it has paid 1,184 war claims for a total of $384,000.

It is the first time in thirteen years that The Prudential has called its men in from all over the United States and Canada for a general conference with Home Office executives, and it is believed, the gathering, which will last three days, will result in much good to the agency force.

The Conference will be almost a continual session at the Home Offices here, and will be broken by a dinner to-morrow night at the Hotel Biltmore, in New York. At the dinner New Jersey's newly-elected Governor, Walter E. Edge, and Jesse R. Phillips, Insurance Commissioner of New York, George M. LaMonte, Insurance Commissioner of New Jersey, Richard V. Lindabury, General Counsel for the Company, and Austen Colgate, trustee for Prudential policyholders, will be the speakers.

SUCCESSFUL ANNIVERSARY CONCERT OF THE GEORGE STREET SUNDAY SCHOOL

Great success attended the anniversary concert last night in George street Methodist church, and an enthusiastic audience greeted the Rev. Mr. Pearson back into his old place. The Rev. Mr. Peever, who was chairman of the evening, spoke of the natural deep feeling of a pastor on returning to his old place, and on behalf of the audience welcomed him heartily back. Mr. Pearson replied to the pastor briefly, thanking the congregation for their welcome. He spoke of his deep emotion on coming back to the congregation, which was doubly dear to him, he having lived here as a boy when his father was pastor of the George street church before him. It was from Peterborough he was first called to the church, and on Mr. Dumble's recommendation as a suitable candidate for the ministry, he entered. He spoke of his gratified surprise on 18 years later being called to Peterborough. He spoke with deep feeling of his connection with the Sunday school, which he said, was dearest to him, of the splendid services of Mr. S. Armstrong as superintendent, also of his connection with the Junior League, which he started, of his three boys, former students of the George street school, all of whom are on active service, Leslie in Salonika, Marmaduke and the youngest boy in France.

Selections by the orchestra were very much appreciated and were followed by a violin solo beautifully rendered by Miss Telgaman, by a solo by Mr. Lee, whose voice is an acquisition to any musical gathering. Mr. Bruce Hamilton's Sunday school class, in the uniform of boy scouts, gave a drill which showed great care in preparation. The feature of the evening, however, was "The Making of Canada's Flag," a cantata carefully prepared and staged by Mr. Renwick and Mr. Chas. Parsons. In this representatives from South Africa, '66, Ireland, Scotland and England were heard, also Laura Secord in 'The Spirit of Long Ago.' Mrs. Middleton, who represented Canada, carried off the part in the manner of a professional, her solos being greatly enjoyed.

The evening closed with the singing of God Save the King.

Colds or Cough SHOULD NEVER BE NEGLECTED

If They Are, Some Serious Lung Trouble Are Sure To Follow

A cold or cough, if neglected, will sooner or later develop into some sort of lung trouble, so we would advise that you get rid of it before it becomes settled. For this purpose we know of nothing to equal Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. This preparation has been on the market for the past twenty-five years, and has always given universal satisfaction.

Mr. Erwell Bolton, Wilton, Ont., writes: "Last winter I was caught in a storm and had to stay in a barn all night. I caught a severe cold which several medicines failed to cure. I went to some of the best doctors but these failed to do me any good. A friend advised me to use Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I used three bottles and they gave me instant relief."

When you ask for "Dr. Wood's" see that you get the genuine, put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, and bearing the name of The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. Price 35c and 50c.

Dog Smells Smoke, Rouses Families

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Carefully nursing a burned back and tail, but surrounded by luxuries in the form of porterhouse steak and dog biscuits, Nigger, whose pedigree makes him just dog, and who barked a fire warning that saved the lives of a score of persons in the five storey tenement at No. 85 Old Broadway, appeared to be little the worse for his experience. The fire occurred early in the morning, and Nigger was asleep in the cellar. The smoke awakened him and he began to bark. Francis Arm, janitor of the tenement and master of Nigger, was awakened.

Assisted by Benjamin Wagner and Frederick Gaul, second floor tenants, Arm went through the building sounding the warning and aiding families to get to the street by way of the fire escape and stairs. Nigger worked in all parts of the house. On the top floor were the families of Wm. Corcoran and James Rogers. Each has six children. Arm and Policeman Manly, of the West 125th street station, carried the twelve down the fire escape. The damage to the building was estimated at $4000.

After the fire Nigger was found in a bundle of rags in the cellar. His burns were attended to by the tenants and his future looks very bright.

MR. H. B. SHAW IS NEW GENERAL MANAGER OF UNION BANK

After seven years' service as assistant general manager, Mr. H. B. Shaw was named at the recent annual meeting as General Manager of the Union Bank, succeeding Mr. George H. Balfour, retiring.

Though still a young man, Mr. Shaw's experience covers every phase of banking in both Eastern and Western Canada. Since joining the branch at Quebec 25 years ago, he has been teller, accountant, branch manager, superintendent and assistant general manager, and while a comparatively young man to hold so responsible a position, he is peculiarly fitted to direct the affairs of this progressive bank, and continue the success achieved under the retiring manager, Mr. Balfour's service extends back almost to Confederation, as he joined the staff of the Union Bank forty-seven years ago. For over a quarter of a century he has been among the leading officials of the Bank, five years manager at Winnipeg, twelve years as manager at Montreal, and thirteen years as General Manager. Though he now drops active service, his experience and sound judgment will still be devoted to the Bank in his new capacity of Director.

In order to better handle the Bank's business between London, the United States and Canada, an agency is being opened in New York, with an advisory committee which includes Messrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Cornelius Vanderbilt and Gilbert G. Horne.

Capture of Neutrals Complicates The German Situation

United States Official Views With Grave Concern the Capture of Neutrals on Steamer "Yarrowdale" Which Was Taken into a German Port

A BIG PROBLEM

Examiner Special:
(By Chas. P. Stewart, Copyright 1917 United Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Danger of complications with Germany over marine problems seemed to the authorities to-day to be nearer than for months past. Her capture of neutrals and making them prisoners on the steamer Yarrowdale, plus the strong trend of German sentiment toward a wider submarine made these possibilities more ominous. The official German statement that the missing Yarrowdale, with more than 450 souls aboard has been "brought into harbour" as a prize with a number of neutral prisoners, gave rise to a graver concern than any thing that has happened in months of ups and downs of critical relationship.

This involves broad questions of armament, but even more so the infringement upon neutral rights by going so far as to make subjects prisoners of war. The whole problem is tied up also, with the peace situation

ANNUAL MEETING OF HEALTH ASSOCIATION

I am sorry to say that owing to ill health, Miss Mercier, one of our nurses, has been unable to attend to her duties for about half the past year. For this we are sorry and can only hope that she may be speedily restored to complete health. Miss Hamilton, our other nurse, stepped into the breach and, I am glad to say, has done a splendid work, putting forth her very best efforts to carry on the work of Miss Mercier, as well as her own, and from the report which Miss Hamilton will present to you this evening, you will be able to judge something of what she has accomplished.

The year on which we are entering presents the same difficulties as the one through which we have just passed. We think that with the same earnest attention on behalf of our Executive that we will be able to carry the work through in a satisfactory manner, even though we are compelled to be without the services of on nurse.

Before closing this report I wish to express my sincere thanks to the President, for his courteous and ever ready assistance to me, the Secretary, and also to ask your thorough cooperation for the year 1917.

District Nurses' Report.

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen,—I beg to submit the following report for the year 1916:

During the year 1916 there were one hundred and eighty-seven patients:

Obstetric	38
Surgical	46
Medical	103
Total	187

Which had to be visited once or twice a day, making two thousand and fifty visits in all. Five hundred and forty-eight were paid for by the patients themselves, making the sum collected one hundred and thirty-seven dollars. One thousand, five hundred and two were free visits.

The following dressings have been supplied by the Association for the free patients:

250 grs. morphine; 30 yards of sterile gauze, 13 packages absorbent cotton; old linen; adhesive plaster; bandages; lysol; Tr. green soap; Olive oil.

The work has been aided by the following donations:

Clothing, Mrs. W. J. Green.
Clothing, King's Daughters.
Old linen, Mrs. Gallivan and Mrs. Mowat, and Mrs. Davidson.
Magazines, Mrs. Matthews.

I have been called on fifteen times for night duty.

In studying this phase of nursing many questions and problems occur. Perhaps the first question that arises is: how does care received by a patient in the district differ from that received by a patient in hospital or private house? When it is possible to train a helper in the home to give care in my absence, there is practically no difference for in the average home, there is usually some one who can be taught to assist in the nursing. Of all the departments of nursing, district work has the greatest opportunity for doing good, that it is the most depressing work in the profession no one will dispute.

I was called to nurse a baby six months old. When I first attended it, it weighed six and one-half pounds. The child cried and whined almost incessantly while awake and was so wasted that the limbs resembled those of a bird and the fat entirely disappeared from the body. The treatment prescribed by the doctor was faithfully carried out and proper food given. In four months' the baby weighed sixteen pounds.

I was called to a home where the father on account of ill-health, had not been able to work for two years. It was a case of carcinoma of the throat. The Association supplied morphine and two quarts of milk daily for three months.

A girl aged eight years: Nurse was attending her mother, who was ill. She coughed quite frequently and complained of a pain in her side and was attending school. The nurse asked permission to have her taken to the doctor. He examined her and found she had pleurisy in her right side; medicine was provided for her by the Health Association and she is now in good health.

These are just three cases, which occur daily, but they show to some extent that life is being saved, which is so necessary during this period of destruction.

EDITH HAMILTON.

In the absence of Miss Mercier, who, owing to illness, has been unable to continue the work for the past six months, the following report was presented by Miss Hamilton:

The following report is submitted for the year 1916:

During the year Miss Mercier had twenty-nine tubercular patients under supervision, six of which required daily treatment, a number being under observation and a number convalescing. It will be a matter of great pleasure to the members of the Association to know that a number of the tubercular patients have made great progress towards recovery

Nineteen dollars have been collected for services rendered and the following supplies have been given out: Six sputum cups, five hundred and sixty refills, carbolic acid, a large quantity of old linen, comforters and clothing.

The following articles have been loaned: Ice caps, 3 rubber rings, thermometers, head rests, mattresses two tents, a verandah chair, verandah curtains, cots, etc.

Nine hundred and forty-seven visits have been made in all, Miss Mercier making 539 and Miss Hamilton, the general nurse, who relieved for six months, making 408.

Supervision Committee.

Mrs. Scott gave a verbal report of the Nurses' Supervision Committee. During the year nineteen families have been supplied with milk, and twelve families with eggs. Thirty-eight dollars was expended for drugs etc.

Mr. G. W. Powell expressed his appreciation of the very efficient work of the Nurses' Supervision Committee, and also that of the district nurses. He regretted the enforced absence of Miss Mercier but stated that he had received word to the effect that she would be well enough to return to her work in a short time. Dr. Cameron concurred in the commendation of Mr. Powell, and said he hoped it would not be long before the Association would be on the same footing as before Miss Mercier was taken ill. He looked forward to greater activity in the future especially during the reconstruction period that was bound to follow the war.

Executive Committee

The following Executive Committee was elected—Rev. Father Phelan, Dr. Cameron, Mr. W. H. Dunsford, Dr. Neal, Dr. Mann, Dr. Gallivan, Mr. E. F. Mason, Mr. R. Denne, Mr. U. C. Abbott, Mr. G. W. Powell, Mr. E. A. Peck, Mrs. J. A. Aylmer, Mrs. James Kendry, Mrs. W. H. Denham, Mrs. Scott, Mrs. Coulthard, Mrs. Gardiner and Mrs. Nelson.

A donation of one hundred dollars from Mr. James Kendry was reported by Mr. Dunsford. Mr. Kendry was unanimously voted a life member of the Association. This makes the second life member of the Association. The other one is Mrs. (Dr.) Burnham.

A canvas will be made during the month for further donations with which to carry on the work.

The thanks of the Association was extended to the Press.

The executive committee will meet on Monday next at five o'clock in the Bank of Montreal Chambers for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year.

WINTER HARD ON BABY

The winter season is a hard one on the baby. He is more or less confined to stuffy, badly ventilated rooms. It is so often stormy that the mother does not get him out in the fresh air as often as she should. He catches cold which racks his little system; his stomach and bowels get out of order and he becomes peevish and cross. To guard against this the mother should keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house. They regulate the stomach and bowels and break up colds. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally If You Eat Meat Regularly

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

Defence and Foreign Affairs

The question of the more direct and definite organization of the Empire and the relations of the outlying Dominions to the central power have long occupied, and are still occupying, the attention of thoughtful men. The feeling is acute in some parts that the Dominions should have a larger share in questions of defence and foreign affairs—be made active instead of sleeping partners in the counsels of the Mother Country. It is argued that the present duty is to save the Empire before considering its re-organization; but it will do no harm to discuss the subject and prepare the way for a change in inter-imperial relations that seem to be inevitable.

To the discussion of the subject Mr. E. A. Lash, K.C., LL.D., contributes something valuable and thought producing in his "Defence and Foreign Affairs," a book issued by the MacMillan Co., Limited, Publishers, Toronto. In discussing the subject suggestively as the subtitle modestly states, Mr. Lash has shown all the eminent qualities that fit him to deal with an imperial subject imperially—wide experience of legislation, ripe legal knowledge, clearness of mind, trained logic of reasoning, breadth of outlook, and a large imperial spirit. In ten short and pithy chapters Mr. Lash discusses the various phases of the subject in a thoughtful way that cannot fail to appeal to thoughtful men. Not content with theoretical consideration of the subject of interimperial relations, Mr. Lash sets the example of providing ways and means. In an appendix he furnishes a draft of an "agreement" between Great Britain and her overseas Dominions to constitute a central authority with respect to "Defence and the Foreign Affairs of the Empire."

Mr. Lash's book is well worthy of reading even though the reader may not agree with all his reasonings and conclusions.

Keep your eye on the humble man. Perhaps he is lying low for the purpose of humbling you.

Suffered With Heart For Ten Years

Would Nearly Smother

There is nothing that brings with it such fear of impending death as to wake up in the night with that awful sense of smothering. The uncertain and irregular heart action causes the greatest distress of both mind and body.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are the only remedy that can give prompt relief and effect a complete cure in cases of such severity.

They strengthen and invigorate the heart, so that it beats strong and regular, and tone up the nervous system so that the cause of so much anxiety becomes a thing of the past.

Mrs. M. O. McCready, Wapella, Sask., writes: "I am not much of a believer in medicines, but I feel that it is only right for me to let you know what your wonderful remedy has done for me, and in a very short time, too. I had suffered terribly with my heart for nearly ten years, could scarcely do any work, and would nearly smother at times. I had many remedies, some only relieving me for a time. I got a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and felt so much better that I kept on using them, and can truthfully say I feel like a new woman.

"I would advise anyone with heart trouble to use them."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c, or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

SUNDAY SCHOOL ATTENDANCE AFFECTED BY THE WORLD WAR

Annual Meeting of the Murray Street Baptist Sunday School—Twelve Names Added to the Roll of Honour —A Number of Reports Submitted.

At the annual meeting of the Murray Street Baptist Sunday School, this week, the following report for the year 1916 was read by the Secretary:

Mr. Wearing, teachers and officers, —The past year has been one of trial. Trial to our physical resources and trial to our financial resources. We have, all of us, felt the hot breath of the giant flames from the world's crucible of war, and every phase of our lives has been penetrated by its influence.

In reviewing the work of the past year in our Sunday School we are all prepared to find that it, too, has been affected. We do not expect to hear reports of large results and high averages, such as have been associated with previous years, but rather by noting how much, in spite of all, that God has accomplished through us, we may with renewed courage and greater zeal face the year that is now before us.

Attendance Records.

In looking over our attendance records, we see how like the barometer it has responded to the influences that surround us. The number on the roll at the beginning of 1916 was about 300, but we find that in spite of the active efforts of the school it has shrunk to about 280. This can be checked up by reviewing the records of those who have joined our school during the year and those who have left. We find that we have received 55 new scholars into our school during 1916, but due to members enlisting, removal from the city or other unavoidable reasons we have lost during that time a membership of 76, thus showing a net loss of 21. But in considering the average attendance per Sunday of the scholars during 1916, in the light of this reduction, we are pleased to note the evident increase in regularity of those we still have with us. During 1915, year before last, we recorded an exceptionally high average of 213, but that high mark was mostly influenced by the high average gained during the first six months of the year. The average for the last six months of that year, we find, was 187.8, and when we compare that average with our average for the past year of 187.6 and take into account the greatly reduced membership we certainly have cause for encouragement, in thus noting how loyal has been the support of our scholars, teachers and officers during the year that has passed.

A Record.

This can be even more clearly seen in the individual attendance records of our scholars. During 1915 three of our scholars maintained a record of 100 per cent. for the entire year, that is, they were present every Sunday in the year on time. But during the past year, 1916, no less than seven of our scholars reached that high mark. These are Miss Bessie Elcome, Miss Alice Hardwicke, Miss Bessie Hardwicke, Olive Doughty, Harry Doughty, John Ward and Willie Ward. The following are eleven more that came almost as high: Fred Ward 97.5 per cent.; Mary Eastwood, 96.9; Amy Rathbone, 96.1; Daisy Webber 95.7; Mamie Collins, Garfield Anderson, Miss Walsh, Mr. Airriess and Mrs. Hetherington 95.5, and Grace Read and Bollie Doughty, 95 per cent. Then, in addition, there are twelve more that obtained over 90 per cent., and twenty-six that obtained over 80 per cent., making a total of 56 scholars who during the year, maintained an average in attendance and punctuality of 80 per cent. or over.

But while these have shown clearly their loyalty to our school, we have others whose names we will never forget, who have shown a greater loyalty, and with the greater loyalty a much greater sacrifice by their response to the call of their country.

More Names Added.

We have added twelve more names to our Roll of Honour during the past year, making, with the twenty-three who have gone before, a total of 35 of our active members who have enlisted. Those whose names we have recorded during the past year are as follows:

Gerald Stenton, Wilbert Yelland, McGregor Smith, Donald Smith, Percy Ward, Vincent Eastwood, Mr. Sidney Jolliffe, J. Elliam, Arthur Lewis, Charles Richardson, George Collins, Alfred Armstrong.

During the past year we have held three special Sundays: Easter Sunday, April 23nd; Mothers' Day, May 14th (second Sunday), and Rally Day September 24th. On Friday, July 21, we held our annual excursion. We chartered the Steamer Stoney Lake, for the full day, and took a trip to South Beach and around the Lakes. On Friday, December 29th, we held our annual Christmas tea and entertainment. After an abundant repast the scholars were entertained in the school auditorium by lantern views, followed by an excellent programme. During the evening the classes took the opportunity of subscribing a cash gift to some benevolent object, and $24 was raised, half for the Belgian Relief Fund and half to the Poor Fund of the Church.

Now that we have been permitted to look forward to another year of service for our Master may we remember our privilege and strive to earn His "Well Done".

Respectfully submitted.
(Signed) WILMOT BROWETT, Secretary.

A SPLENDID WAY TO REDUCE ONE'S WEIGHT

There is, perhaps, no one thing that shows the passing of our youth so much as the horrible tendency of some of us to put on too much weight after we have reached the age of 25 or 30. However young our face may appear, our figures "give us away".

The cause of this over-greatness is that our stomachs convert the food we eat into fat because there is not enough oxygen in the blood to produce a proper combination to destroy the fatty tissue. To reduce your weight go to a good druggist and get oil of orlene in capsule form, and take one after each meal. It is sold only in original sealed packages. Oil of orlene taken at meal-time gives you all the benefit of the food you eat, and at the same time dissolves the fatty tissue from any part of the body where there is excessive fat. In this way many have reduced their weight at the rate of about a lb. a day, and no inhabitant is left.

Any druggist can supply you or a large size box will be sent on receipt of $1.00 by money order or registered letter. Goods will be sent in plain wrapper. Address D. J. Lituis Drug Co., Box 1240, Montreal, Canada.

Ave. Attendance George St. Sunday School Over 400

Eighty of Its Young Men Enlisted During the Past Year—A Page From the History of the Church

The present anniversary of the George street Methodist Sunday school with its forty-five teachers and average attendance of over four hundred, an exceptionally flourishing and progressive school, directs the imagination to other days of fewer classes and students, but of splendid faith and fervour. An idea of those early times at George street church is provided from a page of an old scrap book that recounts the incidents of the George street church picnic to Stony Lake in Sept. 1874 as follows:

"A most successful picnic and excursion came off on Wednesday last, the 2nd inst, in aid of the Building Fund of the magnificent new church now in course of erection. (The old church then occupied was on the west side of George street, opposite the present structure.) A special train, provided by the generous authorities of the Midland Railway free of charge, conveyed the excursionists to Lakefield; thence at half past nine they proceeded per steamer Chippewa to Mount Julian in Stoney Lake, remaining at that delightful watering place between three and four hours.

The leading spirits of the enterprise and expedition are the Rev. Charles Fish, our indefatigable superintendent minister, and the man of his right, W. Cluxton, Esq."

The writer then diverts to a description of the scenery of Stoney Lake, with which he was seemingly enraptured and concludes as follows:

"The Excelsior band, under the leadership of Mr. Walker, accompanied the excursion, and discoursed sweet music at intervals. Various choral harmonies were also performed by the George street choir. Mrs. Bradburn presided at the melodeon. It is expected that at least $400 will be realized by this excursion, but how much more good has been accomplished by it cannot at present be computed. Certain it is that mutual kindliness and sympathy, and fellowship and love has been promoted, whilst the cause of the new church has received a fresh impetus and inspiration. An enthusiasm begins to prevail and spread with reference to the new building now in course of erection to the honour of God's great name. As the noble pile ascends, a feeling akin to that which took possession of the Jews in the time of Solomon's temple, takes hold of the people, and they look on admiringly, approvingly as the stately proportions of the house and its architectural beauties are being more and more developed. May a worthy and noble ambition ever be the characteristic of this people, and may these children of a pious ancestry emulate the deeds of the past, and excel more and more in every good work and work."

This is indeed an inspiring and revealing voice from the past. Its prayer is answered in the reports of the succeeding anniversaries of which the latest presents a most encouraging condition. The average attendance of the Sunday school has been over 400 and eighty boys have enlisted during the past year. Nearly all the "teen" age boys are now taught by men, and the primary department has been broken up into groups of seven or eight instead of the former classes of forty. The school includes in its membership children of the cradle roll to some of the oldest adults. The teachers' training course conducted by Mr. E. Ingal of the Normal school with thirty teachers enrolled, has been of great assistance to the school. This anniversary, celebrated last night, finds the school with a total of 42 teachers all engaged every Sunday. The claims of the school for the interest of the entire church and for a greater membership are being pressed with increasing emphasis as the importance of the Bible study and training classes is more fully appreciated.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie Again President Of Fair Board

At the annual meeting of the Peterborough Industrial Fair directors this afternoon, the following officers were elected;

President—G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P.
1st Vice-Pres.—C. E. Moore,
2nd Vice Pres.—Jas. Baptie.
Geo.-Treas.—F. J. A. Hall.

Board of Directors—R. M. Glover, J. A. Storey, T. O. Gibbs, Wm. Roberts, E. J. Shaw, R. Denne, W. J. Cox, S. Milburn, T. H. Hooper, J. D. Ball, J. Gillespie, E. Duffus, A. B. Mann, T. Cruickshanks, F. Wise, C. F. Kitney, Thos. Brown, D. Jordan, Dr. Fortune, Reg. Turner.

Secretary Hall reported total receipts for the year of $7,220.84, and expenditure of $6,737.93, leaving a balance of $561.86.

The dates of the 1917 Fair were set for September 13, 14 and 15, and Mr. Gillespie, Mr. Glover, and Mr. Hall were appointed to negotiate a new lease of the present grounds.

Messrs. Brown and Roberts were named as delegates to the Ontario Association of Fairs' Convention.

Mr. Brown was appointed superintendent for this year.

A resolution of condolence to Mrs. J. J. Turner, Sr., was moved by Mr. J. H. Garbutt, seconded by Mr. A. B. Mann.

And many a man's reputation for truthfulness goes lame when he begins to say things about himself.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

PETERBORO' JUNIORS OUT OF THE RACE
LOST IN OVERTIME GAME TO OSHAWA

Most Exciting Game Staged at Brock St. Rink in Years Won by Visitors Who Scored the Winning Counter After 9 Minutes and 40 Seconds of Overtime.

FINAL SCORE WAS 8 TO 7

In the hardest fought battle seen at the Brock street rink in many moons, the Peterborough juniors were beaten 8 goals to 7 by the Oshawa youngsters last night after ten minutes of overtime, and the red, white and blue team are out of the running. Lack of hockey brains in their offensive work and Smith's grand performance in the nets for Oshawa cost the Petes the game. With any system in their attack in the second period, when they had Oshawa on the defensive for the entire twenty minutes, the local youngsters would have won out by three or four goals to spare. They whaled shots at Smith from all angles in that period, but in spite of all their efforts failed to score a single goal Half a dozen times a pass at the proper moment would have meant a counter, but as the Oshawa goaler remarked after the game, "they did not come in close enough." Everybody seemed to want to do the scoring, and the failure to pass threw away the game. In a word, the Peterborough kids forgot all Jerry Coughlin's coaching and each tried to play the game by himself. At they would have got away with it with a less capable goal guardian than Smith, who performed with veteran coolness and skill.

It was one grand game of hockey. The pace never slackened and the teams were out to the last ounce before it was all over. Oshawa led at the end of the first period by 5 to 4 and the figures remained unchanged throughout the second session. Peterborough tied it up early in the third, only to have Oshawa draw away again and with nine minutes to go Oshawa were leading 7 to 5. The Petes kept battling until finally they tied the score with a couple of minutes to go. It was 7-7 at the end of the hour, and the teams battled through the first overtime period and four and forty seconds of the second before Rowden won the game for Oshawa by a pretty rush..

The pace was fast all the way and the big crowd was wildly excited. The teams never stopped trying, and although both showed lack of team work there was plenty of individual stunts that kept the fans on their feet. In spite of the close checking and the exciting nature of the game, both played clean hockey, and the penalty list was small.

Three men were in the limelight for Oshawa, Smith the clever net guardian, Rowden, the tricky Port Hope boy at rover, and Venini, the chunky Italian lad at right wing. Smith's performance in the nets, especially in the second period, was magnicent. He nailed shot after shot, kicking them out from all angles, and although the Petes bombarded him continuously for almost the whole of the second session, they could not beat him. Rowden was the star of the rest of the bunch. He had speed and stick handling ability, and used his head when going in on the nets. His work kept Oshawa in the running in the third period and won the game for them in the overtime. Venini was good all the way and shone especially in the first period. These three players were head and shoulders above their team mates, although Flintoff, the centre man, was useful.

For the Petes, no one particularly monopolized the spot light. Murray, in spite of the fact that he was ill, handled himself nicely in the nets, earing off some good stops. McIntyre played his best game of the season and the first period especially seemed about the only Peterborough player able to break away, his rushes being responsible for several goals. Montgomery showed his usual speed, but was not as effective as usual, while the penalty he drew in the last minute of the overtime had a lot to do with the Petes' defeat. The forward line all tried hard, but showed no team work and Smith's goal keeping beat their individual efforts.

Oshawa		Peterborough
Smith	Goal	Murray
Osborne Feagan	Defence	McIntyre Montgomery
Rowden	Rover	Graham
Flintoff	Centre	Cherrett
Venini	Right Wing	McFee

Referee Whitehead got the teams away sharp at 8.15 on perfect ice. The game started at a furious clip with both sides working their heads off. Smith and Murray both had shots to handle within the first minute. Then McIntyre broke away, and on a pretty rush pulled the Oshawa defence out and slipped the rubber out to Cherrett, who registered. Oshawa tied it up three minutes afterwards, when Osborne got away alone and eluded the Peterborough defence for a nice counter. Fegan drew the first penalty of the game for slashing. Smith beat the Petes several times when they were right in, nailing a beauty from Cherrett. Finally, however, the Petes broke into the lead when Cherrett poked one past Smith on a scrimmage. Bartley made it 3 to 1 after a rush by McIntyre, and the Petes' chances looked bright However. Montgomery lost the rubber in trying to bring it out in front of his own nets and Swynyard batted in a goal. Venini tied it up when he slipped down the boards and beat Murray with a low side shot. The Italian lad came right back with another in the same way, and then Flintoff hammered one in, putting the visitors two to the good. McFee closed the gap when he took a pass from Graham and fooled Smith with a swift shot.

Just before the end of the period McIntyre was benched for tripping Rowden.

There was no score in the second period, although the Petes should have come out of the session three or four goals at least, to the good. They had ten shots to Oshawa's one in this stage and failed to register a single counter. They either shot from half way down the rink or else tried to stick handle into the nets and Smith got them either way. Oshawa only got away a few times in the period and with their opportunities the local kids should have won the game then and there. However, they refused to pass the puck and as a result Oshawa are group champions. McFee and Fegan drew five minutes for mixing it in this period and Bartley also drew a penalty.

The third period was very fast and exciting. With a goal needed to tie the score and twenty minutes to go, the Petes worked like beavers and had their reward when Bartley shoved one through in a scrimmage, tying the score.

A moment after, Montgomery was nailed on the ankle by a swift shot and the game was called to give him a chance to rover. When play resumed, Rowden broke away and scored on a pretty rush, putting Oshawa once more in the lead. A little later he repeated the play and the visitors were two to the good. Swynyard was hit in the face and had to retire, McFee bein dropped to even up. With only nine minutes to go, the Petes' chances did not look bright, but they threw everybody up on the forward line and took a chance of Oshawa breaking away. The tactics were successful, for Montgomery slammed a goal through from a scrimmage, and Bartley tied the score on a pass from Montgomery, and the count was even.. Neither team could find the nets again and it was a case of overtime.

After the ten minute rest, Whitehead sent them away again and the going was as hard as ever. The Petes still seemed to have the edge but could not slip one past the clever Smith. The first five minute period saw no score and it began to look as if the second period would be another blank, when with a minute to go Montgomerywas benched for foolishly putting a half Nelson on one of the visitors. The odd man advantage helped the Bradleyites, and Rowden broke up the game when he got away at centre and fooled Cherrett and McIntyre, going in close for the goal, that put the Petes out of the district race. G. A. GILLESPIE IN NEW YORK STATE

Delivers Address to Dairymen on Cheese Selling by Auction

The first important meeting of the Bureau of Farmers Institute of New York State was held this week at Gouverneur Street, Lawrence New York, under the authority of the New York State Department of Agriculture at which our local member G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P. was united to deliver an address. Mr. Gillespie attended these sessions at the request of the Ontario Department of Agriculture in response to a request from the New York Bureau to send a practical representative to address their body on the subject of "Cheese selling on the auction plan." It appears that cheese boards, as they exist in the Province are not conducted in the section of New York State where these meetings were held and information on the subject was desired from some Ontario expert, prominent as a cheese buyer.

Mr. Gillespie being fully conversant with the subject and being an extreme cheese buyer as well as a large producer and retailer in the milk business was specially fitted for these duties; and accordingly he was selected by the Department to proceed to New York as its representative. His address at Gouverneur was listened to with special interest for over one hour by a large gathering of farmers and dairymen from the State. Mr. Gillespie not only dealt with his special subject "Cheese selling on the Auction Plan" but gave a practical talk on a number of other allied matters, relating to the milk and cheese industries.

BUTTER FAT EXPERIMENTS

An interesting point which Mr. Gillespie was able to carry away with him from these meetings was that the experiments conducted in the last season by the United States Department of Agriculture corresponded exactly with similar experiments by our own Department of Ontario and was additional proof that the average yield of cheese is greater comparatively from milk testing, a different percentage of butter fat. The experiments conducted were on milk testing from 3 to 4 per cent. butter fat.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—The City of Peterborough boasts of its superior school accommodation; but what do we do for the "kids" during the summer vacation?

Law, or no law, when the summer comes a boy has got to swim, and our present method often drives the boys to out-of-the-way places when they wish to get rid of that dog-days' feeling, with the result that if an accident occurs there is no one within reach of offer assistance, and another young life is snuffed out. What a price is this to pay just because we do not spend a few dollars to have a properly supervised bathing place.

Yours truly,
PRO PUERIS.

Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—The approach of Dollar Day reminds us all of the special days, Tag Day, Shamrock Day, etc., observed in this city, but I wish to ask the citizens to be good enough to observe another special day to be called "Milk bottle returning day." If all the ladies in town would be so kind as to hunt up all the milk bottles that may be taking a rest on the pantry shelves or elsewhere, and return them to their milkman, they would have all kinds of blessings called down upon them by that patient, long suffering mortal who is on the doorstep seven days a week no matter what the weather may be.

Milk bottles, like everything else, have gone up in price, and are likely to go higher, and by not returning the empty bottles, the ladies are putting the milkmen to considerable and unnecessary expense. Personally, I have lost fifteen dozen bottles in the last two months, doubtless some of these have been broken, but the large majority are in my customer's houses resting.

Any day would do for 'bottle day' but to give the ladies lots of time to hunt them up, let them take Saturday, January 27th to put out the bottles and watch the smiles on the face of the milkmen.

MILKMAN.

Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In yesterday's report of St. Andrew's annual meeting both evening papers give the impression that I have been suffering from ill-health. This is hardly in accordance with fact. I have scarcely ever been sick during my life. I gave up my work in London just to get a needed relaxative. I am pleased to say that I am succeeding in my purpose.

Very truly yours,
THOMAS H. MITCHELL,
St. Andrew's Manse.

More Socks For The Boys In the Trenches

The Canadain Kitchener League sent another shipment of socks this week, to the Peterborough boys in the trenches. 116 pairs were mailed to the following addresses:

Pte. Geo. Melton, 216th Batt., A Company, France.
Gunner H. Coon, 26th Battery, 7th Brigade, France.
Pte. Fred Botsford, 24th Batt., A Company, France.
Pte. Jos. McCoy, 21st Batt., A Company, France.
Pte. Harold Scott, Signallers, France.
Lt. J. M. Watt, 18th Batt., A Company, France.

The League would like to send another shipment before the end of the month and would ask everyone who is knitting to hand in as many pairs as possible before that time. This is the weather when the boys need these nice, warm, comfortable socks more than any other time, and the League hope to be able to make a shipment every two weeks. The sacrificing of a little time will make this possible and the packages more generous. The League thank their many knitters for the noble work they are doing, but they still have yarn for many more knitters.

The hostesses for the Canadian Kitchener League tea on Wednesday next will be Mrs. Knox and Mrs. Carver. The tea will be held at the Oriental tea rooms, Hunter street.

WEDDING BELLS

GOMER—SOMERVILLE.

A wedding of great interest was solemnized this morning in St. John's Church at ten-thirty when Annie Muriel, youngest daughter of the late F. L. Somerville, was united in matrimony to John W. Gomer, assistant accountant of the Bank of Commerce, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gomer, Budlake, Exeter, England. The petite bride charmingly gowned in her going-away suit of navy blue velvet with lynx trimming and black hat and wearing an enormous bouquet of White American Beauties, was given away by her brother, Mr. Lind Somerville, and was attended by Miss Grace Burritt, Toronto. Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple left by the eleven o'clock train for Montreal for a brief honey moon. On returning Mr. and Mrs. Gomer will reside at 236 Brock street.

To Enforce the Law Re Cutting of Ice

It is understood that the local Board of Health intends to enforce the regulations governing the cutting of ice in Peterborough. During the past years Dr. Amys stated they have been openly ignored. No effort is made to obtain pure ice for domestic use, and a number of complaints have been received demanding that the law in this regard be put into effect.

TO STOP $100,000 ELECTION.

Taxpayer Asks Court to Prevent Selection of Sheriff's Successor.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Because a special election for Sheriff in Queens County would cost the taxpayers $100,000, Elbert L. Conklin, a taxpayer, has appealed to Supreme Court Justice Callahan to prevent it. Conklin is a printer of 123 Grove St., Jamaica.

The special election has been ordered for January 23 by Governor Whitman to fill the place of Sheriff Paul Stier, who was recently killed by a madman. Samuel J. Mitchell, the present Under Sheriff, is the Democratic candidate, and Thomas P. Wilsnack has been nominated by the Republicans. Conklin obtained an order from Justice Callahan in Brooklyn requiring the Board of Elections to show cause why the costly election should not be stopped.

Was Lillian Anderson's Baby Palmed Off As Slingsby Heir?

Sculpture and photography figured in the proceedings during the week in the House of Lords in the Slingsby appeal case, in which Commander Slingsby seeks to have it declared that Charles Eugene Edward Slingsby is the lawful and legitimate child of himself and Mrs. Slingsby. The brothers of the commander contend that the boy is the illegitimate son of other parties.

Mr. Schiller, K.C., who appears for Commander Slingsby, continued reading of evidence, and dealt with the testimony of Mrs. Fay, of "the adoption department" of the Associated Charities of San Francisco, who said that Mrs. Slingsby called and said that she wished to withdraw her application for a child, as she had secured one elsewhere. Mrs. Slingsby wished to have the record of the application destroyed. Witness destroyed the envelope with the names and references, and her report of a visit to a Mr. Hermann, who had been given as a reference. She attempted to do so and tore the page, and then decided that it was not necessary to remove the page. Counsel said that Mrs. Slingsby denied ever having made the application.

Lord Loreburn interrupted with the remark that it was a remarkable coincidence that Mrs. Slingsby's baby and Lillian Anderson's baby should have been brought to the house. He did not know what a mathematician would say about the probabilities in the case. Was it counsel's case that Lillian Anderson had had no baby at all?

Council said he was not bound to put any case before the Lordship with regard to Lillian Anderson.

Lord Loreburn: You must expect us to arrive at the conclusion which men of common sense would arrive at if there is no answer.

Lord Mersey: The learned judge says that there was no baby born to Lillian Anderson at all. You must say the same thing, because if you do not you are in the quandary that there were two babies.

At a later stage Lord Loreburn said he declined to believe that a foul conspiracy of the kind suggested could be carried out in America without the knowledge of the solicitor here, and he wholly declined to believe that gentlemen on the roll of an honorable profession were guilty of any such thing. He thought it was terrible to suggest it without any opportunity being given of denying it.

Strong comments were made upon the calling in by Mr. Justice Bargrave Deane of Sir George Frampton, the sculptor on the question of likeness in the Slingsby baby case.

Lord Atkinson wished to know why this business was resorted to at all if the judge was not going to found his judgment on it.

Mr. Schiller explained that he was so struck with the likeness that he desired to have confirmation, not wishing to be deceived by it.

Lord Loreburn: He says he did not rely upon it, then why did he want to introduce it at all.

Lord Loreburn says he did not care about the evidence of any R. A. or any other sage as to likeness; such evidence was worthless.

Lord Mersey: I am entirely of that opinion; it is absolutely valueless.

Lord Loreburn: In my opinion this evidence is worth zero.

The hearing was later on resumed and terminated in a decision that the Slingsby baby was not the real goods.

Robs Third Safe Below "Dead Line"

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—For the third time within three months the successful robbery of an office safe below the old Fulton street "deadline" was reported to the police. Charles E. Berner & Co., brokers, who occupy a suite of rooms on the third floor of the United States Realty Building, No. 115 Broadway, reported their safe had been opened some time during the night or early in the morning and $12,000 in cash as well as valuable jewelry stolen. So clever did the burglar work that he left not a clew for the police.

When the office was opened in the morning the employes, who arrived before Charles Doetger, cashier, went about their work unaware of the burglary. Mr. Doetger arrived at nine o'clock, and going to the safe, which he had locked the night previous, found it still locked. He turned the combination and the safe opened as usual. On the inside, however, everything was overturned. The strong box drawer and two security drawers had been smashed and their contents scattered. A hurried inventory resulted in the discovery that all the money and jewelry had been taken. Of the money taken $9,000 was the property of the firm and $3,000 belonged to an employes' co-operative benefit association.

After an investigation which lasted all morning, Inspector Faurot, finger print expert, and several detectives said they had made no headway. They believe, however that the man who opened the safe of the Union Central Life Insurance Company in the Woolworth Building, on New Year's Eve, and the safe in the office of William Sheldron, at No. 71 Broadway, on November 15, was responsible for this latest theft. Special watchmen and scrubwomen who were in the building during the night and early morning hours said they had seen no one enter or leave the building after closing hours.

THE RUSSIANS ARE OPTIMISTIC

View of Internal Affairs Cheerful Despite Reactionists' Victory.

PETROGRAD, Jan. 20.— The spirit of the Russian New Year's Day gilded the seamy side of politics which has been exhibited for so long in the columns of the press, and the newspapers, although pursuing the usual round of political comment, abound in optimistic reviews of the past and forecasts of the future. Leaders of public organizations such as the Zemsky Coyus, whose patriotic work in the face of great difficulties has gained the warm support and appreciation of the country, unite in expressig the conviction that the internal affairs of Russia are not beyond repair or as bad as they have been painted.

The newspapers find another cause of satisfaction in the Allies' reply to the American note and comment on what they term its precision and dignity as contrasted with opposite qualities alleged to be displayed by the notes of the Central Powers. The Reich, however, does not lose sight of the political situation or the new strength of the reaction as shown in the recent ministerial changes.

"The new Premier," says this paper, "has reiterated the many laudable sentiments of his predecessors, but in each of his declarations there is a 'but.' Collaboration with the Duma is necessary—but the Government cannot tolerate such events as took place recently. Public organizations are necessary—but only so long as they carry out their duty. Meetings can be allowed—but there must be a reason for such meetings. In other words, everything can be allowed, but everything must be under the supervision of the Bureaucracy."

TOWN TOPICS.

The next news from the German raider is likely to be regarding its capture. There may be some selling yet in view of possible complications with Germany over the matter but it looks as if Washington would about face, rather than run into danger zones. Meantime peace drifts further into the future with the Balfour statement to the American people. We do not think stocks will suffer material reaction at this time. There are too many good things in immediate prospect and earnings all round are too enormous. Beth. Steel forthcoming dividend action is likely to be a pleasanter expression of opulence even than the action of a year ago. Lack. Steel is due for a very good statement of quarterly earnings. The Steel Corporations report is only a little away. Steel stocks generally should be bought on soft place we think and for very good profits in view of these definite developments and the continued remarkable prosperity in the trade. Pittsburg Coal is linked with this prosperity and should do even better than before. Sloss Sheffield, V Chem. Crucibile, Gulf States, Steel Foundries should all do much better along with U. S. Steel. The buy in woollen and rubber seems very good. Con. Gas seems well taken. Cons. Coal is a splendid stock to have during the great industrial boom and Colo. Fuel also. We would buy Marines on reactions for good turns or at market for immence profits in Long run. M. O. P. new stock is among the best rails at the moment. Buy Airbrake and Locomotives and Pressed Car on soft places. We look for lower prices in wheat and cotton.

A man should have a good excuse ready before committing a mean act.

Trying to be nice to his wife's relatives is awfully rough on a man's digestion.

Murphy was taking a day off, says an English weekly to enjoy himself thoroughly, he walked round to watch "the boys." He was surprised to see his friend Kelly working as if carrying a hodful of mortar up and down a ladder was the only thing he took any real pleasure in.

"It's yourself that's working mighty hard to-day, Kelly!" expostulated Murphy.

"Whist! I'm just making a fool of the boss!" said Kelly, winking slyly.

"And how are you doing that, Kelly?"

"Sure, Murphy, it's as easy as kissing your hand! He sees me going up the ladder with my hod full of mortar and he thinks I'm working. But, Murphy, my boy, it's the same hodful I'm carting up and down all the time."—Youth's Companion.

Big Changes in the Organization of the Canadian Overseas Forces

Five Hundred Dollars Daily to Be Saved in Transport Department—Also $300,000 a Year in Rationing—Better Service at Far Less Cost—Features of General Turner's Policy.

NEW RATIONS INTRODUCED

LONDON, January 22.—Sir George Perley has officially announced two important changes regarding Canadian troops in England which it is predicted will make for efficiency and economy, and which will form part of the general policy of centralization which General Turner has inaugurated since he took over command. Both reports are from the Quartermaster-General's Department. It first deals with transport.

Hitherto every battalion coming to England has had its own horses, harness and waggons, and there has been considerable overlapping in the use of these. From now on all regimental transport will be centralized under direct control of the Canadian Army Service Corps, which will acquire all regimental transport. It is estimated in the report that the change will result in saving over 200 horses and other equipment. There will be better attention for the animals and a reduction of transport expenses of over $500 daily. The report mentions that in England regimental transport work has always been done by the Army Service Corps.

NEW RATIONING SCHEME.

The second scheme effects the rationing of the men, and, according to the report, which has been adopted, predicts an annual saving of nearly three hundred thousand dollars, in addition to which there will be over four hundred thousand dollars rebate on customs duties. Briefly, the report, which has been adopted, recommends rationing on the English system, with the co-operation of the English canteens and Canadian members of the Imperial Canteen Committee.

A thorough test of a new varied ration has been made at the Canadian camps at Shoreham and Hastings, and has been favourably reported on by unit commanders and by the medical authorities. As far as possible, Canadian supplies coming in duty free under new arrangement will be used.

BOSTON CREEK— A WORD WITH YOU

BUY—That's the word. Buy it—it's the best buy in the entire mining share list.

I know what I am talking about. I am a north country pioneer and I know mines from a physical, as well as a financial and stock market, point of view. I was among the first in at Cobalt and bore no little part in bringing the merits of that camp to the attention of the world through the press. My letters on Cobalt were widely circulated and quoted and stand to-day as accurate sizings-up of a situation where silver ores have returned the investing public nearly $70,000,000 in dividends.

Six years ago I was one of the first at Porcupine and picked all the big winners of that wonderful camp. I picked Hollinger—I picked Dome—I picked McIntyre, and I picked territory there which will yet produce more big bonanza mines in Porcupine.

And I pick Boston Creek to go with the biggest gold mines of the northland.

CUSTOMERS OF MY OFFICE WITHIN THE PAST YEAR HAVE MADE APPROXIMATELY $2,000,000 BY FOLLOWING OUR ADVICE IN THE PURCHASE OF MINING SHARES —A FACT WHICH SPEAKS FOR ITSELF.

NO ISSUE WHICH MY HOUSE HAS SPONSORED HAS EVER LOST A CUSTOMER A SINGLE DOLLAR NOR HAS THERE EVER BEEN A TIME DURING THE YEAR AT WHICH ANY HOLDER OF THESE STOCKS COULD HAVE SOLD AT A LOSS.

THIS IS A REMARKABLE RECORD—ONE THAT I POINT TO WITH PRIDE — ONE THAT CANNOT BE CHALLENGED.ONE THAT I BELIEVE HAS NEVER BEEN EQUALED AMONG THE BROKERAGE ELEMENT OF CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES.

I now urge the purchase of Boston Creek stock, as I believe it is the forerunner of another big bonanza and low-grade gold camp—one which bids fair to attain to the importance of Porcupine.

I urge you to buy Boston Creek. I know the mines—I know the country—I know the money that has gone into the properties. I know the men personally, with the money they command and the faith they have in them, who are behind the mines. I am speaking from knowledge—not from heresay. I know that Boston Creek has produced one of the best showings in bonanza ore and in high-grade tonnage ever known in the north country. I know that there has been expended around one-quarter of a million dollars already in bringing this property to a shipping basis. I know that there is at least twice as much more money available for the building of a mill and the provision of accommodations, so that a couple of hundred men may be put to work in mining and milling operations. I know that some of the biggest manufacturers of the Middle West, founders and heads of a multi-millionaire firm, one of the largest brokers of Toronto, and one of the best mining engineers and largest power contractors in Canada are at the helm of Boston Creek. I know that the properties are now about ready to begin shipments to the McIntyre mill at Porcupine and that some of the Boston Creek interests are also McIntyre interests, making for a certain affiliation between the two companies. I know that they have an estimated amount of $1,500,000 in developed ore to ship from. I know that ore has been taken out at Boston Creek which has attracted great attention and has been sent West for public exhibition. I know that this ore has run as high as five pounds of gold to 100 pounds of rock—a bonanza exhibit. I know there are two big parallel vein systems. I know that the work has been pushed to the 200 level and the promise of the surface and the upper level has been more than fulfilled below. I know that a settlement—station, hotel, postoffice, etc.—exists right at the mines; that the new power line from Cobalt to Kirkland Lake is now nearly ready to deliver its energy to the mines; that the initial unit of 375-ton mill is planned to be built in the near future; that the mines are to be placed with no loss of time upon a permanent earning and dividend-paying basis.

Boston Creek has advanced quickly to $1.27 a share on the Standard Stock Exchange and New York Curb Market, and looks good to me for $5 a share. Knowing it as I do, I would be recreant to the duty I assume to my great following in mines and investments and to the public at large if I did not advise them to buy Boston Creek "at the market" and await the results of a sensational series of developments already scheduled to take place this year.

Buy it. Buy it now. It's the best recommendation I ever made in my life. It looks good for immense dividends—immense market profits.

GERMANY MAY ATTEMPT AGGRESSIVE SUBMARINE CAMPAIGN

Plans to Put Thirty Super-Submarines on the High Seas by February the First—New Boats Fitted For Mine Laying

"STARVATION BLOCKADE"

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Germany is shortly to establish a submarine "barrier" around England and France, attempting a "starvation blockade" herself, according to the general belief in these two nations, passengers on the White Star Liner Baltic said to-day.

According to this information Germany plans to notify the world about February first of the institution of this new form of blockade.

Germany will put into service thirty new 'super submarines' capable of 18 knots on the surface, armed with heavier guns than any undersea craft heretofore in service.

These new boats are said to be fitted also for extensive mine laying and able to cruise two thousand miles or more without replenishment of supplies.

Special Cable by H. D. Robertson. (Copyright 1911 by the United Press.)

RIO DE JANEIRO, January 22.—The first report indicating the general location of the German South Atlantic raider was received here. The Brazilian packet steamer Bahia reported she sighted a vessel, believed to be the raider, off the coast of Rio Grande do Norte on Thursday. The stranger was travelling north at a speed estimated at about 20 knots. No consort was sighted with her.

NEUTRALS PATROLLING COAST.

Practically all South American nations are taking steps strictly to guard the neutrality of their territorial waters. The Uruguayan Government sent the steamer Corsario from Montevideo to patrol its coastline. The Brazilian Government has already despatched several of its war vessels to back up enforcement of neutralty.

Meanwhile despatches up and down the South American coast indicated a concentration of allied warships in these waters. Wireless advices from the Falkland Islands said that six British warships had sped north from there, searching for the sea terror. Pernambuco reported arrival of two British auxiliary cruisers.

Evidence of the German's punctilous observance of every rule of war and of international law in all its captures was accumulating here. American Consul Gottschalk declared his official advices indicated a "predetermined plan to avoid attacks on passenger ships to avoid possibility of the loss of life of such travellers and any international complications."

ONLY CARGO BOATS SUNK.

Only cargo boats have so far been captured or sunk. The German sea rover is likewise scrupulously careful to hoist his true colours as soon as within gun range of vessels he overhauls, judging from survivors' stories received here from Pernambuco, although in most cases the raider adopted the strategem of flying British colours in the pursuit.

All those who have seen the raider united in declaring she is capable of great speed, and some of the survivors added that she was jammed to the hatches with ammunition.

All allied ship owners here have announced indefinite suspension of sailings, and are still anxiously awaiting news of several vessels which are now overdue.

Shipping on the Pacific coast of South America is likewise worried over the German raider, or raiders, since it is generally accepted here now that the original commerce destroyer has outfitted as auxiliary raiders one or more of her prizes. A number of messages have been despatched from Santiago, Chili, to the United States discussing some means of preventing the European war belligerents from hampering trade between the Americas.

HAD INDIGESTION
COULD KEEP NOTHING ON STOMACH

Indigestion is one of the worst forms of stomach trouble. The stomach becomes upset and you have a raw, debilitated feeling in it.

After a meal you feel that you must get rid of that nasty, bilious, burning sensation; that souring and rising of the food which is so unpleasant and in many cases very painful.

It is not necessary for you to be troubled with indigestion when Burdock Blood Bitters may be so easily obtained. This old and well-known remedy, which is a combination of nature's best roots, herbs, barks and berries will cure indigestion and all stomach troubles.

Mr. Lazare Savoy, Pokemouche, N. B., writes: "About two years ago I was troubled with indigestion that bad I could keep nothing on my stomach. I was sorely disappointed in everything I tried to relieve me. At last a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I took four bottles and can now eat anything that is set in front of me."

That grand old medicine, B.B.B., has been on the market for the past forty years, and we claim, without any fear of contradiction, that it is the best cure for all stomach troubles.

OUR SERIAL STORY

"DESTINY"

By CHARLES NEVILLE BUCK

It would be a pleasant thing to paint the rehabilitation of Paul Burton, showing how the underlying qualities of manhood rose in adversity as they had never risen in opulence, and how love transformed him from a weakling into a hero. But veracity intervenes. In childhood his character had lacked stamina, and in manhood a hothouse atmosphere had stifled even what had been there in the beginning. For a short time after he had seen Marcia Terroll he fought the world and his own terrible weakness with such a resolution that he utterly burned up and consumed what spirit of combat was left within him. Perhaps the recording angel, counting not only results but handicaps, wrote on the greater ledger of human balances a generous merit mark for even that brief struggle.

Paul was like a weak swimmer in a strong undertow. He battled hard, and if he could not battle long it was because the measure of his strength was not a matter of his own choosing. For a while he held a position as organist of a church—and during those days he brought home the only revenue which came in. But that did not last. The truth must be told. Paul's fastidious spirit sickened at the sordid and tawdry, and when he discovered one day, through the unkind offices of a vagabond violinist, that it was possible to reconstruct a dream world, even in the midst of want and poverty, his hunger for tranquility triumphed over his resolve. With a hypodermic needle he picked the lock and threw open the gates of dreams. To himself he said it was only a temporary indulgence, to be put aside when he had conquered the agonies of that sleeplessness which had of late tortured him. Mary deprived of his aid, fought on alone, with all the fighting courage of the Burton blood at its best—and fought hopelessly.

Elizabeth Burton could not be left alone. Her mind had crumbled into such pitiful decay that her care chained the daughter in a rigorous confinement. Now even the opportunity for seeking employment was denied her.

The ruin of the Burton family was as total and complete as if fate were bent on tallying measure for measure their past magnificence. The quarters which Yamuro had chosen were given up and lodgings were taken of a far meaner sort.

If Mary needed a final twisting of the knife in her wounded life it came when there stood between them and the streets a single asset, and she went to realise on that, haggling with a pawn broker for her engagement ring.

Marcia Terroll came back to town for a brief stay between engagements and stopped with Dorothy Melliss at their old rooms. She had not dared to ask any questions about Paul, and the other girl would have refrained from volunteering information had she possessed it. Indeed it would have been unlikely that Dorothy would know anything of the submerged Burtons in this city where lives may run out parallel spans almost door to door, and never touch. But one evening as Marcia was crossing the square, just after the lights began to glow, a human derelict sidled up to her and accosted her with a mumbled petition for alms. The man was old, and his clothes though neatly patched were threadbare and worn. His face too was seamed, and his breath was alcoholic.

"Madam," he said in a low voice as he fell into step with her, "I was not always so unfortunate, nor am I responsible for my adversities. Could you—"

With a shudder of disgust Marcia quickened her pace, and the man fearful of the eye of the police authority dropped back. But Miss Marcia Terroll could never bring herself without a struggle to ignore the plea of old age. It struck her, too, that despite the panhandler's manner this man was yet in a fashion different. There was evidently someone who sought to keep him neatly mended up, for her woman's eye had caught that detail in a glance. Through his inebriety lurked a ghost like suggestion of past gentility. She turned impulsively back, beckoning to him as she searched her purse. In it were two quarters, and one of them she gave him.

"God bless you, madam," he began with a grotesque echo of the ancient pomposeness. "God knows I had never anticipated such a necessity."

As she hurried on, he removed his hat and bowed with an attempt at stateliness which held a pathos of burlesque.

Marcia Terroll was spared the hurt of knowing that the panhandler with whom she had divided the contents of her pocketbook, and whom she had thus enabled to buy five greatly desired glasses of beer, was the father of the man she loved.

So, though Mary Burton did not know it, this was the way old Tom picked out the very scant pin money she could spare him for his own method of drugging his sorrows.

CHAPTER XXXII.

An old year was dying and a young year was about to be born. Along the blazing stretch of Broadway from Thirtieth street to Columbus circle seethed and sounded the noisy saturnalia of New Year's Eve.

The street that never sleeps was tonight a human spill-way, churning in reshet. Between its walls went up the clamor of human threats raised in talk, in shouts, in song, in laughter, and in contest with the blaring of tin horns, the racket of rattlers and all those discordances that seek to swell pandemonium to the bursting of ear drums. Theatres were disgorging their "big-night" audiences and pedestrians moved in a congested mass, which battalions of traffic officers herded slowly as dogs herd crowded sheep.

An endless procession was this, in which human entities were molecules that crept, elbowing, jamming, laughing along. Holly wreathed windows bore in additional decoration, placards announcing, "This cafe is open all night." For this was the city's wild occasion of suspended laws, when two edicts only hold in the favored points of rendezvous. "Nothing barred wine," and, "Everything goes."

Vendors of paper caps, false moustaches, confetti, balloons and all the noise swelling devices ever bred of deviltry, hawked their wares along the curbs, and the furs of women glittered with atoms of colored paper.

Within the restaurants and cabarets was added to the outer din a popping of corks, a fanfare of orchestras and the songs of supper guests at tables and dancers on the floors.

Already a sequence of wild scenes telescoped themselves along the White Way, but the evening was yet young and would ripen toward fulfilment as the hours progressed. Its Bacchanal zenith would be reached after the million lights of these gilded palaces had died—like the snuffing of a single candle—into the five minutes of dark hush which heralds the changing year.

Along the uproarious sidewalks pressing ragged shoulders to the richness of ermine and seal, drifted many hopeless derelicts, but to-night was to be a night of forgetting them, of forgetting everything save that it was a "large evening" and that life held only the present clarion of gaiety. The tragedy under this thin crust must be ignored. Mirth must be crowned laughter must be enthroned; glasses must sparkle and clink and such individuals as elected to remain sober, must look indulgently and unfailingly on scenes which at another time would require a blush. To blush on Broadway on New Year's eve would be a misdemeanour. It does not happen.

One splinter of human drift which was carried along on the tide gazed about out of a chalky face—morphia-stamped. This chip on the churning eddy bore the name of Paul Burton. He had of course no business there. For him there was no reasonable prospect of a Happy New Year. There still remained a roof—of a sort—to cover him when he went home, which was not so often as it should be, and he still wore a suit of decent cut, though of a past fashion, but in its pockets there was no jingle of coins. Passively Paul had been drawn into the maelstrom of the marching crowds yet he was not of its membership. He could not turn in at any of the doors that blazed with light and invitation. But he had certain dreams which vaguely recompensed him—and in his pockets was a hypodermic needle.

At Longacre square, where the swirl and eddy of human currents meet and become a cauldron and a whirlpool, he was held up at a crossing while the crowd shrunk back on itself, waiting the raised hand of the traffic policeman.

Finding himself jostled, he glanced languidly over his shoulder. The needle makes for such languidness at times between its moments of dreaming and its moments of jumping nerves.

Several men in evening dress, and fur coats surrounded him, and he knew them all. The face of Norvil Phayre was laughing into his and he recognized that an evening well started had painted its flush on the cheeks of each of them.

"My word, Burton!" laughed the Englishman. "I haven't seen you since the War of the Roses. How goes it lad?" Then, even in his heightened gaiety of mood, Thayre recognized the want and distress which had left their impress and pallor on this face, and his eyes sobered. With the other rules of the season he felt felt that forgetfulness of the past accorded, so he hastened to add, "You know these fellows. Fall in and hike along with us. We have a table reserved at Kenley's, and it's close to the platform. I dare say we shan't miss many tricks."

A deep embarrassment flooded the face of the outcast. He who had once numbered these men among his associates felt sensitively the pinched poverty of his present condition and its contrast with their Persian lamb collars, otter lined coats and their white shirt fronts of evening dress.

"Thank you," he said gravely, "I'm afraid I can't. Your party is made up, and—and—"

But as he stammered to a pause Thayre slapped him heartily on the back, and the others, with voices of more advanced inebriety, made it a chorus of insistence.

"'Twill do you no harm, my lad," declared the Englishman. "A little nonsense now and then—" You know the old saw. A bite of mixed grill, and a beaker of bubbles will buck you up, no end."

The musician hesitated, very deeply tempted. To sit at table with white damask and clear glass, and once more to eat such things as they serve at Kenley's! The idea could not be lightly dismissed. Besides he felt suddenly giddy and weak. He frequently felt so these days and if he accepted he could rest quietly until the vertigo passed.

"I say—of course," Thayre leaned forward and explained in a lowered voice, "you go as my guest. I'm giving the party to-night."

Ten minutes later, retrieved from the street, Paul Burton sat near the edge of the cabaret platform in a cafe where every table had been reserved long in advance and from whose doors many eager applicants were being turned away.

Nearby, too, was the space reserved for dancing, and as Paul drank his first glance of champagne the bubbles rose and raced merrily through his thin blood, lifting him out of his squalid reality into an echo world of irresponsibility. The crowd on the floor were swirling to a delirious dance tune while above their heads shot up the white arms of women and the black arms of men, to keep dozens of multi-colored toy balloons afloat over them.

Like glass balls on a fountain spray, red and blue and purple spheres drifted up and down, and confetti showered, and dancers snatched paper caps from the heads of strangers, and crowned themselves therewith.

Wilder groups danced, not in pairs, but in trios and quartettes with arms locked around shoulders—and it required a half hour of the changing year.

Thin ribbons of bright paper volleyed rocket-wise from table to table, and fell in festoons from overhead wires. Dancers forced their way through showers of breaking strands, and swayed rhythmically on, trailing shreds of kaleidoscopic color.

Like punctuations of sound came the popping of balloons and corks.

Paul Burton's hosts had arrived at the stage of mellow exhilaration, but over Paul himself, as his eyes met the great clock which was to herald the eventful moment fell a sudden shadow of black depression. Another year to face! He thought of what he had to do with this one—and of what he had done! Those last moments in his music room rose to his memory and now carried a penalty which slugged his heart into an intensity of shame and misery. Paul Burton, sitting here with this thin semblance of merriment around him, saw himself once again very clearly for what he was.

(To be continued.)

The Workers of the World with hand or brain, in doors or out doors, under all conditions and in all climes, will find in Shredded Wheat the food that supplies all the material for building healthy tissue and good brain—a food that nourishes every organ of the body and keeps the bowels healthy and active—the one universal cereal food that appears on the breakfast table of most Canadian homes every day in the year. It is ready-cooked and ready-to-eat. For breakfast with milk or cream, for any meal with fruits. Made in Canada.

Everyone Should Drink Hot Water in the Morning

Wash away all the stomach, liver, and bowel poisons before breakfast.

To feel your best day in and day out, to feel clean inside; no sour bile to coat your tongue and sicken your breath or dull your head; no constipation, bilious attacks, sick headache, colds, rheumatism or gassy, acid stomach, you must bathe on the inside like you bathe outside. This is vastly more important, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do, says a well-known physician.

To keep these poisons and toxins well flushed from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, drink before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from your pharmacist. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless, except a sourish twinge which is not unpleasant. Drink phosphated hot water every morning to rid your system of these vile poisons and toxins; also to prevent their formation.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and muscles became saturated with an accumulation of body poisons, begin this treatment and above all, keep it up! As soap and hot water set on the skin, cleansing, sweetening, and purifying, so limestone phosphate and hot water before breakfast act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Way Around a Difficulty

By ELINOR MARSH

Mrs. Haskins had but one person in the world to tie to; that was Alice Neil. The old lady had the usual selfishness of one of her age and condition and would not on any account consent that Alice should marry.

"But, grandma," argued the girl, 'suppose I marry and you continued to live with me?"

"That wouldn't do at all. No house is large enough for two families. No, Alice, you can't marry as long as I live. I took you when you were a little girl, and but for me you would have had no home. Now that I have no home but with you, it is your duty to remain single and take care of me."

That ended the dialogue. Alice sighed, for she had a lover who was arguing on the other side of the question. He admitted that Alice should continue to make a home for her grandmother, but he offered to take upon himself a case of mother-in-law, or, rather, of grandmother-in-law, which was worse, and argued that the old woman should be satisfied with this. But so long as she would consent to nothing but Alice's spinsterhood there was nothing for it except that Alice should remain a spinster.

Fred Martin, Alice's lover, finally persuaded her to a marriage which should be concealed from her grandmother. The old lady was so feeble that the couple did not expect her to live very long, and while she did live this plan would enable Alice to take care of her on her grandmother's own conditions. Of course it would be hard on Fred and Alice, but after all wouldn't it be better than for both to grow old separated or better even than a case of grandmother-in-law, for, so far as the old woman was concerned, Fred would be nonexistent.

So the couple were married, and Fred fitted up a house near where his wife lived, he taking up his abode in single blessedness, except when Alice could visit him. The old lady went to bed at 9 o'clock, and when she was asleep Alice would slip out and go to be home where she really belonged. They kept a maid, so that if Mrs. Haskins woke up and Alice wasn't on hand the maid could say she had stepped around the corner to buy something.

This was not exactly home life, but as Fred was at work all day, not returning usually till after 7 o'clock, it was not so bad, and it was not obligatory on his wife to hurry home. By and by Alice told her grandmother that she must go to a hospital for a few weeks, and the old lady was obliged to remain in care of the maid.

After Alice was discharged from the hospital there was a period when she was continually running out for something. But she could not go often enough for her purpose, so one morning when she was away and the maid was engaged the old lady answered a ring at the doorbell, and there on the step was a three-weeks-old baby.

Mrs. Haskins took the little thing up in her arms, and when Alice came home she found her grandmother dandling it on her knee in a very motherly sort of way. The old lady wouldn't consent that the child should be sent away, so Alice was obliged to divide its motherhood with her. It wasn't long before the one woman was as fond of the child as the other.

Then one day the postman brought a note signed by a man who claimed to be the baby's father, saying that he regretted parting with it and asking that it be sent to him. This put the old lady in great distress. Alice wrote a letter to the father—at her grandmother's dictation—begging the father to leave the child where it was, he being permitted to come and see it whenever he liked.

This brought a man who gave his name as Frederick Martin, and after a conference in which he insisted that unless they would take him to board he would take the child away, Mrs. Haskins consented, and the family was increased by one man.

After awhile Fred began to pour a tale of woe into Mrs. Haskins' ear. His wife had deserted him and her child for her grandmother. The old lady was so indignant at the "old crone," as she called the grandmother, that she could scarcely contain herself.

Meanwhile the old lady noticed that Fred and Alice were together a good deal, and she wished Fred's wife would die so that he could marry Alice and the baby could have a mother as well as a father. When the pear was ripe Fred came home one evening and announced that his wife was "no more."

He tried hard to appear respectful to his wife's memory, but found it difficult. This was not remarkable since the departed had treated both her husband and her child so badly. Mrs. Haskins averred that no respect whatever was due her; that she had been a soulless, shameless creature, and the sooner Martin forgot her the better. As for Alice, she maintained a discreet silence, which her grandmother attributed to an expectation that she would take the lost wife's place.

The old lady after this was very impatient to learn that the widower had proposed to Alice. She was not long kept waiting for the announcement or the wedding. After the ceremony she fell on her grandson-in-law's shoulder and hoped heaven would punish that "old cat" who had caused him so much trouble.

ODD WAYS OF USING GOLD.

They Didn't Impress the Man Who Had None to Squander.

"I reckon I would be liable to be as many different kinds of fool as almost anybody else if I should suddenly get possession of a large amount of money," said the man in straitened circumstances. "I have noticed that people who are so fortunate as to do that often show remarkable versatility in their choice of ridiculous performances. The very ability to realize desires that have long been held in abeyance by lack of means seems sometimes to develop absurdities in a man's nature which no one else would suspect if he had remained poor.

"Sometimes a man will do things that are not really absurd, but only seem whimsical. I knew one man who, when he received an unexpected legacy, bought himself twenty-five pairs of shoes with the first money he spent. He said the one greatest inconvenience of poverty to him had always been the wearing of old shoes.

"Another man I once knew certainly did provoke mirth among his acquaintances when he had all the stovepipes in his house gilded before he spent any of his new money for anything else. I don't know that he was any more foolish than one of the multimillionaires I read about who had the handrail of the grand stairway of his country house covered with a casing of solid gold. One seems about as grotesque as the other to me.

"And there is another thing I wouldn't do. It came to my mind recently when my wife showed me a piano in a store window. It was entirely covered with gold or what looked like gold. I agreed with her that it was pretty, but I said that I would not care to have it in our house.

"Gold is certainly a good thing to have, and I'd like to have a lot of it, but I don't think I'd like to have it too much in evidence all the time."

WHEN YOU CAN'T SLEEP
YOU SHOULD USE
'MILBURN'S HEART and NERVE PILLS

Sleeplessness is caused by the nervous system becoming deranged.

Perhaps too much worry has gotten on your nerves, perhaps you have overworked yourself, or have been excessive in your use of tobacco, but whatever the cause, the nervous system must be built up again before restful sleep can be assured.

Those whose rest is broken into by frightful dreams, nightmares, sinking and smothering sensations, who wake up in the morning as tired as they went to bed can have their old, peaceful, undisturbed, refreshing sleep back again by using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. John Sloan, Haley Station, Ont., writes: "Over a year ago I was very nervous. I could not sleep at night, and I would faint at the slightest fright. I tried several doctors, but they did me practically no good. I noticed your advertisement, and immediately tried Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and I am proud to say they cured me."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box or three for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The Russian Hymn.

Of all the national anthems, none is more stirring, none more solemnly grand, than the Russian hymn. "God the All Terrible" is its title, and its deeply searching tones give such a solemn name a fitting setting. It is younger than most of the other national hymns we know—Austria's "Emperor's Hymn" which was written by Haydn, and which is also the air of "Deutschland Ueber Alles"; France's "Marseillaise"; Belgium's "Brabanconne"; England's "God Save the King." But its solemnity is of the centuries.

In 1833 Nicholas I. expressed a regret that the Russians possessed no national hymn. The composer, Lvoff, obeyed the implied command, and in November of that year announced that the hymn was ready. The Czar desired to hear it, and a date was set for its performance. On that date—Nov. 23, 1833—Czar Nicholas, accompanied by the Czarina and the Grand Duke Michael, went to the court chapel where the composer had assembled a large choir accompanied by two orchestras for the occasion. The hymn was played and sung several times, and at last the Czar said, "It is superb!" and then and there commanded that the hymn be officially adopted. A few weeks later it was publicly performed in Moscow.

Most national anthems are the result of either inspiration or chance. Some, like the "Marseillaise," are born of patriotism at a white heat; others are fortuitous adaptations of old tunes to catchy words. But the Russian hymn was written and composed to order—and there is nothing grander. It is a triumph of absolute monarchy.

They recently celebrated the 83rd birthday of the hymn in Moscow and Petrograd. You may hear the air, though, without leaving your accustomed haunts. It has been happily wedded to a rarely inspired passage of Pope, and the combination is used as a church hymn. The passage begins:

Rise crowned with light, imperial Salem, rise!
Exalt thy towering head and lift thine eyes:
See Heaven its sparkling portals wide display,
And burst upon thee in a flood of day!

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GREY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Color and Lustre With Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and not a medicine. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Severe Headaches And Pains in the Back

Resulted From Deranged Kidneys and Constipation of the Bowels

It is in vain to try to regulate and restore the healthful action of the kidneys until the liver and bowels are set right.

And just here is where so many kidney medicines fail. Kidney derangements almost invariably begin with constipation and torpidity of the liver. The whole work of filtering the blood is thrown on the kidneys, and in time they fail to stand the strain. The poison in the system gives rise to severe headaches, pains in the back and tired, depressed feelings.

Because they act directly on the liver and bowels, as well as on the kidneys, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are eminently successful in the treatment of kidney derangements.

Mr. William Loney, Marysville, N. B., writes:—"I am glad to recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to anybody who is suffering from kidney trouble or constipation. I suffered for a long time from kidney disease and pains in the back, but have found that by using one pill a week the kidneys and bowels are kept in good order, and I do not have any more pains in the back or head like I used to have. I was also a great sufferer from piles, and could get no relief until I used Dr. Chase's Ointment. This ailment is entirely cured now, and we always keep both the pills and the ointment in the house for use when they are needed."

This statement is endorsed by Mr F. Saunders, Town Marshal, who writes that Mr. Loney's letter is true and correct.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Remember that imitations only disappoint. The genuine bear the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., the famous Receipt oBok author.

HE KNOWS BETTER NOW.

Grown old in the service of his master and mistress, James was a privileged retainer. He was waiting at a table one day when a guest asked for a fish-fork, but the request was ignored. Then the hostess noticed the episode, and remarked in a most peremptory manner—"James, Mrs. Jones hasn't any fish-fork. Get her one at once!" "Madam!" came the emphatic reply, "last time Mrs. Jones dined here we lost a fish-fork." James has now been relegated to to the garden.

At the annual meeting of New Jersey State Grange, a resolution was unanimously passed by those present pledging support to a movement for state prohibition.

For your guidance in estimating, we might say that The Examiner is printing and distributing to the Merchants, for use on Dollar Day, 30,000 blanks, and it is only necessary to estimate what number each purchaser thinks will be used on the great day. Should any store run short of blanks, The Examiner will print more, so that the number printed might reach as high as 50,000. The number of estimates put in the last $ Day Campaign was in the neighbourhood of 9,000. With this information, an estimate can be made before coming to town. Of course as many estimates can be made as the purchaser has blanks, and they will get one with every Dollar purchase they make.

Make up your mind what and where you want to buy and come to Peterborough on Thursday, January 25th, expecting the greatest economy shopping event of your lives.

A PRESENTATION AT COLDSPRINGS

At a social evening held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Pamment of Coldsprings, the following address accompanied a presentation of a watch to Miss Bennet:

Dear Miss Bennet,—We, the members of your Sunday School Class and some of your many friends thought that this gathering would be a good opportunity to express to you our appreciation of your untiring and unselfish interest, not only as teacher of your class, but in the community as a whole.

Many times you must have felt discouraged when you had difficulties to surmount, but "every cloud has its silver lining," and your work has, and will bring forth in time, the results you desire.

We would ask you to accept this watch, not as a reward for what you have done; we could not do that, but as a slight, tangible token of our esteem, and we trust that in the wearing of it you may think of the time you have redeemed in helping to fit us for the better life.

We know and appreciate any little token we give you, so we do not expect any reply, but we hope to spend many social times together, such as we are having to-night.

(Signed)—Mrs. Reid, Cassie Gillespie, Mrs. Tully, Mrs. Pamment.

A WORD OF GRATITUDE.

"In justice to humanity I want to tell you that I was a great sufferer from itching piles, and have found Dr. Chase's Ointment the best treatment obtainable," writes Mr. Fred Hins, Brodhagen, Ont. "It gives instant relief and I can recommend it to any sufferer from this dreadful disease."

AFTER SICKNESS

How To Recover Strength

So many Peterboro people are asking how to recover their strength after sickness that we are publishing this information for their benefit.

After grippe, pleurisy, pneumonia or any illness what you need is new strength and richer blood.

The most certain way to get this is by taking Vinol, which contains beef and cod liver peptones, iron, manganese peptonates, and glycerophosphates. It creates strength, improves the blood, sharpens the appetite and restores the entire system to a healthy, robust condition.

North Adams, Mass. — "After a long illness of pneumonia I was left in a weakened, delicate condition, and for a long time had searched for a body-builder and strength creator. I was attracted by an advertisement of Vinol, and tried a bottle, and soon noticed a vast improvement. I continued its use for a while and am now as able bodied and strong as any man in town." Samuel Wood, North Adams, Mass.

Try a bottle of Vinol. Your money will be returned if it does not restore your vitality and strength.

MATCH FACTORY FIRE TRIAL BEGINS

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.— The heavy chained trapdoor which was at the head of the stairs leading from the third floor to the fourth floor of the Diamond factory building, in North Sixth street, Williamsburg, which burned November 6, 1915, with the loss of twelve lives, was put in evidence at the trial of Samuel Barkin. The trial was before Justice Kapper in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn, on an indictment charging manslaughter.

Barkin was present of the Essex Waist Company, which occupied the third floor, and it is charged that because the door was locked from beneath, persons trying to escape by way of this door, perished.

Captain Isaac Ludgate, of Truck No. 104, testified that when he searched the ruins the day after the fire for bodies he went to the third floor and examined this trapdoor. He swore that it was fastened so securely from below that tools were necessary to unlock the bolt. He said there was a staple and a piece of iron on the upper side of the door but this was not fastened.

Edward J. Connolly fireman assigned to Engine Company No. 221, told of arriving at the first on the first alarm. He said smoke and flames were belching from the lower stories and frenzied employes in the building filed the fire escapes. Ladders were raised, but the fire became so hot that the firemen had to retreat after making man rescues and left about a dozen persons on the upper fire escapes who had been overcome by smoke. These persons perished, and he said he believed that one of them was Rose Goldman, responsibility for whose death Barkin is specifically accused of.

Meier Steinbrink, counsel for Barkin, at this point announced he was willing to concede that the young man perished in the building at this fire. Justice Kapper refused to allow this concession to go on the record and directed that the prosecution be permitted to prove it in the usual way.

Frank P. Keniston, of the Bureau of Fire Prevention, testified he saw the trapdoor in Fire Headquarters, Manahttan, a day or two after the fire and observed a man unscrewing one of the nuts that held the bolt in place. He reprimanded the ran sharply, and the man rerarked: "I merely wished to see how my partner had done it." The witness said he subsequently found out that this man was Barkin.

The trial will be continued.

Defends Italy's Aim To Gain Territory

ROME, Jan. 20.—Italy's territorial aspirations in connection with the war were explained and defended by Francesco Ruffini, Minister of Public Instruction and a historian of prominence.

"In the note of the Allies to President Wilson," he said, "they make a point which is understandable to neutrals, and particularly to America. Italy, no less than her allies, awaits with calm confidence the realization of the aims set forth in that passage of the note which refers to the redemption of Italians subject to Austria. The German press seeks to depict Italy as desirous of conquests, but American public opinion, so far-seeing, so well educated to freedom and to a deep spirit of national unity, cannot confound brutal lust of conquest with a justified claim to territories with populations like those of the Trentino, Istria and Dalmatia.

"These territories have had only one civilization in their history, that of Italy, and only one great humiliation—which must cease—that of foreign domination which attempted to destroy the principle of nationality. America knows well that Italy, notwithstanding these just claims, abstained from any provocation before European conflagration, being occupied only with her peaceful development. Austria was responsible for the outbreak of the conflict, having willed war with Serbia after provoking Italy 100 times with violent persecution of Italians of Trent, Trieste, Fiume and Zara, whom she denied even the right to educate themelves in their own language.

"Once the conflagration was ignited, Italy felt that fate called her to complete her national unity and resume her just and holy work and her wars of independence, which have been studied with such enthusiasm by your illustrious American historians. Only those who are ignorant of the history of Austria's violent usurpations were surprised by Italy's action, initiated by her victorious armies, or considered her just claims to be ambition for conquest. Italy faced the terrible sacrifices of blood and riches imposed by the war with that same religious spirit which animated all the deeds of her national resurrection, of which America's attainment of independence was so full.

"Italy counts on the considered and tranquil judgment of American public opinion which, while justly desiring the return of peace, cannot, if it examines the origin of the conflict and the problem raised thereby, wish that the European equilibrium, broken by violence in 1914, be replaced to-day by a premature and unfruitful peace containing the germs of graver conflicts in the future."

SINN FEINER NOW IN U.S.

Formally Admitted to Republic After Exciting Adventures and Escape.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 22. — After experiences fit to grace the pages of the most exciting of novels, Thomas Kenney, 37, prominent participant in the Sinn Fein uprising in Ireland, was formally admitted to the United States, and his story first became known.

Kenney, after being in the midst of the uprising, had a price placed upon his head by the British Government similar to that of many who were later apprehended. He took refuge in the hills of Galway. While there he several times escaped searching groups of soldiers by digging holes in the sand and burying himself, with nothing but his nose free, that he might breathe.

Sympathizers managed to get him to Dublin, and later to Liverpool, where he spent some time in hiding. His friends procured a berth for him aboard the British steamer Hyraspes as a fireman under the assumed name of Jim Donovan. His story first became known Saturday when he was formally admitted to this country by the Boston immigration authorities. He is now with his sister at her home in Cambridge.

Kenney was a well-known football player, referee, and all-round sportsman in Ireland.

PRESIDENT WILSON'S PEACE PROGRAMME

THE ALLIED MERCHANTMEN ARE TO BE CONVOYED

PRESIDENT WILSON PROPOSES THE MONROE DOCTRINE FOR WHOLE WORLD

Every People Should Be Left Free to Determine Its Own Policy the Chief Executive of United States Tells the Senate To-day in Outlining a Programme of Peace For the World---Discusses the Reply of the Belligerents to His Peace Note.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WASHINGTON, January 22. — Speaking, he said, "for liberals and friends of humanity in every nation and of every programme of liberty," President Wilson to-day outlined to the United States Senate a programme of peace for the world, which he believes, would keep all the world safe from future aggression. He declares that only peace which can last is a peace based upon "equality and a common participation in a common benefit."

The guarantees exchanged, he said, "must neither recognise nor imply a difference between big nations and small."

The President in closing his address said:

"I am proposing, as it were, that the nations should with one accord adopt the doctrine of President Monroe as the doctrine of the world.

"That no nation should seek to extend its policy over any other nation or people, but that every people should be left free to determine its own policy, its own way of development unhindered until, unthreatened, unafraid, the little along with the great and powerful complete their own destiny.

"I am proposing that all nations henceforth avoid entangling alliances which would drive them into competitions of power, catch them in a net of intrigue and selfish rivalry. And disturb their own affairs with influences intruded from without."

"The Central Powers united in a reply which stated merely that they were ready to meet their antagonists in conference to discuss terms of peace. The Entente Powers have replied more definitely and have stated in general terms indeed, but with sufficient definiteness to imply details.

"We are that much nearer a definite discussion of the peace terms that shall end the present war and bring us to that international concert which must hereafter hold the world at peace."

The President declared "the very explicit assurances" regarding peace, received from the belligerents, imply that the peace that comes must be "a peace without victory."

It is not pleasant to say this. I beg that I may be permitted to put my own interpretation upon it, and that it may be understood that no other interpretation was in my thought. I am seeking only to face realities and to face them without soft concealments. Victory would mean peace forced upon the loser, a victor's terms imposed upon the vanquished. It would be accepted in humiliation, under duress at an intolerable sacrifice, and would leave a sting, a resentment, a bitter memory upon which terms of peace would rest, not permanently but only as upon quicksand. Only a peace between equals can last.

President Wilson recommended that the United States join a league of nations to enforce world peace.

The President said a settlement to guarantee peace and justice throughout the world cannot be long postponed, and that this Government formulate the conditions upon which it could ask its people to approve adherence to a league for peace.

The President declared that the present war must first be ended.

German Attacks are Stopped by French

PARIS (French Official Communique), January 22.—Two German attacks on trenches north of Courieres Wood yesterday evening, were stopped by artillery and infantry fire. A number of patrol combats in Alsace were also reported.

British Attacks are Repulsed, Says Berlin

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

BERLIN, January 22.—The repulse of a "minor English attack" in a hand granade engagement near Lens was announced in to-day's official statement.

The capture of several French soldiers and a machine gun by German reconnoitring detachments which made short advances into hostile positions near Beronvaux and Pont-A-Mausson, was also reported.

President Wilson is Shaking up Diplomats

Special to The Examiner.

WASHINGTON, January 22.—President Wilson is planning a shake-up of the diplomatic service after March 4th, when all United States diplomats will submit their resignations. Wilson intends to improve the diplomatic service "with less politics and more regard for efficiency."

In this connection there was an unconfirmed report to-day that Secretary of State Lansing might succeed Ambassador Walter Hines Page at London. The President hopes to install into the whole diplomatic service the principle of "promotion by efficiency and not necessarily by seniority."

Enemy Advocates are Stopped by Russians

Special to The Examiner

PETROGRAD, January 22.—Arrest of enemy attempts to advance by Russian in the Oitoz Valley was reported in to-day's official statement. On the rest of the Roumanian front there was mutual exchange of fire.

COL. MACDONALD KILLED BY TRAIN IN UNION STATION

Terrible Accident When Locomotive Backed Into Party That Gathered to Say Good-bye to Draft of Soldiers

OTHERS WERE INJURED

TORONTO, Jan. 22.—Colonel William Campbell Macdonald brigadier of the 1st Brigade at the Exhibition Camp, was crushed to death last night beneath the wheels of an engine which backed into a large crowd of people who gathered at the Union Station to witness the departure of an Army Service Corps draft for an eastern point. Four other spectators were injured, one of whom is not expected to recover, while a score of others were struck by the locomotive, but were fortunately hurled clear of the tracks and escaped with a few bruises and minor hurts.

The accident is said to have been due to the severe gale and snowstorm which raged over the city during the day. Driven by a strong wind the snow swept across the railway tracks, completely covering the rails and the crowds thronging the station platforms gathered across the tracks, believing that they were standing on the platforms. While the engineer rang his bell as the locomotive approached, the cheers of the spectators as they bade good-bye to their friends in khaki and the swirl of the wind prevented them from receiving any warning of the impending danger.

The casualty list is as follows:

DEAD.

Col. William Campbell Macdonald, crushed beneath the engine, leg and thigh amputated.

The Cressman Co. Take Over the Reid Stock

Tender Accepted by W. R. Morris, Assignee for Stock and Fixtures —Will Conduct the Store in Future

The tender of the Cressman Co. for the Reid stock and fixtures was accepted by Assignee Morris on Saturday afternoon and already the Company is in possession, putting it in shape for opening in a few days. The addition of the Reid store will round out a very complete establishment for the Cressman Company, which will bring uniformity and add to the appearance of the already fine store of the Cressman Company. Peterborough can boast of a number of as fine stores as can be found in any city of its size, with the general front street appearance much ahead of those cities, due to the very progressive ideas of the merchants here.

The store will be open for the first time under the new proprietors on Thursday, Dollar Day.

WILL GIVE AN ADDRESS ON THE BRITISH NAVY

A public meeting will be held to-morrow evening in the Collegiate Institute. The speaker of the evening will be Mr. Emilius Jarvis, of Toronto, Naval Recruiting officer, R.N.C.V.R., Overseas Division for Ontario. Mr. Jarvis will give an address on the British Navy and the need for recruits for this important branch of Imperial defence. In the afternoon at four o'clock, Mr. Jarvis will meet a number of business men in the City Council Chamber, and will discuss with them the question of organization. Peterborough is looked upon as a promising field for naval recruits, and the address to-morrow evening should attract a large number who are interested in the work of the British Navy.

WAY IS OPENED NOW FOR THE ENLISTMENT OF MANY MORE MEN

Standard of Fitness For the Forestry, Railway, Construction and Skilled Railway Employees' Units--Another Lang Boy Joins the 247th Battalion--To-day's General Military News.

The new physical standard for recruits for construction and forestry Battalions and for the skilled railway employees section of the Canadian Expeditionary Force is set forth in a letter received by the officer commanding the 247th Battalion from the D.A.A. and Q.M.G. No. 3 District as follows:

SPECIAL ENLISTMENT

Authority is hereby granted for you to enlist into the Unit under your Command, all men who are not fit for Infantry Units, but who come under the description as published in Divisional Orders No. 59, dated 11th January 1917, as follows:

The following relaxations in physical standards of recruits for construction and Forestry Battalions recommended. Minimum height 4 ft. 11 in. Care must be taken that boys under eighteen are not enlisted. Vision first lowest standard of vision, second recruits whose visions can be raised to standard one by aid of glasses, third men who have lost one or the sight thereof, but whose sight has not been lost as results of injuries or progressive organic disease within three years. One-eyed men should be taken on as incapacitated men entitled only to class three pension, two hundred and eighty dollars ($280.00) per annum if they lose sight of sound eye.

A note to this effect should be made on Attestation paper and initialed by recruit. Moderate degrees of flat feet will not constitute cause for rejection, but recruits should be tested by five mile walk or if necessary X-ray plates made. Many so called flat feet due to great development of plantar muscles. Loss of one or two fingers either hand accepted if Medical Boards consider the recruit capable of labour, also loss of two toes, either or both feet, provided they are not the great toe. Men deaf in one ear, but hearing normally in opposite ear and otitis Media. In this case same proviso re pension, pension age limit forty-eight years. Care should be taken as to condition of arteries of men over forty-one years of age.

CAPTAIN, Asst. D.A.A. and Q.M.G. Military District No. 3.

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 22.—Unofficially reported killed in action, and made the subject of a memorial service at his home, Corporal Robert Troup, of the 21st Battalion, Belleville, has turned up alive and well, and is still fighting with that unit in the trenches.

A letter signed "A Giver" has been received at the Patriotic Fund office. The facts referred to are quite well known, but the rules require that certain attention and assistance shall be made for a stated period. When that has elapsed the matter will come under the care of the military authorities. The letter will be forwarded to the proper hands, and any action taken, in a military way, will be at the discretion of the Paymaster General.

General Hemming, General Officer Commanding No. 3 Military District, will pay a visit to Peterborough on Wednesday morning and will inspect the 247th Battalion.

Lang, Otonabee, is still keeping up its good work and this morning another Lang boy, Eric Kimball, became a member of the 247th Battalion. This is the seventh recruit sent by the little Otonabee centre in a week, six of which were successful in passing the medical examination. Archie D. Hubbell of Belmont Township, also joined the Peterborough County unit to-day. Several Havelock recruits signed on by Major O'Flynn, at Friday's big recruiting rally, have not yet been medically examined.

Mrs. Harry Bell of Smith has received the following letter from her brother, Corp. H. Portsmith of the 5th Canadian Battalion.

Dear Sister,—Just a few lines to let you know I am O.K., and to thank you for the Christmas box which I received just in time for Christmas. And the cigars, well you could not see for smoke three minutes after we opened the box for it is not very often we get such good cigars.

Mother sent me a new pen, so I am just breaking it in. I will not have any excuse for not writing now, will I?

We have been having some pretty rough weather lately. I don't think any of us will be sorry to see Spring come again. I have been out of hospital for a week now and am having some rest.

We get our Christmas dinner to-night as the company were not all together at Christmas. You see we are having our feeds by companies. A couple of us bought a hen and got a French woman to roast it for us. Believe me, it went good, washed down with champagne. Well I guess I will have to ring off for this time as the mail is going in. So hoping to hear from you soon and trusting this finds you all in the best of health. I remain

Your loving brother,

CORP. H. PORTSMITH,

5th Canadian Battalion.

Corp. Portsmith enclosed the following verses printed on a silk ribbon:

KIND THOUGHTS FOR XMAS.

From the prairies free, far over the sea,
To the trenches muddy and wet;
Is "some miles" 'to stray I needn't say,
And a bit of a change you bet.
But it's not of the fight I want to write,
Or the foe and his Hunnish way;
But just of you and how you do,
In Canadian homes to-day.
Now there's not much need for me to plead,
That you'll sometimes give me a Thought,
For when we come back there'll be no lack,
Of a welcome for those who've fought,
Then over the land on every hand.
We shall hear Britannia's cry;
On the wings of fame shall Canada's name,
Through the centuries never die.

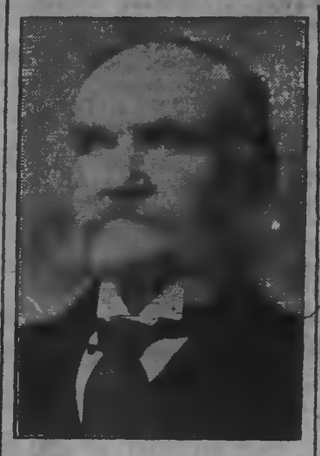
THRILLING APPEAL MADE FOR RECRUITS



MR. J. H. COBB
One of Peterborough's Oldest Residents, who has passed away.

Miss Ada L. Ward's Speech at the Armouries Last Evening Held Audience Spellbound --- Real Christianity at the Front.

LAST NIGHT'S MEETING

"If you are not moved by this appeal only conscription will move you," was the concise way Col. Ackerman voiced the opinion of the large audience who heard Miss Ward speak last night at the Armouries.

He spoke briefly saying that we were much honoured in having one of the thousands of women who are playing so important a part in co-operating with the men in helping them to forget a little of the grave business they are engaged in during the rest periods. It had been his lot to see a small portion of what women are doing in the firing line. After the second battle of Ypres a motor truck had been unofficially attached to his battalion, this manned by three women. Here hot soup was waiting, and what was really first aid administered. Coming back after the battle foot sore, weary and exhausted ready to fall, only 200 left out of the original 1,055, after four days and nights, the orderly called the officers round to tell them that orders from General Alderson were they should rest one-half hour, then return to the Yser and hold the trenches until the British came, and it was during that half-hour the women came up with their motor truck and every man had a cup of coffee or bovril. It is impossible to describe the wonder this worked. The exhausted men who had dragged themselves up to the truck put on their packs and marched back fortified and wonderfully picked up in spirit. This is but one instance of that wonderful work women are doing at the front.

Miss Ward's Address.

Miss Ward, whose magnetic personality held the audience spellbound, spoke of the last two years which have been to her just as they have been to us rousing to existence. When we look back before that eventful morning of August 4, 1914, we wonder how we lived. Since then most of Miss Ward's days have been passed in the company of men who are upholding the honour of the Empire. She spoke of the beginning when war was first brought home, when Belgian refugees, poor dejected frightened creatures, came pouring into England, then she first realized what war meant. Out here in Canada, the land of plenty, we don't know what war means. Mothers who send their boys they know, mothers whose dear ones will never see the home fires burning again, they'll realize. In England where there is not enough food, and going out to tea you must take your own sugar, the idea of what war is is borne upon you. She saw at Charing Cross the most pitiable yet sometimes comical misery in the Belgian refugees. One, a lady, who had fled from Malines, who clasped in her hand a little wooden toy—all she had saved—another woman clad only in a night-dress and overcoat, and with a baby 10 days old. These are the comical ones—there are some which would make your blood curdle in your veins.

Men at the Front.

These were the sights that made her long to be a man, to be in the thick of it. "All I have," said Miss Ward, "is my tongue, but if I had the

DIRECTORS WILL NOT BE ALLOWED IN THE COMPETITION

Peterborough Horticultural Decides to Bar Them From Participating in the Annual Lawn and Garden Contest

SOME SPECIAL PRIZES

A well attended meeting of the Directors of The Peterborough Horticultural Society was held Friday evening last, when plans for the season's work were discussed. It was decided to make some changes in the Lawn and Garden competition held by the Society each year. A resolution was passed barring any of the directors of the society from participating in this contest. Two classes will be made, one specialising the Workingman's Lawns and Gardens. In addition to the regular prizes offered by the society for the latter class, special cash prizes will be offered, as follows by Mr. W. J. Kennedy $5.00; by Mr. W. Stocker, $3; by Chief Howard, $2. It is hoped by these special inducements more enthusiasm will be in evidence this season.

A long list of plant and shrub options was gone over for distribution to the members this spring, and this will shortly be published in the press. An active canvass for new members will also be made to bring the membership of the society up to one thousand.

The Examiner's Dollar Day Contest

A Genuine Estimating Contest— $25.00 in Prizes and a Special Prize of $10.00

This year's Dollar Day, which is to be held on Thuraday, January 25th, should be one of the best on record. The Examiner is adding interest to the occasion by putting on an estimating contest that can be figured out with a little patience. We have bought a quart sealer at Masons Grocery Store and sufficient beans at Denne's Flour and Feed Store, George street, to fill it, and to those who put in the nearest correct estimates to the number of beans in the sealer, the following prizes will be given:

First nearest estimate	$ 6.00
Second nearest estimate	5.00
Third nearest estimate	4.00
Fourth nearest estimate	3.00
Fifth nearest estimate	2.00
Sixth nearest estimate	1.00
Seventh nearest estimate	1.00
Eighth nearest estimate	1.00
Ninth nearest estimate	1.00
Tenth nearest estimate	1.00
	$25.00

And a special prize of $10.00 if the winner of the merchants' treasury box prize got the estimating blank at the Examiner office.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

MONDAY, JAN. 22, 1917

MR. WOBBLING WARBURTON.

Mr. Warburton, of Toronto, Chairman of the Committee of One Hundred, that hustled the Hearst Government into bringing in a prohibition measure is, apparently weakening in his zeal for the temperance cause. He is breaking into party politics and comes out in support of Mr. McPherson in Northwest Toronto, who is being voted upon to-day. Mr. McPherson is not quite in the class of Caesar's wife, in the matter of his temperance orthodoxy. He voted at one session against the principle of prohibition, and at the next, like a good boy, voted for it, because he was told it was good party politics to support a temperance measure the Government he supported was dragooned into introducing. Is Mr. Warburton taking the advice of a city hall official and getting "in line for a government job?"

WORKING DOUBLE SHIFTS.

We encounter protest from politicians against any political activity of a contentious kind during the progress of the war—especially from the class of politicians who don't want government actions considered. We expect that from the politicians, for they, or a certain class of them, hold party interests as the first consideration. There are some women, and others, who claim that the whole time of our women should be exclusively concentrated upon war work — their whole time given to it. It is objected that the present is an inopportune time to provoke consideration of the important question of woman suffrage —the discussion will engender antagonism and interfere with war work. There may be something in this claim, but it ignores the immense capacity of women to do things; and it is possible for war work to go on uninterruptedly and other interests be promoted at the same time. We never are so busy, any of us, that we can't do a little more, especially if our heart is in the little more. Some politicians say that our government and parliament should devote their whole energies to the war, yet at the opening of the Legislature yesterday, one member gave notice of a woman suffrage resolution, and another of a divorce court resolution. These things are not directly connected with the war, but nevertheless parliament will no doubt not neglect war measures. Besides there is need for relaxation even in the best work, when the strain is prolonged. Continuous work is not conducive to the greatest results. A time of rest is a divine institution, as represented by the Sabbath Day, and experience has shown that working men seven days a week on munitions production doesn't bring the highest output. It has been shown that workers produce the most in the first hours of the day when they are fresh from a night's rest. Even the soldiers at the front are not kept to the trenches; they are periodically relived, and so; they are periodically relieved, and chance to recuperate.

So with our women engaged in war work: they will work better for a little relaxation. Besides, they can't keep the pace—there's a limit to the human endurance of exertion, and keeping fit for further exertion. If the war lasts much longer our women will have to husband their strength. And a little relaxation will not do them any harm, nor interefere with their output of work. Of course our first work should be to win the war, but a greater work awaits all of us—women as well as men—when peace comes and problems of readjustment will demand harder work and greater wisdom. The work for war winning depends upon the united efforts of men and women, and the problems of readjustment can't all be settled by men. Women must do their share, and they will do it the better if they have the inspiration and authority of the vote—and they won't get the vote unless they "get after it."

SAVING AND THRIFT FOR ALL.

The appeal of Sir Thomas White, Minister of Finance, to the people to practice thrift, applies to governments, federal, provincial and municipal, as well as to the people. The claims of the war, and the means for its successful prosecution, which include not only money, but the prudent use of it, should take precedence of everything else. People individually practicing economy save dollars: governments practising economy can save millions. The Journal of Commerce claims that the men employed upon, and the money spent in rebuilding the parliamentary buildings at Ottawa, could better be devoted in strengthening our forces and fortifying the finances of the country in the interests of war prosecution. We can wait for new parliament buildings, but we cannot wait for victory by neglecting to furnish now the materials in men and money for war purposes.

There is reason to believe that a great deal of waste takes place in managing this war. Signal examples crop up one after another. For instance it is asserted by Mr. Dewart, M.P.P., that Col. Currie, M.P., though home from the front, and not in charge of any brigade or battalion, is drawing full pay every day, (pay and allowance, $10 per day), simply for doing nothing. In addition to violating the Finance Minister's appeal to saving and thrift, he violates the King's regulations by taking part in party politics, while under King's pay; and not only that, but while disloyally drawing unearned pay, he has the impudence to assail the character of an honourable public man by charging him with disloyalty, because he bears a name similar to that borne by some German, though there is not a drop of German blood in his veins—with as much consistency as there would be in saying that Premier Hearst is a pro-German because he has the same name as Hearst, the pro-German newspaper publisher in New York.

This by way of parenthesis; but it is an example of the way in which the resources of Canada are being wasted by the protege of a government that is calling upon the common people to exercise saving and practice thrift so that they may lend money to the government—what for? To pay ornamental colonels, though with gallant record of service, ten dollars a day, for doing nothing, which is possibly and, perhaps, a type of similar extravagance in all the expenditures of the government in regard to the war. This in contrast with what Britain is doing in the way of taxation, actually putting wealth under conscription, taxing the rich to the hilt. It is only by avoiding waste that Great Britain is able to bear a financial burden unparalleled in history. Our government in Canada claims exemption from criticism during the war; but does it deserve such exemption, when it violates, in greater or lesser part, the spirit of its call to the people to save to lend to the government. If the people put their money in the government's hands it is their money still; and they have a right to demand that not a dollar should be spent without getting a dollar's value—millions for munitions, but not a dollar for waste.

A FALLING BAROMETER.

The members, defenders, journalistic and otherwise, of the Ontario Government rejoiced greatly over the victory in West Simcoe. They must have been mightily frightened and doubtful of the result when they broke into rejoicing over a "victory" that, in a bye-election permitting a concentration of government influence, cut the government majority of the general electron in half. This is of itself a proof that the Government's popularity is waning, for it is one of a series of bye-elections that have demonstrated the weakening popular support of the government. The following bye-election results are as discouraging to the Government party as they are encouraging to the Opposition.

West Simcoe—Government majority 1914, 1025; government majority 1917, 631. Opposition gain, 454.

A gain of three seats counts six on a division, and as regards the three Liberal gains counts a good deal more with regard to debating strength.

SOMETHING ABOUT THE MAKING OF OLEOMARGARINE

For more than thirty years in America, and for a longer time in Great Britain, oleomargarine, or margarine as the English call it, has been a food of the people. In the United States its annual consumption exceeds half a billion pounds and more are consumed every year. Yet in Canada its manufacture and sale is forbidden due to the opposition of the dairy interests.

In itself margarine, or oleomargarine, is an innocent thing. It is not a fraud, nor bad, but on the other hand a legitimate, wholesome, palatable, cleanly and nutritious article of food; and even its honest enemies are compelled to admit that in itself it is the practical equal of butter as a fat food, equally palatable, and that it can be made and sold for about half the price of butter. What, then, is the quarrel with this commodity?

Briefly the quarrel is and has been that margarine has been sold as butter, under the name of butter, and so a fraud has been perpetrated on both the dairy interests and the public. This fraud has been possible because of the likeness of margarine to butter in taste, smell, flavor, and color, and because the average individual cannot distinguish good margarine from butter. Hence it has been exceedingly easy to substitute margarine for butter, fraudulently; and this has been done on a gigantic scale, particularly in the United States where the laws actually incite to the practice of fraud. In Great Britain, the fraudulent sale of margarine has quite ceased, thanks to more enlightened legislators and legislation.

The quarrel of the dairymen over margarine is not with the product, nor with the way in which it is made, nor with the materials of which it is made; but with the selling and sellers of it. The sinner is not the article, but the man who sells it—jobber and retailer—this in the United States. Margarine has been the victim of its own excellence and likeness to butter.

The modern way of making oleomargarine (as practiced in the United States) is herewith described:

The caul or inner fat (the best fat) of freshly killed beeves is taken; and after a thorough washing in tepid water, and then in iced water, the fat is allowed to stand in a cool room until thoroughly cold.

Then the fat is cut up finely by machinery and melted in steam-heated cauldrons at about 160 deg. F., after which it is allowed to settle. Salt is scattered over the surface of the fat to accelerate the settling of fibre or membrane. After settling, the clear oil is siphoned to a second series of cauldrons when more salt is added, and the temperature controlled, until the second settling is completed. The oil is then siphoned into vats in which it is allowed to stand from three to five days at a temperature favourable to the crystallization of the stearin (the main component of solid fat). The mass is then thoroughly mixed, wrapped in cloths, and submitted to powerful pressure which separates the oil from the stearin. This oil, quite free from membrane or tissue, flows out into a tank of cold water where it solidifies into a granular mass, which is known to the trade as "oleo oil," or simply "oleo."

The physical properties of oleomargarine are so similar to those of butter that it is very difficult to distinguish between them by any superficial test. On this subject of the physical properties or construction of the two substances, a word here is in place. Butter is put together in a peculiar way. It is formed of little globules of fat enclosed in a tiny sack. It gets into this peculiar condition in the process of churning, and it is because of this physical arrangement that it spreads so well. In the case of oleomargarine, the formation is the same and for the same reason, but the walls of the sacks are a little thicker than in the case of butter.—Canadian Grocer.

WHY WAS DORCHESTER OPENED?

Some persons are asking why there should be a by-election in Dorchester at this time? A very proper question. The answer is that Sir Robert Borden brought on the by-election because he would not say "No" to the Nationalist demand for the possession of still another Cabinet position in a so-called Conservatice Government. Mr Sevigny is a Nationalist and has never repudiated his Nationalist utterances. It is impossible to believe that Premier Borden exercised freedom of choice in giving the position to Mr. Sevigny. He simply yielded to demands, knowing what he was doing, and trusting that war conditions would force members of his own party and of the Opposition into condoning his acquiescence in Nationalist demands.

If Premier Borden had decided not to run the risk of a by-election, if he had desired to avoid even the suggestion of stirring up political strife at this period, then instead of promoting Mr. Blondin, the National of "short-holes-in-the-British flag" fame to the position left vacant by that splendid type of French-Canadian, the late Hon. T. Chase Casgrain, and promoting the Nationalist, Mr. Patenaude, to Mr. Blondin's place, and promoting the Nationalist, Mr. Sevigny, to Mr. Patenaude's place, he would have given Mr. T. Chase-Casgrain's portfolio to a man of the type of the Hon. Joseph Bolduc. Senator Bolduc is a politician of high reputation, business man, and one who has always taken a keen interest in national questions, particularly those of education and agriculture. He has also to his credit a long experience as a member of the House of Commons.

Why was Senator Bolduc passed over in favour of Mr. Sevigny? When Parliament met last Thursday, Senator Bolduc was appointed on the Premier's direct nomination, Speaker of the Senate. The question is, why did the Premier not offer the portfolio held by Mr. Casgrain to Senator Bolduc? Then there would have been no by-election anywhere, and the Cabinet would have been strengthened by the accession to office of an experienced parliamentarian of the Casgrain school.

There certainly was no occasion to open Dorchester simply to gratify the aspirations of the three Nationalists, Blondin, Patenaude, and Sevigny.—Montreal Herald.

Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In the North Ward we have in "Inverlea" one of the prettiest parks to be found anywhere, but a great many are deprived of using it, because any afternoon in the summer it is a common thing to see from 50 to 100 boys and young men changing their clothes out in the open. This "back to nature" stunt might be all right 100 miles north of here, but it is hardly in keeping with the centre of an enlightened city like Peterborough. Let us be fair to the modesty of the public and to the natural modesty of the boys themselves, and see that proper bathing facilities are placed at the disposal of Peterborough's future Statesmen Leaders.

Yours truly,

COL. MACDONALD KILLED BY TRAIN

gine and placed under arrest on a charge of manslaughter. At midnight a third arrest was made, when the man alleged to have given the signal for the engine to run through the station was taken into custody on a similar charge.

The arrests made are:

John Ross, engineer, 216 Pearson Avenue.

Charles Farmer, Sarnia, Ont.

The tragedy marked the departure of the troop train from the station shortly after 9 o'clock. To facilitate handling the crowds the troop train was run over the main freight tracks, just beyond No. 6 passenger track. As the train pulled slowly from the station towards the east the crowds ran along the snow, cheering and waving handkerchiefs. Col. Macdonald, accompanied by the staff of No. 1 Division, stood in the centre of track No. 6, surrounded by a concourse of shouting people, when without any warning engine No. 215, running light, backed into the crowd. The Col. was struck by the pilot, and the impact of the blow made him stagger forward a couple of feet. Then he pitched head forward on the snow, directly in front of the oncoming engine and disappeared beneath the heavy wheels.

Before Col. Macdonald was struck the locomotive ran down Frank Lewarne, who, unconscious of all danger was waving a last farewell to his son as the troop train disappeared. He likewise fell in front of the engine and was carried beneath the brake beams.

In the meantime the engine was clearing its way through the crowds, scattering people to the right and the left, and throwing them into a mass of struggling humanity on either side. Several received painful injuries, while many others had narrow escapes from instant death, rescuing hands pulling them from certain death not a second too soon. Prominent among the rescuers was Patrol Sergt. McMenomy, of No. 1 Division, who leaped through the panic-stricken crowds and thrust his way along, pulling the people from danger. Constable Henshaw also did good work, and likewise has a number of rescues to his credit.

CROWD PANIC-STRICKEN.

Carried along by the momentum of its own weight the engine ran fully 10 yards with the two men beneath the trucks before it could be brought to a stop. In its wake it left a panic stricken crowd who ran up and down the platform, shrieking and crying, while several of the injured lay unconscious on the snow. Several of the headquarters staff including Capt. William B. McPherson, attached to No. 1 Division, who had a narrow escape from serious injury, restored order after considerable difficulty, and the injured were carried into a station waiting-room, where they received medical attention from Capt. G. S. Foulds, of the Exhibition Camp, and Dr. Gordon Rice, who was hurriedly called. None, however, were found to be seriously enough hurt to warrant their removal to a hospital, although several were rushed to their homes in automobiles.

The Veil

By Canadian Overseas

He had the curious, inexplicable feeling, long before any experience of the firing line, that he would go unwounded through whatever scenes of war he might pass. his sensation of immunity from physical harm had accompanied him ever since the days of his boyhood.

As the days drew near, when death would reap her harvest all about him, he felt careless of evil; and when at last the distant reverberations of the guns having changed to a definite roar, he trudged with his platoon through the dark windings of the communication trench on his way to the real fring and the sharp explosions not far off shook him, he felt conscious even of a kind of exhilaration. Later, amid shattering shrapnel fire, this feeling was intensified. To go through all that infernal din, that storm of flying iron and death that killed, burned and maimed, without a scratch—it was glorious!

He became known as the man who bore a charmed life. Through a hail of bullets he would advance with his Company to find himself always one of the unwounded group. Chosen to take a message along the line at a deadly moment, tempting the snipers again and again, he passed unhurt. The jaws of death snapped at him a thousand times, but always missed.

A day came when his Battalion had to take a Village, which was a stronghold. It was dawn when the men 'went over.' For nine hours previously their own batteries had stormed the place until through the glasses it looked like a heap of ruins. They felt sure that nothing could have lived through it, but from hidden holes machine-guns swept the advancing battalion. He saw men fall; he saw men rise and stagger on; he saw them drop again and be still. He soon realized that less than half of them would gain [illegible] finally they reached the spot and silenced the guns. He, himself, went on to explore until he came to the cracked walls of a little chapel. He was all alone. He heard the shouts of his comrades in the distance, gradually they were heard no more and all was quiet.

The sun had just risen. Its level rays illuminated an ancient Gargoyle which grinned maliciously down. He could not get away from it. He began to feel queer. All the stones grinned and mocked him and shadows lurked behind piles of rubbish.

All through the night the veil had been with him, but now for the first time he knew fear—cold, horrible, ominous fear, and he felt that the veil was being torn.

Presently he heard a familiar sound and knew that some kind of news had reached the enemy's batteries. A couple of shells burst far down the shattered street. Where were his comrades? The silence was strange, and he could see no one. He did not know they had received a message to retire until night fall. As the din grew louder he took refuge closer in to the wall and shells screamed round where he crouched. They came nearer and nearer -- one struck the doorway of the chapel, and the gurgoyle fell grinning at his feet It chilled him to the bone, and he knew the veil was torn still more.

He gazed at all this desolation; this wild ruin; this shattered street; this ruined church, and the innocent little gurgoyle grinning up at him. Then a blast caught him full and flung him against the stones. He felt the veil was torn completely and he threw his hands pathetically to his eyes. Then came a star-pricked blackness and then oblivion.

When he woke he heard subdued voices about his bed. He opened his eyes wide, but could see nothing, nothing, nothing, and he knew all. He had gone through without a wound and though the veil was gone he was left in darkness.

WHY NOT SNEEZE.

It is Said to Be Nature's Attempt to Cure You.

Sneezing is not a complaint, but an effort on the part of nature to get rid of a complaint. It may be due to any one of a number of causes. Dust, the pollen of plants, a draught of cold air on a too-warm exposed surface of the body will excite the sternutatory spasm. Bright light will cause many persons to sneeze; while gazing at the clear, blue sky will cause the nasal convulsion in many cases.

When you begin to contract one of the various conditions commonly bunched under the general name of "a cold" the sneezing is due to an attempt of nature to cure you. The sneeze may expel the dust or the pollen which is causing the irritation. But it does more than that. Nature is making you sneeze for the same purpose that she makes you shudder—she is attempting to generate heat for raising the temperature of the body and preventing you from taking cold. You do not sneeze with the nose alone but with the entire body. During the act about every muscle in the body gives a little jump, and the combined effect of all this energy of motion is to warm the entire system. A shiver does the same thing—it spasmodically contracts all the muscles and so raises the temperature.

But sneezing is not always efficacious in curing one. It is worth while to know that one can help nature along when she gives one this warning and also stop the spasm of sneezing by a few deep breathing exercises. Try it the next time. Stop and fill your lungs full of air half a dozen times or so; you will stop sneezing and perhaps abort a cold.—Cleveland "Plain-Dealer."

FARE AND A THIRD RAILROAD RATE TO PARTIES OF TEN FROM ONE PLACE

ADVANCE IN FARMING.

Tillers of the Soil Far Ahead of Their Grandfathers.

Some figures recently worked out dealing with the economics of crop production show that our grandfathers had to work a full nine-hour day to produce two bushels of corn. In many cases it required another full day to carry a two-bushel bag of that corn on horseback to a distant mill to be ground into meal from which were made cornmeal, johnnycake, hoecake, or corn pone, according to the locality.

To-day the grandson, by the aid of improved horse power or moter-driven machinery, can produce two bushels of corn in an hour and a half in so far as the labour element is concerned. Put in another way, the grandson, by means of mechanical and cultural helps, can accomplish six times as much in a given period as did his grandfather sixty years ago in the work of feeding the world.

Calculating the results of increased efficiency on this basis, should the corn-growing grandson receive six times as much for a year's planting, management, and labour as did his grandsire? If so, does he get it? Is his land investment, farm equipment and labour bill six times greater, and do his living expenses, taxes, insurance and upkeep of his farm plant call for a correspondingly greater outlay?

Unless the grandson's receipts have kept pace with the increase of farm efficiency of his generation, thus enabling him to secure and equip a farm for himself, pay expenses, and have a reasonable surplus of profit, something is still out of joint in the farming business. Furthermore, even though the grandson may have become six times more efficient than his grandfather in the production of food supplies, unless he has advanced to where he can take his rightful place in the world's civic and social duties and enjoy an equitable share of its recreations, the grandson has still the most important of his accomplishments before him — getting these things.—Farm and Fireside.

384 GEORGE STREET PETERBOROUGH

ANNIVERSARY OF GEORGE STREET METHODIST SUNDAY SCHOOL

Rev. E. A. Pearson, Fomer Pastor of George Street Occupied the Pulpit at Both Services—How to Become a Christian and How to Remain One—"Watch, Pray, Work."

The anniversary of the Sunday school of the George street Methodist church was observed yesterday, especially at the morning service. The Sunday school gathered at 10.30 o'clock in the morning and marched into the church, occupying the large part reserved for them. The Rev. E. A. Pearson, of Chatham, and formerly of the George street church, occupied the pulpit at both services. In the morning Dr. J. E. Middleton, Sunday school superintendent, presided, and Mr. G. R. Armstrong, assistant superintendent, assisted in the service.

The anniversary music was splendid. At the morning service the Misses Tretheway, who are scholars of the primary department of the Sunday school, rendered a duet that was very greatly appreciated. Miss Gallagher, who is attending Normal school in the city, sang nicely, in a solo. At both services the offerings of the Sunday school orchestra were very greatly appreciated. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. W. A. Cunningham, not only made a splendid showing from the standpoint of attendance, but provided remarkably good music both morning and evening. All their numbers were heartily enjoyed and added very considerably to the success of a very successful anniversary. In the evening Mrs. J. H. Renwick sang very acceptably.

Speaking in the morning, Rev. Mr. Pearson frankly admitted that on facing the congregation for the first time since his pastorate here, so many memories crowded his mind that he did not feel capable of beginning his talk at the place where he had intended to begin it. "I would like to tell you how glad I am to be here," said the speaker, "but I assume that you know how good it is for me to come back to this church even for so short a time. I have precious memories of this church. He referred to the fact that it was while his father was pastor at George street he was recommended for the ministry, and that some years later he had returned to it as pastor. He recounted some of the many incidents he could not forget, in which the members of the congregation had been so kind to him. He remembered the day when our young man, who has since laid down his life on the battlefield, walked up the aisle and became a member of the church.

"These," said Mr. Pearson, with feeling, "are considerations which tend to overwhelm me this morning."

Words Worth While.

It was his custom, he explained when addressing Sunday schools on their anniversary day, to choose as his text the golden text of the Sunday school lesson of the day. To-day the gold text consisted of but eight letters and two words. They were, however, words of very great importance—words worth while. "I should be very sorry indeed to come 250 miles to you without something worth while to talk to you about, said Mr. Pearson. "I am glad I have a subject worth while. My text then will be the golden text of to-day's lesson, "Follow Me.'"

"Follow Me"—Jesus had used these words very often. We find them among the first of His words of which we have any record, and among the last. And all through His ministry He was continuously saying "Follow Me." In his sermon the speaker proposed to answer five questions, namely:

1. What is a Christian?
2. How may I become a Christian?
3. How early may I become a Christian?
4. How may I know I am a Christian?
5. How may I continue to be a Christian.

Firstly, then, what is a Christian? The answer is in our text. A Christian is one who follows Him, Jesus said again and again, "Follow Me." That is what it means to be a Christian. At that time the disciples of Jesus had no idea of an inspired Bible, nor of theology, for it was not then a science, nor of the church as we understand it, for it was not yet an organization. Then there was no creed by which to determine one's faith. At that time a Christian was one who followed Christ, and the same thing applied to-day.

Become a Christian.

How may I become a Christian? The one who makes up his mind to follow Jesus becomes a Christian. Boys and girls were constantly making up their minds. They made up their minds to study music, or to go to school and to do a hundred and one various things. They knew what it meant for them to make up their minds. Then if they made up their minds to read the book about Jesus and to trust, obey and follow Him—that was the way to become a Christian. The way by which we show this decision is by confession, and the manner of confession is to join the church. "I am not particularly concerned," said the speaker, "about formulas and definitions and that sort of thing. Some would say that I was letting down the bars, but I say that is putting them up. I find that Jesus was not particularly interested in speculative questions. I find he was constantly saying "Follow Me" and "Abide in Me."

Thirdly, how early may I become a Christian? Some thought that it was necessary for children to wait until they could understand all the big words the minister uses. This was a great mistake. Anyone is old enough to become a Christian as soon as they know there is a Jesus to follow. As soon as one is old enough to want to follow Christ he can do it, and as soon as he does it he becomes a Christian. Do you know any better or bigger word than the word Christian There is none. And if Jesus looked down at the child in the cradle and said, "Of such is the Kingdom of Heaven," who can quarrel with me if I call these children Christians?

Remain Christians?

Fourthly. How can we know we are Christians? I wonder how anyone could be happy unless he knows he is a Christian. Uncertainty about important matters is always distressing. Some think it is not modest to say, "I am a Christian," but these men are confused in their ideas of Christianity." "Don't you think you can know it's your aim to follow Jesus?" We always know when we are trying to do anything else, why should this uncertainty take hold of us with regard to religious effort? We ought to know positively whether we are Christians or not, and the more certain we are the stronger we are to do His will.

Lastly. How may we remain Christians. This was the hardest point of all. Some men are fine starters, but they do no finish at all, or else finish far too soon. A lot of young men drop out of the race somewhere between the Sunday school and the church. There are three words of just one syllable each that should help us to remain Christians. They are, "Watch, Pray, Work." Keep your eyes open. Over in England they are scaning the earth and sky and sea, and every speck on the horizon is watched and accounted for. So we should not go to sleep. We should never watch our body, watch our minds and watch our associates. We should watch our companions—and books are splendid companions which have to be watched too.

We should pray because we need more strength than our own. We should want it, ask for it and use it. It is a funny sort of a friend we never talk to, isn't it? And praying is talking to Jesus. Lastly we should work. Jesus was always busy, and constantly using the words, work and serve. We should not remember that he has said that the greatest on earth is the one who is the most useful to the most people.

NEW SENATOR IS PLEASED

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Jan. 22. — Frederick Nicholls of the Canadian General Electric Company, Hon. Lieut. Col., to-day expressed himself as pleased over his appointment as Senator. He felt that although he had had an active life this gave him an opportunity of doing further useful work.

"Daddy Long Legs" Charming As Ever"

Henry Miller's Production of Jean Webster's Delightful Story at the Grand on Saturday

The Toronto World says:

Because it reads so like a fairy story, "Daddy Long Legs" will never grow old. This delightful story which originated in novel form from the pen of Jean Webster, was once more received with open arms at the Grand Opera House last night. The present production has still for sponsor Henry Miller, the director, who first persuaded Miss Webster that her sweet little story of an orphan adopted by a school trustee, would eventually become the most popular play of a decade. And having found such a play, Henry Miller has placed it in most capable hands at all times. To a very youthful little leading lady, indeed, fall the honours of the role of Judy. As the hard-worked protege of the John Grier Orphanage, Miss Edna Walton proves that she is already a talented actress. Later, as Judy, the happy college girl, who at last "belongs" to someone, her sweet personality rivals her dramatic talent.

As Jervis Pendleton, "Daddy Long Legs," and a fairy godfather of the first rank, Albert Roscoe is quite charming. His interest in the poor little orphan slavey began when she showed personality enough to get angry with the impossible old trustee, and increased to love and admiration as he watched her grasp opportunity with both hands and become a genius.

Harry Ridding is a typical college boy and carries off the role of James McBride, whose father owns the overall factory, with becoming swagger.

Viola Cain is a charming Julia and Agnes Martin as Sallie McBride, Judy's other college room mate, is always sweetly sympathetic.

Marie Taylor as Mrs. Semple, Pendleton's faithful old nurse, lends considerable color and the orphan children in the first act deserve great credit for the excellent row they make.

Sue Van Dusen as the philanthropic Miss Pritchard and the rest of the cast assisted in making "Daddy Long Legs" once more an entertainment, rare and delightful.

SOLDIERS' WIVES' AND MOTHERS' CLUB.

The members of the Soldiers' Wives' and Mothers' Club are requested to meet at the home of Mrs. Downey, 158 Edinburgh street, on Tuesday, at 2.30, to pack socks for the boys in the trenches.

The members of the Soldiers' Wives' and Mothers' Club are reminded that Friday is "tea day." Members are urgently requested to be present. Business important. Election of officers.

THRILLING APPEAL MADE FOR RECRUITS

Kaiser I'd make it work until he cried 'Stop the war at any price'." Miss Ward had seen men off—men from the pulpit, the stage, the platform, the store, the stable, from Scotland, Wales, Ireland, and glorious Canada, all who had rallied to the Motherland's call of distress, and she had been chosen to go and help the men to forget — to make Tommie laugh. Miss Ward's appeal to the mothers was strong "Many," she said, "form a wrong idea of the religion of the ment at the front—there worship and religion are strong factors. Mothers are apt to wish to keep their lads tied to their apron strings—they are afraid the environment will hurt their religions principles. I want to tell you your boys don't know the meaning of religion until they are in danger." She spoke of the allegorical likeness of the very watches the boys all wear with their phospherent figgures. These, like religion, stand the test of their worth in darkness. She had stood shivering in a basement in shell torn France with men who had never dreamed of church or prayer, and had heard these men as they wondered where the next shell would fall, call to God for help. A wonderful religion is brought out out yonder at the front. There the 2,000 year quarrel, Catholics burning Protestants, and Protestants burning Catholics, elders and priests differences is levelled into the real religion of "Fear God and keep his commandments for this is the whole duty of man." The religion of unselfishness is the religion of the front. Miss Ward brings a special message from Belgium and France — "We thank you from our hearts for all the comforts and help you have sent us, and the lads, clear-eyed and clean-limbed whose very name spelled loyaltyy and devotion."

The Canadians.

"I wonder," said Miss Ward, "what the Kaiser will say when he realizes that all that prevented his pushing into Calais was a little band of Canadians," out there when Miss Ward was called upon to amuse the men they asked for "Rock of Ages," and not forgetting their brothers on the sea, "Eternal Father Strong to Save." Then every head was bared, fair, dark and a few ginger heads. They are'nt saints but they are nearer to God than ever before. There is a strange levelling of worship, there in the firing line, one church or hut made into such bears the inscription —"Divine service wil be held in this church—Church of England service at 9, Roman Catholic 10, and non-Conformist at 3 p.m., and on Saturday service for Jews. Isn't this getting pretty near an ideal religion? The boys are nearer God and humanity out there that they are here, home training is not forgotten. Every Sunday the boys put their watches back and wonder what the home folks are doing. The remembrance of Sunday school training struck Miss Ward just as the ending of almost every letter which goes over, and generally reads—"God bless you," and this Miss Ward assures all is meant. There is another change that comes over the boys. At home sometime ago they came in with a "What's for dinner"—or "I'm downright sick" — over there she has seen the same lads bite their gum, cigarettes to keep back the groans. They have become manly chaps.

Advice to Mothers.

You don't know the meaning of rest until you have fought your country's battles. After a battle the men want entertained, but more they want their mothers, "but," said Miss Ward, "I wouldn't advise any mother to go—England is a very sad place just now. She is fighting for her very existance." Of the speaker's famly every made member has gone—even her father, over 70 years of age, passed as 40, and enlisted. However, he had to give up, but is still in patriotic work. "I wouldn't look at a man who wouldn't go," she said. "There are of course, thase who find it harder to stay than to go. We have no right to judge. There are extinuating circumstances, but lads who can go—who are fit come in. It's the biggest thing in the world. You will never know the value of home until you leave it. It's only a coat of khaki, but it makes you proud and free. It started with a small thing, only a scrap of paper, but it's a big cause. Who is for it?

ROUMANIAN PICTURES

A Roumanian Peasant, Hero of the War

(By a Correspondent.)

(A Rumanian Peasant Hero of the War by a Correspondent.)

"Stories of bravery and devotion are so frequently to be picked up in these days that they have almost lost their value. Here is one, however, which not only brings to light courage and self-sacrifice from above the common, but also illustrates the character of the Rumanian peasant soldier and the relations of a feudal kind which still exists in this army, between the officers and the men.

There is a captain in a hospital here in Bucharest, wounded in the Dodrudja upon that fatal hill which cost the Rumanians as much and more than Spion Cap cost us. Although it is against custom his orderly is allowed to wait upon him. This man, a tall, lithe fellow, with good features and deep-set, dark eyes, and a frank, simple childlike expression, has been given some job in the hospital so that he may be near his master. His name is Gheorghes Lupu. In English it would be George Wolf. And this is the story told by the captain, of how George saved his life.

"When we got the orders to advance I told him to stay behind, but he begged to be allowed to march with the company. He comes from the same part of the country as I do. His family has worked on our property for generations. "Oh Captain," he said, "I promised Madame I would not leave you, I am responsible for your safety to Madame. So he came with us and we were soon in touch with the enemy.

At first we drove them back and we went with a rush up to the top of a biggish plateau where there was never a sign of a Bulgar. So on we went until all of a sudden there was a tremendous burst of rifle fire and then a few moments later of shrapnel all around us. I was trying to spot where this fire came from when I felt a blow in my right thigh as if a horse had kicked me. I tried to get up from where I had fallen, but I could scarcely move. I looked about for my Bugler and signaller; but couldn't see them. The only man alive and near me was Lupu. He was lying stretched out by me, only a yard or so away. He had followed me closely all the time.

His first idea was to carry me, but as soon as he raised himself up at all he gave the riflemen and the gunners a target and the fire grew hotter. We were left there in a little salient all our own. The enemy wouldn't come up the hill because they did not know what force we might have on the other side, but they peppered it steadily. Our chances looked pretty poor.

I had lost so much blood that I had very little strength left. I did not lose consciousness, but I was in that state of complete lethargy that came neither painful or unpleasant which is caused by loss of blood and which has helped so many poor fellows to pass away quietly unresistingly, instead of suffering and struggling in vain. How long I stayed like that I don't know but the first thing I remember is hearing Lupu's voice saying to me, "Captain we can't stay here." "All right" I said. "Try to save yourself." "No. no," he protested, I promised not to leave you. I must stay with you. What would Madame say if I broke my word.

The Bulgarians kept on "watering" the hill. Presently Lupre spoke again. "Come, Captain," he said, "you must make an effort. If the Bulgarians find us here they will cut off our hands and bulge out our eyes. God knows what tortures they will put us to. Pull yourself together, captain. We'll crawl along together. I shan't leave you. Don't be afraid of that." If he hadn't been so insistent in his patient way I should never have moved. I felt that it was too much of an effort. I didn't care what happened to me. I only wanted to be left alone. I managed to get enough energy at last to start moving, but it was a fearful struggle. In a few moments I had begun to relax into inactivity.

Then Lupu changed his tactics. He saw that he must try a new tone. He spoke for the first time with a shade of impatience. "Come, captain," he said, "you know what you always used to be telling us in the regiment. When things are difficult. You used to say, clench your fists and grit your teeth. This is the time for it. Grit your teeth, clench your fists. Then we shall go along. Somehow or other Lupus' instinct told him to speak just the words, the only words I dare say, which were capable of rousing me. It seemed as if he had managed to transfer some of his healthy, vigorous blood into my veins that were so nearly dry. I felt now as if I could get away, and I wanted to try. It was a tedious business, crawling, wriggling, rolling over and over, dragging myself along. I thought it would never end. We covered like that three kilometres (more than a mile and a half). We went through brushwood, over stones, through stiff, pricky weed. Our clothes were in rags, we were covered with dirt, but at last we came to a little ravine, for we no longer had rifle and shrapnel bullets zipping and rattling around us. We took a rest here, then Lupus hoisted me up on his back. He carried me until we came to a village, where we found some other wounded of our side beating off the attack of some peasants. We joined in and and all of us got away safely. When we turned up at the place where the rest of the regiment was, the colonel thought we were ghosts. They had given us up as lost. Then I was sent here and Lupu with me, and he delivered me up to Madame as he had promised.

Even to Roumanians who know their peasantry well that story appeals with so much force that one of the principal newspapers here gives it a place of honour and Gheorghe is being made a popular hero of the war. There is some quality in it which distinguishes it from other stories of the kind.

One can vividly understand the naused his captain's exhortation to such ture of the good simple fellow who good purpose. The Roumanian peasants are like that. "Big children," people say, but children with a remarkable turn for talking. In a hospital a day or two ago, after a famous Roumanian poetess had given the men a little lecture about the war generally and had played the guitar for them, up got a young soldier and made an eloquent two-minute speech of thanks. I asked a Roumanian acquaintance who was there if this was not unusual. "Oh, no," he said, "they can talk. It seems to come natural to them."

They have the pretty old-world manners, too, which we associate with the patriarch age, when society was neatly arranged in grades, each grade recognizing what was due to the other, and behaving "as such." When the laundress brings home my "washing" she kisses my hand after I have paid her. The servants have special forms of salutation for use when addressing their "betters." In the country the feudal system still flourishes in many districts. The owners of the soil are not far from being the owners of the peasantry as well.

I need scarcely say that all this is passing and soon will be no more. There is no need to regret it. At heart these peasants will remain the same. Their fleunt tongues will not become speechless any more than those of the Italians. There will still be Gheorge Lupus to light up the dark records of bloodshed with gleams of radiant devotion and disregard of fear.

UNUSUAL FIRE CONDITIONS RESPONSIBLE FOR COLLAPSE OF QUAKER OATS WAREHOUSE

Interesting Address to Insurance Men by Mr. W. W. Pearse, City Architect of Toronto—What the Quaker Oats Conflagration Showed—How the Fire Started.

"Modern Fireproof Construction" is a subject of much interest to all fire insurance men. Mr. W. W. Pearse, city architect of Toronto, addressing the insurance institute of that city, dealt in a thorough manner with this topic. He said in part:

"There are two distinct types of modern fireproof construction known as 'steel skeleton construction' and 'reinforced concrete.'

"The 'steel skeleton construction' has, without doubt, held first place up till to-day, due to the fact that the steel work can be run up to almost any height in an incredibly short time; the balance of the construction follows immediately, some times, in fact generally, the brick and stonework are started at different stories, the upper part frequently being finished before the lower stories are commenced. This is usually caused by the lower stories being built of stone and, therefore, more difficult to get.

"Buildings up to 12 stories in height are generally built in what is known as curtain wall construction, which means that the walls are self-sustaining. This usually applies only to the side walls, the front being almost invariably built of skeleton construction, which means that at each floor the brickwork is supported.

"Steelwork has been able to overcome all the difficulties of construction caused by wind stresses and tremendous dead loads, and in my opinion, will never be superseded by any mode of construction for buildings more than 12 stories in height. This is particularly true when you consider that practically all the material used in these modern buildings is fabricated at the shop, all marked for erection; the foreman of the different trades is furnished with drawings which show where every piece is to go. This is true for practically all trades, such as stonework, terra cotta front work, steel work, plumbing, heating, etc. By this method these huge buildings are rapidly and economically constructed.

Reinforced Concrete Buildings.

"Referring to the reinforced concrete buildings, this type of construction has undoubtedly come to stay, and I might refer you to some of the modern buildings that are being erected in Toronto, one being the 'Trusts and Guarantee Building' on Bay Street, which is 11 stories in height, having girders for one storey built of concrete of the full depth of the story and carrying interior columns which have considerable loads coming thereon. This type of construction is what is known as beam and girder reinforced concrete. In other words, reinforced concrete beams and girders take the place of steel beams and girders in the steel skeleton construction.

"Another type is what is known as the four-way flat slab construction. An example of this construction is well illustrated in mail order building of the Simpson Company.

"Another type of concrete construction is the new Eaton factory building which is being erected on Downey's Lane and Alice street. This building is a 12-story one, and is a combination of flat slab construction and skeleton steel. The columns are built of steel work of such shape that the concrete when poured afound them reinforce them, and we have then a steel column reinforced with concrete, whereas in the Simpson building we have a concrete column reinforced with steel. The Eaton building then has floors constructed on lines similar to the four-way type of construction.

"The different floor systems are almost infinite but they usually resolve themselves down to terra cotta brick, gypsum, cinder or stone concrete.

Mr. Pearce illustrated further remarks with slides showing the various classes of construction.

Mr. T. D. Myrea, assistant to the city architect, dealt with "flat slab" construction, and in part, said:

"Since November 25th, 1915, a little over a year, there have been erected or started in Toronto thirteen reinforced concrete buildings of the type known as the 'flat slab type,' with a total permit value of $1,672,000. Previous to this time there were but two flat slab buildings constructed, with a permit value of $295,000.

"Confronted with the type of building that was first recognized in a building code by Chicago only as recently as 1914, and which purported to be as fireproof as any other existing type, our department was anxious to learn all that it possibly could as to its first resisting qualities. So when attention was called to the fact that a flat slab building was almost completely destroyed by the recent conflagration at the plant, of the Quaker Oats Company, at Peterborough, Ont., a report was obtained.

'The fire was started by an explosion in the dry house which blew out the east and north walls. In falling the north wall wrecked the boiler house, putting the fire pump out of commission, and the east wall took with it a 6-inch sprinkler riser, and buried the valve controlling this riser. The large stream of water thus drawn from the city mains so lowered the pressure that for perhaps an hour, until proper street valves could be located and closed, the water pressure from fire plugs in the neighbourhood was a slight breeze from the north-allowed to rage unhindered. There was a silght breeze from the northeast, which helped carry the fire from the point where it started to all the other bills in the plant, and all the buildings, with the exception of the circular grain bins, are now in ruins.

How Fire Started.

"The fire started about 10.15 a.m. The explosion started the fire on all six floors of the mill building at the same time. The fire doors in all fire walls were open, as the plant was in operation, but the employees managed to close those located between the mill and warehouse No. 1 before the fire got that far. It was not until a portion of the south wall of the mill fell, crashing through the roof and some of the floors of the warehouse, that the fire gained admission to it. Owing to the wind the concrete building was exposed directly to the flames from the burning mill and warehouse No. 1. By twelve o'clock the dry-house, mill and warehouse No. 1 were in ruins, the top of the wooden elevator was gone, and the fire was just starting in the reinforced concrete building."

Various views showing the effect of fire upon reinforced concrete, steel columns, bricks, ceilings, etc., were shown, Mr. Myirea adding:

In reality it is easier to explain why the Quaker Oats warehouse fell than why the Edison buildings stood. As soon as steel becomes heated, the working strength diminishes, and this weakening taxes place at the rate of approximately 4 per cent. for each 100 deg. Fahrenheit increase in temperature. At 2,500 deg. Fahreinheit, therefore, the strength would be 0, and this is very nearly the melting point of steel. If we take the evidence of the brick, which shows that a temperature of over 2,000 deg. Fahrenheit penetrated two inches into a material of just about the same conductivity as concrete, and, from this assume that the slab rods reached this temperature, it is evident that their working strength was reduced by about 80 per cent. For a steel with an elastic limit of 35,000 pounds per square inch, this would mean that the available working strength was less than 7,000 pounds per square inch. In the columns this would not be of such grave importance as in the floor slabs, but in the slabs the stresses developed were in excess of this reduced allowable stress. It is, therefore, probable that the floors failed first and carried the columns with them. This explanation appears to be confirmed by pictures taken. It is possible that the depth of the beams and girders and the short spans of the floor slabs in the Edison building offered a more effective resistance to collapse by reason of their shape, even were the working strengths temporarily reduced.

Wiser Course to Follow.

"There is much more evidence that the floor slabs collapsed first in the Quaker Oats warehouse. Even though protected in some cases with a very thin coat of concrete, the reinforcing walls were not oxidiead, while other exposed metal was. This might have been inferred from the fact that a thin coat of cement mortar will prevent rust, which is another form of oxidation. If a fire of sufficient intensity and duration to heat a nine-inch floor slab through, it is evident tha even four and one-half inches of fire-proofing would have availed nothing. So it seems to the speaker that it would be incorrect to call for excessive fireproofing simply because one building collapsed when exposed to unusual fire conditions. The wiser course would be to have just such an amount as by reason of its low heat conductivity would prevent the steel from becoming overheated in an ordinary blaze."

Minstrel Show in East City Parish Hall a Success

A minstrel show in the parish hall of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, on Friday night, drew a capacity house and delighted the audience of several hundred that included a considerable representation from the west side of the river. The production went smoothly all the way. The songs were well rendered both in solo and choral effect, and the work of the end men was new and bright. Mr. John McCabe, as stage manager, had forseseen all the requirements, and Mr. Dan. Leonard, musical director, arranged a very pleasing programme. All Weatherhead, pianist, played the accompaniments with good taste and precision. The success of the production was largely due to the clever work of Mr. Alex. Primeau, who, in his first appearance as an interlocutor, made a fine impression. Among the vocal numbers, Mr. Arthur Leonard's solo "Farewell to Thee," was particularly effective. The olio included step-dancing by Mr. D. Quinlan and Mr. M. English; a banjo specialty by Mr. Frank Clarke, and a comedy finale entitled "The Doctor," presented by Mr. D. Leonard, Joseph Collins and John Primeau.

The Story of the Play.

Bennington Brent, the laundry king, uses the phrases of the trade to shrewdly express his observations His beautiful daughter, Florence Brent, being of another generation, reflects the finish, or as Brent expresses it, "the satin gloss" of wealth and elegance.

Congressman John Oglesby, her chum from childhood, is a handsome young statesman and a prominent member of the National Assembly.

The Duke of Burits, a fellow countryman of the Count, endeavours to corrupt Oglesby for international-political reasons. But he fails in his estimate of the man.

The Duke, who is the ambassador for his country at the American Capitol, is introduced to Florence by the Count, on whom she has made a great impression. The attentiveness of the Count to Florence leads to the breaking of her engagement by Eleanor Williamson, but having inherited an estate, the Count feels independent of international marriages.

The blase attitude of the Duke is changed to deep and sudden interest by Florence's beauty and charm. Florence Brent in turn is dazzled by this foreign nobleman of royal blood.

The Duke is so entranced that he proposes to and is accepted by Florence. He departs for his country to arrange for the wedding. He meets with the opposition of his family, but prevails upon them to invite Florence to Burits.

Because of his love for Florence, John Oglesby accedes to her father's request and goes abroad with the Brents.

The Duke is playing a desperate game to overcome the obstacles in the way of is marriage to Florence, and as plan after plan fails he forces Florence into a tangled situation.

The subtle deception of the Duke and Count is discovered and shown up by Oglesby, who solves the seemingly impossible tangle in a masterly way.

CRIPPLED FRANCE

REPUBLIC HAS SENT OFFICERS TO RUN RUSSIAN FACTORIES —HUGE EXPORTS OF SUPPLIES.

PARIS. France was deprived of 50 per cent. of her resources in coal, 90 per cent. of her iron ore and 80 per cent. of her steel and iron manufacturing establishments by the German invasion. At the same time, the developments of the war multiplied her needs of precisely the things which those resources supplied.

Official figures furnished show how, crippled as she was, France metamorphosed her remaining industries, and improvised new ones so as to utilise to the maximum her remaining resources, not only supplying her own army, but handing over nearly a quarter of her output in arms and munitions to her allies.

France has supplied to Belgians, Russians, Italians, Serbians and Roumanians great quantities of such arms and munitions as she has manufactured herself, and has abandoned to her allies a considerable part of what she has bought abroad.

"The cessions of war supplies France has made to her allies are not regarded as sacrifices," an officer of the General Staff says; "we simply delegate thus a part of our energies to those who are in a situation to employ them to the best advantage."

Of its total production since the beginning of the war France has turned over to the allies quantities that represent the following proportions:

	P.C
Rifles	30
Cartridges	22
Field gun shells	20
Heavy artillery ammunition	20
Trench mortars	13
Hand grenades	27½
Protecting masks against suffocating gas	10
Powder	8
Other explosives	5

MUNITIONS SENT TO RUSSIA.

A French officer says that up to October 16 France had supplied Russia with more than 900,000 rifles and more than 300,000,000 cartridges; sent to her several hundred pieces of heavy artillery, millions of projectiles for field guns, millions of hand grenades, and thousands of aeroplane motors.

"French technical experts and specialists were also sent to Russia to intensify the home production," he said "There are now 22 officers and 236 subaltern officers and soldiers of the French army occupying important posts in the Russian munition factories."

The most important French mission sent to Russia was that headed by Colonel Pyot, who transformed into munition factories a great many establishments that had not previously worked for national defence.

Raw materials and coal have been sent in large quantities from France to Italy, together with a number of batteries of heavy artillery with a supply of shells to go with it. Besides keeping up the provision of projectiles for these heavy guns, France furnished Italy with a considerable number of charged three inch shells, and engaged to supply regularly several thousand empty shells a day. Five hundred thousand helmets, 40,000 trench shields, more than one hundred trench mortars, hundreds of tons of aluminum and chemical products were among the things furnished to Italy, while a French Flying Corps constitutes the defence of Venice against Austrian air attacks.

From the end of 1914 until the evacuation of Serbia, France supplied the Serbian artillery with 2,000 three-inch shells a day. After the retreat it was France that undertook the transportation and the reconstitution of the Serbian army at Corfu. The armament and the ammunition were furnished exclusively by France, and were identical with those of the French divisions; the rest of the material and supplies were furnished in common by France and Great Britain. One hundred and fifty vessels were required for the transportation, constituting another great privation to France in such dire need of better ocean transportation facilities. Some seventy six voyages were required for the entire operation, and it was accomplished without a single accident.

SUPPLIED ROUMANIAN ARMY.

France also supplied entirely the Roumanian Army with war materials and munitions from the day of its entry into the war. France supplied to Roumania more than 100,000 rifles, with 80,000,000 cartridges, and the additional supplies of 10,000 rifles a month, more than 1,000 machine guns with the necessary munition supplies; and more than 1,000,000 hand grenades. She furnished her with field guns, heavy artillery, trench guns, and anti-aircraft guns, with an initial supply of munitions for each, and with the undertaking to keep that supply up to the requirements. France gave the Roumanian Army all its engineering material, including telephonic and telegraphic lines, and all its wireless outfit, with a certain number of automobile searchlights, and more than 400 searchlights of different calibres, with 4,500 tons of barbed wire.

All the aviation material used by Roumania is of French manufacture; the French Flying Corps ceded to them 200 machines for pursuit, bombardment, and reconnoitring, while 100 other machines were built in Roumania with material or parts furnished by French industry. France made 200,000 steel helmets, 500,000 gas masks and 5,200 apparatuses against asphyxiating gas for Roumania. In September and October of this year France shipped to Roumania more than 5,000 tons of material. It went by way of Archangel and over the Russian railroads.

Twenty French officers and 300 French soldiers trained in the aviation service were sent to Roumania immediately after the declaration of war and formed the nucleus of its flying corps.

NATURE LOVER'S WILL

A curious will story is the subject of much gossip in North Westmoreland, England.

On August 10th there died at the Patterdale Hotel a retiring old gentleman, Dr. Peter Quin Keegan, an Irishman. He had lived in the dale a good many years, but little was known about him, except that his father had been a member of the firm of Keegan, Graham and Co., wine merchants, Belfast. Dr. Keegan was an LL.D. of Dublin University, and was keenly interested in botany, geology, and arboriculture. He wrote, among many other papers, one on the 'Chemistry of Lakeland Trees."

Some time before his death he met Mr. Ronald Ellwood, a traveller for Mr. T. Bardgett, draper, Penrith. Mr. Ellwood was travelling in the Patterdale district, and got into conversation with the venerable doctor in regard to botanical matters. Dr. Keegan gave Mr. Ellwood a book on the subject, which he took away with him. A short time ago Mr. Ellwood had occasion to consult the book, and found that two of its pages were fastened together and outside one of them was written an instruction by Dr. Keegan that they had not to be opened until after his death.

The doctor having died in the meantime, Mr. Ellwood opened the pages, and found the old gentleman's will, which has been placed in the hands of Messrs. Arnison and Co., solicitors, Penrith, and who are now in communication with the relatives. This will is entirely in order except that the witnesses cannot at present be found, and they are to be advertised for. Rumour says that Dr. Keegan left property amounting to £30,000, and that besides two local beneficiaries — the Misses Hudson, Patterdale — there are bequests to his two sisters, and Mr. Ellwood is beneficiary legatee.

Account of Attack On Regina Trench That Won the D.S.O. For Nephew of Mrs. A. Brock, City

Major Chas. B. Worsnop, of 102nd British Columbia Battalion, Indicates Difficulties Under Which His Command Carried On in a Memorable Engagement.

The following graphic account of a Canadian attack on Regina trench was written by Major Chas. B. Worsnop of the 102nd British Columbia Battalion, who is a godson of Mrs. A. Brock, Weller street. The story was included in a recent letter Major Worsnop wrote to his parents. For his work in that action he won the D.S.O. and a staff appointment.

Sunday, 12th, 11/1/16.

Dear Mater and Dad.— Just out again from a turn in the trenches, and it developed into something more than the usual this time, and yours truly came through in good shape. The usual programme is to go in and hold a certain system of trenches, cause casualties, work and improve the position, etc., and on this occasion the Colonel stayed out. He had quite a hearing time last time in.

The trenches we are in at present are in many places eight feet deep, nearly three feet deep in mud, which we try to shovel out; if anyone ever lapped sorrows with a teaspoon, this is the real McCoy, not for a yard or two, but miles of it. Our men generally work up here for about twenty-four hours and then move back a short distance into what is known as support and reserve. In this particular position, owing to the weather and shelling, the trenches are frightful, and the usual way is not to go along them at night, but to climb out and walk behind, and although the men are issued with hip-boots, we have to dig them out quite frequently and in some cases on pulling them out, off comes their boots and sometimes are lost, but fortunately boots are plentiful and generally quite close at hand (on the German dead.)

On this particular occasion our battalion went in quite weak, about 300 all ranks available for fighting, so the two companies that were in for 24 hours did not get relieved, as we had a rush order to take two objects and we needed every one for our allotted task.

How would you like to stand in mud wet through to your hips, not able to move about (with instructions to change your socks at least once a day and rub your feet with whale oil) to have only biscuits and bully beef, with 90 p.c. of the water bottles empty, and just as you are expecting relief to get word to stand by for a show. Our artillery that morning from 5.30 to 7 had plieced a heavy barrage on their front line and had chewed up the ground pretty well.

I received verbal instructions about 3.30 and written ones at 5. I went into the scheme with the company captains and the general stood by while I gave them their instructions and did not interfere with my plans, which were changed by local conditions from the ones I received. I had to bring in two more companies on the left half battalion, give them bombs, and get them in position and ready to move at given hour, 12 midnight in this case. It was a long time between 5 p.m. when the officers left me with the G.O.C. and we sat and talked and waited. The artillery opened an awful roar at 12 and it kept up for about three hours. You see this barrage business means hammering one particular locality for a certain time, lifting so many yards for so long and so on. This time was 8 minutes on their front line and then a lift of 150 yards. Reports began coming in about two and from then on. It had been uncomfortable before, but it was hell now.

Bewildered men, who had been isolated, came in with most weird stories. "We had taken our objective,' 'we hadn't," "we had run out of bombs," "out of ammunition," "of lead and wounded," "of counter attacks," "of artillery retaliation," "of no one to tell them what to do of this and that, and no good anywhere." However, we kept our heads; written reports now came in. I am quoting: 'We are still holding trench, but opposite C. Co." "The enemy are massed for attack." We have no machine guns that are in action, mud is terrible in trenches and the men are all played out; send assistance. O. C. 4," and then perhaps one not quite as bad, then one stating that the officers of C Co. were out of action (one dead—not true.) Then I had to use my head, and fortunately I did the right thing. I sent over a chap, Lieutentant Lister, of Cranbrooke, who had been in from the first and had charge of a carrying party, and placed him in charge. The frantic calls for help I had answered by sending over 30 men carrying ammunition, and in no time things settle down, and reports worth while came in. Lister, knowing we must be anxious, came in himself for a minute, gave us his distance of trench he had taken and also the other company. He now returned and sent back the twenty men saying he did not need them. One could not have done it better for oneself. He was grand.

Our artillery started a heavy barrage again at 5.30 to 7, when it lifted again at 8. I sent out Major Cary (with us now from the 67th B.C. Electric Engineers, Jordan River) for a personal reconnaisance, as I had to stand by in case of trouble. He was in by 9 and reported every one happy, working hard, burying and carrying wounded, but everyone too damned friendly. So out I went, not a shot being fired, so I went up the whole way overland, and what do you imagine I found. Some of our chaps cleaning out the trench, some gathering wounded, some had been exchanging presents with Fritz and Fritz the same with us. I jumped over the trench we had taken, posed off a bombing post 50 yards farther out, had a good look out at the enemy, sized up the situation and back to the trench. Instructed all our chaps to start hostilities as soon as possible and raise hell. I got back to headquarters and reported by 'phone to the Brigade Major and told him what I had done and what I had seen, and thought the General should be advised. I was told the General would be up to make a look, see himself, so I stopped our aggressiveness, pretended to bury the dead. There were dozens, but belonging to an old affair, and waited for the G.O.C., when we made another trip, mostly overland, but they chased us with whizz bangs. We went through the front line and talked the matter over thoroughly. I showed him the new trench we had discovered and the number in there. Oh, yes, previously I had asked him for an aircraft attack or artillery if possible. The G.O.C. decided on artillery, and later in the day they got busy. While there I spoke to the General, with Lister present and told him what I thought. The General will see he gets the D.S.O., and you know how often they are granted these days; they are like hen's teeth. Well, what had we done? We not only had accomplished our tasks, we had taken 250 yards more than our share and had repulsed three counter attacks. You ask, with this mere handful? Yes. The G. O. C. said in our presence, it was the biggest and most successful "small affair" he had ever heard of, and all the way back to Headquarters waxed most enthusiastic. We were supposed to keep in touch with the 47th on our right. They pulled us away over and in consequence we got 350 yards of their trench for them! Much to the disgust of the Brigadier of the 10th and likewise Col. Winsby. Everyone is talking over our success. Our casualties, 5 killed and 36 wounded, including Capt. Ironside, Lieuts. Matheson and Sturgeon. We inflicted heavy casualties and captured 38 prisoners from two different battalions, we captured 100 yards of front line and contro with a bombing post of 75 yards of communication trench. The General has written the Col., specially mentioning me and he himself congratulated me several times, and if you only knew General O, you would appreciate his praise. He demands a great deal and gets it.

Love to all. Look for a rest soon.

"Aladdin And His Wonderful Lamp" Coming

Famous Pantomime Will Be Seen at the Grand on Monday, Jan. 29th

Peterborough is to have its first English pantomime on Monday, Jan. 29th, when the well-known author-manager F. Stuart Whyte, presents his elaborate production of "Aladdin and his Wonderful Lamp."

"Aladdin" is a classic among pantommes founded upon the stories in the famous Arabian Nights, it takes precedence over those of less pretentious origin, such as nursery rhymes and old proverbs.

With all of its scenes laid in China and its characters Chinese, the costumes and settings admit of lavish investure and a predominance of picturesque colour schemes.

There is also another not-to-be-overlooked advantage in having the action supposedly take place in China. Many things happen in the land poppy that could not possibly happen anywhere else on the face of the globe. For instance, in the 1916-17 version of "Aladdin" there is a General Sam Fuse, in command of the Chinese Army, who is responsible for many things, including laughs. Then there is the Emperor and the Grand Vizier, who, together with a select few political henchmen, endeavour to clean out the Imperial Exchequer, and even strive to make profit out of the munitions of war, such as knives, chop-sticks, flags and rockets, at the expense of the Imperial Chinese Government. Of course this is very wrong and the malefactors are severely punished by having the crystals on their wrist watches fractured in three places.

However, there are two honest hearts in China, the possessors of them being Aladdin and the Princess Yoo-Shi, whose course of true love runs as smoothly as a nineteen-thirteen Ford on a provincial highway.

The pantomime is in five acts, or scenes, and will be presented here by a company of twenty-five distinguished artists, not to forget the perfect beauty chorus and a troupe of Jap. acrobats.

"Y" Boys Had Fine Outing On Saturday

Saturday afternoon the members of the Junior School Boys' Bible Club of the Y.M.C.A. held a most enjoyable outing to Jackson Park. A good programme of sports were run off consisting of snow shoe, ski and toboggan races. After the sports the boys had a scouting game through the woods which they thoroughly enjoyed.

At five o'clock the boys returned to the building where a good supper was waiting for them which had been provided by their parents. There are 88 boys on the Junior Bible Club roll, and 40 were on hand when the signal was given for supper.

To-night the Senior Employed Boys' Gymnasium class at 8 p.m. The attendance of this class has been very encouraging and every member is requested to be on hand at 8 p.m. sharp.

Wednesday night the Standard Efficiency Test programme will consist of an exhibition of coins, stamps, minerals, different kinds of wood, and articles in their various stage of manufacture.

The older boys of the "Y" are especially invited to be present and help make the evening a success.

DAN NOBLE

(New York World)

With the passing of 1916 the history of Dan Noble will go forever from the lead coloured cabinet at the Detective Bureau.

It was decided recently at Police Headquarters that this should be so, for word was received that Dan was dead. Once the possessor of more than $500,000 in cash, as his share of a notorious robbery, this man, at the age of 82, died a pauper. At war with society for practically his entire life, he was cared for by society at his end.

He died last November 27 at the Farm Colony, Staten Island, conducted at the expense of the city. The next day his relatives — for he has relatives of good standing in the community — ordered a quiet funeral and his burial in an up-state cemetery.

Feared and Watched.

Dan Noble in his day was feared by bankers and watched by detectives. Since his release from Auburn, December 19, 1899, he had been "good." He went to that prison in 1897 to finish a sentence imposed on him March 3, 1871. In January, 1873, he escaped from Auburn, and during the succeeding years led the police of two continents a most perplexing chase excepting when in prison in England and France.

The Pinkertons and all other detectives who in the last fifty years have been guarding bankers, always regarded Dan Noble as a man without an equal. He never participated in "small games."

One of the first big robberies was of the Royal Insurance Company in Wall street in 1866. Negotiable bonds and other property of the value of $1,700,000 were stolen. Frank Knapp and Jimmie Griffin, two well-known characters of that day, were his confederates, and all escaped to Canada. Being arrested there, Noble was indignant, and demanded they be released on bail. In this way, $75,000 went away from them.

The three stuck together, and each was supposed to have at that time $500,000 in cash, obtained by disposing of the proceeds of the robbery. They went to Elmira, where Noble tried to become an honest real estate man, but one of his pals, who disliked his airs, filed a complaint against him, alleging he had brought stolen property into Chemung County.

This led to his arrest and sentence to Auburn, from which he escaped. "Jim" Hope, who engineered the Manhattan Bank robbery, and other well-known crooks escaped with him.

The next the police learned of Noble was when he became active in London. He joined Johnny Miller, Joe Champan and Jack Phillips in circulating spurious money. He went to Paris, too, where he was concerned in a diamond robbery and sentenced to five years in a French prison, but escaped. Then he returned to England, where he was born, by the way, in 1834. There he was arrested for forgery.

Released Again.

He was sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment. He worked a "pull," through American friends, who interceded and said he was dying in prison. This brought his release in 1895.

In 1897 he returned to New York and was arrested, charged with passing a worthless check on the Fourth National Bank. Later he was identified by a former keeper of Auburn as the escaped convict.

The last public record the police have of him was in 1907, when he was a complainant in the West Side Court, where he charged a woman with stealing his dog. He said he had merely allowed her to keep the dog for him and she refused to give it up.

Noble then dropped from sight until a well-known politician of this city heard of his plight and used his influence to have him committed to the Farm Colony. Detectives said yesterday that Noble had not participated in the Manhattan Bank robbery, although there were stories that he had done so.

KITCHENER'S PATRIOTIC FUND PRESIDENT HAS RESIGNED

Mr. A. J. Williams, president of the W. G. and R. Co. of Kitchener, Ont., has resigned the presidency of the Patriotic Fund of that city. A principal factor in his decision were the recent events that had brought the City of Kitchener into somewhat questionable prominence. He was an active member of the British League, whose representatives were defeated in the recent municipal election. Under his presidency the Kitchener Patriotic Fund raised $96,000 in its first year exceeding every city of its size in Canada.

Committee of the Whole Council This Evening

Report is Being Prepared Concerning the Trip of Mayor Duffus and Ald. Dobbin Down Through the Snow-clad Hills of Vermont

A meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council will be held this evening, commencing at 8 o'clock. A voluminous report has been prepared concerning the recent trip of His Worship Mayor Duffus and Ald. F. H. Dobbin to the wilds of New York City. At noon to-day the report extended over twelve pages with a "turn rule" on the bottom of the last page, indicating that there was more to follow. Ald. Dobbin, the author, has promised to present a complimentary copy to each of the aldermen in the hope that they will peruse it and acquaint themselves with the ramifications of the New York fire department. Late this afternoon a hurry call was sent out for another thousand sheets of paper, so that the report may resemble a recent edition of "Baedeker."

MALL VOTE IN TORONTO

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

TORONTO, Jan. 22 — Indications up to 2 p.m. were that a very small vote is being polled in the Northwest Toronto Legislature by-election today, in which Hon. W. D. McPherson, Provincial Secretary, is the Government candidate, with James Cane for the Opposition. There is scarcely any doubt of Mr. McPherson's re-election.

OAK HALL CLOCK ATTRACTS ATTENTION

Mr. M. J. Maher, of the Oak Hall, reports a decided interest in Dollar Day Thursday, January 25th. The particular attraction of the Oak Hall apart from special values in men's clothing is the handsome clock which has already drawn many guesses as the hour at which it will stop.

ANTI-TRUST SUITS ARE DISMISSED

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The Supreme Court to-day dismissed without prejudice the Government anti-trust suits against the South Atlantic and Asiatic Shipping Pools, by which steamship lines were alleged to have "split up" the ocean business.

A British aviator, now in the hospital, after having been the target for many a gunner, remarked: "I'll never shoot at another bird. I know now how they feel."

The Sense of the Future

By Rev. J. H. Jowett, D.D.

"I saw the holy city, the new Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven."—Rev. xxi. 2.

This man saw the finished city when the walls had scarcely begun to rise. He gazed upon the top-stone on the day the foundation stone was laid. He lived in the city before it was built. His eyes surveyed the waving harvest when the seed was only newly sown. He ate his bread before the sheaves had been gathered in. He had a great and sacred sense of the future. He felt the days before him. He drank the stimulating wine of a glorious vintage when the vine was scarcely above the ground. He was inspired by the strength of finished purposes. He looked to the joy that was set before him. Amid the grim confinements of Patmos he saw the new Jerusalem, and he walked its bright and golden streets.

It is the sense of the coming day which gives the soul power to endure. It inspires the song which makes the nimble feet. "They talked about the city to which they were going"! Yes, and that is always the kind of communion which braces the pilgrims to meet and overcome the renewed antagonisms of the road. The social reformer, toiling amid noise and enmity, amid brick-dust and mire, must look to the city to which he is going. The patriot, often trudging over roads of pain, and sorrow, and unspeakable desolation, must hug the thought of the established righteousness, and the richer, purer freedom, which are hidden away over the horizon. We must feed our souls with the visions of the finished city, with its gleaming minarets and towers. To be imprisoned in Patmos, with no alluring glory of the holy city, is a paralysing exile; but to be in Patmos in the company of that vision is to breathe the invigorating air of home.

It is this sense of the future which we need so much to-day. Our life is bigger than the passing hour. We must relate to-day to to-morrow. The sharp, destructive sweep of the plough-share, shearing the roots of ten thousand flowers, must be related to the coming golden grain. We must link the bare, overturned clods with the harvest home! "We are saved by hope." Brave, consecrated men and women, devoting their strength to holy cases, are not moving in blind and futile circles; they are moving on God's road to ever-brightening issues. "The path of the just is as a shining light that shineth more and more, even unto perfect day." It is our wisdom to live and move and have our being in the power of that glorious expectation!

BROCK ST. RINK SKATING TO-NIGHT

Another fine crowd was on hand Saturday night for skating. The ice is in grand condition for to-night. Good band in attendance.

Be on hand while the skating lasts. Hockey nights and bad weather may take up quite a few nights from now on.

Allied Merchantmen Will be Convoyed

Examiner Special:

RIO DE JANEIRO, January 22.—Allied steamship agents to-day were discussing plans for a convoy by allied merchantmen across the seas. The project contemplates "ports of rendesvous" in Europe and South America. Under such a scheme Allied merchantmen would assemble probably at Lisbon and Pernambuco and on certain specified dates would sail under the protection of Allied warships all the way across the Atlantic. British, French and Norwegian Consul officials to-day completed the arrangements for the transfer "back home" of citizens of those nations including prisoners landed from the Hudson Maru at Pernambuco.

Many will start to return on the next outgoing steamer.

LONDON, January 22.—An official report says: "On Saturday our airplanes dropped six bombs of one hundred pounds each in and around the Turkish munitions factory in the Bagdad Citadel."

From Kut-El-Amara, on the Tigris, where the British now are, Bagdad to the northwest is about one hundred miles.

HOCKEY PLAYER IS INJURED

Jex of Port Hope Club, Stepped Off Train at Viaduct and Fell 65 Feet

A serious mishap occurred at Port Hope at 8 o'clock Saturday morning when the Port Hope hockey team were returning from Whitby, where they played Friday night. For some reason or other the train stopped on the high viaduct, previous to entering the C.P.R. station and the conductor or some person called out, "Port Hope."

Stephen Jex, the sturdy defence player on the team, grabbed his club bag and made for the door of the car. It was rank and he failed to notice that the train was some distance from the depot. Jex stepped off the train to the ground 65 feet below. When picked up he was found to be seriously injured and unconscious; also one arm was broken. He is at present in the hospital and in a precarious condition.
